History: 1953 Comp., § 13-18-2, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 256, § 2; 1977, ch. 252, § 22; 1991, ch. 155, § 2.

The 1991 amendment, effective June 14, 1991, inserted "the medical assistance division" in Subsections A and C and "the medical assistance division or the social services division" in Subsection B.

27-3-3. Fair hearing.

A. An applicant for or recipient of assistance or services under any provisions of the Public Assistance Act [27-2-1 NMSA 1978], Social Security Act or Special Medical Needs Act [27-4-1 NMSA 1978] or regulations of the board adopted pursuant to those acts may request a hearing in accordance with regulations of the board if:

(1) an application is not acted upon within a reasonable time after the filing of the application;

(2) an application is denied in whole or in part; or

(3) the assistance or services are modified, terminated or not provided.

The department shall notify the recipient or applicant of his rights under this section.

B. The board shall by regulation establish procedures for the filing of a request for a hearing and the time limits within which a request may be filed; provided, however, that the department may grant reasonable extensions of the time limits. If the request is not filed within the specified time for appeal or within whatever extension the department may grant, the department action shall be final. Upon receipt of a timely request, the department shall give the applicant or recipient reasonable notice of an opportunity for a fair hearing in accordance with the regulations of the board.

C. The hearing shall be conducted by a hearing officer designated by the director. The powers of the hearing officer shall include administering oaths or affirmations to witnesses called to testify, taking testimony, examining witnesses, admitting or excluding evidence and reopening any hearing to receive additional evidence. The technical rules of evidence and the rules of civil procedure shall not apply. The hearing shall be conducted so that the contentions or defenses of each party to the hearing are amply and fairly presented. Either party may be represented by counsel or other representative of his designation, and he or his representative may conduct cross-examination. Any oral or documentary evidence may be received, but the hearing officer may exclude irrelevant, immaterial or unduly repetitious evidence.

D. The director shall review the record of the proceedings and shall make a decision thereon. The applicant or recipient or his representative shall be notified in writing of the director's decision and the reasons for the decision. The written notice shall inform the applicant or recipient of his right to judicial review. The department shall be responsible for assuring that the decision is enforced.

Cross references. — For the federal Social Security Act, see 42 U.S.C.S. § 301 et seq.

The 1991 amendment, effective June 14, 1991, in Subsection A, substituted "Social Security Act" for "Social Services Act" near the beginning and added "or not provided" at the end of Paragraph (3) and made minor stylistic changes in Subsections A and D.

ANNOTATIONS

Judicial review. — In reviewing an administrative decision, the courts must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the decision. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs. v. Tapia, 1982-NMSC-033, 97 N.M. 632, 642 P.2d 1091.

Consideration of evidence not presented to the original caseworker. — Regardless of whether the original caseworker had access to the evidence, a hearing officer should consider new evidence that tends to establish eligibility at the time of the original denial of benefits. Carter v. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't, 2009-NMCA-063, 146 N.M. 422, 211 P.3d 219.

Consideration of evidence not presented to the original caseworker. — Where a case worker formally denied the petitioner's application for medicaid benefits on February 9, 2006, because the petitioner's bank statements for November and December 2005 showed that the petitioner was financially ineligible to receive benefits; at the administrative hearing on the petitioner's appeal, the petitioner introduced the petitioner's bank statement for February 2006, which showed that the petitioner was financially eligible for benefits; the hearing officer did not consider the February statement because the bank statement had not been considered by the case worker; and the hearing officer affirmed the caseworker's denial of the petitioner's application for benefits, the hearing officer should have considered the petitioner's February bank statement, because the bank statement tended to establish the petitioner's eligibility for benefits on February 1, 2006, as provided by 8.281.500.10 NMAC, prior to the denial of the petitioner's application on February 9, 2006. Carter v. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't, 2009-NMCA-063, 146 N.M. 422, 211 P.3d 219.

Right to hearing. — Medicaid recipient's allegations of both a past lack of success with the type of conventional therapy offered by her HMO and a history of successful treatment by licensed physicians employing non-conventional therapy were sufficient to entitle her to a fair hearing to determine whether her HMO in fact has contracted with providers having the necessary qualifications to provide her with appropriate treatment. Hyden v. Human Servs. Dep't, 2000-NMCA-107, 130 N.M. 19, 16 P.3d 444.

Medical assistance division does not have the authority to resolve discrimination claims. — Where petitioner, a member of a managed care organization (MCO) that contracts with the human services department (HSD) to administer the provision of medicaid benefits and services, including non-emergency medical transportation, to eligible members, made requests of the MCO, pursuant to Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA Title II) and Section 504 of the federal Rehabilitation Act, for certain accommodations in the provision of transportation services, and where the MCO denied petitioner's request for reasonable accommodations in accessing medicaid services, and where petitioner requested a fair hearing to appeal the failure of the MCO and HSD to grant her reasonable accommodations in medicaid transportation services, the district court did not err in affirming HSD's medical assistance division's (division) dismissal of the matter, because neither the Public Assistance Act nor the Medicaid Act relied on by petitioner expressly grants the division the power to resolve discrimination claims raised by a medicaid beneficiary challenging an agency's denial or inaction in response to a request for accommodation, nor is any such power vested in the division by any regulation promulgated under state law. Law v. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't, 2019-NMCA-066, cert. denied.

Requirement that medical reports evidence be available for examination. — Since medical reports are written information, they cannot be made a part of a hearing record or be used in making a decision on the case unless they have been made available for examination prior to or during the hearing. Hillman v. Health & Soc. Servs. Dep't, 1979-NMCA-007, 92 N.M. 480, 590 P.2d 179.

Consideration of report not properly admitted into evidence held harmless error. — Where a report is not available to recipient before the hearing is concluded, and is not properly admitted into evidence, consideration of this report by the hearing officer violates the program manual but where the report does no more than agree with previous reports of specialists, which were properly in evidence and which provide substantial support for the decision to terminate benefits, consideration of the report is harmless error. State ex rel. Human Servs. Dep't v. Gomez, 1982-NMSC-153, 99 N.M. 261, 657 P.2d 117.

Termination of benefits cannot be based upon information outside record. Hillman v. Health & Soc. Servs. Dep't, 1979-NMCA-007, 92 N.M. 480, 590 P.2d 179.

Termination hearing must protect claimant's opportunity to present case. — Any decision terminating a claimant's benefits must be based on a hearing which fully protects the claimant's opportunity to present his case; specifically, the option to examine all medical reports prior to or during the hearing. Hillman v. Health & Soc. Servs. Dep't, 1979-NMCA-007, 92 N.M. 480, 590 P.2d 179.

Hearing conducted by telephone not denial of due process. — A recipient of welfare benefits is not deprived of due process because his termination hearing is conducted by telephone and not in the presence of a hearing officer who can observe his demeanor. State ex rel. Human Servs. Dep't v. Gomez, 1982-NMSC-153, 99 N.M. 261, 657 P.2d 117.

Reasons for decision. — Although the director signed a form paragraph entitled "Final Decision" and inserted a check mark indicating "[d]ecided in favor of Dept.," his signature and the check mark failed to comply with Subsection D because they did not indicate the reason for his decision. Specifically, the director failed to indicate whether he adopted or approved the findings and conclusions of the hearing officer or whether he reached his decision on some other basis. Green v. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't, 1988-NMCA-083, 107 N.M. 628, 762 P.2d 915.

Burden on department to inform about subsequent hearing opportunities. — The burden of informing an applicant/recipient of the opportunity to present his case in light of new medical reports and social summaries at subsequent hearings is placed upon the department. Hillman v. Health & Soc. Servs. Dep't, 1979-NMCA-007, 92 N.M. 480, 590 P.2d 179.

No duty to inform of right to reapply. — There is nothing in the statutes or regulations that would impose upon the department the duty to inform an applicant to reapply for benefits. Landavazo v. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs., 1988-NMCA-002, 106 N.M. 715, 749 P.2d 538.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Subsequent change of circumstance. — Where an applicant's application for food stamp benefits was originally denied by the county office because the resource maximum for his household was exceeded by the value of his vehicle, and he then modified his vehicle to accommodate his physical handicap, so as to exclude it from consideration as a resource, this modification constituted a changed condition or circumstance subsequent to the original denial of his application, so that the hearing officer did not err in refusing to consider this evidence. The applicant's proper remedy was to reapply for benefits. Landavazo v. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs., 1988-NMCA-002, 106 N.M. 715, 749 P.2d 538.

Department is bound by its own regulations. Hillman v. Health & Soc. Servs. Dep't, 1979-NMCA-007, 92 N.M. 480, 590 P.2d 179.

Notice of right of review. — This section provides for joint notice of decision and notice of the right of review, and, consequently, the notice of the right of review can be sent to a representative who has represented the applicant at the hearing and who receives notice of the director's decision. James v. N.M. Human Serv. Dep't, 1987-NMCA-105, 106 N.M. 318, 742 P.2d 530, cert. quashed, 106 N.M. 353, 742 P.2d 1058.

Tardy notice of appeal. — An applicant may not rely on inaccurate information in her notification from the director under this section as to the time for taking an appeal to excuse the tardy filing of her notice of appeal. James v. N.M. Human Serv. Dep't, 1987-NMCA-105, 106 N.M. 318, 742 P.2d 530, cert. quashed, 106 N.M. 353, 742 P.2d 1058.

Scope of judicial review of "fair hearing" decision. — A judicial review of a "fair hearing" decision is not limited to whether the department's representative proceeded properly on the basis of information known prior to the "fair hearing". On the contrary, the evidence that is considered is the evidence contained in the record of the entire "fair hearing." Cruz v. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs., 1983-NMCA-080, 100 N.M. 133, 666 P.2d 1280 (decided prior to 1999 amendment to Section 27-3-4 NMSA 1978).

27-3-4. Appeal.

Within thirty days after receiving written notice of the decision of the director pursuant to Section 27-3-3 NMSA 1978, an applicant or recipient may file a notice of appeal with the district court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-18-4, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 256, § 4; 1998, ch. 55, § 37; 1999, ch. 265, § 39.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, substituted "Section 39-3-1.1" for "Section 12-8A-1".

The 1998 amendment, effective September 1, 1998, rewrote this section to the extent that a detailed comparison is impracticable.

ANNOTATIONS

Time for filing notice of appeal. — Because the requirement of the time for filing notice of an appeal from a decision of an administrative board or agency lies within the supreme court's rule-making authority, and because such timing is now covered by Rule 12-601A NMRA, requiring filing notice within 30 days of the decision appealed from, not this section, requiring filing notice within 30 days of receipt of written notice of the decision, governs. James v. N.M. Human Serv. Dep't, 1987-NMCA-105, 106 N.M. 318, 742 P.2d 530 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Review of administrative decisions where whole record considered. — Because of the minor departure from the customary substantial evidence rule in reviewing administrative decisions where the record as a whole must be considered, the reviewing court may act on other convincing evidence in the record and may make its own findings based thereon. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't v. Garcia, 1980-NMSC-025, 94 N.M. 175, 608 P.2d 151 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

In reviewing an administrative decision, the courts must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the decision. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs. v. Tapia, 1982-NMSC-033, 97 N.M. 632, 642 P.2d 1091 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

In order to determine whether a decision by the human services department is supported by substantial evidence in the record as a whole, the court must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the decision by the human services department; this does not permit accepting part of the evidence and totally disregarding other convincing evidence in the record considered as a whole. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't v. Garcia, 1980-NMSC-025, 94 N.M. 175, 608 P.2d 151 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

The court of appeals does not reweigh the evidence nor resolve any conflicts in evidence. If there is substantial evidence on which a reasonable mind would have made such a decision, the court should affirm the administrative officer's decision. Montoya v. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't, 1989-NMCA-017, 108 N.M. 263, 771 P.2d 196 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Nonincome producing property not bar to benefits. — When the evidence shows that the property cannot be utilized to produce income and a sale of the property would produce no income, the applicants for public assistance are eligible for benefits; therefore, the department's decision to deny aid to families with dependent children benefits has no support in the record. Robnett v. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs. Income Support Div., 1979-NMCA-099, 93 N.M. 245, 599 P.2d 398 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Denial of benefits based upon substantial evidence. — Substantial evidence in the record as a whole supported the human services department's denial of aid to families with dependent children benefits where the natural father could provide support. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't v. Garcia, 1980-NMSC-025, 94 N.M. 175, 608 P.2d 151 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Arbitrary and capricious action by administrative agency is evident when it can be said that such action is unreasonable or does not have a rational basis and is the result of an unconsidered, willful and irrational choice of conduct, and not the result of a winnowing and sifting process. Garcia v. N.M. Human Servs. Dep't, 1979-NMCA-071, 94 N.M. 178, 608 P.2d 154, rev'd on other grounds, 1980-NMSC-025, 94 N.M. 175, 608 P.2d 151 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Failure to give notice of reason for reduction in benefits. — The action of the department in not giving notice to a recipient of the reason why her benefits were reduced invalidates the decision of the department. Taylor v. Department of Human Servs., 1982-NMCA-107, 98 N.M. 314, 648 P.2d 353 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Failure of department to consider certain relevant medical evidence found to be arbitrary, capricious and not in accordance with law. Saenz v. New Mexico Dep't of Human Servs., 1982-NMCA-159, 98 N.M. 805, 653 P.2d 181 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

Correct decision reached for wrong reason not reversed. — A correct decision of the department will not be reversed because the result was reached for the wrong reason where the court finds another valid basis for that result. Melton v. N.M. Dep't of Human Servs., 1981-NMCA-130, 97 N.M. 102, 637 P.2d 52 (decided prior to 1999 amendment).

27-3-5. [Expenditures for programs.]

Nothing in the Public Assistance Act [27-2-1 NMSA 1978] or the Fair Hearing Act shall be construed as authorizing or allowing expenditures for the affected programs in excess of the amounts previously appropriated by the legislature for such programs.

D. "person with a disability" means a person who has attained the age of eighteen years and is determined to have a permanent and total disability, according to regulations of the division; and

E. "blind person" means a person who is determined to be blind according to regulations of the division.

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-15-2, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 311, § 2; 1977, ch. 252, § 20; 2007, ch. 46, § 20.

The 2007 amendment, effective June 15, 2007, made non-substantive language changes.

27-4-3. Persons with special needs.

A. The division shall by regulation establish a program to provide essential medical care for persons who are elderly or blind or who have a disability and who are not eligible for public assistance under the Public Assistance Act [27-2-1 NMSA 1978] and who have a serious medical condition that will as a reasonable medical probability lead to death in the near future.

B. Such medical condition shall be certified by an individual licensed under state law to practice medicine or osteopathy. The medical care shall be reviewed and approved according to regulations of the division.

27-4-5. Eligibility requirements.

A person is eligible for medical care under the Special Medical Needs Act [27-4-1 NMSA 1978] if:

A. pursuant to Section 27-4-4 NMSA 1978, the total amount of his nonexempt income is less than the applicable standard of need; and

B. nonexempt specific and total resources are less than the level of maximum permissible resources established by the board; and

C. he meets all qualifications for persons with special needs, pursuant to Section 27-4-3 NMSA 1978; and

D. within two years immediately prior to the filing of an application for assistance, he has not made an assignment or transfer of real property unless he has received a reasonable return for the real property; or, if he has not received such reasonable return, he is willing to attempt to obtain such return and, if such attempt proves futile, he is willing to attempt to regain title to the property; and

Chapter 27, Article 5 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act".

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-2-12, enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 1; 1993, ch. 321, § 1.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, substituted "Chapter 27, Article 5 NMSA 1978" for "This act" and "and County Health Care" for "Claims".

Compiler's notes. — Section 13-2-21, 1953 Comp., authorizing suit against a county on hospital claim with judgment to be collected through a levy, was held unconstitutional in Board of Dirs. of Mem. Gen. Hosp. v. County Indigent Hosp. Claims Bd., 77 N.M. 475, 423 P.2d 994 (1967). The court held that the provision was an unconstitutional attempt to circumvent N.M. Const., art. VIII, § 2 since such a judgment would not create a "public debt" and thus did not fall within exception to constitutional limitation on property tax levies. See also 1968 Op. Att'y Gen. C. to recognize that the counties of the state can improve the provision of health care to indigent patients by providing local revenues for countywide or multicounty health planning.

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-2-13, enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 2; 1971, ch. 72, § 1; 1983, ch. 234, § 1; 1987, ch. 88, § 1; 1993, ch. 321, § 2; 1997, ch. 51, § 1; 2014, ch. 79, § 4.

The 2014 amendment, effective March 12, 2014, clarified the obligations of counties to support the state's medicaid program; in Subsection A, after "ambulance transportation", deleted "or the", after "domiciled in that county", deleted "for at least three months or for such period of time, not in excess of three months", after "board of county commissioners", deleted language which provided that a county had a responsibility to discharge its responsibilities by payment to providers, hospitals and health care providers for the care and treatment of indigent patients, and added "in addition to providing for the state's medicaid program"; and in Subsection B, after "state medicaid program", deleted "including the provision of matching funds for payments to sole community provider hospitals" and added "pursuant to Section 7-20E-9 NMSA 1978".

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, rewrote Subsection A and added Subsection C.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, substituted "and County Health Care" for "Claims" in the section heading and near the beginning of the section; added the Subsection A designation in the existing provisions and added Subsection B, making a related grammatical change; and in Subsection A, substituted "or the provision of the health care to" for "of the" near the beginning and "hospitals or health care providers for actual cost incurred for" for "or hospitals for actual cost incurred as the result of ambulance transportation provided for or" near the end.

ANNOTATIONS

Insurance for indigent patients. — A county lacks the authority, either expressly or by necessary implication, under the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act to purchase individual health insurance policies for indigent patients using revenues from the county indigent hospital claims fund [county health care assistance fund] or to enroll indigent patients in the state coverage insurance program and pay premiums and co-payment amounts from the county indigent fund. 2007 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 07-05.

"Hospital care". — The term "hospital care", as referred to in Subsection A, encompasses mental health treatment provided by a county hospital to indigent residents of the county. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 88-64.

Individuals committed under statutory involuntary commitment. — Individuals committed to private or county-operated facilities under statutory involuntary commitment procedures are responsible for their hospital expenses, and eligible hospitals treating indigent patients may look to the applicable county for reimbursement under the Indigent Hospital Claims Act. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 89-35.

27-5-3. Public assistance provisions.

A. A hospital shall not be paid from the fund under the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act for costs of an indigent patient for services that have been determined by the department to be eligible for medicaid reimbursement.

B. No action for collection of claims under the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act shall be allowed against an indigent patient who is medicaid eligible for medicaid covered services, nor shall action be allowed against the person who is legally responsible for the care of the indigent patient during the time that person is medicaid eligible.

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-2-14, enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 3; 1984, ch. 101, § 1; 1993, ch. 321, § 3; 2003, ch. 413, § 1; 2014, ch. 79, § 5.

The 2014 amendment, effective March 12, 2014, eliminated the authority to transfer funds to the sole community provider fund or the county-supported medicaid fund; and in Subsection A, deleted the former second sentence which permitted counties to transfer funds to the sole community provider fund or the county-supported medicaid fund.

The 2003 amendment, effective June 20, 2003, in Subsection A, deleted "county indigent hospital claims" following "from the" twice, deleted "any" following "Care Act for", deleted "human services" following "determined by the", and deleted "from that department" following "for Medicaid reimbursement".

The 1993 amendment, effective on the date that the human services department is notified in writing that the amendment to the state medicaid plan has been approved by the federal health care financing administration, rewrote the section heading and Subsection A, and substituted "and County Health Care" for "Claims"and "medicaid eligible for medicaid covered services" and "medicaid eligible" for "a welfare recipient" in Subsection B.

Compiler's notes. — Subsection A of § 22, Laws 1993, ch. 321, provides that §§ 3, 6, 10, 15, 16 and 18 (27-5-3, 27-5-6, 27-5-6.1, 27-5-7.1, 27-5-11 and 27-5-12.2 NMSA 1978) are effective the date that the human services department is notified in writing that the amendment to the state medicaid plan has been approved by the federal health care financing administration. The human services department was advised by letter dated May 20, 1993, that the United States Department of Health and Human Services had approved the amendment of New Mexico's medicaid plan "to add a payment provision for sole community hospitals (SCH), effective July 1, 1993, and a payment provision for indirect medical education (IME) costs incurred by teaching hospitals, effective August 1, 1992". Chapter 321, Laws 1993, contained an emergency clause. The human services department published notice of the approval in the New Mexican on June 21, 1993.

27-5-4. Definitions.

As used in the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act:

A. "ambulance provider" or "ambulance service" means a specialized carrier based within the state authorized under provisions and subject to limitations as provided in individual carrier certificates issued by the public regulation commission to transport persons alive, dead or dying en route by means of ambulance service. The rates and charges established by public regulation commission tariff shall govern as to allowable cost. Also included are air ambulance services approved by the county. The air ambulance service charges shall be filed and approved pursuant to Subsection D of Section 27-5-6 NMSA 1978 and Section 27-5-11 NMSA 1978;

B. "cost" means all allowable costs of providing health care services, to the extent determined by resolution of a county, for an indigent patient. Allowable costs shall be based on medicaid fee-for-service reimbursement rates for hospitals, licensed medical doctors and osteopathic physicians;

C. "county" means a county except a class A county with a county hospital operated and maintained pursuant to a lease or operating agreement with a state educational institution named in Article 12, Section 11 of the constitution of New Mexico;

D. "department" means the human services department;

E. "fund" means a county health care assistance fund;

F. "health care services" means treatment and services designed to promote improved health in the county indigent population, including primary care, prenatal care, dental care, behavioral health care, alcohol or drug detoxification and rehabilitation, hospital care, provision of prescription drugs, preventive care or health outreach services, to the extent determined by resolution of the county;

G. "indigent patient" means a person to whom an ambulance service, a hospital or a health care provider has provided medical care, ambulance transportation or health care services and who can normally support the person's self and the person's dependents on present income and liquid assets available to the person but, taking into consideration the person's income, assets and requirements for other necessities of life for the person and the person's dependents, is unable to pay the cost of the ambulance transportation or medical care administered or both; provided that if a definition of "indigent patient" is adopted by a county in a resolution, the definition shall not include any person whose annual income together with that person's spouse's annual income totals an amount that is fifty percent greater than the per capita personal income for New Mexico as shown for the most recent year available in the survey of current business published by the United States department of commerce. "Indigent patient" includes a minor who has received ambulance transportation or medical care or both and whose parent or the person having custody of that minor would qualify as an indigent patient if transported by ambulance, admitted to a hospital for care or treated by a health care provider;

H. "medicaid eligible" means a person who is eligible for medical assistance from the department;

I. "planning" means the development of a countywide or multicounty health plan to improve and fund health services in the county based on the county's needs assessment and inventory of existing services and resources and that demonstrates coordination between the county and state and local health planning efforts;

J. "public entity" means a state, local or tribal government or other political subdivision or agency of that government; and

K. "qualifying hospital" means an acute care general hospital licensed by the department of health that is qualified to receive payments from the safety net care pool pursuant to an agreement with the federal centers for medicare and medicaid services.

27-5-5.2. Nondiscrimination; indigent patients.

Qualifying hospitals and hospitals with which a county contracts to provide for the services of indigent patients shall provide those services for indigent patients, including financial assistance, to all non-citizens, regardless of immigration status, if they meet all other qualifying criteria for such services.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 127, § 4.

Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 127 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-5-6. Powers and duties of counties relating to indigent care.

A county:

A. may budget for expenditure on ambulance services, burial expenses, hospital or medical expenses for indigent residents of that county and for costs of development of a countywide or multicounty health plan. The combined costs of administration and planning shall not exceed the following percentages of revenues based on the previous fiscal year revenues for a fund that has existed for at least one fiscal year or based on projected revenues for the year being budgeted for a fund that has existed for less than one fiscal year. The percentage of the revenues in the fund that may be used for such combined administrative and planning costs is equal to the sum of the following:

(1) ten percent of the amount of the revenues in the fund not over five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000);

(2) eight percent of the amount of the revenues in the fund over five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) but not over one million dollars ($1,000,000); and

(3) four and one-half percent of the amount of the revenues in the fund over one million dollars ($1,000,000);

B. may accept contributions of public funds for county health care services, which shall be deposited in the fund;

C. may hire personnel to carry out the provisions of the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act;

A. The "safety net care pool fund" is created in the state treasury. The safety net care pool fund, which shall be administered by the department, shall consist of public funds provided through intergovernmental transfers from counties or other public entities and transferred from counties pursuant to Section 16 of this 2014 act [27-5-6.2 NMSA 1978]. Money in the fund shall be invested by the state treasurer as other state funds are invested. Any unexpended or unencumbered balance remaining in the fund at the end of any fiscal year shall not revert.

B. Money in the safety net care pool fund is appropriated to the department to make payments to qualifying hospitals. No safety net care pool fund payments or money in the safety net care pool fund shall be used to supplant any general fund support for the state medicaid program.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 321, § 18; 2012, ch. 18, § 2; 2014, ch. 79, § 8.

The 2014 amendment, effective March 12, 2014, replaced the sole community provider fund with the safety net care pool fund; in the catchline, deleted "Sole community provider" and added "Safety net care pool"; in Subsection A, in the first sentence, after "The", deleted "sole community provider" and added "safety net care pool", in the second sentence, after "The", deleted "sole community provider" and added "safety net care pool", after "shall consist of", added "public", after "funds provided", deleted "by counties", and after "or other public funds or expenditures determined by the department and the federal government as allowable to match federal funds for medicaid sole community provider hospital payments" and added "and transferred from counties pursuant to Section 16 of this 2014 act"; in Subsection B, in the first sentence, after "Money in the", deleted the "sole community provider" and added "safety net care pool", and after "department to make", deleted "sole community provider hospital", after "department to make payments", deleted "pursuant to the state medicaid program" and added "to qualifying hospitals", and in the second sentence, after "No", deleted "sole community provider hospital" and added "safety net care pool fund", and after "money in the", deleted "sole community provider" and added "safety net pool"; and deleted former Subsection C, which provided for the return of money in the sole community provider fund if federal medicaid matching funds were not received for medicaid sole community provider hospital payments.

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 19, provided that on March 12, 2014, all money in the sole community provider fund shall be transferred to the safety net care pool fund and all money in a county's indigent hospital claims fund shall be transferred to the county's health care assistance fund.

Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 21, provided that the human services department seek funds to fully fund the safety net care pool fund.

The 2012 amendment, effective March 1, 2012, provided for funds that may be counted in the county contribution for support of sole community provider payments; in Subsection A, in the second sentence added "sole community provider"; changed "human services department" to "department"; and after "funds provided by counties", added "through intergovernmental transfers from counties, other public entities or other public funds or expenditures determined by the department and the federal government as allowable"; and in Subsection B, changed "human services department" to "department".

27-5-6.2. Transfer to safety net care pool fund.

A. A county shall, by ordinance to be effective July 1, 2014, dedicate to the safety net care pool fund an amount equal to a gross receipts tax rate of one-twelfth percent applied to the taxable gross receipts reported during the prior fiscal year by persons engaging in business in the county. For purposes of this subsection, a county may use public funds from any existing authorized revenue source of the county.

B. A county enacting an ordinance pursuant to Subsection A of this section shall transfer to the safety net care pool fund by the last day of March, June, September and December of each year an amount equal to one-fourth of the county's payment to the safety net care pool fund.

27-5-7. Health care assistance fund.

A. There is created in the county treasury of each county a "health care assistance fund".

B. Collections under the levy made pursuant to the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act and all payments shall be placed into the fund, and the amount placed in the fund shall be budgeted and expended only for the purposes specified in the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act, by warrant upon vouchers approved by the county. Payments for indigent hospitalizations shall not be made from any other county fund.

C. The fund shall be audited in the manner that other state and county funds are audited, and all records of payments and verified statements of qualification upon which payments were made from the fund shall be open to the public.

D. Any balance remaining in the fund at the end of the fiscal year shall carry over into the ensuing year, and that balance shall be taken into consideration in the determination of the ensuing year's budget and certification of need for purposes of making a tax levy.

E. Money may be transferred to the fund from other sources, but no transfers may be made from the fund for any purpose other than those specified in the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act.

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-2-18, enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 7; 1991, ch. 212, § 21; 1992, ch. 31, § 1; 1993, ch. 321, § 7; 1996, ch. 29, § 4; 1998, ch. 71, § 1; 1999, ch. 188, § 1; 2014, ch. 79, § 9.

The 2014 amendment, effective March 12, 2014, changed the name of the fund from the county indigent hospital claims fund to the health care assistance fund; in the catchline, deleted "County indigent hospital claim" and added "Health care assistance"; in Subsection A, after the "each county a", deleted "county indigent hospital claims" and added "health care assistance"; in Subsection B, in the first sentence, after "vouchers approved by", deleted "a majority of the board and signed by the chairman of the board" and added "the county".

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 19, provided that on March 12, 2014, all money in the sole community provider fund shall be transferred to the safety net care pool fund and all money in a county's indigent hospital claims fund shall be transferred to the county's health care assistance fund.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, deleted "pursuant to Subsection F of this section" following "fiscal year" in Subsection D and deleted former Subsection F, relating to the transfer of excessive medicaid funds.

The 1998 amendment, effective May 20, 1998, in Subsection F, substituted "2000" for "1998" in the first sentence and deleted the former second sentence which read: "Beginning in 1998, the transfer shall be made by September 1 of each fiscal year".

The 1996 amendment, effective May 15, 1996, substituted "Subsection F" for "Subsections F and G", in Subsection D and substituted "1998" for "1996" twice in Subsection F.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, substituted "and County Health Care" for "Claims" in two places in the first sentence of Subsection B and in Subsection E; substituted "Payments" for "Contributions" in the first sentence of Subsection B; inserted "pursuant to Subsections F and G of this section" in Subsection D and deleted the former second and third sentences of that subsection, which related to transfers and payments from the fund in the eightieth and eighty-first fiscal years; and added Subsection F.

The 1992 amendment, effective May 20, 1992, deleted "county indigent hospital claims" preceding "fund" at the second instance of that term in Subsection B and at the first instance of that term in Subsections C, D, and E; and in Subsection D, made a section reference substitution and inserted "except voluntary contributions made during the eightieth and eighty-first fiscal years" and added the last sentence.

The 1991 amendment, effective July 1, 1991, added the second sentence in Subsection D and made minor stylistic changes throughout the section.

ANNOTATIONS

Mill levy funds used for indigent medical care. — Colfax County could not use mill levy funds to provide indigent medical care for its non-miner residents admitted to miners' hospital, a state-owned and operated facility, where such funds were not proceeds in the county indigent hospital claims fund [county health care assistance fund] but instead were proceeds from another county fund. The county could, however, use any proceeds in the indigent hospital claims fund to provide medical care for indigent patients at the miners' hospital if they otherwise qualify. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 88-41.

27-5-7.1. County health care assistance fund; authorized uses of the fund.

A. The fund may be used to pay for:

(1) expenses of burial or cremation of an indigent person;

(2) ambulance transportation, hospital care and health care services for indigent patients; or

(5) [(3)] county administrative expenses associated with fund expenditures authorized in Paragraphs of this subsection.

B. The fund may be used to meet a county's obligation under Section 27-10-4 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 321, § 16; 2001, ch. 307, § 2; 2014, ch. 79, § 10.

The 2014 amendment, effective March 12, 2014, specified the health care costs that may be paid from the health care assistance fund; in the catchline, after "County", deleted "indigent hospital claims" and added "health care assistance"; in Subsection A, after "The fund", deleted "shall" and added "may"; in Subsection A, deleted former Paragraph (1), which required money in the fund to be used to meet the county's contribution for support of sole community provider payments; in Subsection A, deleted former Paragraph (3), which required money in the fund be used to pay approved claims that are not matched with federal funds under the state medicaid program; and in Subsection A, added new Paragraphs (2) and (5)[(3)].

Compiler's notes. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

The governor partially vetoed Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 10. In Subsection A, the governor vetoed Paragraphs (3) and (4) which provided:

"(3) all or a portion of the monthly premiums of health insurance policies for indigent patients;

(4) all or a portion of the out-of-pocket costs, including copayments and deductibles, incurred by indigent patient insureds pursuant to the terms of a health insurance policy;"

The 2001 amendment, effective June 15, 2001, inserted the current Paragraph A(2), redesignated the subsequent paragraph; and deleted Subsection C.

Compiler's notes. — Subsection A of § 22, Laws 1993, ch. 321, provides that §§ 3, 6, 10, 15, 16 and 18 (27-5-3, 27-5-6, 27-5-6.1, 27-5-7.1, 27-5-11 and 27-5-12.2 NMSA 1978) are effective the date that the human services department is notified in writing that the amendment to the state medicaid plan has been approved by the federal health care financing administration. The human services department was advised by letter dated May 20, 1993, that the United States Department of Health and Human Services had approved the amendment of New Mexico's medicaid plan "to add a payment provision for sole community hospitals (SCH), effective July 1, 1993, and a payment provision for indirect medical education (IME) costs incurred by teaching hospitals, effective August 1, 1992". Chapter 321, Laws 1993, contained an emergency clause. The human services department published notice of the approval in the New Mexican on June 21, 1993.

27-5-8. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 22 repealed 27-5-8 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 8, relating to board certification to county commissioners, effective March 12, 2014. For provisions of former section, see the 2013 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-5-9. Tax levies authorized.

A. Subject to the provisions of Subsection B of this section, the board of county commissioners, upon the certification of the county as to the amount needed to provide health care to indigent residents of the county or to support the state's medicaid program, shall impose a levy against the net taxable value, as that term is defined in the Property Tax Code [Articles 35 through 38 of Chapter 7 NMSA 1978], of the property in the county sufficient to raise the amount certified by the county.

B. The question of imposing an indigent and medicaid health care levy for the purpose of the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act shall be submitted to the electors and voted upon as a separate question at the next subsequent general election or any special election called prior thereto for such purpose.

C. Upon finding by the board of county commissioners that an election will be necessary, the board of county commissioners shall meet and order an election to be held at a designated time in the county upon the question of imposing an indigent and medicaid health care levy for the purpose of the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act in the county. If the question is to be voted upon at a special election, the election shall be held not less than thirty nor more than fifty days after the finding, but in no event shall the election be held within fifty days preceding or succeeding any general election held in the county. The order for the election shall be made a part of the official minutes of the board of county commissioners. A copy of the order shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county at least fifteen days before the date set for the election, and an affidavit of publication shall be obtained. At least five days prior to the date for holding the election, the board of county commissioners shall publish in a newspaper of general circulation in the county and post in five conspicuous places in the county a notice of election, which shall be in substantially the following form:

"NOTICE OF ELECTION ON SPECIAL INDIGENT AND MEDICAID HEALTH CARE LEVY

Notice is given on the _____ day of _____, 20____, there will be held in _____ county of New Mexico an election on the question of imposing an indigent and medicaid health care levy to provide health care to indigent residents of the county or to support the state's medicaid program, such levy to be made annually against the taxable value of the property in the county and limited to an amount sufficient to provide funds necessary to support the state's medicaid program or to provide health care to indigent residents of the county who do not qualify for medicaid.

Official Title of the Authority".

The election shall be held on the date specified in the notice and shall be, if a special election, conducted and canvassed in substantially the same manner as general elections are conducted and canvassed in the county; provided that the ballot used in any election shall be a special and separate ballot and shall be in substantially the following form:

"BALLOT

On the question of imposing an indigent and medicaid health care levy for the purposes of the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act, such levy to be made annually against the taxable value of the property in _____ county of New Mexico, and limited to an amount sufficient to provide funds budgeted and certified as necessary for health care for indigent residents of the county in addition to those services provided by the state or to support the state's medicaid program:

FOR THE LEVY.....____

AGAINST THE LEVY.....____".

D. If the electors vote in favor of an indigent and medicaid health care levy, the levy shall become effective in the same manner prescribed by law for all levies upon property within that county, and a levy for those purposes in such an amount as will provide sufficient money for the fund shall be made for each year thereafter.

E. Any board of county commissioners that has, prior to the effective date of this section, made a valid imposition of a property tax for the purpose of the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act shall not be required to hold an election on the existing tax, and that tax may be imposed and continue to be imposed in accordance with the provisions of law existing at the time of its imposition. However, if any such tax is not imposed in a given property tax year or if the authorization for its imposition terminates or expires, the election requirements of Subsections B and C of this section shall apply to any subsequent proposed imposition of a property tax for indigent health care for county residents or to support the state's medicaid program.

Repeals. — Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 22 repealed 27-5-10 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 11, relating to subrogation of claim, effective March 12, 2014. For provisions of former section, see the 2013 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-5-11. Qualifying hospital duties and reporting.

A. A qualifying hospital shall accept every indigent patient who seeks health care services from the qualifying hospital.

B. Qualifying hospitals shall:

have written financial assistance policies that are publicized.

D. [C.] Within thirty days of receiving a payment from the safety net care pool, a qualifying hospital shall report the amount of such payment to the county within which it is located.

E. [D.] In addition to the report required in Subsection D of this section, a qualifying hospital shall annually report to the county within which it is located the total costs of health care services provided in the previous calendar year.

payment authorized by the county; in former Subsection B, deleted Paragraph (3), which required the sole community provider to negotiate with the county the amount of indigent hospital payments anticipated for the following fiscal year; in former Subsection B, deleted Paragraph (4), which required the sole community provider to provide the department the amount of indigent hospital payments anticipated for the following fiscal year; and added Subsections B, D and E.

Compiler's notes. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

The governor partially vetoed Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 12. In Subsection B, the governor vetoed Paragraphs (1) through and (3), and vetoed Subsection C, which provided:

"(1) provide financial counseling to patients about their hospital bills;

(2) have written financial assistance policies consistent with this section that are publicized and consistently applied; and

(3) make reasonable efforts to determine whether patients are eligible for financial assistance before initiating collections actions."

"C. No action for collection of claims shall be allowed against an indigent patient with a household income under two hundred percent of the federal poverty level."

To view the chaptered bill in its entirety, see the 2014 session laws on NMOneSource.com.

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2014, ch. 79, § 18 provided that references in law to a sole community provider hospital shall be deemed to be references to a qualifying hospital pursuant to the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act, and references in law to a county indigent hospital claims fund shall be deemed to be references to a county health care assistance fund.

The 2003 amendment, effective June 20, 2003, deleted "where required" following "provider is licensed" in Paragraph A(2); deleted "any" at the beginning of Paragraph A(3); and substituted "A" for "Every" at the beginning of Subsection B.

The 1993 amendment, effective on the date that the human services department is notified in writing that the amendment to the state medicaid plan has been approved by the federal health care financing administration, inserted "health care providers" and added "sole community provider hospital duties" to the end in the catchline; designated the existing introductory language as Subsection A, redesignating former Subsections A through C as Paragraphs (1) through (3); in Subsection A, substituted "hospital or health care provider" for "or hospital", inserted "cared for by that health care provider or" in Paragraph (1), and substituted "ambulance service or health care provider" for "or ambulance service" in Paragraph (2); and added Subsection B.

Compiler's notes. — Subsection A of § 22, Laws 1993, ch. 321, provides that §§ 3, 6, 10, 15, 16 and 18 (27-5-3, 27-5-6, 27-5-6.1, 27-5-7.1, 27-5-11 and 27-5-12.2 NMSA 1978) are effective the date that the human services department is notified in writing that the amendment to the state medicaid plan has been approved by the federal health care financing administration. The human services department was advised by letter dated May 20, 1993, that the United States Department of Health and Human Services had approved the amendment of New Mexico's medicaid plan "to add a payment provision for sole community hospitals (SCH), effective July 1, 1993, and a payment provision for indirect medical education (IME) costs incurred by teaching hospitals, effective August 1, 1992". Chapter 321, Laws 1993, contained an emergency clause. The human services department published notice of the approval in the New Mexican on June 21, 1993.

27-5-12. Payment of claims.

A. A hospital, ambulance service or health care provider filing a claim with the county shall:

(1) file the claim with the county in which the indigent patient is domiciled;

(2) file the claim for each patient separately, with an itemized detail of the total cost; and

(3) file with the claim a verified statement of qualification for ambulance service, indigent hospital care or care from a health care provider signed by the patient or by the parent or person having custody of the patient to the effect that the patient qualifies under the provisions of the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act as an indigent patient and is unable to pay the cost for the care administered and listing all assets owned by the patient or any person legally responsible for the patient's care. The statement shall constitute an oath of the person signing it, and any false statements in the statement made knowingly constitute a felony.

B. A hospital, ambulance service or health care provider that has contracted with a county for provision of health care services shall provide evidence of health care services rendered for payment for services in accordance with the procedures specified in the contract.

27-5-16. Department; payments; cooperation; reporting.

A. The department shall not decrease the amount of any assistance payments made to the hospitals or health care providers of this state pursuant to law because of any financial reimbursement made to ambulance services, hospitals or health care providers for indigent or medicaid eligible patients as provided in the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act.

B. The department shall cooperate with each county in furnishing information or assisting in the investigation of any person to determine whether the person meets the qualifications of an indigent patient as defined in the Indigent Hospital and County Health Care Act.

C. The department shall provide an annual report to each county and each qualifying hospital on the previous calendar year's payments from the safety net care pool for uncompensated care to qualifying hospitals and estimated payments of enhanced medicaid base rates. The annual report for the previous year shall be provided by July 1 of the succeeding year.

History: 1953 Comp., § 13-2-27, enacted by Laws 1965, ch. 234, § 16; 1987, ch. 88, § 5; 1993, ch. 321, § 13; 2013, ch. 151, § 1; 2014, ch. 79, § 15.

The 2014 amendment, effective March 12, 2014, required the department to give an annual report to each county and qualifying hospital on the previous year's payments from the safety net care pool fund; in the catchline, after "cooperation", added "reporting"; in Subsection B, after "cooperate with each", deleted "board" and added "county"; and in Subsection C, deleted all of the former language which required the department to ensure that payments did not exceed amounts that would be paid under medicare payment principles and if payments exceeded medicare payment principles, to reduce the sole community provider payment prior to any reduction in

27-6-18. Repealed.
27-6-18.1. Prohibition on discontinuance or disconnection of utility service during the winter heating season; minimum payments; payment plans; exceptions.

27-6-1 to 27-6-10. Deleted.

Compiler's notes. — Sections 27-6-1 to 27-6-10, the Utility Supplement Act, were enacted by Laws 1975, Chapter 300, contingent upon the passage and approval of the Electrical Energy Tax Act. The Electrical Energy Tax Act was enacted by Laws 1975, Chapter 263 and approved April 10, 1975. Laws 1975, ch. 300, § 10, compiled as 27-6-10 NMSA 1978, provides that no payments shall be made under the Utility Supplement Act if the Electrical Energy Tax Act is held invalid in any suit. The Electrical Energy Tax Act was held invalid under the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution in Arizona Pub. Serv. Co. v. Snead, 441 U.S. 141, 99 S. Ct. 1629, 60 L. Ed. 2d 106 (1979). Laws 1982, ch. 18, § 27 later repealed the Electrical Energy Tax Act, effective July 1, 1982. The provisions of 27-6-1 to 27-6-10 NMSA 1978, the Utility Supplement Act, have been deleted from the statutes compilation as they no longer have any force or effect.

27-6-11. Short title.

Chapter 27, Article 6 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Low Income Utility Assistance Act".

History: Laws 1979, ch. 290, § 1; 2009, ch. 232, § 1.

The 2009 amendment, effective June 19, 2009, changed the reference of the act to the chapter and article of NMSA 1978.

27-6-12. Legislative intent and purpose.

It is the intent of the legislature and the purpose of the Low Income Utility Assistance Act to assist indigent residents to meet the increased costs for gas and electrical utilities, liquefied petroleum fuel, wood and coal to the maximum extent possible, particularly the cost of fuel adjustments and the cost of service indexing.

27-6-13. Administration of Low Income Utility Assistance Act.

A. As used in the Low Income Utility Assistance Act:

(1) "department" means the agency of the state designated by the governor; and

(2) "utility" means a publicly, privately or municipally owned utility or a distribution cooperative utility for the rendition of electric power or gas.

B. The department shall determine eligibility, establish payment amounts, make utility assistance payments to or on behalf of eligible recipients and otherwise administer the Low Income Utility Assistance Act.

C. The department shall use funds appropriated under the Low Income Utility Assistance Act to the maximum extent to generate available federal and local government funds and to mobilize other resources that may be applied to the concepts of the Low Income Utility Assistance Act.

History: Laws 1979, ch. 290, § 3; 1980, ch. 118, § 2; 2009, ch. 232, § 2.

The 2009 amendment, effective June 19, 2009, added Paragraph (2) of Subsection A.

27-6-14. Persons eligible for utility assistance.

A. Utility assistance supplements shall be paid to or on behalf of those individuals who are determined to be eligible by regulation of the department.

B. The department shall determine the amount of payment to be made; provided that no payment shall be made if a payment for the same services or incurred bills has been made to the household under a federal program for a similar purpose.

History: Laws 1979, ch. 290, § 4; 1980, ch. 118, § 3; 1984, ch. 94, § 1.

27-6-15. Utility assistance supplement program established; distribution to eligible recipients.

A. The department is authorized to establish a utility assistance supplement program for purposes of the Low Income Utility Assistance Act.

B. Beginning on July 1, 1980 and each year thereafter the department shall pay utility assistance supplement payments, subject to the availability of funds from the low income utility assistance fund created under the provisions of Section 27-6-16 NMSA 1978.

27-6-16. Fund created.

There is created in the state treasury the "low income utility assistance fund." Payments shall be made from the low income utility assistance fund upon warrants drawn by the secretary of finance and administration pursuant to vouchers signed by the head of the department. Such payments shall be made for the costs and administration of the Low Income Utility Assistance Act.

History: Laws 1979, ch. 290, § 6; 1980, ch. 118, § 5.

ANNOTATIONS

Partial veto valid. — Governor's partial veto of the provision in Laws 1981, ch. 168, designating the income support division of the human services department as the agency responsible for administering this fund, is valid. 1981 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 81-12.

27-6-17. Utility service; procedures to follow prior to service being discontinued.

A. Unless requested by the customer, no gas or electric utility shall discontinue service to any residential customer for nonpayment during the period from November 15 through March 15 unless the following procedures are followed:

(1) at least fifteen days prior to the date scheduled for utility service to be discontinued, unless the New Mexico public utility commission [public regulation commission] provides for a shorter period, the utility shall mail or hand-deliver to the customer a notice printed in both English and Spanish and in simple language, which notice clearly explains that:

(a) utility service shall stop on a specific date;

(b) the customer may be eligible for financial assistance to pay for the utility service; and

(c) for assistance, the customer should contact the utility or the department;

(2) any utility subject to this section shall attempt to advise customers who contact the utility seeking financial assistance of the program administered under the Low Income Utility Assistance Act and of assistance programs the utility may administer on its own or in conjunction with others;

(3) the utilities subject to this section and the department shall provide application forms for utility service payment assistance at billing and agency offices; and

(4) before the service is actually discontinued, the utility shall attempt to make contact in person or by telephone to remind the customer of the pending date of discontinuance of service and that financial assistance for utility payments may be available.

B. Unless requested by the customer, no gas or electric utility shall discontinue service to any residential customer for nonpayment during the period from November 15 through March 15 until at least fifteen days after the date scheduled for discontinuance of service if the department has certified to the utility that a customer is eligible for utility payment assistance under the Low Income Utility Assistance Act and that payment for the utility service provided to the customer will be made within the fifteen-day period.

C. The department and the New Mexico public utility commission [public regulation commission] shall coordinate and adopt, as they deem appropriate, either separate or joint rules and regulations necessary to implement the provisions of this section; provided that nothing in this section authorizes the department to revise tariffs or rate filings subject to the jurisdiction of the New Mexico public utility commission.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler. It was not enacted by the legislature and is not part of the law.

Laws 1998, ch. 108, § 80 provided that references to the public utility commission be construed as references to the public regulation commission.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, substituted "New Mexico public utility commission" for "New Mexico public service commission" in Subsection A(1) and Subsection C.

27-6-18. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2007, ch. 231, § 2 repealed 27-6-18 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 2005 (1st.S.S.), ch. 2, § 2, effective June 15, 2007. For provisions of former section, see the 2006 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-6-18.1. Prohibition on discontinuance or disconnection of utility service during the winter heating season; minimum payments; payment plans; exceptions.

A. Except as provided in Subsection C of this section, unless requested by the customer, no utility shall discontinue or disconnect service to a residential customer during the heating season for nonpayment of the customer's utility bill if the customer meets the qualifications to receive assistance pursuant to the low-income home energy assistance program from the administering authority during the program's current heating season.

B. The utility shall make payment plan options available to the customer pursuant to rules adopted by the public regulation commission.

C. If the customer does not pay the past due charges from the customer's utility bill before the beginning of the next heating season, the customer shall not be eligible for protection from discontinued or disconnected utility service pursuant to this section during that next heating season until the past due charges are paid in full.

D. A customer who has defaulted on the customer's chosen payment plan and whose utility service has been discontinued or disconnected during the nonheating season can be reconnected and maintain the protection afforded by this section by paying reconnection charges, if any, and by paying the amount due pursuant to the payment plan by the date on which service is reconnected.

E. If a customer notifies the utility that the customer needs payment assistance and if the customer requests, the utility shall promptly report the customer's request for assistance to the administering authority. The administering authority shall take prompt action to evaluate the customer's eligibility for the low-income home energy assistance program.

F. Utilities subject to this section shall make the following information available to the public regarding:

(1) the low-income home energy assistance program's:

(a) application forms;

(b) requirements for qualifying for the program;

(c) procedures for making an application; and

(d) location to which an application may be submitted; and

(2) the protection against discontinued and disconnected service set forth in this section for customers seeking assistance paying utility bills during a heating season, including:

(a) payment options; and

(b) circumstances under which disconnection or discontinuance of service may occur.

G. As used in this section:

(1) "administering authority" means the human services department or a tribal entity that administers its own low-income home energy assistance program;

(2) "current season" means the period beginning in September and continuing through August of the subsequent year;

(3) "heating season" means the period beginning November 15 and continuing through March 15 of the subsequent year;

(4) "nonheating season" means the period beginning on March 16 and continuing through November 14 of the same year; and

(5) "tribal entity" means the governing body or an agency of a federally recognized Indian nation, tribe or pueblo located in whole or in part in New Mexico.

History: Laws 2007, ch. 231, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2007, ch. 231 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 15, 2007, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

27-6A-5. Department cooperation.

27-6A-1. Short title.

This act [27-6A-1 to 27-6A-5 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "Low Income Water, Sewer and Solid Waste Service Assistance Act".

History: Laws 1993, ch. 206, § 1.

27-6A-2. Purpose.

It is the purpose of the Low Income Water, Sewer and Solid Waste Service Assistance Act:

A. to assure that water, sewer or solid waste user rate increases do not force many low-income individuals to discontinue necessary water, sewer or solid waste service; and

B. to increase the availability or affordability of basic water, sewer and solid waste service to low-income individuals by providing assistance to meet the cost of basic water, sewer and solid waste service.

27-6A-3. Definitions.

As used in the Low Income Water, Sewer and Solid Waste Service Assistance Act:

A. "department" means the human services department; and

B. "utility" means any individual, firm, partnership, company, district, including but not limited to solid waste district, water and sanitation district and special district, cooperative, association, public or private corporation, lessee, trustee or receiver appointed by any court, municipality and municipal utility as defined in the Municipal Code [3-3-1 NMSA 1978], incorporated county or county that may or does own, operate, lease or control any plant, property or facility for:

(1) the supply, storage, distribution or furnishing of water to or for the public;

(2) the supply and furnishing of sanitary sewer service to or for the public; or

(3) the supply and furnishing of collection, transportation, treatment or disposal of solid waste to or for the public. "Utility" does not include a public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the New Mexico public service commission [public regulation commission].

History: Laws 1993, ch. 206, § 3.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler. It was not enacted by the legislature and is not part of the law.

The New Mexico public service commission was a predecessor of the public utility commission, which was succeeded by the public regulation commission. Laws 1998, ch. 108, § 80 provided that references to the public utility commission be construed as references to the public regulation commission.

27-6A-4. Low income assistance rates.

A utility may provide assistance in the form of reduced or subsidized rates to or on behalf of those individuals who meet the eligibility criteria of one or more need-based assistance programs administered by the department and who are not living in nursing homes or intermediate care facilities or not living in circumstances that do not require them to pay, directly or indirectly, for water, sewer or solid waste service.

27-6A-5. Department cooperation.

Subject to state and federal statutes and regulations governing the sharing of confidential information, the department shall cooperate with a participating utility in identifying those persons eligible for assistance pursuant to the Low Income Water, Sewer and Solid Waste Service Assistance Act.

27-7-15. Legislative findings; purpose.

A. The legislature recognizes that many adults in the state are unable to manage their own affairs or protect themselves from abuse, neglect or exploitation. The legislature further recognizes that the state should protect adults by providing for the detection, correction and elimination of abuse, neglect or exploitation through a program of short-term services for adults in need of protective services or protective placement.

B. It is the purpose of the Adult Protective Services Act to establish a system of protective services and protective placement and to ensure the availability of those services or placement to all adults in need of them. It is also the purpose of the Adult Protective Services Act to authorize only the least possible restriction on the exercise of personal and civil rights and religious beliefs consistent with the adult's need for protective services or protective placement and to require that due process be followed in imposing those restrictions.

C. Nothing in the Adult Protective Services Act shall be construed to mean an adult, including an incapacitated adult or a protected adult, is abused, neglected, or exploited if the adult relies upon or is being furnished with spiritual treatment through prayer alone in accordance with the express or implied intent of the adult; nor shall anything in that act be construed to authorize or require any medical care or treatment in contravention of the express or implied wish of that adult.

T. "substantiated" means a determination, based on a preponderance of collected and assessed credible information, that abuse, neglect or exploitation of an incapacitated or protected adult has occurred; and

U. "surrogate" means a person legally authorized to act on an adult's behalf.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 3; 1990, ch. 79, § 2; 1997, ch. 132, § 2; 2007, ch. 91, § 2.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, revised the defined terms that are used in the Adult Protective Services Act; defined "abuse" to include sexual abuse; defined "caretaker" to include a facility and provider; defined "conservator" to mean a person appointed to manage property or affairs of an adult; defined "ability to consent", "facility", "multidisciplinary team", "provider", "self-neglect", "substantiated" and "surrogate".

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, substituted the language beginning "property or financial" for "estate of a protected adult" in Subsection E; substituted "children, youth and families" for "human services" in Subsection G; substituted "money or property for another person's" for "resources for another's" in Subsection I; substituted the language beginning "has qualified" for "is a guardian of an incapacitated adult pursuant to a court order" in Subsection J; added Subsections K and L, and redesignated the remaining subsections accordingly; in Subsection M, substituted "affairs" for "care", substituted "estate or" for "personal property and", and added the language beginning "but does"; and added the language beginning "or an abused" in Subsection Q.

27-7-17. Adult protective services system.

A. Subject to the availability of funds, the department shall develop a coordinated system of protective services or protective placement for incapacitated or protected adults who have been abused, neglected or exploited. In planning this system, the department shall obtain the advice of agencies, corporations, boards and associations involved in the provision of social, health, legal, nutritional and other services to adults, as well as of organizations of adults.

B. The department shall ensure that the adult protective services system for incapacitated or protected adults who have been abused, neglected or exploited includes:

(1) a process for the collection and analysis of data relating to adult protective services or protective placement and for the provision of an annual findings and recommendations report to the governor and the appropriate interim committee;

(2) the establishment and use of multidisciplinary teams to develop treatment strategies, ensure maximum coordination with existing community resources and provide comprehensive assessment and case consultation on difficult or complex cases, provided that the adults' privacy and confidentiality rights in such cases are protected;

(3) coordination among the various state or local agencies that serve incapacitated or protected adults; and

(4) an emphasis on the need for prevention of abuse, neglect or exploitation of adults.

C. Upon establishment of the adult protective services system, the department shall be responsible for continuing coordination and supervision of the system. In carrying out these duties, the department shall:

(1) adopt rules necessary to implement and operate the system;

(2) monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of the system; and

(3) use to the extent available grants from federal, state and other public and private sources to support the system.

D. The department shall administer a public information program regarding the problem of abuse, neglect and exploitation of adults; reporting and prevention of adult abuse, neglect or exploitation; and the availability of treatment and protective services or protective placement for those adults.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 4; 1997, ch. 132, § 3; 2007, ch. 91, § 3.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, added a new Subsection B that required the department to develop a system of protective placement for adults who have been abused, neglected or exploited and to ensure that the protective services system includes information gathering, use of multidisciplinary teams to develop treatment and coordination of resource and agencies, and prevention of abuse, neglect and exploitation of adults.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, inserted "or protected" in the first sentence of Subsection A.

27-7-18. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2005, ch. 321, § 14 repealed 27-7-18 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 5, relating to creation of adult protective services advisory board, effective June 17, 2005. For provisions of former section, see the 2004 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-7-19. Department; duties; penalty.

A. The department shall:

(1) develop, maintain and update as needed a process to receive a report or referral of suspected abuse, neglect or exploitation of an adult;

(2) assess an adult and the adult's situation to determine what immediate protective services or protective placement may be required;

(3) conduct an investigation to determine if the report or referral of abuse, neglect or exploitation is substantiated;

(4) document evidence, observations and other information obtained in the course of an investigation;

(5) develop a plan to provide an adult with or refer an adult for protective services, protective placement or other intervention services, unless the department determines that the adult is knowingly and voluntarily refusing services; and

(6) ensure that the protective services or protective placement provided by or through the department is short term and has a termination date; provided that appropriate arrangements have been made for follow-up care if needed, including any long-term services for which the adult may qualify.

B. Upon request, the department, in accordance with federal or state laws that protect an adult's right to privacy and confidentiality, shall have immediate access to and may reproduce any record, including medical, personal, psychological and financial records, of the adult that the department determines is necessary to pursue an investigation mandated by this section or by the Resident Abuse and Neglect Act [30-47-1 NMSA 1978] if:

(1) the adult has the ability to consent and has given written consent;

(2) the adult is unable to consent in writing, and gives oral consent in the presence of a third party as a witness;

(3) the adult has a guardian, conservator or surrogate with the authority to approve review of the records and the department obtains the permission of the guardian, conservator or surrogate for review of the record;

(4) the adult is unable to give consent and:

(a) has no guardian, conservator or surrogate;

(b) the department is unaware of and has no reasonable grounds for believing that there is a guardian, conservator or surrogate; or

(c) the department is unable to contact the guardian, conservator or surrogate within three working days of the initiation of the investigation; or

(5) the department obtains from the district court an order granting access upon a showing that:

(a) consent is being withheld due to coercion, extortion or justifiable fear of future abuse, neglect, exploitation or abandonment of the adult; or

(b) there is reasonable cause to believe that the adult has been or is being abused, neglected or exploited and that after notice by the department of the alleged abuse, neglect or exploitation, the guardian, conservator or surrogate has refused to give consent.

C. Upon request by the department, the provider or a facility in which an adult is or has been residing shall provide to the department the name, address and telephone number of the guardian, conservator, surrogate, attorney-in-fact, legal representative or next of kin of the adult.

D. The department shall have immediate access to an adult, whether in a facility or provider setting, who is alleged to be abused, neglected or exploited to determine the accuracy of the report and the necessity of protective services or protective placement, to evaluate the adult's needs and develop a service plan to meet those needs and to provide for the services or placement by or through the department. If the department is denied access to the adult alleged to be abused, neglected or exploited, the department may gain access upon petition to the court for an order requiring appropriate access if the department can demonstrate that a facility, provider or individual has interfered with the department's attempts to access the adult under investigation.

E. Anyone willfully interfering with an investigation of adult abuse, neglect or exploitation, pursuant to this section, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Interference under this section shall not include efforts by a facility, provider or individual to establish whether there is reasonable cause to believe that there is adult abuse, neglect or exploitation, provided that the department is notified as soon as reasonable cause is established, whether or not the internal investigation has been concluded.

F. The department may assess a civil penalty not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per violation against a facility, provider or individual who violates the provisions of Subsection B, C or D of this section. The department may assess and collect the penalty, after notice and an opportunity for hearing before a hearing officer designated by the department to hear the matter, upon a determination that a facility, provider or individual willfully interfered with the department or discriminated, disciplined or retaliated against a person who communicated or disclosed information to the department in good faith pursuant to this section. The hearing officer has the power to administer oaths on request of any party and issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. Additionally, if the violation is against a person covered by the Personnel Act [10-9-1 NMSA 1978], the department shall refer the matter to the agency employing the person for disciplinary action. Any party may appeal a final decision by the department to the court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, required the department to develop a process to receive reports of and to investigate abuse, neglect and exploitation of adults, develop plans to provide protective services and placements, and ensure that protective services and placement is short term; provideds for access to records of an adult who is unable to consent and who has no guardian, conservator or surrogate or by application to the district court for an order granting access; and authorized the department, after a hearing, to assess a civil penalty not to exceed $10,000 against a facility, provider or individual who violates provisions of this section.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, in Subsection A, in the second sentence, inserted "abused, neglected or exploited and" and "adult is knowingly and voluntarily refusing services or that the", substituted "gather information from" for "consult with" and inserted "and recommendations" in the third sentence; and added Subsections D through G.

27-7-20. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2007, ch. 91, § 14 repealed 27-7-20 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 7, relating to protective services agencies, effective July 2, 2007.

For provisions of former section, see the 2006 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-7-21. Nature of protective services; costs.

A. Protective services are short-term services furnished by the department or under arrangement through the department to an incapacitated or protected adult who has been abused, neglected or exploited and with the adult's consent or appropriate legal authority.

B. The protective services furnished in a protective services system may include social, psychiatric, health, legal and other services provided on a short-term basis that, if appropriate, transition to other ongoing or long-term services outside the protective services system and that detect, correct or eliminate abuse, neglect or exploitation consistent with the Adult Protective Services Act. The adult protective services system established by the department may include outreach, public information and education, prevention programs, referral for health or legal services and other activities consistent with the Adult Protective Services Act.

C. The costs of providing protective services shall be borne by the department or other appropriate agency, unless the adult agrees to pay for them or a court authorizes the provider or the department or other agency to receive reasonable reimbursement from the adult's assets after a finding that the adult is financially able to make payment. As appropriate and as permitted by law, the department may bill the adult or a third party to receive reasonable reimbursement for protective services rendered.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 8; 1990, ch. 79, § 4; 1997, ch. 132, § 7; 2007, ch. 91, § 5.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, provided that protective services are short-term services that detect, correct or eliminate abuse, neglect or exploitation and authorizes the department to bill the adult or a third party for reimbursement for protective services.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, deleted "but are not limited to" preceding "social case" in Subsection B; deleted "but is not limited to" preceding "outreach" in Subsection C; and inserted "or the department or other agency" in Subsection D.

27-7-22. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2007, ch. 91, § 14 repealed 27-7-22 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 9, relating to protective placement evaluations, effective July 2, 2007. For provisions of former section, see the 2006 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-7-23. Voluntary protective services; protective placement; penalty.

A. Any adult who has been abused, neglected or exploited and is in need of protective services or protective placement as determined by the department and who consents to those services or placement shall receive them. If the adult withdraws or refuses consent, voluntary protective services or protective placement shall not be provided. No legal rights are relinquished as a result of acceptance of voluntary protective services or protective placement.

B. A person who interferes with the provision of protective services or protective placement to an adult who consents to receive those services or placement is guilty of a misdemeanor. In the event that interference occurs, the department may petition the court to enjoin that interference, may impose a civil penalty or, at the department's discretion, may request criminal prosecution.

C. The department may assess a civil penalty not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per violation against a person that violates the provisions of Subsection B of this section. The department may assess and collect the penalty after notice and an opportunity for hearing, before a hearing officer designated by the department to hear the matter, upon a determination that a person willfully interfered with the department pursuant to this subsection. The hearing officer has the power to administer oaths on request of any party and issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. Additionally, if the violation is against a person covered by the Personnel Act [10-9-1 NMSA 1978], the department shall refer the matter to the agency employing the person for disciplinary action. Any party may appeal a final decision by the department to the court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 10; 1997, ch. 132, § 8; 2007, ch. 91, § 6.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, added a new Subsection C that authorized the department, after a hearing, to assess a civil penalty not to exceed $10,000 against a person who violates provisions of this section.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, added "Protective Placement" in the section heading; in Subsection A, inserted "or protective placement" in the first and second sentences, and added the third sentence; in Subsection B, in the first sentence, inserted "or protective placement" and added "or placement", and added the language beginning "or, at the" in the second sentence.

27-7-24. Involuntary protective services and protective placement; penalty.

A. If an adult lacks the ability to consent to receive protective services or protective placement, those services or placement may be ordered by a court on an involuntary basis through an emergency order pursuant to the Adult Protective Services Act or through appointment of a guardian or conservator.

B. In ordering involuntary protective services or protective placement, the court shall authorize only that intervention that it finds to be least restrictive of the adult's liberty and rights consistent with the adult's welfare and safety. The basis for such a finding shall be stated in the record by the court.

C. The incapacitated or protected adult shall not be required to pay for involuntary protective services or protective placement unless that payment is authorized by the court upon a showing that the adult is financially able to pay. In this event, the court shall provide for reimbursement of the reasonable costs of the services or placement.

D. A person who interferes with the provision of involuntary protective services or protective placement to an adult is guilty of a misdemeanor. In the event that interference occurs, the department may petition the court to enjoin interference, may impose a civil penalty or, at the department's discretion, may request criminal prosecution.

E. The Adult Protective Services Act does not affect other state statutes governing treatment of an adult admitted to a mental health care institution for mental illness or involuntary commitment of an adult to a mental health care institution for mental illness or any other involuntary mental health treatment.

F. The department may petition the court for the appointment of a guardian or conservator if the department determines that a no less restrictive course of care or treatment is available that is consistent with the incapacitated adult's welfare and safety.

G. The department and its employees are prohibited from:

(1) taking custody of an adult;

(2) acting as guardian, conservator or surrogate for any adult in need of protective services or protective placement, except that an employee may serve in that role when related by affinity or consanguinity to an adult;

(3) acting as treatment guardian under the Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Code [43-1-2 NMSA 1978], except that an employee may serve in that role when related by affinity or consanguinity to an adult;

(4) acting as qualified health care professionals pursuant to the Uniform Probate Code [45-1-101 NMSA 1978]; and

(5) acting as visitors under the Uniform Probate Code for any adult in need of protective services or protective placement.

H. The department may assess a civil penalty not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per violation against a person that violates the provisions of Subsection D of this section. The department may assess and collect the penalty after notice and an opportunity for hearing, before a hearing officer designated by the department to hear the matter, upon a determination that a person willfully interfered with the department pursuant to this section. The hearing officer has the power to administer oaths on request of any party and issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. Additionally, if the violation is against a person covered by the Personnel Act [10-9-1 NMSA 1978], the department shall refer the matter to the agency employing the person for disciplinary action. Any party may appeal a final decision by the department to the court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 11; 1997, ch. 132, § 9; 2007, ch. 91, § 7.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, added new Subsections E, F, G and H; provided that the Adult Protective Services Act does not affect other statutes concerning treatment of adults in mental health care institutions; authorized the department to petition a district court for appointment of a guardian or conservator; prohibited the department and its employees from taking custody of an adult, acting as guardian, conservator or surrogate, acting as treatment guardian or acting as qualified health care professional or visitor under the Uniform Probate Code; and authorized the department, after a hearing, to assess a civil penalty not to exceed $10,000 against a person who violates provisions of this section.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, added "or conservator" in Subsection A and added Subsection D.

27-7-25. Ex-parte orders for emergency protective services or emergency protective placement; notice; petition.

A. Upon petition by the department, the court may issue an order authorizing the provision of involuntary protective services or protective placement on an emergency basis to an adult under the criteria set forth in Subsection B of this section.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

B. At the time a petition is filed or any time thereafter, the court may issue an ex-parte order authorizing the provision of involuntary protective services or involuntary protective placement upon a sworn written statement of facts showing probable cause exists to believe that:

(1) the adult is incapacitated;

(2) an emergency exists;

(3) the adult lacks the ability to consent to receive protective services or protective placement; and

(4) no person authorized by law or court order to give consent for the adult is available or willing to consent to the provision of protective services or protective placement on an emergency basis.

C. The petition for an emergency ex-parte order shall set forth:

(1) the name, address and interest of the petitioner;

(2) the name, age and address of the adult in need of protective services;

(3) the facts describing the nature of the emergency;

(4) the facts describing the nature of the adult's incapacity;

(5) the proposed protective services or protective placement;

(6) the petitioner's reasonable belief, together with supporting facts, about the need for emergency intervention; and

(7) the facts showing the petitioner's attempts to obtain the adult's consent to the proposed protective services or protective placement and the outcome of those attempts.

D. An affidavit for an ex-parte order for emergency protective services or emergency protective placement may be signed by any person who has knowledge of the facts alleged or is informed of them and believes that they are true.

E. The Rules of Evidence do not apply to the issuance of an emergency ex-parte protective services or protective placement order.

F. In issuing an emergency ex-parte order, the court shall adhere to the following limitations:

(1) only the protective services or protective placement necessary to remove the conditions creating the emergency shall be ordered, and the order shall specifically designate the proposed protective services or protective placement;

(2) protective services or protective placement authorized by an emergency ex-parte order shall not include hospitalization or a change of residence, unless the order gives specific approval for the action;

(3) protective services or protective placement may be provided by emergency ex-parte order only for ten days; provided that the original order may be renewed once for a period of twenty additional days upon application to the court showing that continuation of the original order is necessary to remove the conditions creating the emergency. An application for renewal of the original order shall be supported by a written report of the results of the evaluation required by Subsection C of Section 27-7-27 NMSA 1978 and copies of the actual evaluations;

(4) the issuance of an emergency ex-parte order shall not deprive the adult of any rights except those provided for in the order;

(5) to implement an emergency ex-parte order, the court may authorize forcible entry of premises for the purposes of rendering protective services or protective placement or transporting the adult to another location for the provision of services or placement only if facts contained in the affidavit supporting the petition for ex-parte order show that attempts to gain voluntary access to the premises have failed and forcible entry is necessary; provided that persons making an authorized forcible entry shall be accompanied by a law enforcement officer; and

(6) service of an ex-parte order authorizing forcible entry shall be according to the following procedure. The order shall be served on the alleged incapacitated adult by a person authorized to serve arrest warrants and shall direct the officer to advise the adult of the nature of the protective services or protective placement that have been ordered by the court. If the order authorizes emergency protective placement, the order shall direct the officer to assist in transfer of the adult to a place designated by the court.

G. Notice of the filing of the petition and the issuance of the emergency ex-parte order, including a copy of the petition, the ex-parte order and the affidavit for ex-parte order, shall be given to the adult and the adult's spouse or, if none, the adult children or next of kin, surrogate or guardian, if any. The notice shall be given, in language reasonably understandable by its intended recipients, within twenty-four hours, excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays, from the time that the ex-parte order authorizing protective services or protective placement is issued by the court or, if the ex-parte order authorizes forcible entry, from the time the ex-parte order is served upon the incapacitated adult. The notice shall inform the recipients that a hearing will be held no later than ten days after the date the petition is filed to determine whether the conditions creating the emergency have been removed and whether the adult should be released from the court's order for protective services or protective placement.

H. Within ten days from the filing of a petition for an emergency order for protective services or protective placement, the court shall hold a hearing upon any application for renewal of the emergency order. The hearing upon an application for renewal shall be held pursuant to the provisions of Section 27-7-27 NMSA 1978.

I. The protected adult or any interested person may petition the court to have the emergency order set aside or modified at any time, notwithstanding any prior findings by the court that the adult is incapacitated.

J. If the adult continues to need protective services or protective placement after the renewal order provided in Paragraph (3) of Subsection F of this section has expired, the department or original petitioner shall immediately petition the court to appoint a conservator or guardian or to order nonemergency protective services or protective placement pursuant to Section 27-7-26 NMSA 1978.

K. The petitioner shall not be liable for filing the petition if the petitioner acted in good faith.

History: 1978 Comp., § 27-7-25, enacted by Laws 1990, ch. 79, § 6; 1997, ch. 132, § 10; 2007, ch. 91, § 8.

27-7-25.1. Emergency protective placement by a law enforcement officer without a court order.

A. When, from personal observation of a law enforcement officer, it appears probable that an incapacitated adult will suffer immediate and irreparable physical injury or death if not immediately placed in a facility, that the adult is unable to give consent and that it is not possible due to the emergency nature of the circumstances to follow the procedures of Section 27-7-25 NMSA 1978, the law enforcement officer making that observation may transport the adult to a facility. No court order is required to authorize the law enforcement officer to act upon the officer's observation pursuant to this section.

B. A law enforcement officer who transports an incapacitated adult to a facility pursuant to the provisions of this section shall immediately notify the department of the placement.

C. The department shall file a petition pursuant to Subsection A of Section 27-7-25 NMSA 1978 within two working days after the placement of the adult by the law enforcement officer has occurred unless the department determines that the criteria for emergency removal and placement have not been met or that there is no further need for involuntary protective services or protective placement.

D. Upon receipt of notice from a law enforcement officer that an adult has been placed in a facility pursuant to the authority of this section, the department shall give notice pursuant to Subsection G of Section 27-7-25 NMSA 1978 within two working days after the placement of the adult has taken place.

E. The court shall hold a hearing on the petition filed by the department as a result of the law enforcement officer's emergency placement within ten days of the filing of the petition, pursuant to the provisions of Section 27-7-27 NMSA 1978, to determine whether the conditions creating the need for the emergency placement have been removed and whether the adult should be released from the protective placement.

History: 1978 Comp., § 27-7-25.1, enacted by Laws 1990, ch. 79, § 7; 1997, ch. 132, § 11; 2007, ch. 91, § 9.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, provided for emergency protective placement.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, added the language beginning "unless the department" in Subsection C.

27-7-26. Nonemergency protective services or protective placement; findings; petition; order.

A. Involuntary nonemergency protective services or protective placement shall not take place unless ordered by a court after a finding on the record based on clear and convincing evidence that:

(1) the adult is incapacitated and lacks the ability to consent;

(2) the adult is incapable of providing for the adult's own care or custody and the adult is at significant risk of abuse, neglect or exploitation that creates a substantial risk of serious physical harm to the adult or others;

(3) the adult needs care or treatment;

(4) the proposed order is substantially supported by the evaluation provided for in Subsection E of this section or, if not so supported, there are compelling reasons for ordering those protective services or that protective placement; and

(5) no less restrictive alternative course of care or treatment is available that is consistent with the incapacitated adult's welfare and safety.

B. The petition for nonemergency protective services or protective placement shall state with particularity the factual basis for the allegations specified in Subsection A of this section and shall be based on the most reliable information available to the petitioner.

C. Written notice of a petition for nonemergency protective services or protective placement shall be served upon the adult by personal service at least fourteen days prior to the time set for a hearing. Notice shall also be given to the adult's legal counsel, caretaker, guardian, conservator, surrogate, spouse and adult children or next of kin, whose names and addresses are known to the petitioner or can with reasonable diligence be ascertained. The person serving the notice shall certify to the court that the petition has been delivered and how the required notice was given. The notice shall be in language reasonably understandable by the adult who is the subject of the petition and also shall be given orally if necessary. The notice shall include:

(1) the names of all petitioners;

(2) the factual basis of the belief that protective services or protective placement is needed;

(3) the rights of the adult in the court proceedings; and

(4) the name and address of the proposed protective services or protective placement.

D. Upon the filing of a petition for nonemergency protective services or protective placement, the court shall hold a hearing pursuant to the provisions of Section 27-7-27 NMSA 1978.

E. In order to make the findings required in Paragraphs (2) through (5) of Subsection A of this section, the court shall direct that a comprehensive evaluation of the adult alleged to be in need of protective services or protective placement be conducted as provided in Subsection C of Section 27-7-27 NMSA 1978.

F. In ordering nonemergency protective placement, the court shall give consideration to the choice of residence of the adult. The court may order protective placement in a facility or with a provider.

G. The court may authorize nonemergency protective services or protective placement for an adult for a period not to exceed six months.

H. At the time of expiration of an order for nonemergency protective services or protective placement, the original petitioner may petition the court to extend its order for protective services or protective placement for an additional period not to exceed six months. The contents of the petition shall conform to the provisions of Subsections A and B of this section. Notice of the petition for the extension of protective services or protective placement shall be made in conformity with

Subsection C of this section. The court shall hold a hearing to determine whether to renew the order. Any person entitled to a notice under Subsection C of this section may appear at the hearing and challenge the petition. The court shall conduct the hearing pursuant to the provisions of Section 27-7-27 NMSA 1978.

I. The services provided to or the residence of an adult that had been established pursuant to an order for nonemergency protective services or protective placement shall not be changed unless the court authorizes the change of services or transfer of residence. The adult or the adult's legal representative may petition the court to order such a change of services or transfer of residence.

J. Prior to the expiration of the nonemergency protective services or protective placement, the department shall review the need for continued services or placement, including the necessity for appointment of a conservator or guardian, and shall make such recommendation to the court.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 13; 1990, ch. 79, § 8; 1997, ch. 132, § 12; 2007, ch. 91, § 10.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, provided for nonemergency protective services and permits an adult or the adult's legal representative to petition the district court to order a change of services or transfer of residence.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, inserted "or protective services" throughout the section; in the introductory language of Subsection A, substituted "is unable" for "refuses" and inserted "or services"; deleted former Subsection B, which read: "The department, a protective services agency, a conservator, a guardian or any interested person may petition the court for nonemergency protective placement" and redesignated the remaining subsections and references thereto accordingly; in Subsection C, substituted "fourteen" for "ten" in the first sentence, substituted "care providers, guardian, spouse and adult children or next of kin" for "and persons having physical custody of the adult" in the second sentence, and added "or services" in Paragraph (4); in Subsection H, in the first sentence, deleted "the guardian" preceding "the original" and deleted "or any interested person" following "petitioner" and inserted "or services" in the second sentence; in Subsection I, inserted "or services provided to" and substituted "or change of services" for "after finding compelling reasons to justify the transfer"; in Subsection J, added the language beginning "and shall make" and deleted the former second sentence, relating to the making of the report to all persons notified of the original petition; and deleted former Subsection L, which read: "Any adult may request non-emergency protective placement under the Adult Protective Services Act. No legal rights are relinquished or modified as a result of that placement."

27-7-27. Hearing on petition.

A. The hearing on a petition for renewal of an emergency ex-parte order for protective services or protective placement or for an order for nonemergency protective services or protective placement shall be held under the following conditions:

(1) the adult shall be present unless the court determines it is impossible for the adult to be present or it is not in the adult's best interest because of a threat to that adult's health and safety;

(2) the adult has the right to counsel whether or not the adult is present at the hearing. If the adult is indigent, the court shall appoint counsel no later than the time of the filing of the petition;

(3) counsel appointed by the court pursuant to Paragraph (2) of this subsection shall interview the allegedly incapacitated adult prior to any hearing on the petition or any application for renewal of the original emergency order;

(4) the adult shall have the right to trial by jury upon request by the adult or the adult's counsel only in hearings held on petitions for nonemergency protective services or protective placement; and

(5) the adult has the right at the adult's own expense or, if indigent, at the expense of the state to secure an independent medical, psychological or psychiatric examination relevant to the issue involved in any hearing under this section and to present a report of this independent evaluation or the evaluator's personal testimony as evidence at the hearing.

B. The duty of counsel representing an adult for whom a petition for an order for emergency protective services or for nonemergency protective services or protective placement has been filed shall be to represent the adult by protecting the adult's legal rights and presenting the adult's declared position to the court.

C. The department shall establish an evaluation or assessment process for the conduct of a comprehensive physical, mental and social evaluation of an adult for whom a petition has been filed in a court for an order for nonemergency protective services or protective placement or for whom an application for renewal of an original emergency order has been made. The court shall consider the department's evaluation or assessment in determining whether to issue an order or renewal of an order for nonemergency protective services or protective placement.

D. The court shall issue for the record a statement of its findings in support of any order for renewal of emergency protective services or for nonemergency protective services or protective placement.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 14; 1990, ch. 79, § 9; 1997, ch. 132, § 13; 2007, ch. 91, § 11.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, provided in Subsection C for hearings on the renewal of an emergency ex-parte order for protective placement and nonemergency protective services and required the department to establish an evaluation process for physical, mental and social evaluations of adults for whom a petition has been filed in a court for nonemergency protective services and placement or for renewal of an emergency order.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, inserted "or services" throughout the section.

27-7-28. Legal proceedings; filing.

For all legal proceedings called for in the Adult Protective Services Act, attorneys for the department or the district attorney's office shall file all proceedings on behalf of the petitioner.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 15.

27-7-29. Confidentiality of records; penalty.

A. All records of the department, the department's designee, including a multidisciplinary team, the court and state and local agencies that are created or maintained pursuant to investigations under the Adult Protective Services Act or for whom application has ever been made for protection shall be confidential and shall not be disclosed directly or indirectly to the public.

B. The records described in Subsection A of this section shall be open to inspection only by persons with a legitimate interest in the records as follows:

(1) the alleged abused, neglected or exploited adult, or the adult's surrogate, except as to the identity of the referral source and second source information, such as medical or psychological evaluations;

(2) court personnel;

(3) law enforcement officials;

(4) department personnel;

(5) any state government social services agency in any other state;

(6) health care or mental health professionals involved in the evaluation, treatment, residential care or protection of the adult;

(7) parties and their counsel in all legal proceedings pursuant to the Adult Protective Services Act or legal actions pursuant to the Uniform Probate Code [45-1-101 NMSA 1978];

(8) persons who have been, or will be in the immediate future, providing care or services to the adult, except the alleged perpetrator of the abuse, neglect or exploitation;

(9) persons appointed by the court pursuant to the Uniform Probate Code to be the adult's guardian ad litem, guardian, conservator, visitor or qualified health care professional;

(10) any of the persons whom the department petitions the court appoint pursuant to the Uniform Probate Code;

(11) any other person or entity, by order of the court, having a legitimate interest in the case or the work of the court; and

(12) protection and advocacy representatives pursuant to the federal Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act, Protection and Advocacy for Individuals with Mental Illness Act or the protection and advocacy of individual rights provisions of the Rehabilitation Act.

C. Records of cases involving substantiated abuse, neglect or exploitation shall be provided as appropriate to the department of health, the district attorney's office, the medicaid fraud control unit in New Mexico, the office of the attorney general and the office of the long-term care ombudsman for appropriate additional action.

D. Any person who intentionally, unlawfully releases any information or records closed to the public pursuant to this section or releases or makes other unlawful use of records in violation of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor.

E. The department may assess a civil penalty not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per violation against any person that intentionally, unlawfully releases any information or records closed to the public pursuant to this section or releases or makes other unlawful use of records. The department may assess and collect the penalty, after notice and an opportunity for hearing before a hearing officer designated by the department to hear the matter, upon a determination that a person violated the provisions of this subsection. The hearing officer has the power to administer oaths on request of any party and issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. Additionally, if the violation is against a person covered by the Personnel Act [10-9-1 NMSA 1978], the department shall refer the matter to the agency employing the person for disciplinary action. Any party may appeal a final decision by the department to the court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 16; 1997, ch. 132, § 14; 2007, ch. 91, § 12.

For the federal Protection and Advocacy for Mentally Ill Individuals Act, see 42 U.S.C.S. § 10801 et seq.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, provided that records of the department's designee, including a multidisciplinary team, are confidential and provided that an adult's record may inspected by the adult's surrogate and protection and advocacy representatives pursuant to the protection and advocacy of individual rights provisions of the Rehabilitation Act; and authorized the department in new Subsection E, after a hearing, to assess a civil penalty of not to exceed $10,000 against a person who violates provisions of this section.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, substituted "the court, state and local agencies and protective services agencies that are created or maintained pursuant to investigations" for "that are protected" in Subsection A; rewrote Subsection B; substituted "department of health, the district attorney's office" for "health and environment department" in Subsection C; and deleted "petty" preceding "misdemeanor" in Subsection D.

27-7-30. Duty to report; penalty.

A. Any person, including financial institutions, having reasonable cause to believe that an incapacitated adult is being abused, neglected or exploited shall immediately report that information to the department.

B. The report required in Subsection A of this section may be made orally or in writing. The report shall include the name, age and address of the adult, the name and address of any other person responsible for the adult's care, the nature and extent of the adult's condition, the basis of the reporter's knowledge and other relevant information.

C. Any person failing or refusing to report, or obstructing or impeding any investigation, as required by Subsection A of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor.

D. The department may assess a civil penalty not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per violation against a person that violates the provisions of Subsection A of this section or obstructs or impedes any investigation as required pursuant to Subsection A of this section. The department may assess and collect the penalty, after notice and an opportunity for hearing before a hearing officer designated by the department to hear the matter, upon a determination that a person violated the provisions of Subsection A of this section or obstructed or impeded any investigation as required pursuant to this section. The hearing officer has the power to administer oaths on request of any party and issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. Additionally, if the violation is against a person covered by the Personnel Act [10-9-1 NMSA 1978], the department shall refer the matter to the agency employing the person for disciplinary action. Any party may appeal a final decision by the department to the court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 17; 1990, ch. 79, § 10; 1997, ch. 132, § 15; 2007, ch. 91, § 13.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 2, 2007, included financial institutions as a "person" and authorized the department in new Subsection D, after a hearing, to assess a civil penalty of not to exceed $10,000 against a person who violates provisions of this section.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, in Subsection A, inserted "incapacitated" and "immediately", and deleted "or other appropriate agency" following "department"; and inserted "or obstructing or impending any investigation" in Subsection C.

27-7-31. Immunity.

Any person making a report pursuant to Section 27-7-30 NMSA 1978, testifying in any judicial proceeding arising from the report or participating in a required evaluation pursuant to the Adult Protective Services Act or any law enforcement officer carrying out his responsibilities under that act or any person providing records or information as required under that act shall be immune from civil or criminal liability on account of that report, testimony or participation, unless the person acted in bad faith or with a malicious purpose.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 389, § 18; 1997, ch. 132, § 16.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, substituted "Section 27-7-30 NMSA 1978" for "Section 17 of the Adult Protective Services Act", substituted "the Adult Protective Services" for "that", and inserted "or any person providing records or information as required under that act".

27-7A-1. Short title.

This act [27-7A-1 to 27-7A-8 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "Employee Abuse Registry Act".

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-7A-2. Definitions.

As used in the Employee Abuse Registry Act:

A. "abuse" means:

(1) knowingly, intentionally or negligently and without justifiable cause inflicting physical pain, injury or mental anguish; or

(2) the intentional deprivation by a caretaker or other person of services necessary to maintain the mental and physical health of a person;

B. "department" means the department of health;

C. "direct care" means face-to-face services provided or routine and unsupervised physical or financial access to a recipient of services;

D. "employee" means a person employed by or on contract with a provider, either directly or through a third party arrangement to provide direct care. "Employee" does not include a New Mexico licensed health care professional practicing within the scope of the profession's license or a certified nurse aide;

E. "exploitation" means an unjust or improper use of a person's money or property for another person's profit or advantage, pecuniary or otherwise;

F. "neglect" means, subject to a person's right to refuse treatment and subject to a provider's right to exercise sound medical discretion, the failure of an employee to provide basic needs such as clothing, food, shelter, supervision and care for the physical and mental health of a person or failure by a person that may cause physical or psychological harm;

G. "provider" means an intermediate care facility for the mentally retarded; a rehabilitation facility; a home health agency; a homemaker agency; a home for the aged or disabled; a group home; an adult foster care home; a case management entity that provides services to elderly people or people with developmental disabilities; a corporate guardian; a private residence that provides personal care, adult residential care or natural and surrogate family services provided to persons with developmental disabilities; an adult daycare center; a boarding home; an adult residential care home; a residential service or habilitation service authorized to be reimbursed by medicaid; any licensed or medicaid-certified entity or any program funded by the aging and long-term services department that provides respite, companion or personal care services; programs funded by the children, youth and families department that provide homemaker or adult daycare services; and any other individual, agency or organization that provides respite care or delivers home- and community-based services to adults or children with developmental disabilities or physical disabilities or to the elderly, but excluding a managed care organization unless the employees of the managed care organization provide respite care, deliver home- and community-based services to adults or children with developmental disabilities or physical disabilities or to the elderly;

H. "registry" means an electronic database that provides information on substantiated employee abuse, neglect or exploitation; and

I. "secretary" means the secretary of health.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 2.

Cross reference. — For the department of health, see Sections 9-7-1 through 9-7-17 NMSA 1978.

For the secretary of health, see Section 9-7-5 NMSA 1978.

Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-7A-3. Employee abuse registry.

A. The department shall establish an "employee abuse registry" of employees and enter into the registry names of employees with substantiated abuse, neglect or exploitation charges as determined by the department pursuant to the Employee Abuse Registry Act.

B. Before a provider hires or contracts with an employee, the provider shall inquire of the department's registry as to whether the employee is included in the registry.

C. When the department's registry receives an inquiry, the department shall inform the provider whether an employee is included in the employee abuse registry.

D. Providers that hire employees shall document that they have checked the abuse registry for each applicant being considered for employment or contract.

E. A provider shall not hire or contract with an employee in a direct care setting who is included in the employee abuse registry.

F. The department or other governmental agency may, at its discretion, terminate or not enter into or renew a contract with a provider that fails to comply with the provisions of Subsection E of this section.

G. A provider, including its administrators and employees, is not civilly liable to an applicant or an employee for a good faith decision to employ, not employ or terminate employment pursuant to the Employee Abuse Registry Act.

H. After a period of three years, an employee placed on the employee abuse registry may petition the department for removal of the employee's name from the employee abuse registry. Petitions for removal shall be in writing and mailed or hand delivered to the department. Within thirty days of the department's receipt of a petition, the secretary shall issue a written decision on the petition and provide that decision to the employee in person or by certified mail. If the secretary denies the petition, the employee may, within ten days of receipt of that decision, request a hearing. If an employee requests a hearing, that hearing shall be conducted by an independent hearing officer. An employee aggrieved by the final decision following a hearing shall have the right to judicial review pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 3.
Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-7A-4. Investigation and substantiation of abuse, neglect or exploitation by the department.

A. In addition to other actions required by law, the department shall review all reports of abuse, neglect or exploitation against employees of providers that are licensed by or under contract with the department and shall investigate such reports as necessary to determine whether there is a reasonable basis to believe that an employee committed abuse, neglect or exploitation.

B. If the department determines that abuse, neglect or exploitation has occurred, the department shall notify the employee and the provider of that determination, and such determination shall include a determination of whether the abuse, neglect or exploitation was the result of conduct by the employee, the provider or both.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 4.
Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-7A-5. Adult protective services division report of abuse, neglect or exploitation.

A. The adult protective services division of the aging and long-term services department shall investigate allegations of abuse, neglect and exploitation consistent with its statutory responsibilities.

B. If the adult protective services division determines that abuse, neglect or exploitation has occurred, it shall notify the employee and the provider of that determination, and such determination shall include a determination of whether the abuse, neglect or exploitation was the result of conduct by the employee, the provider or both.

C. The adult protective services division shall report to the department of health any substantiated finding of abuse, neglect or exploitation made against an employee of a provider under waiver or other programs administered by the aging and long-term services department and not otherwise licensed by or under contract with the department.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 5.
Cross reference. — For the adult protective services division of the aging and long-term services department, see Sections 9-23-1 through 9-23-12 NMSA 1978.
Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-7A-6. Placement on registry and hearing process.

A. If the department or the adult protective services division of the aging and long-term services department determines that abuse, neglect or exploitation by an employee has occurred, the department making that determination shall notify the employee and the provider, in person or by certified mail, of the following:

(1) the nature of the determination of the abuse, neglect or exploitation;

(2) the date and time of the occurrence;

(3) the employee's right to a hearing;

(4) the department's intent to report the substantiated findings, once the employee has had the opportunity for a hearing, to the registry; and

(5) that the employee's failure to request a hearing in writing within thirty days from the date of the notice shall result in the department reporting substantiated findings to the registry and the provider.

B. If an employee requests a hearing, that hearing shall be conducted by an independent hearing officer of the department that made the determination of abuse, neglect or exploitation.

C. After expiration of the time period for requesting a hearing, or if a determination of abuse, neglect or exploitation is substantiated through the hearing process, the substantiated finding of abuse, neglect or exploitation shall be placed on the registry through a report of the appropriate department.

D. An employee aggrieved by the final decision following a hearing shall have the right to judicial review pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 6.

Cross reference. — For the adult protective services division of the aging and long-term services department, see Sections 9-23-1 through 9-23-12 NMSA 1978.

Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

ANNOTATIONS

No denial of procedural due process. — Where plaintiff, who was a certified nurse aide, was terminated by a health care facility for abusing residents of the facility; the department of health notified plaintiff that it had found the allegation to be valid; a hearing officer found that plaintiff had abused residents of the facility; the secretary of the department reviewed the hearing officers' report and ordered that plaintiff's name be placed on the nurse registry, effectively ending plaintiff's ability to find employment as a certified nurse aide; the department's regulations applicable to employees required a determination of the severity of abuse for purposes of deciding if an employee was to be placed on the registry; the regulations applicable to nurse aides did not require a determination of the severity of abuse and defined "abuse" to include conduct likely to cause harm to residents; and plaintiff claimed that plaintiff had been denied procedural due process because the regulations did not provide for an assessment of the severity of the alleged abuse or the impact of the abuse on the residents which created a risk of erroneous deprivation of plaintiff's property interest in continuing employment as a nurse aide, the regulations did not deprive plaintiff of procedural due process because the definition of "abuse" was sufficiently specific to put plaintiff on notice of the conduct that constituted abuse and plaintiff's conduct underwent three stages of review before the finding of abuse was placed on the registry. Victor v. N.M. Dep't of Health, 2014-NMCA-012.

27-7A-7. Adoption of rules.

By January 1, 2006, the department of health and the aging and long-term services department shall jointly establish and adopt rules necessary to carry out the provisions of the Employee Abuse Registry Act, including procedures for determining abuse, neglect and exploitation that consider the severity of the alleged abuse, neglect and exploitation and procedures for reporting for the administrative hearing process and for sanctions for failure to comply with the Employee Abuse Registry Act.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 7.

Cross reference. — For the department of health, see Sections 9-7-1 through 9-7-17 NMSA 1978. For the secretary of health, see Section 9-7-5 NMSA 1978.

Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-7A-8. Penalties.

The department shall administer sanctions for a provider's failure to comply with the Employee Abuse Registry Act, including a directed plan of correction or civil monetary penalty not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000) per instance.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 256, § 8.

Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 256 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 17, 2005, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-8-1. Short title.

This act [27-8-1 to 27-8-9 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "Community Action Act".

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 1.

ANNOTATIONS

Legislator contracting with agency must ascertain how agency organized. — A legislator contracting with a community action agency will have to ascertain how the agency is organized to determine whether the prohibitions of N.M. Const., art. IV, § 28 will apply. If it is a county, county agency or a private agency, the contract will not be covered by the provision, but if it is a municipality or municipal agency, the contract will be prohibited if it was authorized by law during the legislator's term. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 89-34.

27-8-2. Policy; purpose.

Although in recent years New Mexico has shown improvement in indices such as personal income and the number of families below the poverty level, the state continues to compare poorly with other states. New Mexico has risen from 48th in 1974 to 41st in per capita personal income; however, poverty continues to be the lot of a substantial number of New Mexicans. New Mexico can achieve its full economic and social potential only if every individual has the opportunity to contribute to the full extent of his capabilities and to participate in the working of our society. It is, therefore, the policy of this state to eliminate the paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty in this state by opening to everyone the opportunity to live in decency and dignity. It is the purpose of the Community Action Act to strengthen, supplement and coordinate efforts in furtherance of that policy.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 2.

27-8-3. Definitions.

As used in the Community Action Act:

A. "poverty level" means the official poverty level established by the federal director of the office of management and budget and revised periodically by the federal secretary of health and human services; and

B. "secretary" means the secretary of human services.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 3.

27-8-4. Financial assistance for community action agencies.

A. The secretary may provide financial assistance to community action agencies for the planning, conduct, administration and evaluation of community action programs as described in the Community Action Act in accordance with state and federal law and regulations.

B. No funds provided pursuant to Subsection A of this section shall be distributed to a community action agency unless the agency has submitted to the secretary a plan on the proposed use of the funds and the secretary has approved that plan.

C. Subject to applicable federal law or regulation, community action agencies shall be eligible to receive federal funds, including but not limited to community services block grant funds, which have been previously designated as antipoverty funds.

D. Each community action agency receiving funds pursuant to this section shall report annually to the secretary concerning the use of the funds.

E. The secretary shall provide annually for an audit of funds distributed pursuant to this section to community action agencies and shall make any requirements necessary to insure fiscal responsibility and accountability and effective, efficient handling of funds.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 4.

27-8-5. Community action agencies; designation; powers.

A. A community action agency is a political subdivision of the state, a combination of political subdivisions or a public or private nonprofit agency that:

(1) has the power and authority to enter into contracts with public and private nonprofit agencies and organizations in fulfilling the purposes of the Community Action Act;

(2) is capable of planning, conducting, administering and evaluating a community action program;

(3) has a service area at least equivalent to the geographic boundaries of a county; and

(4) is designated a community action agency by the governor or by federal law or was officially designated a community action agency, community action program or limited purpose agency under the provisions of the federal Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 on September 30, 1981.

B. The governor is empowered to declare that an entity designated as a community action agency under Subsection A of this section is no longer a community action agency upon a determination that such entity is unable or unwilling to carry out its responsibilities under the Community Action Act.

C. A community action agency is empowered to:

(1) receive, administer and transfer funds in support of a community action program under the Community Action Act; and

(2) delegate powers to other agencies and programs subject to the powers of its governing board and its overall program responsibilities.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 5.

Cross references. — For the federal Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, see 42 U.S.C.S. § 2704 et seq.

27-8-6. Community action agencies; board; local participation.

A. Each community action agency shall administer its community action program through a community action board. Board members shall be selected as follows:

(1) one-third of the members of the board shall be elected public officials currently holding office in the geographical area to be served by the community action agency or their representatives, except that if the number of elected officials reasonably available and willing to serve is less than one-third of the membership of the board, membership on the board of appointive officials may be counted in meeting this one-third requirement;

(2) at least one-third of the members shall be persons chosen in accordance with democratic selection procedures adequate to ensure that they are representative of the poor in the area served; and

(3) the other members shall be officials or members of business, industry, labor, religious, welfare, education or other major groups and interests in the community.

B. Each member of the board selected to represent a specific geographic area within a community shall reside in the area represented.

C. No person selected under Paragraph (2) or (3) of Subsection A of this section shall serve for more than five consecutive years.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 6; 2021, ch. 105, § 1

The 2021 amendment, effective June 18, 2021, changed the structure of community action boards, and revised the term limit provision; in Subsection A, after "community action board", deleted "consisting of fifteen members"; and in Subsection C, after "more than five consecutive years", deleted "or more than a total of ten years".

27-8-7. Community action programs.

Each community action agency shall use available funds for a community action program which:

A. provides a range of services and activities which have a measurable and potentially major impact on causes of poverty in the community;

B. provides activities designed to assist low-income participants, including the elderly poor, to:

(1) secure and retain meaningful employment;
(2) attain an adequate education;
(3) make better use of available income;
(4) provide and maintain adequate housing and a suitable living environment;
(5) obtain emergency assistance through loans or grants to meet immediate and urgent individual and family needs, including the need for health services, nutritious food, housing and employment-related assistance;
(6) remove obstacles and solve problems which block the achievement of self-sufficiency;
(7) achieve greater participation in the affairs of the community; and
(8) make more effective use of other programs related to the purposes of the Community Action Act;

C. provides on an emergency basis for the provision of such supplies and services, nutritious food and related services as may be necessary to counteract conditions of starvation and malnutrition among the poor;

D. coordinates and establishes linkages between governmental and other social services programs to assure the effective delivery of such services to low-income individuals;

E. encourages the use of entities in the private sector of the community in efforts to alleviate poverty in the community; and

F. furthers any other purpose consistent with federal or state law or regulations.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 7.

27-8-8. Regulations.

The secretary shall adopt such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of the Community Action Act.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 139, § 8.

27-8-9. Financial assistance; limitations.

The secretary, consistent with federal law, shall make grants of not less than ninety percent of the annual allocation of funds available under the community services block grant to community action agencies defined in Subsection A of Section 5 [27-8-5 NMSA 1978] of the Community Action Act. The human services department is authorized to implement, by regulation or contract, a limitation on the amount of community services block grant funds allocated to administrative costs.

27-10-1. Short title.

Sections 1 through 4 [27-10-1 to 27-10-4 NMSA 1978] of this act may be cited as the "Statewide Health Care Act".

27-10-2. Findings and purpose.

A. Access to health care reduces long-term medical and social costs. The effectiveness of statewide health care has been decreased by excessive fragmentation and failure to maximize the use of existing in-state revenues and to develop effective ways of drawing upon potential federal revenue sources. An effective statewide health care system must retain local health care efforts, stimulate local innovations for meeting particular health care needs and use existing resources to expand health care options, especially for those citizens unable to pay for their own care.

B. The purpose of the county-supported medicaid fund is to leverage existing resources to better address the state's health care needs. The county-supported medicaid fund will be used to accomplish this purpose by using local revenues to support the state medicaid program and to institute or support primary care health care services pursuant to Section 24-1A-3.1 NMSA 1978. Money appropriated from the county-supported medicaid fund to institute or support primary care health care services pursuant to Section 24-1A-3.1 NMSA 1978 shall be supplemental to general fund appropriations.

The 1996 amendment, effective May 15, 1996, in Subsection B, inserted "or support" in the second sentence and added the last sentence.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, substituted "to support the state medicaid program" for "solely to expand eligibility for federal medicaid optional coverages in supplementation to mandated federal medicaid services" in the second sentence of Subsection B.

27-10-3. County-supported medicaid fund created; use; appropriation by the legislature.

A. There is created in the state treasury the "county-supported medicaid fund". The fund shall be invested by the state treasurer as other state funds are invested. Income earned from investment of the fund shall be credited to the county-supported medicaid fund. The fund shall not revert in any fiscal year.

B. Money in the county-supported medicaid fund is subject to appropriation by the legislature to support the state medicaid program and to institute or support primary care health care services pursuant to Subsections D and E of Section 24-1A-3.1 NMSA 1978. Of the amount appropriated each year, nine percent shall be appropriated to the department of health to institute or support primary care health care services pursuant to Subsections D and E of Section 24-1A-3.1 NMSA 1978.

C. Up to three percent of the county-supported medicaid fund each year may be expended for administrative costs related to medicaid or developing new primary care health care centers or facilities.

D. In the event federal funds for medicaid are not received by New Mexico for any eighteen-month period, the unencumbered balance remaining in the county-supported medicaid fund and the safety net care pool fund at the end of the fiscal year following the end of any eighteen-month period shall be paid within a reasonable time to each county for deposit in the county health care assistance fund in proportion to the payments made by each county through tax revenues or transfers in the previous fiscal year as certified by the local government division of the department of finance and administration. The department will provide for budgeting and accounting of payments to the fund.

The 1996 amendment, effective May 15, 1996, in Subsection B, inserted "or support" twice and substituted "Subsections D and E" for "Subsection E" in two places.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, in Subsection B, substituted "to support the state medicaid program" for "for expanding eligibility for federal medicaid optional coverages in supplementation to mandated federal medicaid services" in the first sentence and the language beginning "nine percent shall be appropriated" for "up to nine percent may be appropriated to the department of health" in the second sentence; in Subsection C, deleted "amounts appropriated and expended from" after "three percent of"; and in Subsection D, deleted "optional coverages" after "federal funds for medicaid" and inserted "and the sole community provider fund" in the first sentence and substituted "budgeting and accounting of payments" for "accounting and enforcing the deposits" in the second sentence.

The 1992 amendment, effective May 20, 1992, in Subsection B, substituted "department of health" for "health and environment department"; in Subsection D, substituted references to "any" eighteen-month period for references to "the" eighteen-month period in two places, inserted "in the county-supported medicaid fund", and made stylistic changes.

27-10-4. Alternative revenue source to imposition of county health care gross receipts tax; transfer to county-supported medicaid fund.

A. In the event a county does not enact an ordinance imposing a county health care gross receipts tax pursuant to Section 7-20D-3 [7-20E-18] NMSA 1978, the county shall, by ordinance to be effective July 1, 1993, dedicate to the county-supported medicaid fund an amount equal to a gross receipts tax rate of one-sixteenth of one percent applied to the taxable gross receipts reported during the prior fiscal year by persons engaging in business in the county. For purposes of this subsection, a county may use funds from any existing authorized revenue source of the county.

B. For each county that has in effect an ordinance enacted pursuant to Subsection A of this section on July 1 of each year, the taxation and revenue department shall certify to the county by September 15, 1993 and by September 15 of each subsequent fiscal year the amount of gross receipts reported for the county for purposes of the gross receipts tax during the prior fiscal year.

Upon certification by the department, any county enacting an ordinance pursuant to Subsection A of this section shall transfer to the county-supported medicaid fund by the last day of March, June, September and December of each year an amount equal to a rate of one-sixty-fourth of one percent applied to the certified amount.

C. The requirements of an ordinance enacted pursuant to this section may be terminated for a county only on the effective date of an ordinance enacted by the county imposing the county health care gross receipts tax; provided that if the effective date of the ordinance imposing the tax is January 1, the termination does not apply to the payments required for September and December of that year.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, deleted "except as may be otherwise provided in Section 27-5-7 NMSA 1978" from the end of Subsection A.

The 1992 amendment, effective May 20, 1992, substituted references to fiscal year for calendar year in three places; in Subsection A, substituted "pursuant to Section 7-20D-3 NMSA 1978" for "pursuant to Section 3 of the County Health Care Gross Receipts Tax Act and if no balance remains in the county indigent hospital claims fund for the current fiscal year" and "July 1, 1993" for "January 1, 1992"; in Subsection B, substituted "July 1 of each year" for "January 1 of each year", "by September 15, 1993 and by September 15" for "by March 15, 1992 and by March"; and, in Subsection C, substituted "January 1" for "July 1" and "payments required for September and December" for "payments required for March and June".

A. "claim" means a request for payment for services;

B. "clean claim" means a claim for reimbursement that:

(1) contains substantially all the required data elements necessary for accurate adjudication of the claim without the need for additional information from the medicaid provider or subcontractor;

(2) is not materially deficient or improper, including lacking substantiating documentation required by medicaid; and

(3) has no particular or unusual circumstances that require special treatment or that prevent payment from being made in due course on behalf of medicaid;

C. "credible" means having indicia of reliability after the state has reviewed all allegations, facts and evidence carefully and acted judiciously on a case-by-case basis;

D. "credible allegation of fraud" means an allegation that has been verified by the state from any source, including fraud hotline complaints, claims data mining and provider audits;

E. "department" means the human services department;

F. "fraud" means any act that constitutes fraud under state or federal law;

G. "managed care organization" means a person eligible to enter into risk-based prepaid capitation agreements with the department to provide health care and related services;

H. "medicaid" means the medical assistance program established pursuant to Title 19 of the federal Social Security Act and regulations issued pursuant to that act;

I. "medicaid provider" means a person that provides medicaid-related services to recipients;

J. "overpayment" means an amount paid to a medicaid provider or subcontractor in excess of the medicaid allowable amount, including payment for any claim to which a medicaid provider or subcontractor is not entitled;

K. "person" means an individual or other legal entity;

L. "recipient" means a person whom the department has determined to be eligible to receive medicaid-related services;

M. "secretary" means the secretary of human services; and

N. "subcontractor" means a person that contracts with a medicaid provider or a managed care organization to provide medicaid-related services to recipients.

History: Laws 1998, ch. 30, § 2; 2019, ch. 215, § 2.

The 2019 amendment, effective January 1, 2020, defined "claim", "clean claim", "credible", "credible allegation of fraud", "fraud", and "overpayment", and revised the definitions of "medicaid provider" and "subcontractor", as used in the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act; after "Medicaid Provider", added "and Managed Care"; added new Subsections A through D and redesignated former Subsection A as Subsection E; added new Subsection F and redesignated former Subsections B through D as Subsections G through I, respectively; in Subsection I, after "person", deleted "including a managed care organization, operating under contract with the department to provide" and added "that provides"; added new Subsection J and redesignated former Subsections E through H as Subsections K through N, respectively; and in Subsection N, after "medicaid provider", added "or a managed care organization".

Severability. — Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 19, effective January 1, 2020, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

27-11-3. Review of medicaid provider or managed care organization; contract remedies; penalties.

A. Consistent with the terms of any contract between the department and a medicaid provider or managed care organization, the secretary shall have the right to be afforded access to such of the medicaid provider's or managed care organization's records and personnel, as well as its subcontracts and that subcontractor's records and personnel, as may be necessary to ensure that the medicaid provider or managed care organization is complying with the terms of its contract with the department.

B. Upon not less than two days' written notice to a medicaid provider or managed care organization, the secretary may, consistent with the provisions of the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act and rules issued pursuant to that act, carry out an administrative investigation or conduct administrative proceedings to determine whether a medicaid provider or managed care organization has:

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(1) materially breached its obligation to furnish medicaid-related services to recipients, or any other duty specified in its contract with the department;

(2) violated any provision of the Public Assistance Act [27-2-1 through 27-2-34 NMSA 1978] or the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act or any rules issued pursuant to those acts;

(3) intentionally or with reckless disregard made any false statement with respect to any report or statement required by the Public Assistance Act or the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act, rules issued pursuant to either of those acts or a contract with the department;

(4) intentionally or with reckless disregard advertised or marketed, or attempted to advertise or market, its services to recipients in a manner as to misrepresent its services or capacity for services, or engaged in any deceptive, misleading or unfair practice with respect to advertising or marketing;

(5) hindered or prevented the secretary from performing any duty imposed by the Public Assistance Act, the Human Services Department Act [Chapter 9, Article 8 NMSA 1978] or the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act or any rules issued pursuant to those acts; or

(6) fraudulently procured or attempted to procure any benefit from medicaid.

C. Subject to the provisions of Subsection D of this section, after affording a medicaid provider or managed care organization written notice of hearing not less than ten days before the hearing date and an opportunity to be heard, and upon making appropriate administrative findings, the secretary may take any or any combination of the following actions against the medicaid provider or managed care organization:

(1) impose an administrative penalty of not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000) for engaging in any practice described in Subsection B of this section; provided that each separate occurrence of such practice shall constitute a separate offense;

(2) issue an administrative order requiring the medicaid provider or managed care organization to:

(a) cease or modify any specified conduct or practices engaged in by it or its employees, subcontractors or agents;

(b) fulfill its contractual obligations in the manner specified in the order;

(c) provide any service that has been denied;

(d) take steps to provide or arrange for any service that it has agreed or is otherwise obligated to make available; or

(e) enter into and abide by the terms of a binding or nonbinding arbitration proceeding, if agreed to by any opposing party, including the secretary; or

(3) suspend or revoke the contract between the medicaid provider or managed care organization and the department pursuant to the terms of that contract.

D. If a contract between the department and a medicaid provider or managed care organization explicitly specifies a dispute resolution mechanism for use in resolving disputes over performance of that contract, the dispute resolution mechanism specified in the contract shall be used to resolve such disputes in lieu of the mechanism set forth in Subsection C of this section.

E. If a medicaid provider's or managed care organization's contract so specifies, the medicaid provider or managed care organization shall have the right to seek de novo review in district court of any decision by the secretary regarding a contractual dispute.

History: Laws 1998, ch. 30, § 3; 1999, ch. 229, § 1; 2019, ch. 215, § 3.

The 2019 amendment, effective January 1, 2020, added a "managed care organization" as a medicaid provider; after "medicaid", deleted "providers" and added "provider or managed care organization"; after each occurrence of "medicaid provider", added "or managed care organization" throughout the section, and after each occurrence of "Medicaid Provider", added "and Managed Care" throughout the section.

Severability. — Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 19, effective January 1, 2020, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, in Subsection B, deleted "Upon not less than seven days' written notice to a medicaid provider" preceding "The secretary may"; and in Subsection C(1), substituted "Paragraphs (1) through (6)" for "Paragraphs (1) through (7)".

27-11-4. Retention and production of records.

A. Medicaid providers, managed care organizations and their subcontractors shall retain, for a period of at least six years from the date of creation, all medical and business records that are necessary to verify the:

(1) treatment or care of any recipient for which the medicaid provider, managed care organization or subcontractor received payment from the department to provide that benefit or service;

(2) services or goods provided to any recipient for which the medicaid provider, managed care organization or subcontractor received payment from the department to provide that benefit or service;

(3) amounts paid by medicaid or the medicaid provider or managed care organization on behalf of any recipient; and

(4) records required by medicaid under any contract between the department and the medicaid provider or managed care organization.

B. Upon written request by the department to a medicaid provider, managed care organization or any subcontractor for copies or inspection of records pursuant to the Public Assistance Act [27-2-1 through 27-2-34 NMSA 1978], the medicaid provider, managed care organization or subcontractor shall provide the copies or permit the inspection, as applicable within two business days after the date of the request unless the records are held by a subcontractor, agent or satellite office, in which case the records shall be made available within ten business days after the date of the request.

C. Failure to provide copies or to permit inspection of records requested pursuant to this section shall constitute a violation of the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act within the meaning of Paragraph (3) of Subsection B of Section 27-11-3 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1998, ch. 30, § 4; 1999, ch. 229, § 2; 2019, ch. 215, § 4.

The 2019 amendment, effective January 1, 2020, added a "managed care organization" as a medicaid provider; after each occurrence of "medicaid provider", added "or managed care organization" throughout the section; after each occurrence of "Medicaid Provider", added "and Managed Care" throughout the section; and in Subsection A, Paragraph A(1), after "medicaid provider,", added "managed care organization or subcontractor", and in Paragraph A(2), after "medicaid provider,", added "managed care organization or subcontractor".

Severability. — Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 19, effective January 1, 2020, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, in Subsection B, substituted "Upon request" for "Upon written request" and deleted "within five business days after the date of the request unless the records are held by a subcontractor, agent or satellite office, in which case the records shall be made available within ten business days after the date of the request"; in Subsection C, substituted "Section 27-11-3 NMSA 1978" for "Section 3 of that act".

27-11-5. Rules.

The secretary shall adopt and promulgate rules appropriate to administer, carry out and enforce the provisions of the Medicaid Provider Act.

History: Laws 1998, ch. 30, § 5.

27-11-6. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2006, ch. 25, § 2 repealed 27-11-6 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 2004, ch. 4, § 1, relating to the imposition of a daily bed surcharge, effective March 2, 2006. For provisions of former section, see the 2005 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

27-11-7. Determination of overpayments or credible allegation of fraud; audit findings; sampling; extrapolation limited; notice of right to informal conference and expedited adjudicatory proceeding.

A. The department may audit a medicaid provider or subcontractor for overpayment, using sampling for the time period audited. If the department contracts for the audit, the department shall contract only with an independent auditor approved by the state auditor. Each audited claim shall be reviewed by a person who is licensed, certified, registered or otherwise credentialed in New Mexico as to the matters such person reviews, including coding or specific clinical practice.

B. The department shall not extrapolate audit findings unless a medicaid provider's or subcontractor's error rate exceeds ten percent based upon an appropriate sampling and a representative sample of claims computed by valid statistical methods in accordance with the most recently published medicare program integrity manual and using statistical software approved by the United States department of health and human services.

C. Prior to reaching either a final determination of overpayment or a credible allegation of fraud, the department shall serve the medicaid provider or subcontractor with a written preliminary finding of overpayment.

D. The preliminary finding of overpayment shall:

(1) state with specificity the factual and legal basis for each claim forming the basis of an alleged overpayment;

(2) include a copy of the final audit report if the alleged overpayment is based on an audit; and

(3) notify the medicaid provider or subcontractor that is the subject of a preliminary finding of overpayment of its right to request, within thirty calendar days of service of the preliminary finding of overpayment, an informal conference with a representative of the department who is knowledgeable about the department's preliminary finding of overpayment and with a member of the audit team, if an audit formed the basis of any alleged overpayment, to informally address, resolve or dispute the department's preliminary finding of overpayment.

E. Prior to making either a final determination of overpayment or a determination of credible allegation of fraud, the department may impose corrective action upon the medicaid provider or subcontractor to address systemic conditions contributing to errors in the submission of claims for payment to which a medicaid provider or subcontractor is not entitled.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 5.
Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 20 made Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 5 effective January 1, 2020.

Severability. — Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 19, effective January 1, 2020, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

27-11-8. Informal conference; corrective action; requirements.

A. A medicaid provider or subcontractor seeking an informal conference pursuant to this section shall serve the department with a written request for such conference no later than thirty calendar days following the service of a preliminary determination of overpayment by the department on the medicaid provider or subcontractor. Upon receipt of a request for an informal conference, the department shall set a date for the conference to occur no later than fourteen business days following receipt of the request.

B. Within seven days following the informal conference, a medicaid provider or subcontractor may submit a proposed corrective action plan to the department to correct clerical, typographical, scrivener's and computer errors or to provide requested credentialing, licensure or training records identified in audit findings. The department shall not unreasonably withhold approval of the proposed corrective action plan. A medicaid provider or subcontractor shall have no less than thirty days from the date of approval of its corrective action plan to provide additional information or documentation to the department to attempt to address or resolve a disputed preliminary finding of overpayment.

27-11-9. Expedited adjudicatory proceedings; requirements.

A. A medicaid provider or subcontractor seeking an expedited adjudicatory proceeding pursuant to the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act shall serve the department and the administrative hearings office with a written request for such proceeding no later than thirty calendar days following the service of a final determination of overpayment by the department on the medicaid provider or subcontractor.

B. The chief hearing officer of the administrative hearings office shall appoint or contract with a hearing officer qualified pursuant to Section 8 [27-11-10 NMSA 1978] of this 2019 act no later than thirty calendar days after service upon the administrative hearings office of a request for an expedited adjudicatory proceeding pursuant to the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act by a medicaid provider or subcontractor.

C. The expedited adjudicatory proceeding requested by a medicaid provider or subcontractor in accordance with the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act shall commence no later than thirty calendar days following the appointment of the hearing officer or as stipulated by the _parties or as otherwise ordered by the hearing officer upon a showing of good cause. The evidentiary hearing of an expedited adjudicatory proceeding pursuant to this section shall not exceed ten business days in length and shall be conducted in accordance with Section 12-8-11 NMSA 1978.

D. After affording the parties the opportunity to submit proposed findings and conclusions of law, and based solely upon the record in accordance with the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act and the Administrative Procedures Act [12-8-1 through 12-8-25 NMSA 1978], the hearing officer shall make findings of fact and conclusions of law on all material issues of fact, law or discretion, stating the basis for each. In addition, the hearing officer shall determine the amount of overpayment with respect to each disputed claim submitted for payment, if any. The findings of fact and conclusions of law of the hearing officer shall be made and served upon all parties of record within thirty calendar days following the hearing officer's receipt of the record.

E. The hearing officer's findings of fact and conclusions of law shall be binding on the department and constitute a final agency decision, which may be appealed pursuant to Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

27-11-12. Rights of medicaid provider or subcontractor; preliminary or final determination of overpayment.

A. A medicaid provider or subcontractor may challenge:

(1) the department's preliminary or final determination of overpayment as:

(a) exceeding statutory authority;

(b) arbitrary or capricious;

(c) a failure to follow department procedure; or

(d) not supported by substantial evidence;

(2) the credentials of persons who participated in the audit or claims review; or

(3) the methodology or accuracy of the department's audit.

B. A medicaid provider or subcontractor may, but shall not be required to, conduct its own audit or sampling to challenge a preliminary or final determination of overpayment.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 10.

B. The provisions of this section shall not prevent the department from:

(1) conducting a prepayment review of claims for ongoing services rendered by the medicaid provider or subcontractor;

(2) requiring the medicaid provider or subcontractor or its employees to complete remedial training or education to prevent the submission of claims for payment to which the medicaid provider or subcontractor is not entitled; or

(3) requiring the medicaid provider or subcontractor to engage an independent third party approved by the department to temporarily manage or provide technical assistance to the medicaid provider or subcontractor.

C. The department shall direct that the release of a suspended payment occur no later than ten business days following the earlier of:

(1) the posting of a surety bond by the medicaid provider or subcontractor in the amount of the suspended payment;

(2) notice from the attorney general that the attorney general will not pursue legal action against the medicaid provider or subcontractor arising out of the referral of the medicaid provider or subcontractor based on a determination of a credible allegation of fraud;

(3) the date on which an administrative decision as to the basis for suspending such payments, or portion of such payments, in favor of the medicaid provider or subcontractor becomes final; or

(4) the date on which a judicial decision as to the basis for suspending such payments, or portion of such payments, in favor of the medicaid provider or subcontractor becomes final and not subject to further appeal.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 215, § 11.

27-11-14. Maintenance of services; payment for ongoing services.

A. Following the referral of a medicaid provider or subcontractor based on a determination of a credible allegation of fraud, and during the pendency of a dispute between the department and a medicaid provider or subcontractor regarding an alleged overpayment, including an overpayment based in whole or in part on a credible allegation of fraud, the department shall not terminate or deny the medicaid provider's or subcontractor's continued participation in the state's medicaid program if the medicaid provider or subcontractor:

(1) submits to a prepayment review of claims for ongoing services;

(2) demonstrates that its employees have completed remedial training or education required by the department to prevent the submission of claims for payment to which the medicaid provider or subcontractor is not entitled; and

(3) engages an independent third party approved by the department to temporarily manage or provide technical assistance to the medicaid provider or subcontractor following the referral or during the pendency of the dispute.

B. The department shall not unreasonably withhold approval of a third party proposed by the medicaid provider or subcontractor pursuant to Paragraph (3) of Subsection A of this section.

C. A medicaid provider or subcontractor that complies with the requirements of Subsection A of this section shall be reimbursed for each clean claim for ongoing services within ten calendar days of receipt if submitted electronically or thirty calendar days if submitted manually.

27-11-16. Credible allegation of fraud; judicial review; substantial evidence required.

A. A credible allegation of fraud determination by the department shall be deemed a final agency decision and may be appealed pursuant to Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

B. A medicaid provider or subcontractor that is the subject of a referral to the attorney general for further investigation based on a credible allegation of fraud may seek judicial review, pursuant to Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978, of the department's determination that the allegation of fraud is credible. The department shall show by substantial evidence that:

(1) it has followed its own procedures; and

(2) the evidence relied upon to make its credible allegation of fraud determination was relevant, credible and material to the issue of fraud.

C. In a proceeding for judicial review under this section, the reviewing court shall not consider evidence acquired by the department after making its credible allegation of fraud determination.

27-11-17. Award of costs, fees and interest.

A. If a medicaid provider or subcontractor is the prevailing party in any expedited adjudicatory or court proceeding brought by the medicaid provider or subcontractor pursuant to the Medicaid Provider and Managed Care Act on or after January 1, 2020 in connection with a preliminary or final determination of overpayment or a determination of credible allegation of fraud, the medicaid provider or subcontractor shall be entitled to:

(1) reasonable administrative costs incurred in connection with an expedited adjudicatory proceeding with the department;

(2) reasonable litigation costs incurred in connection with a court proceeding; and

(3) interest pursuant to Subsection F of this section.

B. As used in this section:

(1) "court proceeding" means any civil action brought in state district court;

(2) "reasonable administrative costs" means actual charges for preparation for and conduct of an administrative proceeding, including:

(a) court reporter fees, service of process fees and similar expenses;

(b) the services of expert witnesses;

(c) any study, analysis, report, test or project reasonably necessary for the preparation of the party's case; and

(d) fees and costs paid or incurred for the services of attorneys or of certified public accountants in connection with the expedited adjudicatory proceeding; and

(3) "reasonable litigation costs" means:

© 2022 State of New Mexico, New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(a) reasonable court costs; and

(b) actual charges for: 1) filing fees, court reporter fees, service of process fees and similar expenses; 2) the services of expert witnesses; 3) any study, analysis, report, test or project reasonably necessary for the preparation of the party's case; and 4) fees and costs paid or incurred for the services of attorneys or certified public accountants in connection with the proceeding.

C. For purposes of this section:

(1) the medicaid provider or subcontractor is the prevailing party if it has:

(a) substantially prevailed with respect to the amount in controversy; or

(b) substantially prevailed with respect to most of the issues involved in the case or the most significant issue or set of issues involved in the case;

(2) the medicaid provider or subcontractor shall not be treated as the prevailing party if the hearing officer finds that the position of the department in the proceeding was based upon a reasonable application of the law to the facts of the case. For purposes of this paragraph, the position of the department shall be presumed not to be based upon a reasonable application of the law to the facts of the case if:

(a) the department did not follow its own rules or procedures in making a preliminary finding or final determination of overpayment; or

(b) the department's preliminary finding or final determination of overpayment giving rise to the proceeding was not supported by substantial evidence at the time such finding or determination was made; and

(3) the determination of whether the medicaid provider or subcontractor is the prevailing party and the amount of reasonable administrative costs or reasonable litigation costs shall be made:

(a) by agreement of the parties;

(b) in an expedited adjudicatory proceeding, by the hearing officer; or

(c) in a court proceeding, by the court.

D. A decision or order granting or denying in whole or in part an award for reasonable administrative costs pursuant to Subsection A of this section by the hearing officer shall be reviewable in the same manner as other decisions of the administrative hearings office. An order granting or denying in whole or in part an award for reasonable litigation costs pursuant to Subsection A of this section in a court proceeding may be incorporated as a part of the decision or judgment in the court proceeding and shall be subject to appeal in the same manner as the decision or judgment.

E. No agreement for or award of reasonable administrative costs or reasonable litigation costs in any expedited adjudicatory or court proceeding pursuant to Subsection A of this section shall exceed the lesser of thirty percent of the amount of the settlement or judgment or one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000). A medicaid provider or subcontractor awarded administrative or litigation costs pursuant to this section may not receive an award of attorney fees pursuant to any other statutory provision.

F. Interest on amounts owed to a prevailing medicaid provider or subcontractor shall accrue and be paid at the rate of one and one-half percent a month on the amount of a:

(1) clean claim electronically submitted by the medicaid provider or subcontractor and not paid within thirty days of receipt;

(2) clean claim manually submitted by the medicaid provider or subcontractor and not paid within forty-five days of receipt; or

(3) claim for which additional information was necessary to substantiate the claim and not paid within sixty days of receipt of such additional information.

A. "attendant" means a person, including an allowable family member, who provides personal assistance services;

B. "consumer" means a person receiving personal assistance services through any personal assistance programs offered by the state of New Mexico;

C. "department" means any department or agency of the state offering personal assistance service to individuals;

D. "fiscal intermediary" means a person or entity selected by agreement between the consumer and the department under contract to the department to assist the consumer to perform certain employment functions, including payroll responsibilities for the attendant and filing necessary eligibility information with the department;

E. "personal assistance services" means a prescribed course of regular personal care, including hygiene, mobility and daily living assistance that permits a person to live in his home rather than an institution, including bathing, dressing, grooming, eating, toileting, shopping, transporting, cueing medication administration and communicating;

F. "plan" means a written and signed agreement between a consumer or surrogate and the department for the provision of personal assistance services; and

G. "surrogate" means a family member, legal guardian or other person approved by the consumer and identified in the personal assistance services plan to assist in direction of personal assistance services and choice of attendant.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 210, § 3.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 210, § 7 made the act effective July 1, 2003.

27-13-4. Consumer direction programs authorized.

Consistent with the federal Social Security Act and subject to the appropriation and availability of federal and state funds, each administering department or agency shall by rule provide a program permitting a consumer or surrogate to direct personal assistance services through the hiring, supervision and training of an attendant or attendants paid through a fiscal intermediary under contract with the department.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 210, § 4.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 210, § 7 made the act effective July 1, 2003.

27-13-5. Department duties.

A department shall:

A. establish by rule the criteria and procedures for developing and amending a personal assistance services plan with a consumer;

B. develop criteria and procedures for selection of a fiscal intermediary to contract with the department to provide fiscal intermediary services to a consumer; and

C. establish rates for reimbursement of an attendant providing personal assistance services to a consumer and for the compensation of a fiscal intermediary.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 210, § 5.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 210, § 7 made the act effective July 1, 2003.

27-13-6. Report.

Annually by October 1, each department shall deliver a report to the legislative finance committee and the legislative health and human services committee on services provided pursuant to the Consumer Direction Act and a comparison of those services and services provided by the department through other means and an evaluation of the effectiveness and consumer satisfaction with the respective means of service delivery.

27-13-7. Fiscal intermediary; exemptions; workers' compensation.

A. A fiscal intermediary shall not be subject to vicarious liability as an employer or principal for a wrongful act committed by a personal care attendant if the attendant:

(1) is not a current or former employee of the fiscal intermediary;

(2) has not received training or instruction from the fiscal intermediary with respect to providing personal care services to a person with a disability, not including administrative paper work;

(3) has been hired by and received training or instruction from the consumer or the consumer's authorized representative to provide personal care to the consumer; and

(4) provides basic assistance with daily living activities that do not require the education, certification or training of a licensed health care practitioner.

B. A fiscal intermediary may identify a personal care attendant as a covered employee with the fiscal intermediary's workers' compensation carrier solely to provide workers' compensation coverage in the event of a work-related injury. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to create an employer-employee relationship between the fiscal intermediary and the personal care attendant.

C. Nothing in this section shall be construed to provide the fiscal intermediary with immunity from a claim for a wrongful act committed by the fiscal intermediary or its employees.

D. As used in this section:

(1) "consumer" means a person who is eligible for and receives state-funded or -operated services based on the person's disabilities;

(2) "fiscal intermediary" means a provider that furnishes administrative assistance for a consumer who selects a consumer-directed, rather than consumer-delegated, personal care program;

(3) "personal care attendant" means a person who provides assistance to a consumer with activities of daily living, including bathing, dressing, eating, transportation, shopping and similar activities; and

(4) "personal care program" means a state-funded or -operated support program, including medicaid, that provides the services of a personal care attendant for certain persons with a disability.

E. "qui tam" means an action brought under a statute that allows a private person to sue for a recovery, part of which the state will receive.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 3.

Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-4. False claims against the state; liability for certain acts.

A person commits an unlawful act and shall be liable to the state for three times the amount of damages that the state sustains as a result of the act if the person:

A. presents, or causes to be presented, to the state a claim for payment under the medicaid program knowing that such claim is false or fraudulent;

B. presents, or causes to be presented, to the state a claim for payment under the medicaid program knowing that the person receiving a medicaid benefit or payment is not authorized or is not eligible for a benefit under the medicaid program;

C. makes, uses or causes to be made or used a record or statement to obtain a false or fraudulent claim under the medicaid program paid for or approved by the state knowing such record or statement is false;

D. conspires to defraud the state by getting a claim allowed or paid under the medicaid program knowing that such claim is false or fraudulent;

E. makes, uses or causes to be made or used a record or statement to conceal, avoid or decrease an obligation to pay or transmit money or property to the state, relative to the medicaid program, knowing that such record or statement is false;

F. knowingly applies for and receives a benefit or payment on behalf of another person, except pursuant to a lawful assignment of benefits, under the medicaid program and converts that benefit or payment to his own personal use;

G. knowingly makes a false statement or misrepresentation of material fact concerning the conditions or operation of a health care facility in order that the facility may qualify for certification or recertification required by the medicaid program; or

27-14-5. Documentary material in possession of state agency.

A. The department shall have access to all documentary materials of persons and medicaid recipients to which a state agency has access. Documentary material provided pursuant to this subsection is provided to allow investigation of an alleged unlawful act or for use or potential use in an administrative or judicial proceeding.

B. Except for disclosure to any person under investigation or who is the subject of allegations made pursuant to the Medicaid False Claim Act [27-14-1 NMSA 1978] or as ordered by a court for good cause shown, the department shall not produce for inspection or copying or otherwise disclose the contents of documentary material obtained pursuant to this section to a person other than:

(1) an authorized employee of the attorney general;
(2) an agency of this state, the United States or another state;
(3) a district attorney, city attorney or county attorney of this state;
(4) the United States attorney general; or
(5) a state or federal grand jury.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 5.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-6. Immunity.

Notwithstanding any other law, a person is not civilly or criminally liable for providing access to documentary material pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act [27-14-1 NMSA 1978] to a person identified in Subsection B of Section 5 of that act.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 6.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-7. Civil action for false claims.

A. The department shall diligently investigate suspected violations. If the department finds that a person has violated or is violating the provisions of the Medicaid False Claims Act, the department may bring a civil action pursuant to Subsection F of this section.

B. A private civil action may be brought by an affected person for a violation of the Medicaid False Claims Act on behalf of the person bringing suit and for the state. The action shall be brought in the name of the state. The action may be dismissed if the court and the department, pursuant to Subsection F of this section, give written consent to the dismissal and their reasons for consenting.

C. For private civil actions, a copy of the complaint and written disclosure of substantially all material evidence and information the person possesses shall be served on the department. The complaint shall be filed in writing and shall remain under seal for at least sixty days. The complaint shall not be served on the defendant until the expiration of sixty days or any extension approved. Within sixty days after receiving a copy of the complaint, the department shall conduct an investigation of the factual allegations and legal contentions made in the complaint, shall make a written determination of whether there is substantial evidence that a violation has occurred and shall provide the person against which a complaint has been made with a copy of the determination. If the department determines that there is not substantial evidence that a violation has occurred, the complaint shall be dismissed.

D. The department may, for good cause shown, move the court for extensions of time during which the complaint remains under seal. Any such motion may be supported by affidavits or other submissions in camera. The defendant shall not be required to respond to a complaint filed pursuant to this section until twenty days after the complaint is unsealed and served to the defendant. The complaint shall be deemed unsealed at the expiration of the sixty-day period in the absence of a court-approved extension.

E. Before the expiration of the sixty-day period or any extensions obtained, the department, pursuant to Subsection F of this section, shall:

(1) proceed with the action, in which case the action shall be conducted by the department; or

(2) notify the court and the person who brought the action that it declines to take over the action, in which case the person bringing the action shall have the right to conduct the action if the department determined that there is substantial evidence that a violation of the Medicaid False Claims Act has occurred.

F. The department shall notify the attorney general prior to filing a civil action pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act and shall not proceed with the action except with the written approval of the attorney general. The attorney general shall, within twenty working days from the notification by the department, notify the department whether it may proceed with the civil action. Failure by the attorney general to notify the department of its determination within the specified time period shall be construed as consent to proceed. The department shall, after filing the civil action, notify the attorney general of any proposed dismissal or settlement and the department shall not proceed with the dismissal or settlement except with the written approval of the attorney general.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 7.

Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-8. Rights of the parties to qui tam actions.

A. If the department proceeds with the action, it shall have the exclusive responsibility for prosecuting the action and shall not be bound by an act of the person bringing the action. The person bringing the action shall have the right to continue as a nominal party to the action and shall not have the right to participate in the litigation except as a witness.

B. The department may dismiss the action, pursuant to Subsection F of Section 7 of the Medicaid False Claims Act [27-14-7 NMSA 1978], notwithstanding the objections of the person bringing the action if the person has been notified by the department of the filing of the motion and the court has provided the person with an opportunity for a hearing on the motion.

C. The department may settle the action with the defendant, pursuant to Subsection F of Section 7 of the Medicaid False Claims Act, notwithstanding the objections of the person bringing the action if the court determines, after the hearing, that the proposed settlement is fair, adequate and reasonable under all the circumstances. Upon a showing of good cause, such hearing may be held in camera.

D. If the state elects not to proceed with the action, the person bringing the action shall have the right to conduct the action. If the department requests, it shall be served with copies of the pleadings filed in the action and shall be supplied with copies of all deposition transcripts at the department's expense. When a person proceeds with the action, the court, without limiting the status and rights of the person bringing the action, may allow the department to intervene at a later date upon a showing of good cause.

E. Whether or not the department proceeds with the action, upon a showing by the department that certain actions of discovery by the person bringing the action would interfere with the department's investigation or prosecution of a civil matter arising out of the same facts, the court may stay such discovery for a period not to exceed sixty days. Such a showing shall be conducted in camera. The court may extend the sixty-day period upon a further showing in camera that the department has pursued the civil investigation or proceedings with reasonable diligence and any proposed discovery in the civil action will interfere with the ongoing civil investigation or proceedings.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 8.

Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-9. Award to qui tam plaintiff.

A. If the department proceeds with an action brought by a person pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act, the person shall, subject to the limitations in this subsection, receive at least fifteen percent but not more than twenty-five percent of the proceeds of the action or settlement of the claim, depending upon the extent to which the person substantially contributed to the prosecution of the action. Where the action is one that the court finds to be based primarily on disclosures of specific information other than information provided by the party bringing the action relating to allegations or transactions in a criminal, civil or administrative hearing or from the news media, the court shall award a sum as it considers appropriate; provided that the sum does not exceed ten percent of the proceeds and takes into account the significance of the information and the role of the person bringing the action in advancing the case to litigation. A payment to a person pursuant to this subsection shall be made from the proceeds. The person shall also receive an amount for reasonable expenses that the court finds to have been necessarily incurred, plus reasonable attorney fees and costs. In determining the amount of reasonable attorney fees and costs, the court shall consider whether such fees and costs were necessary to the prosecution of the action, were incurred for activities that were duplicative of the activities of the department in prosecuting the case or were repetitious, irrelevant or for purposes of harassment or caused the defendant undue burden or unnecessary expense. All such expenses, fees and costs shall be awarded against the defendant.

B. If the department does not proceed with an action pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act, the person bringing the action or settling the claim shall receive an amount that the court decides is reasonable for collecting the civil recovery and damages recoverable by the state. The amount shall be not less than twenty-five percent and not more than thirty percent of the proceeds of the action or settlement and shall be paid out of such proceeds. The person shall also receive an amount for reasonable expenses that the court finds to have been necessarily incurred, plus reasonable attorney fees and costs. In determining the amount of reasonable attorney fees and costs, the court shall consider whether such fees and costs were necessary to the prosecution of the action, were incurred for activities, which were repetitious, irrelevant or for purposes of harassment or caused the defendant undue burden or unnecessary expense. All such expenses, fees and costs shall be awarded against the defendant.

C. Whether or not the department proceeds with the action, if the court finds that the action was brought by a person who planned and initiated the violation upon which the action was brought, then the court may, to the extent the court considers appropriate, reduce the share of the proceeds of the action that the party would otherwise receive pursuant to Subsection A or B of this section, taking into account the role of that person in advancing the case to litigation and any relevant circumstances pertaining to the violation. If the person bringing the action is convicted of criminal conduct arising from the person's role in the violation of the Medicaid False Claims Act, that person shall be dismissed from the civil action and shall not receive any share of the proceeds of the action. Such dismissal shall not prejudice the right of the state to continue the action represented by the department. If the department does not proceed with the action and the person bringing the action conducts the action, the court may award to the defendant its reasonable attorney fees and costs if the defendant prevails in the action and the court finds that the claim of the party bringing the action was:

(1) filed for an improper purpose;

(2) not warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law; or

(3) was based on allegations or factual contentions not supported.

27-14-10. Certain actions barred.

A. A court shall not have jurisdiction of an action brought pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act against a department official if the action is substantially based on evidence or information known to the department when the action was brought.

B. A person shall not bring an action pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act that is substantially based upon allegations or transactions that are the subject of a civil suit or an administrative proceeding in which the department is already a party.

C. A court shall not have jurisdiction over an action pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act substantially based upon the public disclosure of allegations or actions in a criminal, civil or administrative hearing or from the news media, unless the action is brought by the department or the person bringing the action is an original source of the information. For the purposes of this subsection, "original source" means the person bringing suit that has independent knowledge, including knowledge based on the person's own investigation of the defendant's conduct, of the information on which the allegations are based and has voluntarily provided or verified the information on which the allegations are based or has voluntarily provided the information to the department before filing an action pursuant to this section that is based on the information.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 10.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-11. Department not liable for certain expenses.

The department shall not be liable for expenses that a person incurs in bringing an action pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 11.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-12. Employee protection.

Any employee who is discharged, demoted, suspended, threatened, harassed or otherwise discriminated against in the terms and conditions of employment by the employer because of lawful acts done by the employee on behalf of the employee or others in disclosing information to the department or in furthering a false claims action pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act, including investigation for, initiation of, testimony for or assistance in an action filed or to be filed pursuant to that act, shall be entitled to all relief necessary to make the employee whole. Such relief shall include reinstatement with the same seniority status that the employee would have had but for the discrimination, two times the amount of back pay, interest on the back pay and compensation for any special damages sustained as a result of the discrimination, including litigation costs and reasonable attorney fees. An employee may bring an action in the appropriate court of the state for the relief provided in this subsection.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 12.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-13. False claims and reporting procedure.

A. A civil action shall be brought within the limitations set forth in Section 37-1-4 NMSA 1978.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

B. In any action brought pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act, the department or the person bringing the action shall be required to prove all essential elements of the cause of action, including damages, by a preponderance of the evidence.

C. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a final judgment rendered in favor of the department in any criminal proceeding charging fraud or false statements, whether upon a verdict after trial or upon a plea of guilty, shall preclude the defendant from denying the essential elements of the offense in any action that involves the same transaction as in the criminal proceeding and that is brought pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 13.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-14. Application of other law.

The application of a civil remedy pursuant to this law does not preclude the application of other laws, statutes or regulatory remedy, except that a person may not be liable for a civil remedy pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act and civil damages or recovery pursuant to the Medicaid Fraud Act [30-44-1 NMSA 1978] if the civil remedy and the civil damages or recoveries are assessed for the same conduct by another government agency.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 14.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

27-14-15. Use of funds.

A. Damages collected pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act on behalf of the state shall be remitted to the state treasurer for deposit in the general fund to be used for the state's medicaid program.

B. Penalties, legal fees or costs of investigation recovered pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act on behalf of the state shall be remitted to the state treasurer for deposit in the general fund to be used for the state's medicaid program.

C. Pursuant to Subsection C of Section 30-44-8 NMSA 1978, penalties recovered pursuant to the Medicaid False Claims Act on behalf of the state may be claimed by the attorney general pursuant to procedures established by the department and the attorney general.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 49, § 15.
Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 49 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-1-1. Short title.

Chapter 28, Article 1 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Human Rights Act".

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-1, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 1; 2000, ch. 4, § 1.

For Uniform Owner-Resident Relations Act, see 47-8-1 NMSA 1978.

The 2000 amendment, effective February 15, 2000, substituted "Chapter 28, Article 1 NMSA 1978" for "this act".

ANNOTATIONS

Human Rights Act protects against discriminatory treatment, not against general claims of employer unfairness. Juneau v. Intel Corp., 2006-NMSC-002, 139 N.M. 12, 127 P.3d 548.

Evidence of discrimination. — In an action based on a claim of racial discrimination, racist statements made by defendant that were not directed at plaintiff and that did not purport to describe her did not constitute direct evidence of racial discrimination. Perry v. Woodward, 199 F.3d 1126 (10th Cir. 1999).

Punitive damages in civil rights action. — Where plaintiff sued state hospital in state court alleging that employees of the hospital had retaliated against plaintiff for filing a human rights commission claim; plaintiff did not sue any individual employees in the state court action; plaintiff obtained an award for compensatory damages in state court; and plaintiff sued individual employees of the hospital in federal court for violation of plaintiff's civil rights for retaliating against plaintiff, plaintiff was not barred from suing individual employees for retaliation and recovering punitive damages, because different rules governed the measure of damages in the state action and in the federal action. Gonzales v. Hernandez, 175 F.3d 1202 (10th Cir. 1999).

Notice requirement where federal court action. — Failure to give notice to New Mexico human rights commission before bringing action in federal court bars recovery in federal court. Harris v. Ericson, 457 F.2d 765 (10th Cir. 1972).

Human Rights Act inapplicable on federal enclave. — Congress has exclusive authority over federal enclaves, and therefore plaintiffs' claims were barred by the federal enclave doctrine, where plaintiffs, employees of Sandia corporation (Sandia labs) located on Kirtland air force base, brought state-law employment discrimination claims against Sandia labs, a federally funded research and development contractor operating under contract for the department of energy. Kennicott v. Sandia Corp., 314 F.Supp.3d 1142 (D.N.M. 2018)

Judicial review of discrimination claims. — Court's failure to explicitly apply framework for analyzing employment discrimination suits set forth in McDonnell Douglas Corp. v. Green, 411 U.S. 792, 93 S. Ct. 1817, 36 L. Ed. 2d 668 (1973) and adopted by the New Mexico Supreme Court in Smith v. FDC Corp., 1990-NMSC-020, 109 N.M. 514, 787 P.2d 433, was not error where the court's findings were consistent with a proper application of the McDonnell Douglas/Smith framework and the record contained substantial evidence to support the court's finding that the employer did not perceive the employee to be handicapped. Martinez v. Yellow Freight Sys., 1992-NMSC-015, 113 N.M. 366, 826 P.2d 962.

Retaliatory discharge. — A common-law tort action for retaliatory discharge may be brought when the claimant alleges she was discharged from her employment because she earlier sought relief against her employer under the New Mexico Human Rights Act. Gandy v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 1994-NMSC-040, 117 N.M. 441, 872 P.2d 859; EEOC v. MTS Corp., 937 F. Supp. 1503 (D.N.M. 1996).

Employer's burden of proof in sex discrimination and wrongful discharge cases. — In a sex discrimination case, as with damages recoverable in cases of wrongful discharge, the employer has the burden of proving the employee did not exercise reasonable diligence in mitigating lost earnings. It is for the jury to decide, under the facts of each case, whether seeking formal education represents care or diligence to minimize damages. Montoya v. Super Save Warehouse Foods, 1991-NMSC-003, 111 N.M. 212, 804 P.2d 403.

Availability of equal protection claim. — The law in New Mexico is unsettled as to whether a claim of discrimination in employment that is asserted under this act can also be maintained under the equal protection clause of the New Mexico constitution. Roybal v. City of Albuquerque, 653 F. Supp. 102 (D.N.M. 1986).

New Mexico created state remedy for age discrimination through the New Mexico Human Rights Act that affords victims back wages and other monetary relief. Gill v. Public Employees Ret. Bd., 2004-NMSC-016, 135 N.M. 472, 90 P.3d 491.

Age and disability claims must be pursued under administrative procedures available in the New Mexico Human Rights Act and do not lie in common-law tort. Gormley v. Coca-Cola Enter., 2004-NMCA-021, 135 N.M.128, 85 P.3d 252, aff'd, 2005-NMSC-003, 137 N.M. 192, 109 P.3d 280.

Effect on municipalities. — The passage of the 1969 "Human Rights Act" does not remove the authority municipalities already possess in the realm of human rights. Whatever ordinance is passed cannot lower or be inconsistent with the state standards that have been set for human rights in this article. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-64.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-2, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 2; 1973, ch. 155, § 1; 1983, ch. 241, § 1; 1987, ch. 76, § 1; 1987, ch. 342, § 16; 1993, ch. 268, § 1; 2003, ch. 383, § 1; 2007, ch. 200, § 17; 2020, ch. 49, § 1; 2021, ch. 19, § 3; 2021, ch. 37, § 3.

The 2021 amendment, effective July 1, 2021, defined "cultural or religious headdresses", "protective hairstyles", and "race" as used in the Human Rights Act; added new Subsections T through V.

Laws 2021, ch. 19, § 3 and Laws 2021, ch. 37, § 3, both effective July 1, 2021, enacted identical amendments to this section. The section was set out as amended by Laws 2021, ch. 37, § 3. See 12-1-8 NMSA 1978.

The 2020 amendment, effective May 20, 2020, defined "reasonable accommodation" and "undue hardship" as used in the Human Rights Act, and added Subsections R and S.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, defined "bureau" as the human rights bureau of the labor relations division of the workforce solutions department and "secretary" as the secretary of workforce solutions.

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003, in Subsection M, substituted "a person's" for "an individual's" preceding "major life activities", substituted "A person" for "An individual" preceding "is also considered"; and added Subsections P and Q.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, substituted "labor department" for "department of labor" in Subsection D.

ANNOTATIONS

Commercial photography business was a public accommodation. — Where plaintiff offered photography services to the public on a commercial basis and solicited customers by offering its services to the public at large through its website, advertisements on multiple search engines, and in the Yellow Pages; and plaintiff did not participate in selective advertising, such as telephone solicitation, or in any way seek to target a select group of people through its advertisements, plaintiff constituted a public accommodation under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428, cert. granted, 2012-NMCERT-008.

University of New Mexico is not a "public accommodation" within the meaning of the New Mexico Human Rights Act, and is not subject to the jurisdiction of the human rights commission in the instance of a nursing student's complaint of racial discrimination. Human Rights Comm'n v. Board of Regents, 1981-NMSC-026, 95 N.M. 576, 624 P.2d 518.

Meaning of "places of accommodation" in former law. — Single dwellings, duplexes and apartment buildings, being in their nature distinctly private, were not "places of accommodation" as defined in the Civil Rights Act, 49-8-1 to 49-8-7, 1953 Comp. (now repealed), and consequently the restrictions against discrimination did not apply thereto. 1963-64 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 63-150 (opinion rendered under prior law).

28-1-3. Human rights commission.

A. There is created the "human rights commission" consisting of eleven members appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate. Not more than six of the members shall be of the same political party. Not more than one member may be appointed from any one county. The governor shall designate a member to serve as chairman. The commission shall designate one of its members as vice chairman to preside in the absence or incapacity of the chairman.

B. The term of office of each member of the commission is for four years; however, of the commissioners first appointed, one shall be appointed for a term ending December 31, 1969, one for a term ending December 31, 1970, one for a term ending December 31, 1971 and two for terms ending December 31, 1972; provided, the two additional members added pursuant to this 1975 amendment shall be initially appointed for staggered terms of two and three years respectively so that one term ends on December 31, 1977 and one ends on December 31, 1978. The four additional commissioners added pursuant to this 1991 amendment shall be appointed for staggered terms; two shall be appointed for terms ending December 31, 1992; and two shall be appointed for terms ending December 31, 1993.

C. Any member chosen to fill a vacancy occurring otherwise than by expiration of term shall be appointed for the remainder of the unexpired term. Six members of the commission constitute a quorum to conduct business. Vacancies on the commission shall not impair the right of the remaining members to exercise the powers of the commission.

D. Each member of the commission shall be reimbursed, as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 to 10-8-8 NMSA 1978], during the performance of official duties and shall receive no other compensation, perquisite or allowance.

28-1-4. Powers and duties.

A. The commission may:

(1) hear complaints and issue orders, including cease and desist orders concerning alleged unlawful discriminatory practice;

(2) hold hearings, subpoena witnesses and compel their attendance, administer oaths, take the testimony of any person under oath, order depositions and require the production for examination of any books, records, correspondence, documents and other evidence relating to any matter under investigation or in question before the commission. Contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena issued pursuant to this section constitutes contempt punishable by the district court of the judicial district in which the witness may be found. No individual shall be excused from attending and testifying or from producing evidence in obedience to a subpoena issued pursuant to this section on the grounds that the testimony or evidence required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or a forfeiture. However, no individual shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture concerning any matter for which he is compelled to testify or give evidence after having claimed his right against self-incrimination. Nevertheless, the individual so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed while testifying.

B. The division may:

(1) receive and investigate complaints of alleged unlawful discriminatory practice;

(2) seek to eliminate discrimination through conciliation and persuasion by voluntary conferences with interested parties;

(3) recommend application by the director to a district court in the county where the violating party resides for specific performance of any conciliation agreement or for enforcement of any order issued by the commission;

(4) endeavor to eliminate prejudice and to further good will. The division in cooperation with the state department of public education and local boards of education shall encourage an educational program for all residents of the state, calculated to eliminate prejudice, its harmful effects and its incompatibility with principles of fair play, equality and justice;

(5) encourage voluntary advisory groups to study problems of discrimination in all fields, to foster, through community efforts, good will and cooperation in this state and to make recommendations to the secretary for the development of policies and procedures which the secretary may recommend to appropriate state agencies;

(6) seek and enlist the cooperation and contributions and grants of individuals and foundations, private, charitable, religious, labor, civic and benevolent organizations and the federal government for the purposes of this section;

(7) issue publications and release the results of investigation and research which in the secretary's judgment will tend to promote good will and prevent or eliminate discrimination; and

(8) submit annually a written report of all its activities and recommendations to the secretary, the governor and the legislature.

History: 1978 Comp., § 28-1-4, enacted by Laws 1987, ch. 342, § 18.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1987, ch. 342, § 18 repealed former 28-1-4 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 4, effective July 1, 1987 and enacted a new section.

28-1-5. Procedures for adopting regulations.

A. The secretary may adopt, promulgate, amend and repeal rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the Human Rights Act.

B. No rule or regulation of general application may be adopted, amended or repealed without a public hearing before the secretary or his designee.

C. The public hearing shall be in Santa Fe, and notice of the subject, time and place of the meeting, the manner in which interested persons may present their views and the method by which copies of the proposed rule, regulation or amendment may be obtained shall be:

(1) published in each county at least thirty days prior to the hearing date in a newspaper of general circulation; and

(2) mailed at least thirty days prior to the hearing date to all persons who have made a written request for advance notice of the hearing.

D. The secretary shall allow all interested persons a reasonable opportunity to submit arguments and to examine witnesses testifying at the hearing.

E. The secretary may designate a hearing officer to take evidence at the hearing.

F. Any person appearing or represented at the hearing shall be given written notice of the secretary's action on the proposed rule, regulation, amendment or repeal.

G. No rule, regulation, amendment or repeal shall become effective until thirty days after its filing.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-5, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 5; 1987, ch. 342, § 19.

28-1-6. Validity of regulation; judicial review.

A. Any person who is or may be affected by a regulation adopted by the secretary may appeal to the court of appeals for further relief. All appeals shall be upon the record made at the hearing and shall be taken to the court of appeals within thirty days after filing of the regulation.

B. The procedure for perfecting an appeal to the court of appeals under this section consists of the timely filing of a notice of appeal with a copy of the regulation from which the appeal is taken. The appellant shall certify in his notice of appeal that arrangements have been made with the secretary for preparation of a sufficient number of transcripts of the record of the hearing on which the appeal depends to support his appeal to the court, at the expense of the appellant, including three copies which he shall furnish to the secretary.

C. Upon appeal, the court of appeals shall set aside the regulation only if found to be:

(1) arbitrary, capricious or an abuse of discretion;

(2) not supported by a preponderance of evidence in the record; or

(3) otherwise not in accordance with law.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-6, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 6; 1987, ch. 342, § 20.

28-1-7. Unlawful discriminatory practice.

It is an unlawful discriminatory practice for:

A. an employer, unless based on a bona fide occupational qualification or other statutory prohibition, to refuse to hire, to discharge, to promote or demote or to discriminate in matters of compensation, terms, conditions or privileges of employment against any person otherwise qualified because of race, age, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition, or, if the employer has fifty or more employees, spousal affiliation; provided, however, that 29 U.S.C. Section 631(c)(1) and (2) shall apply to discrimination based on age;

B. a labor organization to exclude a person or to expel or otherwise discriminate against any of its members or against any employer or employee because of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation, physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition;

C. any employer, labor organization or joint apprenticeship committee to refuse to admit or employ any person in any program established to provide an apprenticeship or other training or retraining because of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition, or, if the employer has fifty or more employees, spousal affiliation;

D. any person, employer, employment agency or labor organization to print or circulate or cause to be printed or circulated any statement, advertisement or publication, to use any form of application for employment or membership or to make any inquiry regarding prospective membership or employment that expresses, directly or indirectly, any limitation, specification or discrimination as to race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition, or, if the employer has fifty or more employees, spousal affiliation, unless based on a bona fide occupational qualification;

E. an employment agency to refuse to list and properly classify for employment or refer a person for employment in a known available job, for which the person is otherwise qualified, because of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation, physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition, unless based on a bona fide occupational qualification, or to comply with a request from an employer for referral of applicants for employment if the request indicates, either directly or indirectly, that the employer discriminates in employment on the basis of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation, physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition, unless based on a bona fide occupational qualification;

F. any person in any public accommodation to make a distinction, directly or indirectly, in offering or refusing to offer its services, facilities, accommodations or goods to any person because of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation or physical or mental handicap; provided that the physical or mental handicap is unrelated to a person's ability to acquire or rent and maintain particular real property or housing accommodation;

G. any person to:

(1) refuse to sell, rent, assign, lease or sublease or offer for sale, rental, lease, assignment or sublease any housing accommodation or real property to any person or to refuse to negotiate for the sale, rental, lease, assignment or sublease of any housing accommodation or real property to any person because of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation or physical or mental handicap; provided that the physical or mental handicap is unrelated to a person's ability to acquire or rent and maintain particular real property or housing accommodation;

(2) discriminate against any person in the terms, conditions or privileges of the sale, rental, assignment, lease or sublease of any housing accommodation or real property or in the provision of facilities or services in connection therewith because of race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation or physical or mental handicap; provided that the physical or mental handicap is unrelated to a person's ability to acquire or rent and maintain particular real property or housing accommodation; or

(3) print, circulate, display or mail or cause to be printed, circulated, displayed or mailed any statement, advertisement, publication or sign or use any form of application for the purchase, rental, lease, assignment or sublease of any housing accommodation or real property or to make any record or inquiry regarding the prospective purchase, rental, lease, assignment or sublease of any housing accommodation or real property that expresses any preference, limitation or discrimination as to race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation or physical or mental handicap; provided that the physical or mental handicap is unrelated to a person's ability to acquire or rent and maintain particular real property or housing accommodation;

H. any person to whom application is made either for financial assistance for the acquisition, construction, rehabilitation, repair or maintenance of any housing accommodation or real property or for any type of consumer credit, including financial assistance for the acquisition of any consumer good as defined by Section 55-9-102 NMSA 1978, to:

(1) consider the race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation or physical or mental handicap of any individual in the granting, withholding, extending, modifying or renewing or in the fixing of the rates, terms, conditions or provisions of any financial assistance or in the extension of services in connection with the request for financial assistance; or

(2) use any form of application for financial assistance or to make any record or inquiry in connection with applications for financial assistance that expresses, directly or indirectly, any limitation, specification or discrimination as to race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth, spousal affiliation or physical or mental handicap;

I. any person or employer to:

(1) aid, abet, incite, compel or coerce the doing of any unlawful discriminatory practice or to attempt to do so;

(2) engage in any form of threats, reprisal or discrimination against any person who has opposed any unlawful discriminatory practice or has filed a complaint, testified or participated in any proceeding under the Human Rights Act; or

(3) willfully obstruct or prevent any person from complying with the provisions of the Human Rights Act or to resist, prevent, impede or interfere with the commission or any of its members, staff or representatives in the performance of their duties under the Human Rights Act;

J. any employer to refuse or fail to accommodate a person's physical or mental handicap or serious medical condition, unless such accommodation is unreasonable or an undue hardship;

K. any employer to refuse or fail to make reasonable accommodation for an employee or job applicant with a need arising from pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth; or

L. any employer to require an employee with a need arising from pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth to take paid or unpaid leave if another reasonable accommodation can be provided unless the employee voluntarily requests to be placed on leave or the employee is placed on leave pursuant to federal law.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-7, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 7; 1973, ch. 58, § 1; 1973, ch. 155, § 2; 1975, ch. 62, § 1; 1983, ch. 241, § 2; 1987, ch. 76, § 2; 1995, ch. 125, § 1; 2001, ch. 347, § 1; 2003, ch. 383, § 2; 2004, ch. 115, § 1; 2019, ch. 96, § 1; 2020, ch. 49, § 2.

The 2020 amendment, effective May 20, 2020, added protections for pregnancy, childbirth or related conditions; in Subsection A, after each occurrence of "gender identity", added "pregnancy, childbirth or condition related to pregnancy or childbirth"; and added Subsections K and L.

The 2019 amendment, effective June 14, 2019, included sexual orientation and gender identity among classes protected from unlawful discrimination by employers, and removed the limitation of fifteen or more employees an employer must have to include sexual orientation and gender identity as bases for unlawful discrimination practices; in Subsection A, added "sexual orientation, gender identity", and after "shall apply to discrimination based on age", deleted "or, if the employer has fifteen or more employees, to discriminate against an employee based upon the employee's sexual orientation or gender identity".

The 2004 amendment, effective July 1, 2004, amended Subsection A to delete "sexual orientation, gender identity" and to add at the end of the Subsection "or, if the employer has fifty or more employees, spousal affiliation; provided, however, that 29 U.S.C. Section 631(c)(1) and (2) shall apply to discrimination based on age; or, if the employer has fifteen or more employees, to discriminate against an employee based upon the employee's sexual orientation or gender identity;".

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003, deleted "the" following "therewith because of" in Paragraph G(2); substituted "55-9-102" for "55-9-109" following "defined by Section" in Subsection H; substituted "a person's" for "to an individual's" following "fail to accommodate" in Subsection J; inserted "sexual orientation, gender identity" throughout the section; and substituted "a person" for "an individual", "person" for "individual", and "a person's" for "an individual's" throughout the section.

The 2001 amendment, effective June 15, 2001, in Subsection A, inserted "or other statutory prohibition" following "bona fide occupational qualification", deleted "marital status" preceding "physical or mental handicap", and inserted "or, if the employer has fifty or more employees, spousal affiliation" following "serious medical condition"; in Subsections B through H, substituted "spousal affiliation" for "marital status"; and in Subsection E, inserted "or serious medical condition" following the first instance of "mental handicap".

The 1995 amendment, effective June 16, 1995, inserted "serious" preceding "medical condition" throughout the section.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.
II. SEXUAL HARASSMENT AND DISCRIMINATION.
III. AGE, DISABILITY AND RACE DISCRIMINATION.
IV. RETALIATION.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

"Otherwise qualified". — An employee is required to demonstrate that he or she is "otherwise qualified" to show a public policy violation based on Section 28-1-7A NMSA 1978. Chavez v. Qwest, Inc., 483 F.Supp.2d 1103 (D.N.M. 2007).

ERISA actions. — Where a complaint asserts a mixed motive of both discrimination because of age and discrimination because of a benefits-defeating motive, ERISA does not completely preempt a state age-discrimination claim. Ruby v. Sandia, 699 F.Supp.2d 1247 (D.N.M. 2010).

Human Rights Act inapplicable on federal enclave. — Congress has exclusive authority over federal enclaves, and therefore plaintiffs' claims were barred by the federal enclave doctrine, where plaintiffs, employees of Sandia corporation (Sandia labs) located on Kirtland air force base, brought state-law employment discrimination claims against Sandia labs, a federally funded research and development contractor operating under contract for the department of energy. Kennicott v. Sandia Corp., 314 F.Supp.3d 1142 (D.N.M. 2018).

Age and sex discrimination claims not preempted by federal law. — Where plaintiff claimed that defendant Sandia national laboratories discriminated against her by forcing her from her position as a neutron generator productions specialist and placing her in a new job as a maintenance support technician, where she was unlikely to succeed because of her age and sex, and that after defendant placed her in this new position, defendant determined that plaintiff was not physically capable of doing the job, advised her to apply for other positions within the organization and eventually terminated her, and where defendant claimed that the wrongs of which plaintiff complains arose from a breach of obligations under a collective bargaining agreement governed by the federal Labor Management Relations Act (LMRA), dismissal of plaintiff's claims was not proper, because the LMRA does not preempt plaintiff's age and sex discrimination claims and New Mexico employees have the right not to suffer discrimination on the basis of age or sex independent of a collective bargaining agreement's language about an employee's rights. Benavidez v. Sandia National Laboratories, 212 F.Supp.3d 1039 (D.N.M. 2016).

Federal enclave doctrine barred plaintiff's plausible age and sex discrimination claims. — Where plaintiff claimed that defendant Sandia national laboratories discriminated against her by forcing her from her position as a neutron generator productions specialist and placing her in a new job as a maintenance support technician, where she was unlikely to succeed because of her age and sex, and that after defendant placed her in this new position, defendant determined that plaintiff was not physically capable of doing the job, advised her to apply for other positions within the organization and eventually terminated her, although plaintiff pled sufficient facts to make it plausible that she had a protected status under the NMHRA, being over the age of forty and a woman, that defendant took an adverse employment action against her, and that her protected status was a determinative factor in the decision for her reassignment, significant change in employment status, or change in benefits, her claims, brought under the New Mexico Human Rights Act, §§ 28-1-1 to -14 NMSA 1978, were barred by the federal enclave doctrine because the events complained of took place on Kirtland air force base and congress has exclusive authority over federal enclaves. Benavidez v. Sandia National Laboratories, 212 F.Supp.3d 1039 (D.N.M. 2016).

Constitutionality of section. — This section defines what is an unlawful discriminatory practice with sufficient particularity to effectuate the legislative intent of the Human Rights Act, and therefore is not repugnant to the New Mexico constitution. Keller v. City of Albuquerque, 1973-NMSC-048, 85 N.M. 134, 509 P.2d 1329, overruled on other grounds, Green v. Kase, 1992-NMSC-004, 113 N.M. 76, 823 P.2d 318.

Burden of proving exhaustion of administrative remedies. — Plaintiffs, who have alleged in their complaint that they have exhausted their administrative remedies, have the burden of proving exhaustion of their administrative remedies in order for their case to proceed at the district court level. Rist v. Design Ctr. at Floor Concepts, 2013-NMCA-109.

Failure to exhaust administrative remedies deprives the court of subject matter jurisdiction. — Where plaintiffs alleged that they were dismissed from their jobs for not participating in defendant's religious activities; plaintiffs filed complaints with the equal employment opportunity commission and cross filed the complaints with the human rights division; plaintiffs did not receive a letter of non-determination from the division; and after receiving right-to-sue letters from the commission, plaintiffs filed suit against defendant for wrongful termination and discrimination, plaintiffs failed to exhaust their remedies under the Human Rights Act, which deprived the district court of subject matter jurisdiction, requiring the dismissal of the complaint with prejudice. Rist v. Design Ctr. at Floor Concepts, 2013-NMCA-109.

Prohibiting commercial photography business from discriminating based on sexual orientation did not violate freedom of expression. — Where plaintiff offered wedding photography services to the general public; plaintiff's business was a public accommodation under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq.; plaintiff refused to photograph a same-sex commitment ceremony between defendant and defendant's partner on religious grounds; and plaintiff claimed that the act compelled plaintiff to express a positive image and message about same-sex commitment ceremonies contrary to plaintiff's beliefs, the act did not violate plaintiff's first amendment rights to refrain from speaking because the act only requires that businesses that operate as a public accommodation, cannot discriminate against potential clients based on their sexual orientation, it does not compel plaintiff to either speak a government-mandated message or to publish the speech of another person. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2013-NMSC-040, aff'g 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428.

Where plaintiff violated the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., by refusing on religious and moral grounds to photograph defendant's commitment ceremony with defendant's same-sex partner; and plaintiff claimed that the act violated plaintiff's freedom of expression because photography is an artistic expression entitled to first amendment protection, the act did not violate plaintiff's freedom of expression because the act regulated plaintiff's conduct in its commercial business, not its speech or right to express its views about same-sex relationships. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428, cert. granted, 2012-NMCERT-008, aff'd, 2013-NMSC-040.

Prohibiting commercial photography business from discriminating based on sexual orientation did not violate freedom of religion. — Where plaintiff offered wedding photography services to the general public; plaintiff's business was a public accommodation under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq.; plaintiff refused to photograph a same-sex commitment ceremony between defendant and defendant's partner on religious grounds; and plaintiff claimed that the act compelled plaintiff to express a positive image and message about same-sex commitment ceremonies contrary to plaintiff's beliefs, the act did not violate plaintiff's first amendment free exercise rights because the act is a neutral law of general applicability that ensures that businesses that choose to operate as a public accommodation do not discriminate against protected classes of people, it does not target only religiously motivated discrimination. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2013-NMSC-040, aff'g 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428.

Where plaintiff violated the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., by refusing on religious and moral grounds to photograph defendant's commitment ceremony with defendant's same-sex partner; and plaintiff claimed that the act violated plaintiff's freedom of religion because the act forced plaintiff to photograph same-sex marriages in violation of plaintiff's owner's religious belief that marriage is the union of one man and one woman, the act did not violate plaintiff's freedom of religion because the act is directed at and applies generally to all citizens transacting business through public accommodations that deal with the public at large, any burden on religion or religious beliefs was incidental and uniformly applied to all citizens, and a rational basis existed to support the governmental interest in protecting specific classes of citizens from discrimination in public accommodations. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428, cert. granted, 2012-NMCERT-008, aff'd, 2013-NMSC-040.

Burden of proof. — To avoid an adverse judgment as a matter of law, the plaintiff ordinarily need not introduce additional evidence of discrimination beyond evidence establishing a prima facie case and evidence of the falsity of the proffered reason for the employment action. Garcia-Montoya v. State Treasurer's Office, 2001-NMSC-003, 130 N.M. 25, 16 P.3d 1084.

Protections in Human Rights Act apply equally to all plaintiffs, regardless of minority status. — The New Mexico Human Rights Act (NMHRA) prohibits unlawful discrimination based on the traits declared by the legislature to be worthy of protection. Therefore, under the plain language of the NMHRA, its protections and requirements apply equally to all plaintiffs, regardless of their minority status. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2018-NMSC-020, rev'g 2016-NMCA-034, 369 P.3d 1.

Prima facie case of employment discrimination. — To establish a prima facie case of employment discrimination, the plaintiff must show that the plaintiff is a member of a protected class, the plaintiff was qualified to continue in the employment position, plaintiff's employment was terminated, and plaintiff was dismissed purportedly for performance nearly identical to the performance of one outside the protected class who was nonetheless retained. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2018-NMSC-020, rev'g 2016-NMCA-034, 369 P.3d 1.

Where plaintiff claimed that she was subjected to employment discrimination because she is not Hispanic, and where plaintiff proffered evidence purporting to show that she was treated less favorably than her Hispanic coworkers in a variety of ways, some of which were unrelated to her performance or termination, such as the scheduling and assignment of bus routes, compensation for pre- and post-trip inspection time, maintaining a clean bus, and enforcement of post-accident testing and suspension policies, plaintiff's proffered evidence was insufficient to establish a prima facie case of discriminatory termination, and the district court did not err in granting defendant's motion for summary judgment, because plaintiff failed to come forward with evidence that one or more Hispanic employees' performance was nearly identical to plaintiff's performance as a whole; the evidence was therefore insufficient to rule out the most common nondiscriminatory reasons for the termination of her employment. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2018-NMSC-020, rev'g 2016-NMCA-034, 369 P.3d 1.

Burden of proof on claims of unlawful discrimination. — For claims of unlawful discrimination, the plaintiff bears the initial burden of demonstrating a prima facie case of discrimination by showing that he or she is a member of the protected group, that he or she was qualified to continue in his or her position, that his or her employment was terminated, and that his or her position was filled by someone not a member of the protected class, or that he or she was dismissed purportedly for misconduct nearly identical to that engaged in by one outside of the protected class who was nonetheless retained. A plaintiff is also afforded the opportunity to rebut the employer's proffered reason as pretextual. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2016-NMCA-034, cert. granted.

Rebutting presumption of liability. — Where no tangible employment action has been taken against the employee, the employer may rebut the presumption of liability by proving elements of an affirmative defense. Ocana v. Am. Furniture Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

Failure to state claim for common law retaliatory discharge. — Where plaintiffs, who brought a claim for wrongful termination based on religious discrimination, alleged that defendant discriminated against plaintiffs because of plaintiffs' religion, created a hostile work environment for plaintiffs and retaliated against plaintiffs by terminating plaintiffs in violation of the Human Rights Act, specifically Section 28-1-7 (A) NMSA 1978, plaintiffs did not plead a claim for the common law tort of retaliatory discharge nor did they give defendant adequate notice of the common law tort claim separate from the wrongful termination charge filed under the Human Rights Act. Rist v. Design Ctr. at Floor Concepts, 2013-NMCA-109.

Summary judgment appropriate. — Because plaintiff had acknowledged that she could not reasonably be accommodated in her former job and reassignment was not required under the Human Rights Act, summary judgment on a Human Rights Act claim was appropriate. Albert v. Smith's Food & Drug Ctrs., Inc., 356 F.3d 1242 (10th Cir. 2004).

Guidance provided by interpretation of federal law. — The evidentiary methodology adopted by the United States Supreme Court in interpreting the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 provides guidance for proving a violation of the New Mexico Human Rights Act. Smith v. FDC Corp., 1990-NMSC-020, 109 N.M. 514, 787 P.2d 433.

Reassignment. — Although the Human Rights Act was intended to eliminate unlawful discriminatory practice, nothing in that broad purpose requires that reasonable accommodation be read to include reassignment. Albert v. Smith's Food & Drug Ctrs., Inc., 356 F.3d 1242 (10th Cir. 2004).

"Reasonable accommodation" defined. — Although the statute does not define what constitutes a "reasonable accommodation", the New Mexico Human Rights Commission regulations, 9.1.1.7 NMAC, define reasonable accommodation. Albert v. Smith's Food & Drug Ctrs., Inc., 356 F.3d 1242 (10th Cir. 2004).

Medical marijuana is not an accommodation that must be provided for by employer. — Where plaintiff filed a complaint with the New Mexico human rights division alleging unlawful discrimination by defendant tractor supply company, and where evidence at trial established that plaintiff applied for a management position with defendant, and where, during the interview process, plaintiff advised defendant's hiring manager of his diagnosis of HIV/AIDS and of his participation in the medical cannabis program, and where, after being hired for the job, defendant was required to report to a testing facility to undergo a drug test, the results of which indicated a positive test for cannabis metabolites, and where defendant discharged plaintiff on the basis of the positive drug test, defendant's motion to dismiss was granted because the Lynn and Erin Compassionate Use Act, §§ 26-2B-1 to -10 NMSA 1978, which authorizes New Mexico's medical cannabis program, combined with the New Mexico Human Rights Act, §§ 28-1-1 to -14 NMSA 1978, does not provide a cause of action for plaintiff, as medical marijuana is not an accommodation that must be provided for by the employer. Garcia v. Tractor Supply Company, 154 F.Supp.3d 1225 (D.N.M. 2016).

II. SEXUAL HARASSMENT AND DISCRIMINATION.

Refusal by commercial photography business to photograph a same-sex commitment ceremony constituted discrimination. — Where plaintiff offered wedding photography services to the general public; plaintiff's business was a public accommodation under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq.; and plaintiff refused to photograph a same-sex commitment ceremony between defendant and defendant's partner on religious grounds, plaintiff violated the act because plaintiff discriminated against defendant on the basis of plaintiff's sexual orientation. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2013-NMSC-040, aff'g 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428.

Where plaintiff, which was a commercial photography business, refused to photograph defendant's commitment ceremony with defendant's same-sex partner based on plaintiff's owners' religious and moral beliefs which prohibited plaintiff from photographing images that convey a message that marriage can be defined other than as the union of one man and one woman; and plaintiff constituted a public accommodation under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., plaintiff violated the act by discriminating against defendant based on defendant's sexual orientation. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428, cert. granted, 2012-NMCERT-008, aff'd, 2013-NMSC-040.

Hostile work environment sexual harassment. — A plaintiff's claim of hostile work environment sexual harassment was supported by substantial evidence where she proved the following: an attorney, who worked with plaintiff as a paralegal, regularly made sexual innuendoes and told dirty jokes that were demeaning to women, engaged in sexual discussions and flirted with female employees, inappropriately touched female employees, commented about employees' sexual preferences and tolerated similar conduct by other office employees and the attorney became more aggressive when plaintiff reported the occurrences to her employer, followed plaintiff and yelled at her, disciplined plaintiff for pretextual reasons and berated and belittled her publicly. Littell v. Allstate Ins. Co., 2008-NMCA-012, 143 N.M. 506, 177 P.3d 1080.

Employer liability will be presumed where there is actionable sexual harassment and the harassing employee has supervisory authority over the victimized employee. Ocana v. American Furn. Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

Proof of sex discrimination. — In plaintiff's action alleging that her employer discriminated against her on the basis of her sex, the trial court properly allowed her to compare her wages with those of males employed as subsidiary managers by the company in other cities. Sonntag v. Shaw, 2001-NMSC-015, 130 N.M. 238, 22 P.3d 1188.

Hostile work environment claim was established by aggregation of incidents reflecting severity and pervasiveness of harassment almost daily for nineteen months. Nava v. City of Santa Fe, 2004-NMSC-039, 136 N.M. 647, 103 P.3d 571.

Standard applicable to hostile work environment claims. — To state a claim for a hostile work environment, the alleged conduct must be so severe and pervasive that the workplace is transformed into a hostile and abusive environment for the employee. Herald v. Board of Regents of the Univ. of N.M., 2015-NMCA-104, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-009.

Where plaintiff, a resident physician at the university of New Mexico school of medicine, was dismissed from the residency program and brought suit against the board of regents of the university of New Mexico claiming sex discrimination, and where plaintiff proffered a jury instruction stating that to prove her hostile work environment, she was required to establish that defendant's conduct, after it learned of plaintiff's allegations of rape, was based on her sex and was "severe or pervasive," the district court's denial of plaintiff's instruction was proper, and the court's instruction, stating that to find a hostile work environment, plaintiff had to establish that defendant's conduct was based on plaintiff's sex and was "severe and pervasive," accurately stated the law. Herald v. Board of Regents of the Univ. of N.M., 2015-NMCA-104, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-009.

Claim not barred by exclusivity provision of Worker's Compensation Act. — The plaintiff's claim of sex discrimination under the New Mexico Human Rights Act was not barred by the exclusivity provision of the Worker's Compensation Act, Section 52-1-6 NMSA 1978 et seq., even though her claim for worker's compensation and for violation of the NMHRA stemmed from the same set of facts. Sabella v. Manor Care, Inc., 1996-NMSC-014, 121 N.M. 596, 915 P.2d 901.

Claim under the Human Rights Act was not barred by the Personnel Act. — The protections against discrimination and retaliation contained in the Human Rights Act apply to probationary employees of the state who have been discharged pursuant to the Personnel Act, Section 10-9-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. Rodriguez v. N.M. Dep't of Workforce Solutions, 2012-NMCA-059, 278 P.3d 1047.

Where the employee was hired as a probationary employee of the Department of Workforce Solutions; while the employee was a probationary employee, the employee was given notice of dismissal from the employee's position pursuant to the Personnel Act, Section 10-9-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., which permitted the department to terminate the employee without cause; as a probationary employee, the employee had no property interest in continuing employment; and the employee filed a claim under the Human Rights Act alleging discrimination and retaliation based on sex and age, the employee had a right to pursue the claims under the Human Rights Act. Rodriguez v. N.M. Dep't of Workforce Solutions, 2012-NMCA-059, 278 P.3d 1047.

Human Rights Act prohibition against discrimination on the basis of spousal affiliation or sexual orientation. — An owner of a mobile home park was not "using" property for an immoral purpose when renting to cohabiting couples, or to tenants engaged in drug trafficking in the absence of a showing of knowledge of the drug trafficking. Maloof v. Prieskorn, 2004-NMCA-126, 136 N.M. 516, 101 P.3d 327, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-011, 136 N.M. 656, 103 P.3d 580.

City of Albuquerque ordinance which prohibits public nudity does not violate the New Mexico Human Rights Act which in general prohibits an establishment that offers services to the public from discriminating on the basis of sex. City of Albuquerque v. Sachs, 2004-NMCA-065, 135 N.M. 578, 92 P.3d 24, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-006, 135 N.M. 789, 93 P.3d 1292.

Summary judgment appropriate. — Where superior told plaintiff over a two-month period that he found plaintiff attractive and asked if plaintiff was interested in a relationship, but did not pursue the matter after he was rebuffed by plaintiff and reduced his contact with plaintiff; superior never made any comment connecting a promised raise to anything other than plaintiff's job performance; and plaintiff offered no evidence that her work performance was affected, that she felt compelled to resign, that her superior made any suggestion that her response to his advances would have an impact on her compensation or other aspect of her employment, or that plaintiff suffered any adverse employment action after she reported what she believed to be harassment to her superior, plaintiff failed to show quid pro quo sexual harassment, hostile work environment sexual harassment, constructive discharge or retaliation. Ulibarri v. State, 2006-NMSC-009, 139 N.M. 193, 131 P.3d 43.

III. AGE, DISABILITY AND RACE DISCRIMINATION.

Age and disability claims must be pursued under the New Mexico Human Rights Act and do not lie in common law tort. Employees may not pursue age and discrimination claims outside the Act that do not contain allegations sufficient to meet the elements of retaliatory discharge, intentional infliction of emotional distress, prima facie tort, or other existing independent torts. Gormley v. Coca-Coca Enters., 2004-NMCA-021, 135 N.M. 128, 85 P.3d 252, aff'd, 2005-NMSC-003, 137 N.M. 192, 109 P.3d 280.

Disability based on serious medical condition. — Plaintiff established a prima facie case of disability for purposes of an employment discrimination claim based on plaintiff's breast cancer and on the effects of plaintiff's cancer medication which substantially impaired plaintiff's normal sex life. Keller v. Board of Educ. of City of Albuquerque, 182 F. Supp. 2d 1148 (D.N.M. 2001).

Human Rights Act prohibits employers from refusing to reasonably accommodate individual's disability. Albert v. Smith's Food & Drug Centers, Inc., 356 F.3d 1242 (10th Cir. 2004).

New Mexico created state remedy for age discrimination through the New Mexico Human Rights Act that affords victims back wages and other monetary relief. Gill v. Pub. Employees Ret. Bd., 2004-NMSC-016, 135 N.M. 472, 90 P.3d 491.

Bona fide occupational qualification. — Termination of nanny who, due to illness, was unable to perform job was not a wrongful discharge under this section; the ability to attend work regularly is a bona fide occupational qualification within the meaning of Subsection A. Stock v. Grantham, 1998-NMCA-081, 125 N.M. 564, 964 P.2d 125, cert. denied, 125 N.M. 322, 961 P.2d 167.

Race discrimination not shown. — Shopping center manager did not discriminate against an East Indian store owner by refusing to renew the owner's lease of a space in the shopping center, where the decision not to renew the lease was purely a business judgment based on efforts to improve the center's "tenant mix". Goradia v. Hahn Co., 1991-NMSC-040, 111 N.M. 779, 810 P.2d 798.

Protections in Human Rights Act apply equally to all plaintiffs, regardless of minority status. — The New Mexico Human Rights Act (NMHRA) prohibits unlawful discrimination based on the traits declared by the legislature to be worthy of protection. Therefore, under the plain language of the NMHRA, its protections and requirements apply equally to all plaintiffs, regardless of their minority status. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2018-NMSC-020, rev'g 2016-NMCA-034, 369 P.3d 1.

Prima facie case of employment discrimination. — To establish a prima facie case of employment discrimination, the plaintiff must show that the plaintiff is a member of a protected class, the plaintiff was qualified to continue in the employment position, plaintiff's employment was terminated, and plaintiff was dismissed purportedly for performance nearly identical to the performance of one outside the protected class who was nonetheless retained. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2018-NMSC-020, rev'g 2016-NMCA-034, 369 P.3d 1.

Where plaintiff claimed that she was subjected to employment discrimination because she is not Hispanic, and where plaintiff proffered evidence purporting to show that she was treated less favorably than her Hispanic coworkers in a variety of ways, some of which were unrelated to her performance or termination, such as the scheduling and assignment of bus routes, compensation for pre- and post-trip inspection time, maintaining a clean bus, and enforcement of post-accident testing and suspension policies, plaintiff's proffered evidence was insufficient to establish a prima facie case of discriminatory termination, and the district court did not err in granting defendant's motion for summary judgment, because plaintiff failed to come forward with evidence that one or more Hispanic employees' performance was nearly identical to plaintiff's performance as a whole; the evidence was therefore insufficient to rule out the most common nondiscriminatory reasons for the termination of her employment. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2018-NMSC-020, rev'g 2016-NMCA-034, 369 P.3d 1.

Classifications such as Caucasian, white, and non-Hispanic are protected. — Where plaintiff, a Caucasian and of German descent, claimed that she was subject to discrimination based on her status as a non-Hispanic, the district court erred in granting defendant's motion for summary judgment on the grounds that the school district that refused to renew plaintiff's employment contract was not aware of plaintiff's asserted national origin, and therefore plaintiff's national origin could not, as a matter of law, have been a motivating factor in the decision to terminate her employment. A national origin discrimination claim based on the ethnic distinction between Hispanics and non-Hispanics is actionable under the New Mexico Human Rights Act. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2016-NMCA-034, cert. granted.

Reverse discrimination claims. — Reverse discrimination claims are analyzed like any other racial discrimination claim, and where plaintiff, who identified her protected group as white or non-Hispanic, presented evidence concerning her training and experience, as well as evidence that other school bus drivers, who did not belong to the protected class, had similar performance issues and were not terminated, plaintiff satisfied the prima facie case requirement to show that the circumstances of her termination give rise to an inference of discrimination, and the burden shifts to the school district to provide a legitimate purpose for plaintiff's termination. Plaintiff's evidence was also sufficient to raise a question as to pretext, and therefore plaintiff put forward sufficient evidence to create genuine issues of material fact with respect to her discrimination claim against defendant. The district court erred in granting summary judgment dismissing plaintiff's claim. Garcia v. Hatch Valley Pub. Schs., 2016-NMCA-034, cert. granted.

Age and race discrimination shown. — Fifty-nine year-old Navajo Indian made out a case that he was terminated because of his age and race, where he identified age and race-based animus, and demonstrated that he was treated differently than similarly situated young, non-Native Americans, to a degree sufficient to support a judgment and award of damages. Smith v. FDC Corp., 1990-NMSC-020, 109 N.M. 514, 787 P.2d 433.

Age discrimination not shown. — Employee's charge of age discrimination was not established where the evidence showed that the employer did not breach its reduction-in-force policy, plaintiff was not treated less favorably than younger employees, and the employer had a legitimate nondiscriminatory reason not to retain the employee. Cates v. Regents of N.M. Inst. of Mining & Tech., 1998-NMSC-002, 124 N.M. 633, 954 P.2d 65.

"Medical condition" does not include a temporary injury with minimal residual effects. Trujillo v. N. Rio Arriba Elec. Coop., Inc., 2002-NMSC-004, 131 N.M. 607, 41 P.3d 333.

Court may not impute knowledge of certain medical conditions. — Where the disability, resulting limitations, and necessary reasonable accommodations, are not open, obvious, and apparent to the employer, the employer cannot be held to have imputed knowledge of a medical condition. Trujillo v. N. Rio Arriba Elec. Coop., 2002-NMSC-004, 131 N.M. 607, 41 P.3d 333.

Totally disabled employee. — By admitting in his worker's compensation claim that he was totally disabled, an employee also admitted that he was not "otherwise qualified", per Subsection A, and, thus, was barred as matter of law from recovery under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. Kitchell v. Pub. Serv. Co., 1998-NMSC-051, 126 N.M. 525, 972 P.2d 344.

IV. RETALIATION.

Retaliation provisions. — The plain language of the New Mexico Human Rights Act retaliation provision in Section 28-1-7I(2) NMSA 1978 is broad enough to provide protection to a defense attorney participating in a mediation. Kelley v. City of Albuquerque, 542 F.3d 802 (10th Cir. 2008)

Acts of retaliation. — Prohibited acts of "threats, reprisal or discrimination" are considered together under the general label of unlawful retaliation. Juneau v. Intel Corp., 2006-NMSC-002, 139 N.M. 12, 127 P.3d 548.

Prima facie case of retaliation. — To present a prima facie case of retaliation, opposition to a discriminatory practice must be shown and regardless of how a complaint of discrimination is made to the employer, the employee's communication to the employer must sufficiently convey the employee's reasonable concerns that the employer has acted or is acting in an unlawful discriminatory manner and at the very least, if the statement does not mention a specific act of discrimination, the employer must be able to discern from the context of the statement that the employee opposes an allegedly unlawful employment practice. Ocana v. American Furniture Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

Plaintiff failed to establish a prima facie case of retaliation. — Where former employee who worked as a veterinary medical officer and area epidemiology officer for the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) brought an action asserting retaliation claims under the New Mexico Human Rights Act (NMHRA), §§ 28-1-1 to 28-1-14 NMSA 1978, against employees of the New Mexico Livestock Board (NMLB), claiming that the NMLB employees wrote negative comments about plaintiff's job performance in correspondence to his USDA supervisor, resulting in plaintiff's termination from the USDA, in retaliation for plaintiff's opposition to a discriminatory practice when he disclosed that the USDA and the NMLB allowed an infection agent to enter the human food chain on the Navajo reservation and that a USDA employee committed fiscal fraud, the district court did not err in granting defendants' motion for summary judgment, because plaintiff failed to establish a prima facie case of retaliation under the NMHRA because he provided no evidence that defendant had any knowledge of plaintiff's protected activities. Muller v. Perdue, 744 Fed. Appx. 555 (10th Cir. 2018).

Burden of proof. — In action for retaliation under the New Mexico Human Rights Act, the plaintiff has the burden of establishing that the defendant's actions were taken with the intent to retaliate against the plaintiff. Gioia v. Pinkerton's, Inc., 194 F. Supp. 2d 1207 (D.N.M. 2002).

Plaintiff who is not at-will employee may not pursue action for tort of retaliatory discharge under the policy exception to the at-will doctrine when the plaintiff has an alternative remedial grievance procedure available under a collective bargaining agreement. Silva v. American Fed'n. of State, County & Mun. Employees, 231 F.3d 691 (10th Cir. 2001).

Continuing violation doctrine applies to retaliation claim. — The continuing violation doctrine applies to retaliation claims. If one act contributing to a retaliation claim based on a series of actions and not a single, discrete act occurred within the statutory period for filing complaints, all acts creating the retaliation claim may be considered, including facts and evidence of facts that occurred prior to the one-hundred-eighty-day statute of limitations cut-off for filing complaints. Charles v. NMSU Regents, 2011-NMCA-057, 150 N.M. 17, 256 P.3d 29, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-001, 150 N.M. 558, 263 P.3d 900.

Where plaintiff complained several times about the conduct of a co-worker and after each complaint, the co-worker and plaintiff's supervisors retaliated with harassment, threatening behavior, discrimination and reprisals, plaintiff's claim of retaliation was based on a cumulative series of acts, not a discrete discriminatory act, the continuing violation doctrine applied, and the court could consider all of the conduct that occurred during plaintiff's employment, including conduct that occurred more than 180 days prior to the date plaintiff filed a complaint. Charles v. NMSU Regents, 2011-NMCA-057, 150 N.M. 17, 256 P.3d 29, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-001, 150 N.M. 558, 263 P.3d 900.

Sufficient evidence of constructive discharge. — Where plaintiff testified that during plaintiff's four years of employment with defendant, plaintiff's co-worker yelled at plaintiff, told plaintiff to "shut up", accused plaintiff of not doing anything, called plaintiff insulting names, subjected plaintiff to intimidating conduct by yelling at plaintiff, slammed drawers and cabinets, refused to give plaintiff receipts for purchases made using a university card that was issued to plaintiff, made fun of plaintiff, and told plaintiff to hold plaintiff's blouse closed when plaintiff bent down or the co-worker would kick plaintiff; some of the co-worker's conduct occurred in front of students; and plaintiff's supervisor yelled at plaintiff and criticized plaintiff in front of students, threw a cigarette butt at plaintiff, unfairly criticized plaintiff's work performance, accused plaintiff of being late to work, and decreased plaintiff's performance rating with respect to working relations, plaintiff's evidence was sufficient to support the jury's findings that plaintiff was constructively discharged. Charles v. NMSU Regents, 2011-NMCA-057, 150 N.M. 17, 256 P.3d 29, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-001, 150 N.M. 558, 263 P.3d 900.

Retaliatory discharge shown. — In an action by an employee against an employer alleging gender discrimination and retaliatory discharge, since the supervisor's own testimony constituted an admission that the employee's complaint of gender discrimination caused him to make the determination to terminate her, the employee was entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Brillhart v. Philips Elec. N. Am. Corp., 938 F. Supp. 742 (D.N.M. 1996), rev'd, 179 F.3d 1271 (10th Cir. 1999).

Retaliatory actions shown. — Jury reasonably concluded that retaliation was the motive behind the unfair criticism and isolation to which the employee was subjected after she filed a discrimination claim, as well as the employer's failure to give her the same consideration for a particular position as other employees. Gonzales v. N.M. Dep't of Health, 2000-NMSC-029, 129 N.M. 586, 11 P.3d 550.

Evidence established retaliation for opposing unlawful discriminatory practice. — Where plaintiff filed a worker's compensation claim after hurting his ankle while working at the outback steakhouse (outback) in Las Cruces, New Mexico, and where outback terminated plaintiff's employment because it believed that plaintiff could not perform the tasks required of his job, and where a jury found that outback violated the New Mexico Human Rights Act (NMHRA), §§ 28-1-1 through -14 NMSA 1978, and awarded plaintiff damages for lost wages and emotional distress, the district court did not err in denying outback's motion for judgment as a matter of law, because plaintiff established that outback believed, even if mistakenly, that plaintiff was physically handicapped, that his ankle injury substantially limited one or more of his major life activities, and the record established that plaintiff had a good faith, objectively reasonable belief that outback violated the NMHRA by terminating him because it regarded him as having a physical handicap. Goodman v. OS Rest. Servs. LLC, 2020-NMCA-019.

Prospective employee may be required to enter race on application for security reasons despite provisions of Section 59-4-4C, 1953 Comp. (similar to Subsection D of this section). 1963-64 Op. Att'y. Gen. No. 63-163.

28-1-7.1. Prohibiting discrimination against seniors in certain volunteer service.

The state or a political subdivision of the state shall not exclude a person older than sixty years of age from volunteer service as long as the person is physically, mentally and professionally capable of performing the services involved. For the purposes of this section, "professionally capable" means having the ability to demonstrate reasonable proficiency and having any relevant certification in accordance with the laws, rules or technical standards that may govern the particular profession.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 231, § 2 made the act effective July 1, 2003.

28-1-7.2. Quotas prohibited.

A person, employer, employment agency or organization shall not use the provisions of the Human Rights Act to adopt or implement a quota on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 383, § 3.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 383, § 5 made the act effective July 1, 2003.

28-1-8. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1983, ch. 241, § 6, repealed 28-1-8 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 155, § 3, relating to certification of preexisting disability, effective June 17, 1983.

28-1-9. Exemptions.

Nothing contained in the Human Rights Act shall:

A. apply to any single-family dwelling sold, leased, subleased or rented by an owner without the making of any notice, statement or advertisement with respect to the sale, lease, sublease or rental of a dwelling unit that indicates any preference, limitation or discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, sex, sexual orientation or gender identity. This exemption is subject to these further reservations:

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(1) to qualify for the exemption, the seller must not be an owner of or own or have reserved any interest in more than three single-family dwellings; and

(2) if the seller does not currently live in the dwelling or he was not the most recent occupant, the exemption granted in this section shall only apply to one sale in twenty-four months;

B. bar any religious or denominational institution or organization that is operated, supervised or controlled by or that is operated in connection with a religious or denominational organization from limiting admission to or giving preference to persons of the same religion or denomination or from making selections of buyers, lessees or tenants as are calculated by the organization or denomination to promote the religious or denominational principles for which it is established or maintained, unless membership in the religious or denominational organization is restricted on account of race, color, national origin or ancestry;

C. bar any religious or denominational institution or organization that is operated, supervised or controlled by or that is operated in connection with a religious or denominational organization from imposing discriminatory employment or renting practices that are based upon sexual orientation or gender identity; provided, that the provisions of the Human Rights Act with respect to sexual orientation and gender identity shall apply to any other:

(1) for-profit activities of a religious or denominational institution or religious organization subject to the provisions of Section 511(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended; or

(2) nonprofit activities of a religious or denominational institution or religious organization subject to the provisions of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended;

D. apply to rooms or units in dwellings containing living quarters occupied or intended to be occupied by no more than four families living independently of each other, if the owner actually maintains and occupies one of the living quarters as his residence;

E. apply to public restrooms, public showers, public dressing facilities or sleeping quarters in public institutions, where the preference or limitation is based on sex; and

F. prevent the mandatory retirement of an employee upon reaching the age of sixty-five years or older, if the employer is operating under a retirement plan that meets the requirements of Public Law 93-406, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-8, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 8; 1973, ch. 58, § 2; 1975, ch. 78, § 1; 2003, ch. 383, § 4; 2004, ch. 115, § 2.

28-1-10. Grievance procedure.

A. A person claiming to be aggrieved by an unlawful discriminatory practice and a member of the commission who has reason to believe that discrimination has occurred may file with the human rights division of the labor department a written complaint that shall state the name and address of the person alleged to have engaged in the discriminatory practice, all information relating to the discriminatory practice and any other information that may be required by the commission. All complaints shall be filed with the division within three hundred days after the alleged act was committed.

B. The director shall advise the respondent that a complaint has been filed against the respondent and shall furnish the respondent with a copy of the complaint. The director shall promptly investigate the alleged act. If the director determines that the complaint lacks probable cause, the director shall dismiss the complaint and notify the complainant and respondent of the dismissal. The complaint shall be dismissed subject to appeal as in the case of other orders of the commission.

C. If the director determines that probable cause exists for the complaint, the director shall attempt to achieve a satisfactory adjustment of the complaint through persuasion and conciliation. The director and staff shall neither disclose what has transpired during the attempted conciliation nor divulge information obtained during any hearing before the commission or a commissioner prior to final action relating to the complaint. An officer or employee of the labor department who makes public in any manner information in violation of this subsection is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000) or imprisoned not more than one year.

D. A person who has filed a complaint with the human rights division may request and shall receive an order of nondetermination from the director without delay after the division's receipt of the complaint and in jointly filed cases, after the federal complaint has been closed. The order of nondetermination may be appealed pursuant to the provisions of Section 28-1-13 NMSA 1978.

E. In the case of a complaint filed by or on behalf of a person who has an urgent medical condition and has notified the director in writing of the test results, the director shall make the determination whether probable cause exists for the complaint and shall attempt any conciliation efforts within ninety days of the filing of the written complaint or notification, whichever occurs last.

F. If conciliation fails or if, in the opinion of the director, informal conference cannot result in conciliation and the complainant has not requested a waiver of right to hearing pursuant to the provisions of Subsection J of this section, the commission shall issue a written complaint in its own name against the respondent, except that in the case of a complaint filed by or on behalf of a person who has an urgent medical condition, who has notified the director in writing of the test results and who so elects, the director shall issue an order of nondetermination, which may be appealed pursuant to the provisions of Section 28-1-13 NMSA 1978. The complaint shall set forth the alleged discriminatory practice, the secretary's regulation or the section of the Human Rights Act alleged to have been violated and the relief requested. The complaint shall require the respondent to answer the allegations of the complaint at a hearing before the commission or hearing officer and shall specify the date, time and place of the hearing. The hearing date shall not be more than fifteen or less than ten days after service of the complaint. The complaint shall be served on the respondent personally or by registered mail, return receipt requested. The hearing shall be held in the county where the respondent is doing business or the alleged discriminatory practice occurred.

G. Within one year of the filing of a complaint by a person aggrieved, the commission or its director shall:

(1) dismiss the complaint for lack of probable cause;

(2) achieve satisfactory adjustment of the complaint as evidenced by order of the commission; or

(3) file a formal complaint on behalf of the commission.

H. Upon the commission's petition, the district court of the county where the respondent is doing business or the alleged discriminatory practice occurred may grant injunctive relief pending hearing by the commission or pending judicial review of an order of the commission so as to preserve the status quo or to ensure that the commission's order as issued will be effective. The commission shall not be required to post a bond.

I. For purposes of this section, "urgent medical condition" means any medical condition as defined by an appropriate medical authority through documentation or by direct witness of a clearly visible disablement that poses a serious threat to the life of the person with the medical condition.

J. The complainant may seek a trial de novo in the district court in lieu of a hearing before the commission, provided the complainant requests from the director, in writing, a waiver of complainant's right to hearing within sixty days of service of written notice of a probable cause determination by the director. The director shall approve the waiver request and shall serve notice of the waiver upon the complainant and respondent. The complainant may request a trial de novo pursuant to Section 28-1-13 NMSA 1978 within ninety days from the date of service of the waiver. Issuance of the notice shall be deemed a final order of the commission for the purpose of appeal pursuant to Section 28-1-13 NMSA 1978.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, changed the time when complaints must be filed from one hundred eighty days to three hundred days in Subsection A; deleted the former provision of Subsection D that the division shall receive an order of non-determination one hundred eighty days after receipt of the complaint; provided in Subsection D that the division shall receive and order of non-determination without delay after receipt of the complaint and in jointly filed cases, after the federal complaint has been closed; and changed the time the complainant may request a trial de novo from thirty days to ninety days.

The 1995 amendment, effective June 16, 1995, made minor stylistic changes in Subsection A, in Subsection F, inserted "and the complainant has not requested a waiver of right to hearing pursuant to the provisions of Subsection J of this section" in the first sentence and "or hearing officer" in the third sentence, and added Subsection J.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, inserted a new Subsection G, and redesignated former Subsections G and H as present Subsections H and I.

The 1991 amendment, effective July 1, 1991, inserted "human rights" in the first sentence of Subsection A; added Subsections D, E and H; redesignated former Subsections D and E as Subsections F and G; in Subsection F added the exception at the end of the first sentence; and made stylistic changes in Subsections A and B.

ANNOTATIONS

Exhaustion of administrative remedies. — A plaintiff must exhaust plaintiff's administrative remedies against a party before bringing an action against that party based on a claim under the Human Rights Act. Sonntag v. Shaw, 2001-NMSC-015, 130 N.M. 238, 22 P.3d 1188.

Independent tort action not precluded. — The Human Rights Act did not preclude the plaintiff from bringing a tort claim against her employer and supervisor based on allegations that the supervisor disparaged and humiliated her in front of other employees necessitating her hospitalization. Beavers v. Johnson Controls World Servs., Inc., 1995-NMCA-070, 120 N.M. 343, 901 P.2d 761.

Compliance with grievance procedure of Human Rights Act is prerequisite to suit under the act. Jaramillo v. J.C. Penney Co., 1985-NMCA-002, 102 N.M. 272, 694 P.2d 528.

Exhaustion of administrative remedies not required. — Because the Human Rights Act does not provide an exclusive remedy, exhaustion of administrative remedies under the act is not a prerequisite to proceeding with an independent tort claim. The legislature did not intend the act's remedies to be exclusive. Gandy v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 1994-NMSC-040, 117 N.M. 441, 872 P.2d 859.

Effect of filing with EEOC. — Even though the plaintiff had filed a sex discrimination complaint against her former employer only with the equal employment opportunity commission (EEOC), she exhausted her administrative remedies and could file an appeal in the district court because a work-sharing agreement between the EEOC and New Mexico human rights division (NMHRD) and NMHRD regulations provided that NMHRD procedural requirements were met by filing a complaint with either the NMHRD or the EEOC. Sabella v. Manor Care, Inc., 1996-NMSC-014, 121 N.M. 596, 915 P.2d 901.

Notice required. — Plaintiff has to give notice to the New Mexico human rights commission (now the human rights division of the department of labor) of the alleged discrimination before commencement of his action in federal court. Harris v. Ericson, 457 F.2d 765 (10th Cir. 1972).

Notice of right to sue from EEOC. — Receiving a notice of right to sue from the equal employment opportunity commission did not satisfy the state law requirement of obtaining an order from the human rights division, nor did such notice affect the 30-day time limit for filing an appeal from an order of the division in state court. Mitchell-Carr v. McLendon, 1999-NMSC-025, 127 N.M. 282, 980 P.2d 65.

Statute of limitations begins to run from the date of an adverse employment action. — In age discrimination cases, the statute of limitations commences to run when a plaintiff knows or should know of the adverse employment action, regardless of whether the plaintiff then has or should have knowledge of the employer's discriminatory intent. Slusser v. Vantage Builders, Inc., 2013-NMCA-073.

Statute of limitations began to run upon termination of employment. — Where plaintiff, who held a managerial position in defendant's accounting department and who met or exceeded defendant's expectations, was terminated by defendant in February 2006 ostensibly because plaintiff's position had been eliminated by a restructuring of the accounting department; in June 2007, plaintiff learned that a younger person, who was paid substantially less than plaintiff, had been assigned plaintiff's position and had the same roles and performed the same job as plaintiff; plaintiff filed a charge of discrimination in October 2007; and plaintiff claimed that the statute of limitations began to run when plaintiff learned that defendant's action was discriminatory, the statute began to run upon plaintiff's termination and expired prior to the filing of plaintiff's action. Slusser v. Vantage Builders, Inc., 2013-NMCA-073.

Statute of limitations was not equitably tolled. — Where plaintiff asserted that evidence of discrimination existed immediately after plaintiff's termination that a younger employee took over plaintiff's responsibilities; and plaintiff never showed that plaintiff acted diligently to discover the evidence and pursue plaintiff's rights or that plaintiff could not have known about the discrimination even with reasonable diligence in investigating the basis of plaintiff's termination, the statute of limitations was not equitably tolled. Slusser v. Vantage Builders, Inc., 2013-NMCA-073.

Equitable estoppel did not prevent the assertion of statute of limitations. — Where defendant told plaintiff that plaintiff was being terminated because plaintiff's position had been eliminated as a result of a restructuring of defendant's business and plaintiff later learned that plaintiff's termination was performance related, defendant's original statement to plaintiff did not constitute active steps to prevent plaintiff from timely filing an age discrimination complaint and defendant was not equitably estopped from asserting a statute of limitations defense. Slusser v. Vantage Builders, Inc., 2013-NMCA-073.

Notice not timely filed. — Failure to file within the time set forth in Subsection A deprives the New Mexico commission of a bona fide opportunity to consider or act upon the discrimination complaint, and plaintiff cannot successfully rely on the resultant rejection as such a termination of state proceedings within the meaning of § 706(d), of Title VII of 1964 Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(d), so as to invoke the extended federal filing period. Dubois v. Packard Bell Corp., 470 F.2d 973 (10th Cir. 1972).

Time limit under Subsection G. — Subsection G does not expressly place a jurisdictional time limit on the issuance of orders of nondetermination. Mitchell-Carr v. McLendon, 1999-NMSC-025, 127 N.M. 282, 980 P.2d 65.

Effect of not meeting state notice requirement on federal age discrimination action. — The failure to satisfy the state notice requirement within the time limits specified by state law does not bar a federal action which has already been commenced, but such federal action should be held in abeyance so as to give the state agency the opportunity to entertain respondent's grievance. Mistretta v. Sandia Corp., 639 F.2d 588 (10th Cir. 1980).

Commencement of state proceeding prerequisite to federal age discrimination action. — The commencement of state proceedings, in so-called deferral states such as New Mexico, is a jurisdictional requirement of the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Mistretta v. Sandia Corp., 639 F.2d 588 (10th Cir. 1980).

When statutory period commences to run anew. — The statutory period commences to run anew from the last allegedly unlawful employment practice. Molybdenum Corp. of Am. v. EEOC, 457 F.2d 935 (10th Cir. 1972).

Commencement when no continuing unlawful practice. — The limitation period for filing a complaint commenced to run when second employment application was denied for the same reason as first, and where refusal to hire was not actuated by a continuing discriminatory employment practice. Molybdenum Corp. of Am. v. EEOC, 457 F.2d 935 (10th Cir. 1972).

Exhaustion of remedies. — A plaintiff suing as the personal representative of a decedent, rather than on her own behalf, must still exhaust the administrative remedies pursuant to this act against the defendant before she may sue the defendant in court. Tafoya v. Bobroff, 865 F. Supp. 742 (D.N.M. 1994), aff'd, 74 F.3d 1250 (10th Cir. 1996).

Complaint form denied filers the right to exhaust administrative remedies. — Where the charge of discrimination form prescribed by regulation of the human rights division instructed filers to identify the alleged discriminating agency by the name and address of the agency, but did not require any identification of individual agency employees involved in the discrimination, the form did not provide filers a fair and adequate opportunity to exhaust administrative remedies and preserve the right to pursue judicial remedies for liability against individual defendants under the Human Rights Act and filers who filed the prescribed form were not required to have exhausted administrative remedies against the previously unnamed individual defendants before pursuing their judicial remedies against the previously unnamed individual defendants. *Lobato v. ## 28-1-11. Hearing procedures.

A. The respondent to a complaint made pursuant to Section 28-1-10 NMSA 1978 may file a written answer to the complaint, appear at the hearing, give testimony and be represented by counsel and may obtain from the commission subpoenas for any person or for the production of any evidence pertinent to the proceeding. The complainant shall be present at the hearing and may be represented by counsel. Each party shall have the right to amend his complaint or answer.

B. A panel of three members of the commission designated by the chairman shall sit, and a decision agreed upon by two members of the panel shall be the decision of the commission. However, no commissioner who has filed a complaint may sit on the panel hearing his complaint. Hearings also may be conducted by a hearing officer employed by the human rights division of the labor department or, if the hearing officer is unavailable, one member of the commission may be designated by the chairman to act as a hearing officer. A hearing officer shall have the same powers and duties as a commissioner as set forth in Paragraph (2) of Subsection A of Section 28-1-4 NMSA 1978.

C. The complainant or his representative shall present to the commission or the hearing officer the case supporting the complaint. No evidence concerning prior attempts at conciliation shall be received. The director shall not participate in the hearing, except as a witness.

D. The commission and the hearing officer shall not be bound by the formal rules of evidence governing courts of law or equity but shall permit reasonable direct examination and cross-examination and the submission of briefs. Testimony at the hearing shall be taken under oath and recorded by tape or otherwise. Upon the request of any party, testimony shall be transcribed, provided that all costs of transcribing shall be paid by the party so requesting. Each commissioner and hearing officer may administer oaths.

E. Upon the conclusion of a hearing conducted by a hearing officer, the hearing officer shall prepare a written report setting forth proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law and recommending the action to be taken by the commission. The hearing officer shall submit the report to a review panel consisting of no more than three members of the commission designated by the chairman. No commissioner may sit on the panel reviewing the hearing officer's report issued in connection with a complaint filed by the commissioner. A decision by a majority of the members of the review panel shall be the decision of the commission. If the commission finds from the evidence presented at any hearing held pursuant to this section that the respondent has engaged in a discriminatory practice, it shall make written findings of fact, conclusions of law and its decision based upon the findings of fact and conclusions of law. The commission may adopt, modify or reject the proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law and the action recommended by the hearing officer. Within five days after any order is rendered by the commission following a hearing, the commission shall serve upon each party of record and his attorney, if any, a written copy of the order by certified mail to the party's address of record. All parties shall be deemed to have been served on the tenth day following the mailing. As part of its order, the commission may require the respondent to pay actual damages to the complainant and to pay reasonable attorneys' fees, if the complainant was represented by private counsel, and to take such affirmative action as the commission considers necessary, including a requirement for reports of the manner of compliance.

F. If the commission finds from the evidence that the respondent has not engaged in a discriminatory practice, it shall make written findings of fact and serve the complainant and respondent with a copy of the findings of fact and with an order dismissing the complaint.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33-10, enacted by Laws 1969, ch. 196, § 10; 1975, ch. 248, § 1; 1983, ch. 241, § 4; 1987, ch. 342, § 22; 1995, ch. 125, § 3.

The 1995 amendment, effective June 16, 1995, substituted "must" for "shall" in Subsection A; added the third and fourth sentences in Subsection B; in Subsection C, substituted "The complainant or his representative" for "A member of the division staff, the attorney general or special counsel" and inserted "or the hearing officer"; in Subsection D, inserted "and the hearing officer" in the first and last sentences; and in Subsection E, added the first through the fourth and the sixth sentences, inserted "presented at any hearing held pursuant to this section" in the fifth sentence, and made a minor stylistic change in the last sentence.

ANNOTATIONS

Proceeding not stayed by filing federal suit. — The filing of an age discrimination complaint in federal court does not stay a proceeding before the commission to redress the same alleged unlawful discriminatory practice. Mares v. Santa Fe Pub. Schs., 1987-NMSC-074, 106 N.M. 354, 743 P.2d 110.

"Actual damages". — The law in New Mexico is unsettled as to whether the provision for "actual damages," Subsection E, encompasses damages for emotional harm. Roybal v. City of Albuquerque, 653 F. Supp. 102 (D.N.M. 1986).

28-1-12. Enforcement.

If a respondent to a complaint filed pursuant to the Human Rights Act is not complying with an order of the commission, the attorney general or district attorney, at the request of the secretary, shall secure enforcement of the commission's order by a district court. The proceeding shall be initiated by the filing of a petition in the district court where the respondent is doing business or the alleged discriminatory practice occurred. A copy of the petition shall be served on the respondent personally or by registered mail, return receipt requested. The court may make and enter upon the proceedings an order to decree enforcement of the order of the commission.

ANNOTATIONS

Subject matter jurisdiction could not be raised in enforcement action. — Where the human rights commission's complaint was heard more than fifteen days following service of the complaint; at the hearing on the complaint, respondent argued that the commission had lost subject matter jurisdiction to hear the complaint because the hearing had not occurred within the required time; and respondent did not appeal the commission's adverse judgment, respondent could not challenge the subject matter jurisdiction of the commission in an action filed by the attorney general to enforce the commission's judgment. *N.M. ## 28-1-13. Appeal.

A. A person aggrieved by an order of the commission may obtain a trial de novo by filing a notice of appeal in the district court of the county where the discriminatory practice occurred or where the respondent does business. The notice of appeal must be filed within ninety days from the date of service of the commission's order. A copy of the notice of appeal shall be served personally or by certified mail, return receipt requested, on all parties who appeared before the commission at their last known addresses. A copy of the notice of appeal shall also be served at the division in Santa Fe. An order of the commission shall not be superseded or stayed during the appeal unless the district court so directs after notice to the commission and a hearing.

B. If testimony at the hearing was transcribed, the division shall, upon receipt of the notice of appeal, file so much of the transcript of the record as the parties requesting the transcript designate as necessary for the appeal with the district court.

C. Upon appeal, either party may request a jury. The jurisdiction of the district court is exclusive and its judgment is final, subject to further appeal to the court of appeals.

D. If the complainant prevails in an action or proceeding under this section, the court in its discretion may allow actual damages and reasonable attorney fees, and the state shall be liable the same as a private person.

ANNOTATIONS

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.
II. EXHAUSTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.
III. TIME LIMITATIONS.
IV. SCOPE OF REVIEW.
V. ATTORNEY FEES.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Collateral estoppel did not apply. — The findings made in administrative proceedings are not entitled to collateral estoppel in New Mexico Human Rights Act actions because by specifically providing for a "trial de novo in district court" in New Mexico Human Rights Act actions, the legislature created a statutory exception to the application of collateral estoppel in such cases. Contreras v. Miller Bonded, Inc., 2014-NMCA-011, cert. granted, 2013-NMCERT-012.

Where a municipal bus driver was terminated for cause; the bus driver's claim that the termination resulted from discrimination based on sex and medical condition was fully contested before the municipal personnel board; on appeal, the district court determined that there was substantial evidence to support the termination for cause and that the termination had not resulted from discrimination; and where a sheetmetal apprentice, who suffered a work injury and who did not give notice of the injury, was terminated for failure to show up for work; the sheetmetal apprentice's claim that the termination resulted from discrimination based on a serious medical condition was fully litigated before a workers' compensation judge who determined that the termination was for cause and that the sheetmetal apprentice had failed to give notice of the injury before the termination; on appeal, the court of appeals summarily affirmed the compensation order; the bus driver and the sheetmetal apprentice filed complaints in district court alleging that their terminations resulted from discrimination in violation of the New Mexico Human Rights Act; and the district court determined that the bus driver and the sheetmetal apprentice were precluded by collateral estoppel from re-litigating their discrimination claims and granted summary judgment against them, the district court erred in granting summary judgment because the findings of an administrative agency have no collateral estoppel effect on actions filed under the New Mexico Human Rights Act. Contreras v. Miller Bonded, Inc., 2014-NMCA-011, cert. granted, 2013-NMCERT-012.

Hostile work environment sexual harassment. — Plaintiff presented a prima facie case of hostile work environment sexual harassment where supervisor began to harass plaintiff when supervisor became general manager of store where plaintiff worked, supervisor follower plaintiff around, supervisor would approach plaintiff when she was alone, stare at her, and touch himself in a sexually suggestive manner, supervisor would stand near plaintiff and stare at her breasts, supervisor usually had an erection when plaintiff saw him and he rubbed up against plaintiff with an erection on one occasion; supervisor parked his car next to plaintiff's car even though supervisor had a designated parking area, supervisor would appear out of nowhere when plaintiff went to the warehouse; and supervisor's behavior made plaintiff feel uncomfortable and supervisor's presence affected plaintiff's performance at work. Ocana v. Am. Furniture Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

Vicarious liability of employer. — Employer may be held vicariously liable to employee for an actionable hostile environment created by a supervisor with immediate authority over the employee. Employer liability will be presumed where there is actionable sexual harassment and the harassing employee has supervisory authority over the victimized employee. Where no tangible employment action has been taken against the employee, the employer may rebut the presumption by proving that the employer exercised reasonable care to prevent and correct promptly any sexual harassing behavior and the employee reasonably failed to take advantage of any preventative or corrective opportunities provided by the employer or to avoid harm otherwise. Ocana v. Am. Furniture Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

Section applies only to de novo appeals from commission decision; when the administrative procedure was never invoked, a district court action was not an appeal under this section. Jaramillo v. J.C. Penney Co., 1985-NMCA-002, 102 N.M. 272, 694 P.2d 528.

Venue. — The legislature intended that appeal for a trial de novo be limited to the district court of the county of the place elected by the commission to hear the complaint, as between a place of employer's doing business or of the alleged discriminatory practice. Montoya v. Super Save Warehouse Foods, 1991-NMSC-003, 111 N.M. 212, 804 P.2d 403.

Section not overridden by Tort Claims Act. — The Tort Claims Act (Article 4 of Chapter 41 NMSA 1978) does not override or supersede the Human Rights Act so as to shield a governmental entity from liability otherwise flowing from a discriminatory practice proscribed by the latter act. This section constitutes a waiver of sovereign immunity for liability imposed on public entities by the human rights commission, or by a district court on appeal from a commission decision, for violations of the Human Rights Act. Luboyeski v. Hill, 1994-NMSC-032, 117 N.M. 380, 872 P.2d 353.

Remedies are not exclusive. — The Whistleblower Protection Act (WPA), 10-16C-1 through -6 NMSA 1978, and the New Mexico Human Rights Act (HRA), 28-1-1 through -15 NMSA 1978, are not in irreconcilable conflict; a plaintiff may state a WPA claim alongside a claim under the HRA. Herald v. Board of Regents of the Univ. of N.M., 2015-NMCA-104, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-009.

Where plaintiff, a resident physician at the university of New Mexico school of medicine, was dismissed from the residency program and brought suit against the board of regents of the university of New Mexico claiming that her termination was driven by discrimination and retaliation in violation of the New Mexico Human Rights Act (HRA), 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., and the Whistleblower Protection Act (WPA), 10-16C-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., the district court erred in dismissing plaintiff's WPA claims on the grounds that the WPA and the HRA are irreconcilably conflicting and in concluding that plaintiff could therefore only proceed under the HRA. Herald v. Board of Regents of the Univ. of N.M., 2015-NMCA-104, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-009.

Admissibility of reports not in record. — Ordinary rules of evidence govern the admissibility of administrative findings, and the district court is not precluded from adherence to the hearsay evidence rule in ruling on the admissibility of official reports or statements that are not in the nature of a transcript of the record. Behrmann v. Phototron Corp., 1990-NMSC-073, 110 N.M. 323, 795 P.2d 1015.

"Actual damages" construed. — The term "actual damages" in Subsection D is synonymous with compensatory damages, and excludes punitive damages. As for prospective damages, because they are a species of actual damages, they properly may be granted where evidence has been presented as to their present worth. Behrmann v. Phototron Corp., 1990-NMSC-073, 110 N.M. 323, 795 P.2d 1015.

Evidence supporting award of front pay. — Evidence of plaintiff's inability to find full-time employment in his locality, despite his strenuous efforts, constitutes sufficient evidence of his inability to mitigate damages to support the court's discretion in determining that future employment would be unlikely and to support an award of front pay. Smith v. FDC Corp., 1990-NMSC-020, 109 N.M. 514, 787 P.2d 433.

State immunity from interest not waived. — Subsection D of this section does not explicitly waive the state's immunity from post-judgment interest. Nava v. City of Santa Fe, 2004-NMSC-039, 136 N.M. 647, 103 P.3d 571.

Interest not authorized. — Trial court did not abuse its discretion by refusing to assess interest on the judgment, fees, and costs in plaintiff's retaliation suit, because an interest award under Section 56-8-4 NMSA 1978 is not an absolute right, but rather is a matter to be left to the discretion of the trial court, and there is no authority suggesting that the phrase "actual damages and reasonable attorney's fees" in Subsection D of this section should be expanded to include interest. Gonzales v. N.M. Dep't of Health, 2000-NMSC-029, 129 N.M. 586, 11 P.3d 550.

Validity of certain jury instructions. — The court did not abuse its discretion in giving "sex stereotyping" and "absence-of-direct-proof" instructions to the jury in an action brought by an employee who alleged that she was wrongfully terminated from her job as a salesperson because she became pregnant. Behrmann v. Phototron Corp., 1990-NMSC-073, 110 N.M. 323, 795 P.2d 1015.

II. EXHAUSTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.

Exhaustion of remedies against individual defendants required. — Individual defendants cannot be sued in district court under this article unless and until the complainant exhausts her administrative remedies against them. Luboyeski v. Hill, 1994-NMSC-032, 117 N.M. 380, 872 P.2d 353.

Liability of individual. — Where plaintiff named only the corporation as a defendant in her complaint for discrimination before the human rights division, the president of the corporation was not now personally liable in district court because, while she exhausted her administrative remedies against the corporation, she failed to do so against the president individually. Sonntag v. Shaw, 2001-NMSC-015, 130 N.M. 238, 22 P.3d 1188.

Complaint form denied filers the right to exhaust administrative remedies. — Where the charge of discrimination form prescribed by regulation of the human rights division instructed filers to identify the alleged discriminating agency by the name and address of the agency, but did not require any identification of individual agency employees involved in the discrimination, the form did not provide filers a fair and adequate opportunity to exhaust administrative remedies and preserve the right to pursue judicial remedies for liability against individual defendants under the Human Rights Act and filers who filed the prescribed form were not required to have exhausted administrative remedies against the previously unnamed individual defendants before pursuing their judicial remedies against the previously unnamed individual defendants. Lobato v. N.M. Env't Dep't, 2012-NMSC-002, 268 P.3d 1284.

Exhaustion of administrative remedies. — Even though the plaintiff had filed a sex discrimination complaint against her former employer only with the equal employment opportunity commission (EEOC), she exhausted her administrative remedies and could file an appeal in the district court because a work-sharing agreement between the EEOC and New Mexico human rights division (NMHRD) and NMHRD regulations provided that NMHRD procedural requirements were met by filing a complaint with either the NMHRD or the EEOC. Sabella v. Manor Care, Inc., 1996-NMSC-014, 121 N.M. 596, 915 P.2d 901.

III. TIME LIMITATIONS.

Time limitations. — Where human rights division did not give plaintiff's attorney notice of its record of decision even though attorney filed an entry of appearance with the division, district court could find that the division's actions tolled the thirty-day time limit to file an appeal to district court and required district court to deny defendant's motion for summary judgment that plaintiff had not timely filed notice of appeal. Ocana v. Am. Furniture Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

Time limit on filing complaint. — Receiving a notice of right to sue from the equal employment opportunity commission did not satisfy the state law requirement of obtaining an order from the human rights division, nor did such notice affect the thirty-day time limit for filing an appeal from an order of the division in state court. Mitchell-Carr v. McLendon, 1999-NMSC-025, 127 N.M. 282, 980 P.2d 65.

Time limits tolled. — Although the EEOC issued its decision in July, 1999, the division did not notify complainant's attorney of record of the decision because he was erroneously not put on the mail distribution list. Although the division normally corresponds with a complainant through his or her attorney once the attorney files an entry of appearance on the complainant's behalf, the division did not do this, and, as a result, complainant did not receive notice of the division's decision until much later. Thus, a fact-finder could find that the division's actions tolled the time limits. Ocana v. Am. Furniture Co., 2004-NMSC-018, 135 N.M. 539, 91 P.3d 58.

The statute of limitations for a state law claim over which a federal district court exerts supplemental jurisdiction is tolled while the federal case is pending. — Where plaintiff brought a claim against her employer individually and the employer's dental practice for discrimination on the basis of sex under the New Mexico Human Rights Act (NMHRA), 28-1-1 to 28-1-14 NMSA 1978, and where plaintiff also filed a federal complaint seeking damages for unlawful discriminatory and retaliatory practices in violation of the NMHRA and a Title VII claim against the dental practice, the state district court erred in dismissing plaintiff's claim against the dental practice because plaintiff filed her amended complaint in state court while her federal case was pending, and under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(d), the statute of limitations for any applicable state law claim over which a federal district court exerts supplemental jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(d) is tolled while the claim is pending and for a period of 30 days after it is dismissed by the federal court. The state district court, however, correctly dismissed plaintiff's NMHRA claim against her employer individually, because the employer was not named as a defendant in plaintiff's federal action, and therefore the federal court did not exert supplemental jurisdiction over that claim under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a), and the statute of limitations on that claim as to the employer individually was not tolled under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(d). Williams v. Mann, 2017-NMCA-012.

IV. SCOPE OF REVIEW.

Scope of review. — In appeals from the human rights commission (now the human rights division of the department of labor), the district court, by virtue of specific provisions for trial de novo and jury trial, has the right to make an independent determination of the facts. The general rule in respect to appeals from administrative bodies is not applicable. Keller v. City of Albuquerque, 1973-NMSC-048, 85 N.M. 134, 509 P.2d 1329, overruled on other grounds, Green v. Kase, 113 N.M. 76, 823 P.2d 318.

Review of transcript. — There is no statutory requirement that on de novo appeals from the commission, the jury or the judge must hear the transcript of the proceedings before the commission. Green v. Kase, 1992-NMSC-004, 113 N.M. 76, 823 P.2d 318.

Administrative review distinguished. — The scope of judicial review contemplated by this section is much broader than in appeals brought generally under the Administrative Procedures Act (12-8-1 NMSA 1978 et seq.), where judicial review is restricted to the record. School district appealing decision of human rights commission was not required to state grounds for appeal, and therefore its notice of appeal was effective to give the district court jurisdiction to try the case de novo. Linton v. Farmington Mun. Schs., 1974-NMSC-079, 86 N.M. 748, 527 P.2d 789.

Review of jurisdiction. — Court of appeals has no authority to review a judgment of the district court on the issue of jurisdiction. Dominguez v. Stone, 1981-NMCA-146, 97 N.M. 211, 638 P.2d 423.

V. ATTORNEY FEES.

In determining the reasonableness of an award of attorney's fees, a court should consider a variety of factors, including: (1) the time and effort required, considering the complexity of the issues and the skill required; (2) the customary fee in the area for similar services; (3) the results obtained and the amount of the controversy; (4) time limitations; and (5) the ability, experience, and reputation of the attorney performing the services. Smith v. FDC Corp., 1990-NMSC-020, 109 N.M. 514, 787 P.2d 433.

Recovery of attorney's fees. — Time records do not constitute essential evidence for recovering attorney's fees. Lucero v. Aladdin Beauty Colls., Inc., 1994-NMSC-022, 117 N.M. 269, 871 P.2d 365.

Computation of attorney fees. — Although the trial court did not determine what the customary fee would be, it did not abuse its discretion by awarding an amount that was approximate to the reasonable hourly rate multiplied by the reasonable number of hours spent on the case. Lucero v. Aladdin Beauty Colls., Inc., 1994-NMSC-022, 117 N.M. 269, 871 P.2d 365.

Recovery of attorney fees. — Subsection D of this section may be interpreted to include attorney's fees for administrative proceedings, but in order to receive the fees, the complainant must prevail. Gonzales v. N.M. Dep't of Health, 2000-NMSC-029, 129 N.M. 586, 11 P.3d 550.

Fee award at $200 per hour, rather than requested rate of $230, was not abuse of discretion where trial court judge did not cut number of hours claimed and actually added five hours for work in connection with motions for fees, costs, and interest, and resulting award of $97,290.47 was approximately 34% of total judgment rendered by jury and was actually greater than judgment following remittitur. Nava v. City of Santa Fe, 2004-NMSC-039, 136 N.M. 647, 103 P.3d 571.

28-1-14. Posting of law and information.

Every person who is subject to the Human Rights Act, except an individual selling houses, shall keep posted in a conspicuous place on his premises notices prepared by the division which shall set forth excerpts of the Human Rights Act and other relevant information as determined by the secretary.

Criminal Offender Employment

Sec.
28-2-1. Short title.
28-2-2. Purpose of act.
28-2-3. Employment eligibility determination.
28-2-3.1. Employment eligibility determination; private employers.
28-2-4. Power to refuse, renew, suspend or revoke public employment or license.
28-2-5. Nonapplicability to law enforcement agencies.
28-2-6. Applicability.

28-2-1. Short title.

Chapter 28, Article 2 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Criminal Offender Employment Act".

History: 1953 Comp., § 41-24-1, enacted by Laws 1974, ch. 78, § 1; 2019, ch. 176, § 1.

The 2019 amendment, effective June 14, 2019, provided the statutory citation for the Criminal Offender Employment Act; after the section heading, changed "Sections 1 through 6 of this act" to "Chapter 28, Article 2 NMSA 1978".

ANNOTATIONS

Law reviews. — For note, "Negligent Hiring and Retention - Availability of Action Limited By Foreseeability Requirement," see 10 N.M.L. Rev. 491 (1980).

28-2-2. Purpose of act.

The legislature finds that the public is best protected when criminal offenders or ex-convicts are given the opportunity to secure employment or to engage in a lawful trade, occupation or profession and that barriers to such employment should be removed to make rehabilitation feasible.

History: 1953 Comp., § 41-24-2, enacted by Laws 1974, ch. 78, § 2.

ANNOTATIONS

Law reviews. — For note, "Negligent Hiring and Retention - Availability of Action Limited By Foreseeability Requirement," see 10 N.M.L. Rev. 491 (1980).

28-2-3. Employment eligibility determination.

A. Subject to the provisions of Subsection B of this section and Sections 28-2-4 and 28-2-5 NMSA 1978, in determining eligibility for employment with the state or any of its political subdivisions or for a license, permit, certificate or other authority to engage in any regulated trade, business or profession, the board or other department or agency having jurisdiction may take into consideration a conviction, but the conviction shall not operate as an automatic bar to obtaining public employment or license or other authority to practice the trade, business or profession. A board, department or agency of the state or any of its political subdivisions shall not make an inquiry regarding a conviction on an initial application for employment and shall only take into consideration a conviction after the applicant has been selected as a finalist for the position.

B. The following criminal records shall not be used, distributed or disseminated in connection with an application for any public employment, license or other authority:

(1) records of arrest not followed by a valid conviction;

(2) convictions that have been sealed, dismissed, expunged or pardoned;

(3) juvenile adjudications; or

(4) convictions for a crime that is not job-related for the position in question and consistent with business necessity.

History: 1953 Comp., § 41-24-3, enacted by Laws 1974, ch. 78, § 3; 2010, ch. 76, § 1; 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3, § 1.

Cross references. — For persons convicted of felonious or infamous crime ineligible for public office unless pardoned or restored to political rights, see 10-1-2 NMSA 1978.

The 2021 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective June 29, 2021, revised the list of criminal records that cannot be considered in an application for public employment, licensure or other authority to engage in any regulated trade, business or profession; in Subsection B, in Paragraph B(2), after the paragraph designation, deleted "misdemeanor", and after "convictions", deleted "not involving moral turpitude" and added "that have been sealed, dismissed, expunged or pardoned", and added Paragraphs B(3) and B(4).

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection A, after "Sections", deleted "3 and 4 of the Criminal Offender Employment Act" and added "28-2-4 and 28-2-5 NMSA 1978"; and added the last sentence.

ANNOTATIONS

State board of education subject to article. — The state board of education is subject to the provisions of Criminal Offender Employment Act (COEA), because it is an agency which determines eligibility for employment with the state. Bertrand v. N.M. State Bd. of Educ., 1975-NMCA-145, 88 N.M. 611, 544 P.2d 1176, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 5, 546 P.2d 70 (1976).

Testimony concerning indictment. — Because an agency has wide discretion in receiving and excluding evidence in proceedings under the Uniform Licensing Act, any error in allowing reference to an indictment against a dentist was harmless. Weiss v. N.M. Bd. of Dentistry, 1990-NMSC-077, 110 N.M. 574, 798 P.2d 175.

28-2-3.1. Employment eligibility determination; private employers.

A. If a private employer uses a written or electronic employment application, the employer shall not make an inquiry regarding an applicant's history of arrest or conviction on the employment application but may take into consideration an applicant's conviction after review of the applicant's application and upon discussion of employment with the applicant. Nothing in this section shall prohibit an employer from notifying the public or an applicant that the law or the employer's policy could disqualify an applicant who has a certain criminal history from employment in particular positions with that employer.

B. An applicant who claims to be aggrieved by a violation of Subsection A of this section may seek relief under the Human Rights Act pursuant to the process set out in Sections 28-1-10 through 28-1-13 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 176, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 176 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 14, 2019, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

28-2-4. Power to refuse, renew, suspend or revoke public employment or license.

A. Any board or other agency having jurisdiction over employment by the state or any of its political subdivisions or the practice of any trade, business or profession may refuse to grant or renew or may suspend or revoke any public employment or license or other authority to engage in the public employment, trade, business or profession for one or both of the following causes:

(1) where the applicant, employee or licensee has been convicted of a felony and the criminal conviction directly relates to the particular employment, trade, business or profession; and

(2) where the applicant, employee or licensee has been convicted of homicide, kidnapping, human trafficking, trafficking in controlled substances, criminal sexual penetration or related sexual offenses or child abuse and the applicant, employee or licensee has applied for reinstatement, renewal or issuance of a teaching certificate, a license to operate a child-care facility or employment at a child-care facility, regardless of rehabilitation.

B. The board or other agency shall explicitly state in writing the reasons for a decision that prohibits the person from engaging in the employment, trade, business or profession if the decision is based in whole or in part on conviction of any crime described in Paragraphs (1) and (2) of Subsection A of this section.

History: 1953 Comp., § 41-24-4, enacted by Laws 1974, ch. 78, § 4; 1985, ch. 234, § 1; 1997, ch. 238, § 5; 1997, ch. 251, § 1 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3, § 2.

The 2021 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective June 29, 2021, removed misdemeanor convictions involving moral turpitude and that relate to the particular employment, trade, business or profession from the permissible causes for denying, revoking or suspending public employment or a license to engage in a trade, business or profession, and removed an agency's authority to deny public employment or a professional license for felony and misdemeanor convictions that do not relate to a particular employment position; in Subsection A, after "business or profession for", deleted "any one or any combination" and added "one or both", in Paragraph A(1), after "convicted of a felony", deleted "or a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude", deleted former Paragraph A(2) and redesignated former Paragraph A(3) as Paragraph A(2); in Subsection B, after "Paragraphs (1) and", changed "(3)" to "(2)", and after "Subsection A of this section", deleted "Completion of probation or parole supervision or expiration of a period of three years after final discharge or release from any term of imprisonment without any subsequent conviction shall create a presumption of sufficient rehabilitation for purposes of Paragraph (2) of Subsection A of this section.".

Laws 1997, ch. 251, § 1, effective July 1, 1997, inserted "or employee" in two places and "a license to operate a child-care facility or employment at a child-care facility" in Paragraph A(3).

Laws 1997, ch. 238, § 5, effective June 20, 1997, in Paragraph A(3), inserted "homicide, kidnapping" following "convicted of" near the beginning and "renewal" following "reinstatement" near the end.

ANNOTATIONS

The purpose of a license revocation proceeding is not to punish the licensee but to protect the public from practitioners who do not possess the necessary qualifications. Varoz v. N.M. Bd. of Podiatry, 1986-NMSC-051, 104 N.M. 454, 722 P.2d 1176.

Content of notice of contemplated action. — The "evidence" to be set out in the notice of contemplated action under Section 61-1-4 NMSA 1978 is the evidence of the ground or grounds to be relied upon in taking the contemplated action under former Section 61-5-14 NMSA 1978, not the evidence to the adduced by way of explanation and determination of rehabilitation under Criminal Offender Employment Act. Weiss v. N.M. Bd. of Dentistry, 1990-NMSC-077, 110 N.M. 574, 798 P.2d 175.

Jury determination of guilt relevant concern. — For purposes of this article, a jury determination of a teacher's guilt of sexual misconduct with a minor acted as a conviction, despite subsequent dismissal of the case after the teacher completed his deferred sentence. Garcia v. State Bd. of Educ., 1984-NMCA-102, 102 N.M. 306, 694 P.2d 1371, cert. denied, 102 N.M. 293, 694 P.2d 1358 (1985).

Decertified teacher has burden of proving rehabilitation. — A teacher who was found guilty of sexual misconduct with a minor was convicted of a crime directly relating to the teaching profession and, therefore, had the burden of showing, upon application for recertification, that he had been sufficiently rehabilitated. Garcia v. State Bd. of Educ., 1984-NMCA-102, 102 N.M. 306, 694 P.2d 1371, cert. denied, 102 N.M. 293, 694 P.2d 1358 (1985).

Revocation of dental license. — Where a dentist was convicted of four counts of making or permitting a false claim for reimbursement for public assistance services, a conviction itself, as distinguished from the underlying conduct, is a sufficient basis for revoking a dental license. Weiss v. N.M. Bd. of Dentistry, 1990-NMSC-077, 110 N.M. 574, 798 P.2d 175.

Meaning of rehabilitation. — While "rehabilitation" is not defined in this section (although the statute does create a presumption of rehabilitation after completion of parole, or after a certain period has elapsed after release from prison), its dictionary definition is "to restore a condition of good health, ability to work or the like". Bertrand v. N.M. State Bd. of Educ., 1975-NMCA-145, 88 N.M. 611, 544 P.2d 1176, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 5, 546 P.2d 70 (1976).

Board must state reasons why applicant has not been rehabilitated and may not rely solely on the fact of conviction to deny an application. Garcia v. State Bd. of Educ., 1984-NMCA-102, 102 N.M. 306, 694 P.2d 1371, cert. denied, 102 N.M. 293, 694 P.2d 1358 (1985).

Distinction in treatment of crimes relates to burden of proof. — The distinction in treatment, under this section, between crimes that directly relate to a profession and crimes that do not directly relate to a profession concerns the burden of proof: under Subsection A(1), an applicant for issuance or reinstatement of a license or certificate has the burden of proving that he or she has been sufficiently rehabilitated, while, under Subsection A(2), there is a presumption of rehabilitation and the board or agency has the burden of proving an applicant for issuance or reinstatement of a license or certificate has not been sufficiently rehabilitated. N.M. Bd. of Pharmacy v. Reece, 1983-NMSC-080, 100 N.M. 339, 670 P.2d 950.

Where court accepted board rehabilitation decision. — Probative evidence of rehabilitation of a teacher who was on one year's probation for one count of distribution of marijuana included her conscientious and successful performance at her job and the parents' perception of her as a person with whom they would trust their children; but evidence that she had become angry when her probation officer would not let her see her file, made a derogatory comment about the laws and "narcs," told a student who asked her about drugs that he could get in some trouble because of some bad laws, but for him to do what he wanted, was probative of what the board could conclude was a poor attitude towards criminal offenses for one who was a teacher, and since the state board members spoke to her at some length themselves and were able to draw their own impressions of her progress towards rehabilitation, the appellate court would not substitute its judgment for that of the board. Bertrand v. N.M. State Bd. of Educ., 1975-NMCA-145, 88 N.M. 611, 544 P.2d 1176, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 5, 546 P.2d 70 (1976).

Standard for use of conviction to revoke license. — In order for a conviction to be used as a basis for a license revocation, the licensing agency must explicitly state its reasons for a decision prohibiting the licensee from engaging in his or her employment or profession, and the agency must find that the licensee has not been sufficiently rehabilitated to warrant the public trust and must give reasons for this finding. Weiss v. N.M. Bd. of Dentistry, 1990-NMSC-077, 110 N.M. 574, 798 P.2d 175.

Writing requirement explained. — When a decision is made on grounds that a criminal conviction directly relates to a person's profession, the reasons for such a decision must be explicitly stated in writing. It is not sufficient to merely recite the language of the statute, but rather the "reasons" for the conclusion that there is a direct relation must be given, especially so that a reviewing body may know the reasons for the administrative body's conclusion; and if the conviction of a crime is to operate as other than an automatic bar to employment, the administrative agencies must explain what they perceive the detrimental effect of employment to be. Bertrand v. N.M. State Bd. of Educ., 1975-NMCA-145, 88 N.M. 611, 544 P.2d 1176, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 5, 546 P.2d 70 (1976).

Scope of writing required under Subsection B. — Subsection B of Section 28-2-4 NMSA 1978 requires the board to state the reasons for its decision that the crime for which the professional was convicted directly relates to the practice of the profession, and also the reasons, if any, why the professional has not been rehabilitated and why he should be prevented from practicing the profession. N.M. Bd. of Pharmacy v. Reece, 1983-NMSC-080, 100 N.M. 339, 670 P.2d 950.

Knowledge of public record not imputed to estop dismissal. — Where the local school board did not have knowledge of a teacher's conviction until approached by her probation officer, although it was a matter of public record, the court of appeals declined to impute this knowledge to the board so as to estop it from dismissing her. Bertrand v. N.M. State Bd. of Educ., 1975-NMCA-145, 88 N.M. 611, 544 P.2d 1176, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 5, 546 P.2d 70 (1976).

commission to follow the procedures established by this section in its revocation of a real estate license for conviction of conspiracy to import marijuana was prejudicial error. McCoy v. N.M. Real Estate Comm'n, 1980-NMSC-081, 94 N.M. 602, 614 P.2d 14 (1980).

Required procedure for denial, suspension, or revocation of real estate license. — In each instance in which the real estate commission contemplates the denial, suspension or revocation of a license because of a criminal conviction, certain steps should be followed: 1) whether the conviction directly relates or does not directly relate to real estate, notice should be given to the licensee that the basis for the action is warranted by the Criminal Offender Employment Act; 2) evidence should be introduced on behalf of the commission supporting whether the conviction is directly related or not directly related to the business of a real estate broker or salesperson, and whether sufficient rehabilitation has been made, if required by the Criminal Offender Employment Act; 3) findings should be made after the hearing to uphold the decision of the commission under the Criminal Offender Employment Act as well as under the Real Estate Licensing Act. 1982 Op. ## 28-3-6.1. Office of the governor's council on women's health created.

A. The "office of the governor's council on women's health" is created and is administratively attached to the commission on the status of women.

B. The office of the governor's council on women's health shall:

(1) serve as a clearinghouse for education and information on women's health;

(2) recommend performance measures and outcomes specific to women's health;

(3) report annually by September 1 to the governor on women's health policy issues;

(4) assist in developing policy to improve women's health and well-being, including policies that explain and explore the links between women's health and economic security; and

(5) assist state agencies, including the department of health, to improve access to health care for women.

C. The governor shall appoint the director of the office of the governor's council on women's health, who shall serve at the pleasure of the governor.

D. The governor shall appoint advisors to the office of the governor's council on women's health to represent the geographic diversity of the state as follows:

(1) one representative from each of the following:

(a) the commission on the status of women;

(b) the department of health;

(c) the New Mexico health policy commission;

(d) the children, youth and families department;

(e) the human services department;

(f) the Indian affairs department;

(g) the veterans' services department; and

(h) the office on African American affairs;

(2) one representative of providers of women's health services;

(3) two representatives from rural counties; and

(4) four representatives of advocacy, community or consumer groups.

E. Advisors to the office of the governor's council on women's health shall serve at the pleasure of the governor, shall meet at least four times per year and shall serve for two-year terms.

F. For purposes of conducting business, a majority of the advisors to the office of the governor's council on women's health shall constitute a quorum.

G. The advisors to the office of the governor's council on women's health may organize statewide meetings and focus groups to involve members of the public further in improving women's health and to identify emerging issues around women's health care delivery and services.

28-3-8. Findings and purpose of act.

The legislature finds that there is an increasing number of persons in New Mexico who, in their middle years and having fulfilled the role of homemaker, find themselves displaced because of dissolution of marriage, death of a spouse or other loss of family income. As a consequence of this displacement such persons suffer a greatly reduced income, high rate of unemployment because of age, lack of work experience, discrimination and limited or no opportunity to collect funds of assistance such as social security, unemployment compensation, medicaid and other health insurance benefits or pension plans of the spouse. It is the purpose of this legislation to provide research and planning for programs to serve such displaced homemakers.

28-3-9. Definitions.

As used in the Displaced Homemakers Act [28-3-7 to 28-3-11 NMSA 1978] :

A. "displaced homemaker" means any individual who has worked in the home for a substantial number of years providing unpaid household services for family members and who:

(1) has difficulty obtaining adequate employment; or

(2) has been dependent on the income of another family member but is no longer supported by such income, has been dependent on federal assistance but is no longer eligible for such assistance or is supported as the parent of minor children by federal assistance or spousal support; and

B. "income of another family member" means any income in support of an entire family unit used for the purpose of providing that family with economic security, but does not include the payment of alimony or child support.

28-3-10. Office for displaced homemakers; creation; research and planning for displaced homemaker programs.

There is created in the commission on the status of women an "office for displaced homemakers." The office for displaced homemakers shall conduct research and planning for programs to meet the needs of displaced homemakers, which programs may include:

A. job counseling services specifically designed for a person entering the job market after a number of years as a homemaker;

B. job training and job placement services, including but not limited to:

(1) assistance in gaining admission to existing public and private job training programs and opportunities;

(2) development of training and placement programs for jobs in the private and public sectors, in conjunction with state and local government agencies, private employers and already existing training and placement programs; and

(3) identification of community needs and fundseeking for creation of new public service jobs which displaced homemakers might fill;

C. information and assistance with respect to health care, financial matters, education, nutrition and legal problems;

D. a clearinghouse of information to compile, coordinate and disseminate information about services and programs available to displaced homemakers;

E. training for service agency personnel who work with displaced homemakers; and

F. the development of methods and materials aimed at facilitating outreach and communication for displaced homemaker service agencies and programs.

History: 1953 Comp., § 4-33A-10, enacted by Laws 1977, ch. 292, § 4; 1978, ch. 126, § 1.

28-3-11. Report and recommendations.

The director of the commission on the status of women, in conjunction with the office for displaced homemakers, shall submit to the legislature an annual report on the number of displaced homemakers served by existing public and private agencies and shall make recommendations for displaced homemaker programs which may include:

A. a plan for the establishment, funding and implementation of regional displaced homemaker service centers in New Mexico; and

B. recommendations for legislative action.

28-4-6. Agency powers.

A. The state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department]:

(1) may receive on behalf of the state any gifts, donations or bequests from any source to be used in carrying out its duties; and

(2) is designated as the state agency [department] for handling all programs of the federal government related to the aged, except those designated by law as the responsibility of another state agency, and may enter into agreements and contracts with agencies of the federal government for this purpose.

B. The state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] may adopt and promulgate such reasonable rules and regulations as are deemed necessary to carry out its duties. Unless otherwise provided by law, no rule or regulation affecting any person or agency outside the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] shall be adopted, amended or repealed without a public hearing on the proposed action before the director of the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] or a hearing officer designated by him. The public hearing shall be held in Santa Fe unless otherwise permitted by statute. Notice of the subject matter of the rule or regulation, the action proposed to be taken, the time and place of the hearing, the manner in which interested persons may present their views and the method by which copies of the proposed rule or regulation or proposed amendment or repeal of an existing rule or regulation may be obtained shall be published once at least thirty days prior to the hearing in a newspaper of general circulation and mailed at least thirty days prior to the hearing date to all persons who have made a written request for advance notice of hearing. The director of the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] shall also provide such notice to the director of each senior citizen center no later than forty days prior to the public hearing. All rules and regulations shall be filed in accordance with the State Rules Act [Chapter 14, Article 4 NMSA 1978].

C. To ensure that the health and safety needs of the state's aged population are being met, the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] may conduct unannounced quality care evaluations of health and long-term care facilities that provide services to the aged, including the use of undercover patients or employees. Any employee or contractor of the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] who participates in such an evaluation shall be immune from liability in any civil action related to the evaluation, provided it is conducted in good faith. The purpose of this subsection is to confirm and clarify the authority of the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] to conduct quality care evaluations to protect the interests of the state's aged population.

28-6-1. Age of majority; eighteen years; exception.

Sec.
28-6-2 to 28-6-8. Repealed.

28-6-1. Age of majority; eighteen years; exception.

A. Except as provided in Subsection B or otherwise specifically provided by existing law, any person who has reached his eighteenth birthday shall be considered to have reached his majority as provided in Section 12-2-2 NMSA 1978 [repealed] and is an adult for all purposes the same as if he had reached his twenty-first birthday.

B. For the purposes of the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act [repealed], as it relates to any gift made prior to June 18, 1971, the donee shall not be entitled to delivery or payment over of the gift until he has reached his twenty-first birthday.

ANNOTATIONS

Section not unconstitutional. — Although trial court had continuing jurisdiction to modify divorce decree containing child custody provisions under the provisions of Section 40-4-7 NMSA 1978, that decree was considered final and not within the meaning of a "pending case" in N.M. Const., art. IV, § 34. Therefore, this section, which by its operation freed divorced father from making support payments to daughter who had reached age of 18, and thus, under the new section, was no longer a minor, is not unconstitutional. Phelps v. Phelps, 1973-NMSC-044, 85 N.M. 62, 509 P.2d 254.

Purpose of section. — The phrase "for all purposes" does not bar the right of parties to a contract to agree that "of full age" may be stipulated to mean 21 years; the purpose of the statute is to substitute the age of 18 for the age of 21 when any prior special law fixes an adult age of 21 years, subject to the specific exception of liquor control, and there is no analogical or interpretive basis for the contention that "for all purposes" means that a person 18 years of age is an adult in every phase of law, including the law of contracts and the modification of contracts. Peterson v. Romero, 1975-NMCA-127, 88 N.M. 483, 542 P.2d 434.

Effect of section on contracts where age stipulated. — Rental contract requiring that the rented vehicle be driven by "persons of full age (21 years)" was not modified by this section, and therefore neither car lessee nor estate of 18-year-old deceased driver were covered by the insurance provisions of the rental contract. Peterson v. Romero, 1975-NMCA-127, 88 N.M. 483, 542 P.2d 434.

On child-support payments. — Divorced husband was relieved by enactment of this statute from making further child-support payments under decree which required husband to make such payments during minority of his children or until they earlier become married or otherwise emancipated, where children were age 20 and 18 respectively. Mason v. Mason, 1973-NMSC-031, 84 N.M. 720, 507 P.2d 781.

Relation between age and voluntariness of confession. — Age is a factor to be considered in determining the voluntariness of a confession; however, a person who has reached the age of 18 is considered an adult for most purposes. State v. Aguirre, 1978-NMCA-029, 91 N.M. 672, 579 P.2d 798, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 751, 580 P.2d 972.

28-7-3. Equal right to use public facilities.

A. Persons who are blind, visually impaired or who have another physical disability have the same right as others to the full and free use of the streets, highways, sidewalks, walkways, public buildings, public facilities and other public places.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

B. Persons who are blind, visually impaired or who have another physical disability are entitled to full and equal accommodations, advantages, facilities and privileges of all common carriers, airplanes, motor vehicles, railroad trains, motor buses, streetcars, boats or any other public conveyances or modes of transportation, hotels, lodging places, places of public accommodation, amusement or resort and any other places to which the general public is invited, subject only to the conditions and limitations established by law and applicable alike to all persons.

C. Every totally or partially blind person shall have the right to be accompanied by a guide dog, specially trained for the purpose, in any of the places listed in this section without being required to pay an extra charge for the guide dog; provided that the person shall be liable for any damage done to the property or facilities by the dog.

D. The attorney general, district attorney or any person with a disability may file an action in the judicial district when a building has been built or altered and the work has not been accomplished in accordance with the current uniform building code, other applicable publications and established handicapped standards. The building official shall notify those applying for a permit that they shall comply with established standards. Any interested person may appeal the granting or denial of a waiver to the district court where the building is located. If the court finds that the building owner was required to comply with handicap access standards of the uniform building code and has failed to comply with such standards within a reasonable period of time, then the party filing action shall recover the court costs, attorney fees and appropriate injunctive relief to remedy the violation.

28-7-6. Annual proclamation of white cane safety day by governor.

Each year, the governor shall take suitable public notice of October 15 as white cane safety day. The governor shall issue a proclamation in which the governor:

A. comments upon the significance of the white cane;

B. calls upon the citizens of the state to observe the provisions of the White Cane Law [28-7-1 to 28-7-7 NMSA 1978] and to take precautions necessary to the safety of persons with a disability;

C. reminds the citizens of the state of the policies with respect to persons with a disability declared in the White Cane Law and urges the citizens to cooperate in giving effect to them; and

D. emphasizes the need of the citizens to be aware of the presence of persons with a disability in the community and to keep streets, highways, sidewalks, walkways, public buildings, public facilities, other public places, places of public accommodation, amusement and resort and other places to which the public is invited safe and functional and to offer assistance to persons with a disability upon appropriate occasions.

28-7-15. Short title.

Sections 1 through 9 [28-7-15 to 28-7-23 NMSA 1978] of this act may be cited as the "Commission for the Blind Act".

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 1.

28-7-16. Commission for the blind created.

A. There is created the "commission for the blind", consisting of three members, at least one of whom shall be blind, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate. Members of the first commission shall be appointed for staggered terms, one ending on December 31, 1988, one ending December 31, 1990 and one ending December 31, 1992. Thereafter, appointments shall be for staggered terms of six years.

B. A majority of the members of the commission constitutes a quorum for the transaction of business. The commission shall elect a chairman from its membership.

C. Members of the commission shall be compensated as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 to 10-8-8 NMSA 1978] and shall receive no other compensation, perquisite or allowance.

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 2.

28-7-17. Commission for the blind; powers and duties.

The commission for the blind shall:

A. apply for and receive money from any state or federal agency to be used for purposes relating to blindness and receive on behalf of the state any gifts, donations or bequests from any source, to be used in carrying out the commission's duties;

B. maintain a complete register of blind persons domiciled in New Mexico, specifying the nature and cause of blindness, capacity and need for educational or industrial training and other pertinent information;

C. maintain bureaus of information and industrial assistance to help blind persons find employment, train them in work which may be pursued in their own homes and assist them in merchandising and marketing their goods;

D. establish, equip and maintain a center with qualified instructors for vocational, industrial and other training of eligible blind persons. The center shall also provide for orientation and assistance for the adjustment of blind persons;

E. research and study the causes of blindness and its prevention in cooperation with the state or any other entity which the commission deems appropriate;

F. cooperate with appropriate state agencies in the adoption and carrying out of preventive measures relating to blindness;

G. promulgate rules and regulations necessary to effectuate the provisions of the Commission for the Blind Act [28-7-15 to 28-7-23 NMSA 1978]; and

H. publish an annual report on the activities and services of the commission.

28-7-18. Staff.

The commission shall appoint a director, who is the administrative officer of the commission. The director shall employ such assistants and employees as are necessary for the efficient operation of the commission. The director and all employees are subject to the Personnel Act [Chapter 10, Article 9 NMSA 1978].

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 4.

28-7-19. Qualification as blind; examinations required.

A. Qualification of a person as blind shall be determined by means of an eye examination by a licensed ophthalmologist. Blindness shall be the major handicap in cases of multiple handicaps. Persons who are not blind but who have been certified by a licensed ophthalmologist as suffering from a deteriorating condition which will result in blindness also qualify as blind.

B. The commission shall determine the procedure to be followed for the examination of any person to establish blindness and shall maintain a list of all ophthalmologists currently licensed in New Mexico. The person may choose any licensed ophthalmologist to make the examination and the cost shall be paid by the commission pursuant to its regulations.

28-7-20. Corrective medical services.

In addition to arranging and paying for examinations to determine blindness, the commission may arrange and pay for medical and surgical treatment of blind persons whenever a listed ophthalmologist judges that the treatment will be beneficial.

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 6.

28-7-21. Reports.

Whenever a licensed ophthalmologist finds a person he has examined to be blind, he shall report this fact, along with details of the examination, to the commission within thirty days of the examination date.

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 7.

28-7-22. Receipt of federal funds; designation.

The commission is authorized to receive and administer any federal funds relating to vocational rehabilitation of blind persons.

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 8.

28-7-23. Hearing; appeal.

The commission shall provide an opportunity for a fair hearing to any person applying for or receiving services who is dissatisfied with any act or failure to act arising from the operation of or administration of any program of the commission. The commission shall adopt rules and regulations as necessary to govern the conduct of such hearings.

History: Laws 1986, ch. 108, § 9.

28-8-1. Definitions.

As used in this act [28-8-1 to 28-8-7 NMSA 1978]:

A. "disabled condition" means the condition of being unconscious, semiconscious, incoherent or otherwise incapacitated to communicate;

B. "disabled person" means a person in a disabled condition;

C. "the emergency symbol" means the caduceus inscribed within a six-barred cross used by the American Medical Association to denote emergency information;

D. "identifying device" means an identifying bracelet, necklace, metal tag or similar device bearing the emergency symbol and the information needed in an emergency; and

E. "medical practitioner" means a person licensed or authorized to practice medicine or osteopathy.

28-8-2. Identifying devices for persons having certain conditions.

A. A person who suffers from epilepsy, diabetes, a cardiac condition or any other type of illness that causes temporary blackouts, semiconscious periods or complete unconsciousness, or who suffers from a condition requiring specific medication or medical treatment, is allergic to certain medications or items used in medical treatment, wears contact lenses or is unable to communicate coherently or effectively in the English language, is authorized and encouraged to wear an identifying device.

B. Any person may carry an identification card bearing his name, type of medical condition, physician's name and other medical information.

C. By wearing an identifying device a person gives his consent for any peace officer or medical practitioner who finds him in a disabled condition to make a reasonable search of his clothing or other effects for an identification card of the type described in Subsection B of this section.

28-8-3. Duty of peace officer.

A. A peace officer shall make a diligent effort to determin [determine] whether any disabled person he finds is an epileptic or a diabetic or suffers from some other type of illness that would cause the condition. Whenever feasible, this effort shall be made before the person is charged with a crime or taken to a place of detention.

B. In seeking to determine whether a disabled person suffers from an illness, a peace officer shall make a reasonable search for an identifying device and an identification card of the type described in Subsection B of Section 2 [28-8-2 NMSA 1978] of this act and examine them for emergency information. The peace officer may not search for an identifying device or an identification card in a manner or to an extent that would appear to a reasonable person in the circumstances to cause an unreasonable risk of worsening the disabled person's condition.

C. A peace officer who finds a disabled person without an identifying device or identification card is not relieved of his duty to that person to make a diligent effort to ascertain the existence of any illness causing the disabled condition.

D. A claim for relief against a peace officer does not arise from his making a reasonable search of the disabled person to locate an identifying device or identification card, even though the person is not wearing an identifying device or carrying an identification card. However, nothing found on the disabled person during a search authorized under this act [28-8-1 to 28-8-7 NMSA 1978] shall be admitted into evidence in any court in a criminal proceeding where the disabled person is a defendant if the admission of the product of the search would not be entitled to admission except for the authority to search granted in Subsection C of this section.

E. A peace officer who determines or has reason to believe that a disabled person is suffering from an illness causing his condition shall promptly notify the person's physician, if practicable. If the officer is unable to ascertain the physician's identity or to communicate with him, the officer shall make a reasonable effort to cause the disabled person to be transported immediately to a medical practitioner or to a facility where medical treatment is available. If the officer believes it unduly dangerous to move the disabled person, he shall make a reasonable effort to obtain the assistance of a medical practitioner.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

28-8-4. Duty of medical practitioners.

A. A medical practitioner, in discharging his duty to a disabled person whom he has undertaken to examine or treat, shall make a reasonable search for an identifying device or an identification card of the type described in Subsection B of Section 2 [28-8-2 NMSA 1978] of this act and examine them for emergency information.

B. A claim for relief against a medical practitioner does not arise from his making a reasonable search of a disabled person to locate an identifying device or identification card, even though the person is not wearing an identifying device or carrying an identification card.

28-8-5. Duty of others.

A. A person, other than a peace officer or medical practitioner, who finds a disabled person may make a reasonable effort to notify a peace officer. If a peace officer or medical practitioner is not present, a person who finds a disabled person may:

(1) make a reasonable search for an identifying device; and

(2) if the identifying device is found, may make a reasonable search for an identification card of the type described in Subsection B of Section 2 [28-8-2 NMSA 1978] of this act.

If a device or card is located, the person making the search shall attempt promptly to bring its contents to the attention of a peace officer or medical practitioner.

B. A claim for relief does not arise from a reasonable search to locate an identifying device or identification card as authorized by Subsection A of this section.

History: 1953 Comp., § 12-31-5, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 265, § 5.

28-8-6. Falsifying identification or misrepresenting condition.

A person who, with intent to deceive, provides, wears, uses or possesses a false identifying device or an identification card of the type described in Subsection B of Section 2 [28-8-2 NMSA 1978] of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than three hundred dollars ($300) or imprisoned for not more than ninety days, or both.

28-8-7. Other duties.

The duties imposed by this act [28-8-1 to 28-8-7 NMSA 1978] are in addition to, and not in limitation of, other duties existing under the law of this state.

28-10-1. Governor's commission on disability.

A. The "governor's commission on disability" is created, consisting of sixteen members, nine of whom shall be appointed by the governor. The seven remaining members shall be the director of the vocational rehabilitation division of the public education department, the secretary of workforce solutions or the secretary's designee, the director of the behavioral health services division of the human services department, the secretary of children, youth and families or the secretary's designee, the secretary of early childhood education and care or the secretary's designee, the secretary of aging and long-term services or the secretary's designee and the secretary of human services or the secretary's designee. Initially, three members shall be appointed for terms ending December 31, 1978, three members for terms ending December 31, 1980 and three members for terms ending December 31, 1982. Thereafter, appointments shall be for six years expiring on December 31 of even-numbered years. Appointed members shall be appointed from different geographic areas of the state and from the major disability services in the state. Appointed members shall include persons with disabilities, representatives of government and private enterprise, parents or guardians of persons with disabilities and professionals in, or those who are interested in, service for persons with disabilities. Not more than five of the members appointed by the governor shall be of the same political party.

B. A majority of the members of the commission constitutes a quorum for the transaction of business. The commission shall meet at least twice a year and shall annually elect a chair and a vice chair.

C. The commission shall be primarily concerned with those persons with disabilities who have a condition that, regardless of its physical or mental origin, constitutes a substantial occupational disadvantage.

28-10-3.2. Short title.

Sections 1 and 2 [28-10-3.2 and 28-10-3.3 NMSA 1978] of this act may be cited as the "Parking Placard Abuse Act".

History: Laws 1999, ch. 297, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 1999, ch. 297 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective on June 18, 1999, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-10-3.3. Program created.

The "placard abuse prevention program" is created in the governor's commission on disability to ensure compliance with statutes affecting parking privileges for persons with severe mobility impairment and safe and effective use of designated disabled parking space. The commission shall design and implement a program to:

A. monitor the system of eligibility for and use of parking placards and special registration plates;

B. provide public awareness education and training to address barriers to the appropriate use of designated disabled parking space;

C. pursue efforts to reduce abuse and misuse of designated disabled parking space privileges, including revocation of parking placards and special registration plates; and

D. provide education, training and technical assistance to local law enforcement agencies and volunteers on enforcement of statutes affecting use of designated disabled parking space.

History: Laws 1999, ch. 297, § 2; 2004, ch. 20, § 5.

The 2004 amendment, effective May 19, 2004, changed the name of the "governor's committee on concerns of the handicapped" to the "governor's commission on disability".

28-10-4. Advisory council.

A. The governor's commission on disability shall appoint an appropriate advisory council on disability, which shall include representatives of state departments and agencies and individuals attentive to the concerns of individuals with disabilities.

B. The advisory council shall meet at the call of the chairman and shall make recommendations to the governor's commission on disability for the improvement and coordination of state activities relative to the concerns of individuals with disabilities.

28-10-5. Disability fund created.

A. There is created in the state treasury a "disability fund". All funds, gifts, donations, bequests and other income of the governor's commission on disability shall be deposited by the director of the commission in the fund and shall be appropriated to the commission to further the purpose of Sections 28-10-1 through 28-10-8.1 NMSA 1978 or for the purposes stated by the donor or grantor of the funds.

B. Distributions made to the disability fund from the housing modification for persons with a disability permanent fund shall constitute a separate account in the fund and are appropriated to the governor's commission on disability for the purpose of carrying out a residential accessibility modification program.

C. Money in the disability fund shall not revert but shall be used only as provided in Sections 28-10-1 through 28-10-8.1 NMSA 1978.

History: 1953 Comp., § 59-15-5, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 349, § 5; 2001, ch. 226, § 3; 2004, ch. 20, § 7; 2007, ch. 46, § 30.

The 2007 amendment, effective June 15, 2007, made non-substantive language changes.

The 2004 amendment, effective May 19, 2004, changed the name of the "governor's committee on concerns of the handicapped" to the "governor's commission on disability".

The 2001 amendment, effective April 3, 2001, inserted the Subsection A and C designations and added Subsection B; in Subsection A, substituted "the governor's committee on concerns of the handicapped" for "the committee" and "director" for "executive secretary"; and made stylistic changes.

28-10-5.1. Housing modification for persons with a disability permanent fund; investment; distribution.

A. The "housing modification for persons with a disability permanent fund" is created in the state treasury. The fund shall consist of money appropriated to the fund and any gifts, donations or bequests made to the fund. Money in the fund shall be invested by the state investment officer as land grant permanent funds are invested pursuant to Chapter 6, Article 8 NMSA 1978, and earnings from investment of the fund shall be credited to the fund. Money in the fund shall not revert at the end of any fiscal year and shall not be expended for any purpose, except that an annual distribution shall be made to the fund for persons with a disability in accordance with Subsection B of this section.

B. On July 1 of fiscal year 2002 and on July 1 of each fiscal year thereafter, an annual distribution shall be made from the housing modification for persons with a disability permanent fund to the disability fund in an amount equal to three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000) until that amount is less than an amount equal to five percent of the average of the year-end market values of the housing modification for persons with a disability permanent fund for the immediately preceding five calendar years. Thereafter, the amount of the annual distribution shall be five percent of the average of the year-end market values of the housing modification for persons with a disability permanent fund for the immediately preceding five calendar years.

The 2007 amendment, effective June 15, 2007, made non-substantive language changes.

28-10-6. Reports.

The governor's commission on disability and the advisory council on disability shall submit reports on their work for the preceding year to the governor and the legislature at least forty-five days prior to each regular legislative session. The report shall contain recommendations on present and future needs of individuals with disabilities.

History: 1953 Comp., § 59-15-6, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 349, § 6; 1977, ch. 198, § 5; 1979, ch. 34, § 5; 2004, ch. 20, § 8.

The 2004 amendment, effective May 19, 2004, changed the name of the "governor's committee on concerns of the handicapped" to the "governor's commission on disability" and changed "handicapped" to "individuals with disabilities".

28-11-1. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1989, ch. 242, § 5 repealed 28-11-1 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1977, ch. 332, § 1, relating to hearing ear aid dogs, effective June 16, 1989.

28-11-1.1. Short title.

Chapter 28, Article 11 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Service Animal Act".

History: Laws 2005, ch. 224, § 1; 2013, ch. 57, § 1.

The 2013 amendment, effective June 14, 2013, changed the name of the act; after "cited as the", deleted "Assistance" and added "Service".

28-11-2. Definitions.

As used in the Service Animal Act:

A. "emotional support animal", "comfort animal" or "therapy animal" means an animal selected to accompany an individual with a disability that does not work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability and does not accompany at all times an individual with a disability;

B. "qualified service animal" means any qualified service dog or qualified service miniature horse that has been or is being trained to provide assistance to an individual with a disability; but "qualified service animal" does not include a pet, an emotional support animal, a comfort animal or a therapy animal;

C. "qualified service dog" means a dog that has been trained or is being trained to work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities; and

D. "qualified service miniature horse" means a miniature horse that has been trained or is being trained to work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities.

Cross references. — For the federal Americans with Disabilities Act, see 42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.

The 2013 amendment, effective June 14, 2013, added terms and definitions relating to emotional support and service animals; added Subsection A; in Subsection B, at the beginning of the sentence, after "qualified", deleted "assistance" and added "service", after "means any", deleted "assistance" and added "qualified service", after "dog or", deleted "other animal" and added "qualified service miniature horse", and after "disability", deleted "and includes" and added "but 'qualified service animal' does not include a pet, an emotional support animal, a comfort animal or a therapy animal"; deleted former Subsection A, which provided that an assistance dog was a qualified assistance animal; deleted former Subsection B, which provided that a guide dog was a qualified assistance animal; deleted former Subsection C, which provided that a hearing dog was a qualified assistance animal; deleted former Subsection D, which provided that a service dog was a qualified assistance animal; and added Subsections C and D.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, deleted the former definition of "qualified assistance animal", which was defined to mean a dog trained by a recognized school to assist persons with disabilities, an animal recognized as a service animal pursuant to the Americans with Disabilities Act or an animal approved by the committee on concerns for the handicapped and added the definition of "qualified assistance animal".

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, rewrote the section to the extent that a detailed comparison was impracticable.

28-11-3. Admittance of qualified service animal.

A. Notwithstanding any other provision of law:

(1) a person with a disability who is using a qualified service animal shall be admitted to any building open to the public and to all other public accommodations and shall be allowed access to all common carriers; provided that the qualified service animal is under the control of an owner, a trainer or a handler of the qualified service animal. A person shall not deny an individual with a qualified service animal entry to a building open to the public or to any public accommodation or deny access to a common carrier, regardless of any policy of denying to pets entry to that building, public accommodation or common carrier. A person shall not be required to pay any additional charges for the qualified service animal, but may be liable for any damage done by the qualified service animal; provided that persons without disabilities would be liable for similar damage; and

(2) in an emergency requiring transportation or relocation of the owner or trainer of the qualified service animal, to the extent practicable, accommodations shall be made for the qualified service animal to remain or be reunited with the owner, trainer or handler. When accommodations cannot be made for allowing the qualified service animal to remain with the owner, trainer or handler, the qualified service animal shall be placed pursuant to instructions provided by the owner, trainer or handler.

B. This section does not require a public accommodation or common carrier to permit an owner, trainer or handler using a qualified service animal to have access to a public accommodation or common carrier in circumstances in which the individual's use of the qualified service animal poses a direct threat of significant harm to the health or safety of others.

The 2013 amendment, effective June 14, 2013, provided for the entry of qualified service animals to buildings open to the public, public accommodations and public carriers; in the title of the section, deleted "assistance animals" and added "service animal"; in Paragraph (1) of Subsection A, deleted "assistance" and added "service" before "animal", in the first sentence, at the beginning of the sentence, added "a person with a disability who is using", after "and to all", added "other", after "public accommodations", deleted "such as restaurants, hotels, hospitals, swimming pools, stores" and added "and shall be allowed access to all", after "common carriers", deleted "and theaters", and after "owner", deleted "or", after "trainer", added "or a handler"; added the second sentence and at the beginning of the second sentence, deleted "No"; in the third sentence, after "A person shall", deleted "not", after "but", deleted "shall" and added "may", and after "damage done by the qualified service animal", added the remainder of the sentence; in Paragraph (2) of Subsection A, deleted "assistance" and added "service" before "animal", in the first sentence, after "reunited with the owner", deleted "or" and at the end of the sentence, after "trainer", added "or handler"; and added Subsection B.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, added Subsection B to provide that in an emergency, requiring transportation or relocation of the owner or trainer, accommodations shall be made for the qualified assistance animal to remain with the owner or trainer.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, deleted the Subsection A and B designations, substituted "assistance animal" for "service animal" and "assistance animal" for "service animal" throughout the section, substituted "person with a disability or a trainer of assistance animals" for "totally or partially blind, hearing impaired or mobility impaired person. B. Pursuant to Subsection A of this section" at the end of the first sentence, and inserted "qualified assistance" before "animal" at the end of the last sentence.

28-11-4. Penalty.

A. A person who violates a provision of the Service Animal Act is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be sentenced in accordance with the provisions of Section 31-19-1 NMSA 1978.

B. Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude any other remedy otherwise available pursuant to common law or other law of this state.

The 2013 amendment, effective June 14, 2013, provided that the section does not preclude other available remedies; in Subsection A, after "violates a provision of the", deleted "Assistance" and added "Service"; and added Subsection B.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, changed the statutory reference to the Assistance Animal Act.

28-11-5. Findings and purpose; interference with qualified service animals prohibited; criminal and civil penalties.

A. The legislature finds that unrestrained animals constitute a danger to qualified service animals and public safety. The purpose of this section is to protect persons with disabilities and qualified service animals from attack by unrestrained animals.

B. It is unlawful for any person, with no legitimate reason, to:

(1) intentionally interfere with the use of a qualified service animal by harassing or obstructing the owner, trainer or handler of the qualified service animal or the qualified service animal; or

(2) intentionally fail or refuse to control the person's unrestrained animal, which animal interferes with or obstructs the owner, trainer or handler of the qualified service animal.

C. The provisions of this section shall not apply to unrestrained animals on private property not open to the public.

D. A person who violates the provisions of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished pursuant to Section 31-19-1 NMSA 1978. A person convicted under this section may be ordered to pay restitution, including, but not limited to, actual damages.

E. Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude any other remedies otherwise available pursuant to common law or the NMSA 1978.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, deleted the former provision of Subsection B, which defined "assistance dog" as a dog that has been trained for persons with a hearing, sight or other physical disability or impairment; provided in Subsection B(1) that it is unlawful for a person to interfere with the use of a qualified assistance animal by harassing or obstructing the owner or trainer of the animal, or the animal; provides in Subsection B(2) that it is unlawful for a person to fail or refuse to control that person's unrestrained dog and that dog interferes with or obstructs the owner or trainer of a qualified assistance animal or the animal; provided in Subsection C that this section does not apply to unrestrained dogs on private property; and deleted former Subsection G, which defined "assistance animal" to mean an animal recognized as a service animal pursuant to the Americans with Disabilities Act.

28-11-6. Prohibition of false presentation of animal as a qualified service animal.

A. A person shall not knowingly present as a qualified service animal any animal that does not meet a definition of "qualified service animal" pursuant to Section 28-11-2 NMSA 1978. A person who violates the provisions of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished pursuant to Section 31-19-1 NMSA 1978.

B. Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude any other remedies otherwise available pursuant to common law or the NMSA 1978.

28-11A-3. Vocational rehabilitation division; purchase of telecommunication devices for the deaf.

28-11A-1. Legislative finding.

The legislature finds that many state citizens who are unable to utilize telephone services in a regular manner due to hearing impairments are able to communicate through the use of telecommunication devices and that such devices should be installed in municipal police and county sheriff departments in areas where such units are in use by deaf persons and in the communications section of the state police in order to assure prompt response to emergency situations.

28-11A-2. Definitions.

As used in this act [28-11A-1 to 28-11A-3 NMSA 1978]:

A. "deaf person" means any person whose hearing is totally impaired or whose hearing is so seriously impaired as to prohibit him from understanding telephonic voice communications; and

B. "telecommunication device for the deaf " means a teletypewriter or other instrument for telecommunication in which speaking or hearing is not required for communication.

28-11A-3. Vocational rehabilitation division; purchase of telecommunication devices for the deaf.

A telecommunication device for the deaf shall be purchased by the vocational rehabilitation division of the department of education and installed in the office of the municipal police department of any municipality with a population in excess of ten thousand inhabitants if the division determines and verifies that at least five telecommunication devices for the deaf are in use by deaf persons in the municipality, and in the office of the county sheriff in counties not having a municipality with a population in excess of ten thousand inhabitants if the division determines and verifies that at least five such devices are in use by deaf persons in that county.

28-11B-1. Commission for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons created.

A. There is created the "commission for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons", consisting of seven members, a majority of whom are deaf or hard-of-hearing persons, including three ex-officio members and four members appointed by the governor without regard for party affiliation, with the advice and consent of the senate. Terms of appointed members shall be for six years, expiring on December 31 of odd-numbered years, in accordance with the staggered terms of the appointed members holding office on the effective date of this 1999 amendment.

B. Ex-officio members are:

(1) the president of the New Mexico association for the deaf or his designee;

(2) the superintendent of the New Mexico school for the deaf or his designee; and

(3) the director of the vocational rehabilitation division of the state department of public education or his designee who shall be knowledgeable in the area of deafness.

C. Appointed members are:

(1) a parent of a deaf or hard-of-hearing child;

(2) a professional person who is deaf or hard of hearing;

(3) a deaf or hard-of-hearing person who resides in southern New Mexico; and

(4) a deaf or hard-of-hearing person who resides in northern New Mexico.

D. A majority of the members of the commission for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons constitutes a quorum for transaction of business. The commission shall elect a chairman from its membership.

E. Members of the commission for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons shall be compensated as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 to 10-8-8 NMSA 1978] and shall receive no other compensation, perquisite or allowance.

F. Commission members who are serving upon the effective date of this 1999 act shall serve out the terms to which they were appointed.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 72, § 1; 1999, ch. 72, § 1.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, in Subsection A, inserted "including three ex-officio members and four members" in the first sentence, deleted the former second sentence, which read "Initially, three members shall be appointed for terms ending December 31, 1993, two members for terms ending December 31, 1995 and two members for terms ending December 31, 1997", in the second sentence, substituted "Terms of appointed members" for "Thereafter, appointments" and added the language beginning "in accordance" to the end; in Subsection B, substituted "Ex-officio members are" for "Appointments shall include" in the introductory language, deleted former Paragraph (3) which read, "a parent of a deaf or hard-of-hearing child", redesignated former Paragraph (4) as Paragraph (3); added the Subsection C designation, the introductory language, and Paragraph C(1); redesignated former Paragraphs B(5) through B(7) as Paragraphs C(2) through C(4); redesignated former Subsections C and D as Subsections D and E; added Subsection F; and made minor stylistic changes.

28-11B-2. Commission for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons; powers and duties.

The commission for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons shall:

A. supervise the activities of the executive director of the commission;

B. identify the needs of the deaf and hard-of-hearing population of New Mexico;

C. provide educational assistance to state agencies and, specifically, ensure agency compliance with regulations pertaining to deafness promulgated pursuant to the federal Americans with Disabilities Act;

D. coordinate with state agencies providing services for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons;

E. advocate for equal access to services and opportunities for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons;

F. provide continuing education services to deaf and hard-of-hearing persons;

G. assist in the establishment of a statewide interpreter referral service;

H. review and coordinate certification and evaluation processes for interpreters;

I. convene a minimum of four times each year in varying locations throughout the state; and

J. submit reports on its work for the preceding year to the governor and the legislature at least forty-five days prior to each regular legislative session.

Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children's Educational Bill of Rights

Sec.
28-11C-1. Short title.
28-11C-2. Findings and purpose.
28-11C-3. Educational rights of deaf and hard-of-hearing children; additional duty of public education department.

28-11C-1. Short title.

This act [28-11C-1 to 28-11C-3 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children's Educational Bill of Rights".

History: Laws 2004, ch. 107, § 1 and Laws 2004, ch. 111, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 107 and Laws 2004, ch. 111 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, were effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

Compiler's notes. — Laws 2004, ch. 107, § 1 and Laws 2004, ch. 111, § 1 enacted identical new sections of law. Both were compiled as section 28-11C-1 NMSA 1978.

28-11C-2. Findings and purpose.

A. The legislature finds that:

(1) hearing loss affects the most basic human need, communication. Without quality communication a child is isolated from other human beings and from the exchange of knowledge essential for educational growth and, therefore, cannot develop the skills required to become a productive, capable adult and a fully participatory member of society;

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(2) children with hearing loss have the same innate capabilities as any other children. They communicate in a wide variety of manual and spoken modes, languages and systems. Some use aural/oral modes of communication, while others use a combination of aural/oral and manual communication. Many use American sign language, which is a formal language, as well as the preferred everyday language of the deaf community. Obviously, all children need to develop English proficiency; and

(3) it is, therefore, critical that all New Mexicans work toward ensuring that:

(a) deaf and hard-of-hearing children, like all children, have quality, ongoing and fluid communication, both in and out of the classroom;

(b) deaf and hard-of-hearing children be placed in the least restrictive educational environment and receive services based on their unique communication, language and educational needs, consistent with 20 U.S.C. Section 1414(d)(3)(B)(iv) of the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act;

(c) deaf and hard-of-hearing children be given an education in which teachers and related service providers and assessors understand the unique nature of deafness, are specifically trained to work with hard-of-hearing and deaf pupils and can communicate spontaneously and fluidly with these children;

(d) deaf and hard-of-hearing children, like all children, have the benefit of an education in which there are a sufficient number of age-appropriate peers and adults with whom they can interact and communicate in a spontaneous and fluid way;

(e) deaf and hard-of-hearing children receive an education in which they are exposed to deaf and hard-of-hearing role models;

(f) deaf and hard-of-hearing children, like all children, have direct and appropriate access to all components of the educational process, including recess, lunch and extracurricular, social and athletic activities;

(g) deaf and hard-of-hearing children, like all children, be provided with programs in which transition planning, as required under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, focuses on their unique vocational needs; and

(h) families of children who are deaf or hard-of-hearing receive accurate, balanced and complete information regarding their child's educational and communication needs and the available programmatic, placement and resource options, as well as access to support services and advocacy resources from public and private agencies, departments and all other institutions and resources knowledgeable about hearing loss and the needs of children who are deaf or hard-of-hearing.

B. Given the central importance of communication to all human beings, the purpose of the Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children's Educational Bill of Rights is to encourage the development of a communication-driven and language-driven educational delivery system in New Mexico for children who are deaf or hard-of-hearing.

History: Laws 2004, ch. 107, § 2 and Laws 2004, ch. 111, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2004, ch. 107 and Laws 2004, ch. 111 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, were effective May 19, 2004, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

Compiler's notes. — Laws 2004, ch. 107, § 2 and Laws 2004, ch. 111, § 2 enacted identical new sections of law. Both were compiled as section 28-11C-2 NMSA 1978.

28-11C-3. Educational rights of deaf and hard-of-hearing children; additional duty of public education department.

A. The state of New Mexico recognizes the unique communication needs of children who are deaf or hard-of-hearing and encourages the development of specific recommendations by all state agencies, institutions and political subdivisions concerned with the early intervention, early childhood and kindergarten through twelfth grade education of students who are deaf or hard-of-hearing, including the public education department, the New Mexico school for the deaf and the department of health, to ensure that:

(1) these children have what every other child takes for granted, including an educational environment in which their language and communication needs are fully addressed and developed and in which they have early, ongoing and quality access to planned and incidental communication opportunities; and

(2) the recommendations, consistent with the findings and purpose of the Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children's Educational Bill of Rights, be completed expeditiously.

B. Since 20 U.S.C. Section 1414(d)(3)(B)(iv) of the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act requires that the individual education plan team consider the unique communication needs of children who are deaf or hard-of-hearing, the public education department shall develop a model "communication consideration for students who are deaf or hard-of-hearing", to become part of the individual education plan process. The model shall be disseminated to all local school districts, with training to be provided as determined by the department.

28-13A-1. Special recreation and museum privileges.

28-13A-1. Special recreation and museum privileges.

A. On the federally designated legal holiday known as "Veterans' Day", any New Mexico resident, who provides satisfactory proof that the resident is currently serving or has served in the armed forces of the United States, and the resident's spouse and dependent children, shall be entitled to:

(1) free use of any state park or recreation area operated by the state parks division of the energy, minerals and natural resources department, including the waiving of all admittance, camping, permit or other user fees or charges; and

(2) free general admission to any state museum or historic site.

B. The governing boards of state museums and historic sites shall waive general museum and historic site admission fees for fifty percent or more disabled veterans residing in the state. Proof of disability satisfactory to the governing boards of the state museums and historic sites is required to obtain the privileges pursuant to this subsection.

28-14-1. Use of funds for children of deceased New Mexico military personnel and state policemen.

A. The funds set aside under the provisions of Sections 28-14-1 through 28-14-4 NMSA 1978 shall be used for the sole purposes of providing for matricular fees, board and room rent and books and supplies for the use and benefit of the children, not under sixteen and not over twenty-six years of age, of:

(1) those persons who were residents of New Mexico at the time of entry into military service and who entered the military service of the United States during World War I or II, or during any action in which the military forces of the United States are engaged in armed conflict, and who were killed in action or died of other cause during the conflict or as a result of such military service;

(2) deceased members of the New Mexico national guard who were killed while on active duty in the service of the state after having been called to active duty by the governor; and

(3) deceased members of the New Mexico state police who were killed while on active duty in the service of the state.

B. The benefits enumerated in Subsection A of this section shall further be restricted to children who are attending or who may attend a state educational or training institution of a secondary or college grade. Children shall be selected under the provisions of Section 28-14-3 NMSA 1978 and shall be admitted to state institutions of secondary or college grade free of tuition.

ANNOTATIONS

Generally. — A child may be granted a scholarship or other aid covering periods of more than one year. Further, there is no objection to granting these benefits to two or more children of the same deceased veteran. The only basis for determining who shall receive the benefits is "need and merit" as determined by the state board of education. 1955-56 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 55-6287.

28-14-2. Amounts payable to institutions; eligibility.

The amounts due to any educational or training institution pursuant to Chapter 28, Article 14 NMSA 1978 shall be payable to those institutions on vouchers signed by the secretary of veterans' services or the secretary's authorized representative. The veterans' services department shall determine the eligibility of children making application for the benefits provided in Chapter 28, Article 14 NMSA 1978 and shall satisfy itself of the attendance of the children and of the accuracy of charges submitted to the department. No staff of the department shall receive any compensation for this service except as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 to 10-8-8 NMSA 1978].

History: 1941 Comp., § 66-1702, enacted by Laws 1949, ch. 170, § 2; 1953 Comp., § 74-4-2; Laws 1975, ch. 29, § 2; 2004, ch. 19, § 26.

The 2004 amendment, effective May 19, 2004, added "Chapter 28, Article 14 NMSA 1978" in two places and changed "director of veterans' affairs" to "secretary of veterans' services".

28-14-3. Selection by veterans' services department.

Children who are to receive the educational benefits provided under Section 28-14-1 NMSA 1978 shall be selected by the veterans' services department on the basis of need and merit. Nominations shall be made by:

A. the department, for children of deceased veterans;

B. the adjutant general, for children of deceased national guard of New Mexico members; and

C. the New Mexico state police board, for children of deceased New Mexico state police members.

History: 1941 Comp., § 66-1703, enacted by Laws 1949, ch. 170, § 3; 1953 Comp., § 74-4-3; Laws 1973, ch. 203, § 2; 1975, ch. 29, § 3; 1975, ch. 89, § 2; 2004, ch. 19, § 27.

The 2004 amendment, effective May 19, 2004, changed "veterans' service commission" to "veterans' services department".

Sec.
28-15-1. Reemployment of persons in armed forces.
28-15-2. Status on reinstatement; restriction on discharge.
28-15-3. Enforcement in district court; procedure.

28-15-1. Reemployment of persons in armed forces.

Any person who, after having given advance written or verbal notice of an obligation or intention to perform service in the uniformed services to the person's employer, unless notice is precluded by military necessity or is otherwise impossible or unreasonable, since July 1, 1940, has left or leaves a position the person has held, other than a temporary position, in the employ of any employer to enter the armed forces of the United States, an organized reserve or the national guard of this state or any other state or territory of the United States and who serves on active duty and is honorably discharged or released from active duty to complete the person's remaining service in a reserve component or is entitled to a certificate of service, or who terminates service without dishonor, has not had a cumulative period of absence in excess of five years by reason of service in the uniformed services and is still qualified to perform the duties of that position and makes application for reemployment within ninety days after the person is relieved from training and service, or from hospitalization and convalescence continuing after discharge for a period of not more than two years, shall be reemployed as follows:

A. if the person's position was in the employ of a private employer, the employer shall restore the person to that position or to a position of like seniority, status and pay unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so; or

B. if the person's position was in the employ of the state or any political subdivision thereof, the person shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of the Personnel Act [Chapter 10, Article 9 NMSA 1978] as well as all residency requirements or other provisions of law and shall be restored to that position or to a position of like seniority, status and pay.

History: Laws 1941, ch. 10, § 1; 1941 Comp., § 57-701; Laws 1945, ch. 24, § 1; 1953 Comp., § 74-5-1; Laws 1969, ch. 260, § 1; 1971, ch. 163, § 1; 2017, ch. 26, § 2.

The 2017 amendment, effective July 1, 2017, extended employment rights to persons who are members of the military active or reserve components outside of the State of New Mexico, but have civilian employment within the State of New Mexico, and added gender neutral language; in the introductory paragraph, added "after having given advance written or verbal notice of an obligation or intention to perform service in the uniformed services to the person's employer, unless notice is precluded by military necessity or is otherwise impossible or unreasonable", after armed forces of the United States", deleted "national guard or" and added "an", after "organized reserve", added "or the national guard of this state or any other state or territory of the United States", after "who terminates", deleted "his", after "without dishonor", deleted "if an officer", added "has not had a cumulative period of absence in excess of five years by reason of service in the uniformed services", after "perform the duties of", deleted "such" and added "that", after "hospitalization", added "and convalescence", and after "not more than", deleted "one year" and added "two years"; in Subsection A, after the next occurrence of "to", deleted "such" and added "that"; and in Subsection B, after "the state", deleted "of New Mexico", and after "restored to", deleted "such" and added "that".

ANNOTATIONS

Sovereign immunity barred USERRA claim against the state. — Article I, Section 8, Clause 11 of the United States Constitution, known as the war powers clause, does not authorize congress to subject the state to private suits for damages in state courts pursuant to the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act, 38 U.S.C. §§ 4301 to 4335, absent the state's consent and the Legislature has not waived the state's constitutional immunity to private USERRA suits for damages. Ramirez v. State ex rel. CYFD, 2014-NMCA-057, rev'd by 2016-NMSC-016.

Where plaintiff, who was a member of the New Mexico national guard, was employed by the department; plaintiff was deployed to Iraq; upon plaintiff's return from active duty, plaintiff was reemployed by the department in plaintiff's previous position; plaintiff's working relations with plaintiff's supervisors deteriorated and plaintiff's employment was terminated; and filed a suit under Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act, 38 U.S.C. §§ 4301 to 4335, alleging that the department discriminated against plaintiff and terminated plaintiff because of plaintiff's military service, plaintiff's claim was barred by state sovereign immunity. Ramirez v. State ex rel. CYFD, 2014-NMCA-057, rev'd by 2016-NMSC-016.

Generally. — An "employee," who leaves a position to enter the armed forces of the United States, may remain in the service indefinitely and retain his reemployment rights. No distinction is made between volunteers and draftees under the Veterans' Reemployment Act (Sections 28-15-1 to 28-15-3 NMSA 1978). No distinction is drawn between officers and enlisted personnel under the Veterans' Reemployment Act. 1959-60 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 59-18.

Scope of benefits. — Volunteers as well as draftees are entitled to the benefits of this act (Sections 28-15-1 to 28-15-3 NMSA 1978). 1941-42 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 42-4104.

Legislative intent. — The legislative policy indicated by this act (Sections 28-15-1 to 28-15-3 NMSA 1978) is to restore the veteran to his old position whenever possible, and if not, to a position of like seniority, status and pay. 1945-46 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 46-4832.

Intent regarding Personnel Act. — The language of Subsection B makes it clear that the legislature does not intend for returning veterans seeking reemployment with the state to meet the standards of the Personnel Act. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-108.

Officers of state not affected. — This act (28-15-1 to 28-15-3 NMSA 1978) does not apply to officers of the state of New Mexico or its subdivisions, but only to employees. 1945-46 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 46-4882.

Time between leaving employment and induction. — An employee who left his employment within a reasonable time before induction without obtaining other employment in the meantime is entitled to reemployment. 1945-46 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 45-4829.

Effect of return of veteran. — Since contracts are entered into subject to existing statutes, where a teacher is employed to fill a vacancy caused by the absence of a person in the armed forces, his contract is terminated when the veteran returns to his former position. 1945-46 Op. Att'y Gen. Nos. 45-4813, 45-4818.

Seven-year absence. — A veteran who was employed within the state of New Mexico as a locomotive fireman and locomotive engineer on January 27, 1951, at which time he was called to active service with the United States Air Force, may upon his discharge from military service on January 31, 1958 secure reemployment under Sections 28-15-1 to 28-15-3 NMSA 1978. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 58-209.

Salary increases. — When a veteran returns to his former position, he is entitled to proportionate salary increases and other benefits, if any, to which other employees who continued in service have become entitled. 1945-46 Op. Att'y Gen. Nos. 46-4815, 46-4832.

Service credit for retirement purposes. — Section 10-11-6A(1) NMSA 1978 must be interpreted in a manner consistent with the federal and state laws on veteran reemployment rights. If the veteran otherwise qualifies for reemployment and applies within 90 days of the termination of his active duty period, he still may acquire service credit for retirement purposes even though the employer does not actually rehire him until after the ninetieth day. 1988 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 88-24.

Employee more rights than probationer. — If a person contemplated by Subsection B has gained the status of an "employee" as that term is defined by Section 10-9-3 NMSA 1978 and the personnel board rules, he will have additional rights under the state personnel board rules that a "probationer" would not. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-108.

28-15-2. [Status on reinstatement; restriction on discharge.]

Any person who is restored to a position in accordance with the provisions hereof shall be considered as having been on furlough or leave of absence during his services in the armed forces of the United States, and shall be restored without loss of seniority, and shall be entitled to participate in insurance or other benefits offered by the employer pursuant to established rules and practices relating to employees on furlough or leave of absence in effect with the employer at the time such person entered the armed forces of the United States, and shall not be discharged from such position without cause within one year after such restoration.

ANNOTATIONS

Salary increases and benefits. — When a veteran returns to his former position, he is entitled to proportionate salary increases and other benefits, if any, to which other employees who continued in service have become entitled. 1945-46 Op. Att'y Gen. Nos. 46-4815, 46-4832.

28-15-3. [Enforcement in district court; procedure.]

In case any person acting either in a public or private capacity fails or refuses to comply with the provisions hereof the district court of the district in which such person maintains a place of business (if such person is a private employer), or in which such person is a public official, shall have power, upon the filing of a motion, petition or other appropriate pleading by the person entitled to the benefits of such provisions, to specifically require such employer or public officials to comply with such provisions, and, as an incident thereto, to compensate such person for any loss of wages or benefits suffered by reasons of such employer's or official's unlawful action. The court shall order a speedy hearing in any such case, and shall advance it on the calendar. Upon application to the district attorney for the pertinent district by any person claiming to be entitled to the benefits

(1) the ability and opportunity to:

(a) communicate and make personal decisions;

(b) communicate choices and exercise control over the type and intensity of services, supports and other assistance that an individual receives; and

(c) participate in, and contribute to, an individual's community;

(2) the authority to control resources to obtain needed services, supports and other assistance; and

(3) support, including financial support, to advocate for oneself and others, develop leadership skills through training in self-advocacy, participate in coalitions, educate policymakers and play a role in the development of public policies that affect individuals with developmental disabilities; and

K. "service provider" means a nonprofit corporation, tribal government or tribal organization, unit of local government or other organization that has entered into a contract or provider agreement with the department for the purpose of providing developmental disabilities support and services.

The 2021 amendment, effective June 18, 2021, defined "comprehensive review and analysis" and "council", and revised the definitions of certain terms, as used in the Developmental Disabilities Act; in Subsection B, Paragraph B(2), after "person", added "with a developmental disability"; added new Subsections C and D and redesignated former Subsections C through G as Subsections E through I, respectively; and added Subsection J and redesignated former Subsection H as Subsection K.

28-16A-4. Developmental disabilities council; creation; membership; terms.

A. The "developmental disabilities council" is created in accordance with the federal Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act. The council shall be an adjunct agency as provided in the Executive Reorganization Act [9-1-1 to 9-1-10 NMSA 1978].

B. The council shall consist of no fewer than twenty-six members, at least sixty percent of whom shall be:

(1) persons with developmental disabilities;

(2) parents or legal guardians of children with developmental disabilities; or

(3) immediate relatives or guardians of adults with mentally impairing developmental disabilities who cannot advocate for themselves.

C. Of the sixty percent of members described in Subsection B of this section, one-third shall be persons with developmental disabilities, one-third shall be members described in Paragraphs (2) and (3) of Subsection B of this section and one-third shall be a combination of members described in Subsection B of this section. At least one member described in Subsection B of this section shall be an immediate relative or guardian of a person who resides or previously resided in an institution or shall be a person with a developmental disability who resides or previously resided in an institution. No member of the council shall be an employee, or someone who manages employees, of a state agency that receives funds to provide developmental disabilities supports and services.

D. The council shall also include:

(1) the secretary of health, or the secretary's designee;

(2) the secretary of human services, or the secretary's designee;

(3) the secretary of children, youth and families, or the secretary's designee;

(4) the secretary of early childhood education and care, or the secretary's designee;

(5) the secretary of aging and long-term services, or the secretary's designee;

(6) the secretary of public education, or the secretary's designee;

(7) the director of the vocational rehabilitation division of the public education department, or the director's designee;

(8) the director of the state protection and advocacy system established pursuant to the federal Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1990, or the director's designee;

(9) the director of an entity within a state institution of higher education designated as a university center for excellence in developmental disabilities education, research and service; and

(10) at all times, representatives of local and nongovernmental agencies and private nonprofit groups concerned with services for persons with developmental disabilities in New Mexico.

E. The governor shall select the members of the council for appointment pursuant to Subsection B and Paragraphs (9) and (10) of Subsection D of this section after soliciting recommendations from organizations representing a broad range of persons with developmental disabilities and other persons interested in persons with developmental disabilities. The council may, at the initiative of the council or at the request of the governor, coordinate council and public input to the governor regarding all recommendations.

F. The membership of the council shall be geographically representative of the state and reflect the diversity of the state with respect to race and ethnicity.

G. Members, except for ex-officio members, shall be appointed by the governor for terms of three years.

H. The governor shall provide for rotation of the membership of the council. These provisions shall allow members to continue to serve on the council until those members' successors are appointed and qualified.

I. The council shall notify the governor regarding membership requirements of the council and shall notify the governor when vacancies on the council remain unfilled for a significant period of time.

J. Council members shall recuse themselves from any discussion of grants or contracts for which such members' departments, agencies or programs are grantees, contractors or applicants. The council shall ensure that no council member casts a vote on any matter that would provide direct financial benefit to the member or otherwise give the appearance of a conflict of interest.

number and composition of the developmental disabilities council; in the section heading, after "disabilities", deleted "planning"; in Subsection A, after "developmental disabilities", deleted "planning", and deleted "developmental disabilities planning"; added new Subsections B through F and redesignated former Subsection C as Subsection G; and added new Subsections H through J.

28-16A-5. Powers and duties.

A. The council shall:

(1) provide statewide advocacy for persons with developmental disabilities;

(2) develop and submit to the federal government the five-year plan for council activities and any amendments to the plan;

(3) to the maximum extent feasible, review and comment on all state plans that relate to programs affecting persons with developmental disabilities;

(4) submit to the secretary of the United States department of health and human services, through the office of the governor, periodic reports that the secretary may request;

(5) advise the governor and the legislature about the needs of persons with developmental disabilities;

(6) hold all council meetings with a video conference option;

(7) carry out any other activities authorized or required by the provisions of the federal Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 2000; and

(8) oversee the office of the state special education ombud.

B. The council is authorized to:

(1) award grants and enter into contracts to carry out its duties;

(2) seek funding from sources other than the state;

(3) create and support regional county or local advisory councils;

(4) provide training to persons with developmental disabilities, their families and providers of support and services through traineeships, sponsoring training opportunities and by other means determined appropriate by the council; and

(5) promulgate rules in accordance with the State Rules Act [Chapter 14, Article 4 NMSA 1978] to carry out the provisions of the Special Education Ombud Act [28-16C-1 to 28-16C-11 NMSA 1978].

Cross references. — For the federal Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act, see 42 U.S.C. § 6000 et seq.

2021 Multiple Amendments. — Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 12 and Laws 2021, ch. 61, § 5, both effective June 18, 2021, enacted different amendments to this section that can be reconciled. Pursuant to 12-1-8 NMSA 1978, Laws 2021, ch. 61, § 5, as the last act signed by the governor, is set out above and incorporates both amendments. The amendments enacted by Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 12 and Laws 2021, ch. 61, § 5 are described below. To view the session laws in their entirety, see the 2021 session laws on NMOneSource.com.

The nature of the difference between the amendments is that Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 12, required the developmental disabilities planning council to oversee the office of the state special education ombud, and to promulgate rules in accordance with the State Rules Act to carry out the provisions of the Special Education Ombud Act, and Laws 2021, ch. 61, § 5, revised the powers and duties of the developmental disabilities council.

Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 12, effective June 18, 2021, required the developmental disabilities planning council to oversee the office of the state special education ombud, and to promulgate rules in accordance with the State Rules Act to carry out the provisions of the Special Education Ombud Act; in Subsection A, added Paragraph A(9); and in Subsection B, added Paragraph B(5).

Laws 2021, ch. 61, § 5, effective June 18, 2021, revised the powers and duties of the developmental disabilities council; in Subsection A, in the introductory clause, after "The", deleted "developmental disabilities planning", deleted Paragraph A(1) and redesignated former Paragraph A(2) as Paragraph A(1), in Paragraph A(1), after "advocacy", deleted "systems", deleted former Paragraphs A(3) and A(4), added a new Paragraph A(2) and redesignated former Paragraphs A(5) through A(7) as Paragraphs A(3) through A(5), respectively, added a new Paragraph A(6) and redesignated former Paragraph A(8) as Paragraph A(7), in Paragraph A(7), after "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act", added "of 2000"; and in Subsection B, in the introductory clause, after "The", deleted "developmental disabilities planning", and in Paragraph B(4), after "appropriate by the", deleted "developmental disabilities planning".

28-16A-6. Eligibility.

A. For purposes of eligibility for support and services, "developmental disability" means a severe chronic disability of a person, which disability:

28-16A-7. Comprehensive review and analysis.

A. The council shall conduct a comprehensive review and analysis of the extent to which services, supports and other assistance are available to individuals with developmental disabilities and their families and the extent of unmet need for services, supports and all other assistance for those individuals and their families in the state. The results of the comprehensive review and analysis shall include:

(1) the number of individuals with developmental disabilities residing in New Mexico;

(2) the range and degree of severity of the disabilities of individuals with developmental disabilities in New Mexico; and

(3) such other information and analysis required under federal law.

B. The findings of the comprehensive review and analysis shall be utilized in the development of the council's five-year plan.

C. The council shall:

(1) repeat the comprehensive review and analysis at least every five years, with a summary of the findings; and

28-16A-13. Authorization for providing support and services for persons with developmental disabilities.

A. Subject to the availability of appropriations provided expressly for this purpose, the department may:

(1) acquire, provide or coordinate support and services for persons with developmental disabilities;

(2) enter into contracts and provider agreements with agencies and persons capable of providing support and services to persons with developmental disabilities; and

(3) establish advisory councils and task forces as necessary to guide the development and review of support and services to persons with developmental disabilities.

B. Support and services shall be provided based on individual support and service plans developed by an interdisciplinary team. The team is responsible for collectively evaluating a child's or adult's needs and developing an individual support and service plan to meet the needs; provided that the early childhood education and care department shall be responsible for the team that is evaluating a child for family, infant, toddler program services.

C. The department or, for children eligible for family, infant, toddler program services, the early childhood education and care department shall:

(1) solicit the involvement of consumers, providers, parents, professional organizations and other governmental organizations prior to the adoption or revision of rules concerning the provision of support, services, standards or funding systems. Participants shall be selected in a manner that reflects geographical, cultural, organizational and professional representation across the state;

(2) develop rules, including policies and procedures that, to the extent possible, will promote uniformity in reimbursement and quality assurance systems regardless of the source of funding; and

(3) convene and maintain a family, infant, toddler interagency coordinating council and a statewide adult support and services task force that shall, at a minimum, address quality assurance.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 50, § 13; 2021, ch. 61, § 13; 2022, ch. 30, § 11.

The 2022 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, provided that the early childhood education and care department is responsible for the team that evaluates and provides services for children eligible for family, infant, toddler program services; in Subsection B, added "provided that the early childhood education and care department shall be responsible for the team that is evaluating a child for family, infant, toddler program services"; and in Subsection C, after "The department", added "or, for children eligible for family, infant, toddler program services, the early childhood education and care department".

C. The department shall adopt regulations that ensure compliance with recognized professional standards for support and services.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 50, § 14.

28-16A-15. Admission, transfer, withdrawal and discharge of persons receiving support and services purchased or provided by the department.

A. In cooperation with other state agencies, the department shall adopt requirements for admission, transfer, withdrawal and discharge of persons receiving support and services funded in whole or in part by state funds.

B. The department shall maintain a centralized registry of persons who are requesting or receiving support and services and a centralized referral system that promotes the delivery of support and services within the person's home community and reflects the person's informed selection and choice of a support or service provider. This centralized referral system shall determine eligibility based on a comprehensive assessment and shall prioritize individuals waiting to access publicly funded developmental disability support and services.

C. The centralized referral system shall maintain information regarding the needs of persons not receiving services and shall report the information annually to the legislature. The department shall have the authority to provide assessments and case management services to persons applying for and receiving publicly funded support and services necessary to implement the provisions of this section.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 50, § 15.

28-16A-16. Determination of rates for payment for support and services.

A. The department shall develop, implement and maintain a provider reimbursement system based on the level of support and services required by a person with a developmental disability.

B. If the approved funding from the legislature does not permit the implementation of a reimbursement system using the considerations provided for in this section, the department shall develop and implement a service reduction plan.

C. The department shall report to the legislature and the governor the impact of any service reduction plans and the steps that will be taken to reinstate those services.

D. The department shall report annually to the legislature and the governor an estimate of the costs of maintaining support and services for persons with developmental disabilities being served, including the effects of changes in the costs of providing support and services, an estimate of the costs of providing support and services to persons that are eligible for service but not receiving services, and the request of the department for funding of services.

E. Contractors shall be required to submit records of support and services delivered as determined by the department, subject to monitoring by the department.

F. Contingent upon appropriations, the department shall conduct an independent biannual cost study for the purpose of establishing payment rates. The results of this study shall be submitted to the legislature.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 50, § 16.

28-16A-17. Independent status of service providers.

Except as otherwise provided, each service provider shall be considered to be an independent contractor and not an entity of state government.

28-16A-18. Developmental disabilities early childhood evaluation system.

The state shall have a timely, comprehensive, multidisciplinary system for evaluating infants, toddlers and preschool-age children suspected of having developmental delays. Diagnostic evaluations for infants and toddlers shall address family service needs and shall include training capabilities to educate community providers and parents in the understanding and application of the evaluations. This diagnostic evaluation system shall be jointly provided through a coordinated system by the children's medical services bureau of the public health division or the developmental disabilities supports division of the department, the early childhood education and care department, the university of New Mexico's center for development and disability and the public education department.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 50, § 18; 2021, ch. 61, § 14; 2022, ch. 30, § 12.

The 2022 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, included the early childhood education and care department with other agencies responsible for evaluating infants, toddlers and preschool-age children suspected of having developmental delays; and after "the developmental disabilities supports division of the department", added "the early childhood education and care department".

The 2021 amendment, effective June 18, 2021, in the third sentence, after "developmental disabilities", added "supports", after "the university of New Mexico's", deleted "developmental disabilities team" and added "center for developmental and disability", after "and the", deleted "state department of", and after "public education", added "department".

28-16A-19. Information and referral task force creation.

The "information and referral task force" is created in the council to develop a statewide, comprehensive "211" information and referral plan for use as a telephone dialing code for access to health and human services. ## 28-16C-2. Definitions.

As used in the Special Education Ombud Act:

A. "council" means the developmental disabilities planning council;

B. "office" means the office of the state special education ombud;

C. "parent" includes a legal guardian or custodian who has custody and control of a student or an individual who has legal authority to make educational decisions on behalf of the student;

D. "state ombud" means the state special education ombud; and

E. "student" means a public school student receiving or seeking special education services.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-3. Creation of the office of the state special education ombud; general duties of the office.

A. The "office of the state special education ombud" is created within the council.

B. The council shall appoint the "state special education ombud", who shall head the office and supervise the ombuds and other staff of the office. The state ombud may contract for services to assist the office in conducting its duties and may use the services of volunteers.

C. The state ombud shall:

(1) identify, investigate and resolve concerns pertaining to special education services that are filed with the office by parents;

(2) assist students and parents in protecting the educational rights of students, which may include assisting students and parents in individualized education plan meetings or other proceedings pursuant to the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act;

(3) inform students and parents about special education resources in their community;

(4) ensure that students and parents have regular and timely access to the services provided through the office and that students and parents receive timely responses from representatives of the office;

(5) identify any patterns of concerns that emerge regarding special education services and educational rights and recommend strategies for improvement to the public education department;

(6) collaborate with the public education department to ensure that all dispute resolution processes are available to students and parents, including the special education parent liaison, mediation, facilitated individualized education program meetings, state complaint and investigations and due process hearings;

(7) collaborate with the parent training information centers and protection and advocacy agencies within the state to identify and report systemic special education issues to the public education department;

(8) ensure that office staff, contractors and volunteers are trained in:

(a) federal, state and local laws, rules and policies with respect to special education in the state;

(b) investigative techniques;

(c) dispute resolution; and

(d) such other matters as the office deems appropriate;

(9) develop procedures for the certification of ombuds. An employee or contractor shall not investigate a concern filed with the office unless that person is certified by the office;

(10) analyze, comment on and monitor the development and implementation of federal and state laws, rules and other governmental policies and actions that pertain to the educational rights of students with respect to the adequacy of special education services in the state;

(11) recommend changes to laws, rules, policies and actions pertaining to the special educational rights of students as the office determines to be appropriate;

(12) facilitate public comment on proposed laws, rules, policies and actions; and

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(13) provide information to public and private agencies, legislators and other persons regarding the problems and concerns of special education services and make recommendations related to those problems and concerns.

28-16C-4. Annual report; contents.

No later than December 1 of each year, the office shall prepare a report that includes:

A. actions taken by the office in the year for which the report is prepared;

B. special education concerns identified by or on behalf of students and parents, resolution of the concerns and the effectiveness of the resolution processes;

C. recommendations for improving the quality of special education services provided to students and protecting the educational rights of students; and

D. policy, regulatory and legislative recommendations to solve identified concerns related to special education, to improve processes of resolutions of concerns, to improve the quality of services provided to students, to protect the educational rights of students and to remove barriers to education and educational services.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 4.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-5. Investigation and resolution of special education concerns.

The office shall identify, investigate and seek to resolve concerns related to special education communicated by or on behalf of students and parents. If the office does not address a concern, the office shall notify the concerned person of the decision not to address the concern and the reasons for the decision.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 5.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-6. Access to student educational records.

Upon request and with consent from the student or the student's parent, the office shall have access to the student's educational records from the public education department, a school district or a public school as necessary to carry out the office's responsibilities.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 6.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-7. Confidentiality of information.

A. All files and records maintained by the office that pertain to students are confidential and not subject to the provisions of the Inspection of Public Records Act [Chapter 14, Article 2 NMSA 1978]. The state ombud shall not disclose the identity of a concerned person or student about whom the office maintains files or records unless:

(1) the concerned person, student or parent consents in writing to the disclosure;

(2) the concerned person, student or parent gives oral consent that is documented immediately in writing by a representative of the office. If the student is unable to give oral consent, the student may give consent in any way that the student is able to, and the consent shall also be documented immediately in writing by a representative of the office; or

(3) disclosure is ordered by a court.

B. The annual report required pursuant to Section 4 [28-16C-4 NMSA 1978] of the Special Education Ombud Act may be based on confidential information and may be published or furnished to the public, but the report shall not identify individual students directly or indirectly nor violate the privileged or confidential nature of the relationship and communications between the student and the office.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 7.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-8. Conflict of interest.

The council shall ensure that:

A. a person or an immediate family member of that person involved in the designation of an ombud does not have a conflict of interest;

B. an employee or a contractor of the office or an immediate family member of the employee or contractor does not have a conflict of interest; and

C. an ombud:

(1) does not have an ownership or investment interest, represented by equity, debt or other financial relationship, in a public school providing special education services;

(2) is not employed by, or participating in the management of, a public school providing special education services; and

(3) does not receive, or have the right to receive, directly or indirectly, remuneration in cash or in kind under a compensation arrangement with a public school providing special education services.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 8.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-9. Posting and distribution of ombud information.

Every public school providing special education services shall post in a conspicuous location in the public school a notice regarding the office that contains a brief description of the services provided by the office and the name, address and phone number of the office and shall post it online on the public school's website, if applicable. The public school providing special education services shall distribute information regarding the state ombud at the beginning of every school year, in addition to providing the information as part of the annual individual education plan process prior to scheduling the first individual education plan meeting of each school year. The form of the notice shall be approved by the office.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 9.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-10. Availability of legal counsel to the office.

The council shall ensure that adequate legal counsel is available and is able, without conflict of interest, to:

A. provide advice and consultation to the office needed to protect the educational rights of students; and

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

B. assist the office and contractors in the performance of the official duties of the state ombud and representatives.

History: Laws 2021, ch. 53, § 10.
Effective dates. — Laws 2021, ch. 53 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 18, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

28-16C-11. Interference with the office and retaliation prohibited; potential actions for noncompliance.

A. A person shall not willfully interfere with the lawful actions of the office.

B. A person shall not institute discriminatory, disciplinary or retaliatory action against any student or parent for filing a concern with, providing information to or otherwise cooperating with the office.

C. If public school personnel or a contractor or volunteer of a school district or charter school fails to comply with the provisions of the Special Education Ombud Act:

(1) the council shall report the noncompliance to the public education department;

(2) the office shall collaborate with the public education department to access processes and resources to address special education services concerns; and

Liability of nursing home for violating statutory duty to notify third party concerning patient's medical condition, 46 A.L.R.5th 821.

28-17-2. Purpose.

The legislature recognizes that the state agency on aging [aging and long-term services department] pursuant to a grant from the federal government has established an office of the state long-term care ombudsman. The legislature declares that it is the public policy of this state to encourage community contact and involvement with patients, residents and clients of long-term care facilities. The legislature finds that in order to comply with the federal Older Americans Act and to effectively assist patients, residents and clients of long-term care facilities in the assertion of their civil and human rights, the structure, powers and duties of the office of the state long-term care ombudsman shall be specifically defined.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 2.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

Laws 2004, ch. 23, § 13 provided that all references to the "state agency on aging" be deemed references to the "aging and long-term services department".

Cross references. — For the federal Older Americans Act, see 42 U.S.C. § 3001 et seq.

(1) identify, investigate and resolve complaints that are made by, or on behalf of, residents and that relate to action, inaction or decisions that may adversely affect the health, safety, welfare or rights of the residents, including the welfare and rights of the residents with respect to the appointment and activities of guardians and representative payees, of:

(a) providers, or representatives of providers, of long-term care services;

(b) public agencies; or

(c) health and social service agencies;

(2) provide services to assist the residents in protecting the health, safety, welfare and rights of the residents;

(3) inform the residents about means of obtaining services;

(4) ensure that the residents have regular and timely access to the services provided through the office and that the residents and complainants receive timely responses from representatives of the office;

(5) represent the interests of the residents before governmental agencies and seek administrative, legal and other remedies on behalf of residents to protect the health, safety, welfare and rights of the residents;

(6) provide administrative and technical assistance to designated regional and local ombudsman programs and assist the programs in participating in the program;

(7) analyze, comment on and monitor the development and implementation of federal, state and local laws, regulations and other governmental policies and actions that pertain to the health, safety, welfare and rights of the residents, with respect to the adequacy of long-term care facilities and services in the state and recommend any changes in such laws, regulations, policies and actions as the office determines to be appropriate; and facilitate public comment on the laws, regulations, policies and actions;

(8) provide for training representatives of the office, promote the development of citizen organizations to participate in the program and provide technical support for the development of resident and family councils to protect the well-being and rights of residents;

(9) prepare an annual report:

(a) describing the activities carried out by the office in the year for which the report is prepared;

(b) containing and analyzing the data collected;

(c) evaluating the problems experienced by, and the complaints made by or on behalf of, residents;

(d) containing recommendations for improving quality of the care and life of the residents, and protecting the health, safety, welfare and rights of the residents;

(e) analyzing the success of the program, including success in providing services to residents of board and care facilities and other similar adult care facilities;

(f) identifying barriers that prevent the optimal operation of the program; and

(g) providing policy, regulatory and legislative recommendations to solve identified problems, to resolve complaints, to improve the quality of care and life of residents, to protect the health, safety, welfare and rights of residents and to remove the barriers;

(10) coordinate ombudsman services with the protection and advocacy systems for individuals with developmental disabilities and mental illness;

(11) provide such information as the office determines to be necessary to public and private agencies, legislators and other persons regarding the problems and concerns of older individuals residing in long-term care facilities; and recommendations related to the problems and concerns; and

(12) carry out such other activities as the state ombudsman determines to be appropriate.

28-17-5. Rule-making authority of director.

The director shall adopt and promulgate such reasonable rules and regulations as are deemed necessary to carry out the provisions of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Act. Unless otherwise provided by statute, no regulation affecting any person or agency outside the office shall be adopted, amended or repealed without a public hearing on the proposed action before the director or a hearing officer designated by him. The public hearing shall be held in Santa Fe unless the public notice of hearing indicates otherwise. Notice of the subject matter of the regulation, the action proposed to be taken, the time and place of the hearing, the manner in which interested persons may present their views and the method by which copies of the proposed regulation may be obtained shall be published once at least thirty days prior to the hearing date in a newspaper of general circulation and mailed at least thirty days prior to the hearing date to all persons who have made a written request for advance notice of hearing. All rules and regulations shall be filed in accordance with the State Rules Act [Chapter 14, Article 4 NMSA 1978].

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 5.

28-17-6. Regional and local long-term care ombudsman programs.

A. In carrying out the duties of the office, the state ombudsman may designate an entity as a regional or local ombudsman entity, and may designate an employee or volunteer to represent the entity. An individual so designated shall, in accordance with the policies and procedures established by the office and the agency:

(1) provide services to protect the health, safety, welfare and rights of residents;

(2) ensure that residents in the service area of the entity have regular, timely access to representatives of the program and timely responses to complaints and requests for assistance;

(3) identify, investigate and resolve complaints made by or on behalf of residents that relate to action, inaction or decisions that may adversely affect the health, safety, welfare or rights of the residents;

(4) represent the interests of residents before government agencies and seek administrative, legal and other remedies to protect the health, safety, welfare and rights of the residents;

(5) review and, if necessary, comment on any existing and proposed laws, regulations and other government policies and actions, that pertain to the rights and well-being of residents;

(6) facilitate the ability of the public to comment on the laws, regulations, policies and actions;

(7) support the development of resident and family councils; and

(8) carry out other activities that the ombudsman determines to be appropriate.

B. To be eligible to be designated as regional or local ombudsman entities, and individuals eligible to be designated as representatives of such entities, the entities shall:

(1) have demonstrated capability to carry out the responsibilities of the office;

(2) be free of conflicts of interest;

(3) in the case of the entities, be public or nonprofit private entities; and

(4) meet such additional requirements as the state ombudsman may specify.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 6; 1997, ch. 257, § 4.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, rewrote the section to such an extent that a detailed comparison would be impracticable.

28-17-7. Training and certification.

A. The state ombudsman shall ensure that office staff, including volunteers and other representatives of the office, are trained in:

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(1) federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies with respect to long-term care facilities in the state;

(2) investigative techniques; and

(3) such other matters as the agency deems appropriate.

B. The state ombudsman shall develop procedures for the certification of ombudsmen.

C. No officer, employee or other representative of the office shall investigate any complaint filed with the office unless such person is certified by the office.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 7.

28-17-8. Investigation and resolution of complaints.

The office shall investigate and seek to resolve complaints and concerns communicated by or on behalf of patients, residents or clients of any long-term care facility. The office may initiate investigations based on its observations of the conditions in a long-term care facility. If the office does not investigate a complaint, the complainant shall be notified of the decision not to investigate and the reasons for the decision.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 8.

28-17-9. Referrals.

A. When abuse, neglect or exploitation of a resident of a long-term care facility is witnessed or suspected, the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall personally discuss the matter with the resident, or, if the resident is unable to communicate informed consent, the resident's surrogate decision-maker, if applicable, and:

(1) if the resident communicates informed consent to referral and disclosure of identifying information to the long-term care facility, law enforcement or one or more of the entities listed in Subsection B of this section, the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall assist the resident in reporting the allegation, or the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall make the report directly. The method of reporting is at the sole discretion of the resident, though the state ombudsman or an ombudsman may counsel the resident regarding the method of reporting. If the resident is capable of informed consent and chooses not to refer the matter and not to disclose identifying information, the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall not make a referral or disclose this information;

(2) if the state ombudsman or an ombudsman determines that the resident is not able to communicate informed consent, the state ombudsman or the ombudsman shall consult with the resident's surrogate decision-maker, if any. If the surrogate decision-maker chooses to make a referral and disclose relevant identifying information with respect to the resident, the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall assist the surrogate decision-maker in reporting the allegation or the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall make the report directly. The method of reporting is at the sole discretion of the resident's surrogate decision-maker, though the state ombudsman or an ombudsman may counsel the surrogate decision-maker regarding the method of reporting. If the surrogate decision-maker chooses not to refer the matter and not to disclose identifying information, the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall not make a referral or disclose this information unless the state ombudsman or the ombudsman has reasonable cause to believe that the surrogate decision-maker has taken an action, failed to act or made a decision that may adversely affect the health, safety, welfare or rights of the resident, in which case, the state ombudsman or the ombudsman shall follow the procedure established in Paragraph (3) of this subsection as if the resident did not have a surrogate decision-maker; or

(3) if the state ombudsman or an ombudsman determines that the resident is not able to communicate informed consent and does not have a surrogate decision-maker, an ombudsman, with the consent of the state ombudsman, may make a referral and disclose relevant identifying information about the resident if the state ombudsman or the ombudsman has reasonable cause to believe that it is in the best interest of the resident to make a referral and has no evidence indicating that the resident would not want a referral to be made. In the event that these conditions are met and the abuse, neglect or exploitation has been personally witnessed by the state ombudsman or an ombudsman, the state ombudsman or the ombudsman shall make the report and the disclosure directly to the long-term care facility, law enforcement or the entities set forth in Subsection B of this section.

B. The following state agencies or boards shall endeavor to give priority to any complaint referred to them by the office:

(1) the facilities management division of the general services department;
(2) licensing and certification;
(3) adult protective services;
(4) the New Mexico medical board;
(5) the board of nursing;
(6) the board of nursing home administrators;
(7) the board of pharmacy;
(8) the office of the attorney general; and
(9) the medical assistance division of the human services department.

C. Any state agency or board that responds to a complaint against a long-term care facility or licensed individual that was referred to the agency by the office shall forward to the office copies of related inspection reports and plans of correction and notice of any citations or sanctions levied against the long-term care facility or the licensed individual.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 9; 1997, ch. 257, § 5; 2017, ch. 81, § 3.

The 2017 amendment, effective June 16, 2017, clarified the language outlining the duties of ombudsman to report suspected or witnessed abuse, neglect or exploitation of a resident of a long-term care facility, established limitations on referral in cases of abuse, neglect or exploitation of a person residing in a long-term care facility, and added a division of the general services department and of the human services department as well as the office of the attorney general to the list of agencies tasked with acting on complaints filed by the office of the state long-term care ombudsman; in Subsection A, after "When", added "abuse, neglect or exploitation of a resident of a long-term care facility is witnessed or suspected, the state ombudsman or an ombudsman shall personally discuss the matter with the resident, or, if the resident is unable to communicate informed consent, the resident's surrogate decision-maker, if applicable, and:", and added Paragraphs A(1) through A(3); in Subsection B, added a new Paragraph B(1), redesignated former Paragraph B(1) as Paragraph B(2), deleted former Paragraph B(2), added Paragraph B(3), in Paragraph B(4), after "New Mexico", added "medical", and after "board", deleted "of medical examiners", at the end of Paragraph B(6), deleted "or", in Paragraph B(7), after "pharmacy", deleted "The office shall coordinate its efforts with those of any state agency or board to which it makes investigation referrals", and added Paragraphs B(8) and B(9); and in Subsection C, after "agency or board", deleted "which" and added "that", after "plans of correction", added "and", and after "any citations", deleted "and" and added "or".

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, substituted "children, youth and families" for "human services" in Paragraph B(2) and deleted "state" preceding "board" in Paragraph B(5).

28-17-10. Facility posting of ombudsman information.

Every long-term care facility shall post in a conspicuous location a notice of the name, address and phone number of the office. The name and phone number of the nearest designated program and that of the ombudsman assigned to that long-term care facility shall be posted, where applicable. A brief description of the services provided by the office and the designated program shall be included in the notice. The form of the notice shall be approved by the office.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 10.

28-17-11. Access to agency records.

Upon request, the office shall have access to records of any state or local government agency, including copies of all licensing and certification records relating to long-term care facilities as necessary to carry out its responsibilities under the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Act and which records are available to the patient, resident or client, except for records and information unavailable pursuant to Section 7-1-8 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 11; 1997, ch. 257, § 6.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, rewrote the section.

28-17-12. Access to long-term care facilities.

Representatives of the office shall have immediate access to any patient, resident or client for the purpose of effectively carrying out the provisions of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Act.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 12.

28-17-13. Access to records of patients, residents or clients.

A. In order for the office to carry out its responsibilities, including conducting investigations, under the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Act, the office shall have full and immediate access to readily available medical, personal, financial and other nonmedical records, which include administrative records, policies, procedures or documents that concern, involve or pertain to a resident's diet, comfort, health, safety or welfare, but do not include internal quality assurance and risk management reports, of a patient, resident or client of a long-term care facility that are retained by the facility or the facility's parent corporation or owner. If the records are not readily available, they are to be provided to the office within twenty-four hours of the request. If the patient, resident or client:

(1) has the ability to consent in writing, access may only be obtained by the written consent of the patient, resident or client;

(2) is unable to consent in writing, oral consent may be given;

(3) has a legally appointed surrogate decision-maker authorized to approve review of records, the office shall obtain the permission of the surrogate decision-maker for review of the records, unless any of the following apply:

(a) the existence of the surrogate decision-maker is unknown to the office or the facility;

(b) the surrogate decision-maker cannot be reached within five working days;

(c) access to the records is necessary to investigate or evaluate a complaint; or

(d) the surrogate decision-maker refuses to give the permission and a representative of the office has reasonable cause to believe that the surrogate decision-maker is not following the wishes of the resident; and

(4) is unable to express written or oral consent and there is no surrogate decision-maker or the notification of the surrogate decision-maker is not applicable for reasons set forth in Paragraph (3) of this subsection or the patient, resident or client is deceased, inspection of records may be made by employees of the office, ombudsman coordinators and by ombudsmen approved by the ombudsman coordinator or the state ombudsman.

B. Copies of records may be reproduced by the office. If investigation of records is sought pursuant to this section, the ombudsman shall upon request produce a statement signed by the ombudsman coordinator or state ombudsman authorizing the ombudsman to review the records. Facilities providing copies of records pursuant to this section may charge the office for the actual copying cost for each page copied.

C. Upon request by the office, a long-term care facility shall provide to the office the name, address and telephone number of the guardian, conservator, attorney-in-fact, legal representative or next-of-kin of any patient, resident or client and a copy of any document granting legal decision-making power over a resident.

D. The long-term care facility and personnel who disclose records pursuant to this section shall not be liable for the disclosure.

E. In order to carry out its responsibilities as a health oversight agency, the office shall establish procedures to protect the confidentiality of records obtained pursuant to this section and in accordance with the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 regulations.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 13; 1997, ch. 257, § 7; 2003, ch. 109, § 1; 2017, ch. 81, § 4.

Cross references. — For the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, see 42 U.S.C. 300gg et seq.

The 2017 amendment, effective June 16, 2017, removed the requirement for third-party witnessing when residents of long-term care facilities orally consent to release of medical, personal, financial and other nonmedical records for office of the state long-term care ombudsman investigations; in Subsection A, Paragraph A(2), after "consent may be given", deleted "in the presence of a third party as witness", and changed "decision maker" to "decision-maker" throughout the paragraph.

The 2003 amendment, effective June 20, 2003, rewrote Subsection A; inserted "or evaluate" in Subparagraph A(3)(c); added the Subparagraph A(3)(d) designation; in Subsection E, added "In order to carry out its responsibilities as a health oversight agency, the" at the beginning, and added "and in accordance with the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 regulations" at the end.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, substituted "surrogate decision maker" for "guardian or conservator" and "guardianship or conservatorship" throughout the section; substituted "residents" for "resident" in the section heading; substituted "has a legally appointed surrogate decision maker authorized" for "is under New Mexico guardianship or conservatorship that provides the guardian or conservator with the authority" in Paragraph A(3); added Subparagraph A(3)(c); inserted "of records" near the beginning of Subsection B; and added the language beginning "and a copy" at the end of Subsection C.

28-17-14. Confidentiality of information.

A. The files and records of the office may be disclosed only for purposes of fulfilling the duties of the office pursuant to Subsection C of Section 28-17-4 NMSA 1978 at the discretion of the state ombudsman or the state ombudsman's designee. All state ombudsman files and records pertaining to clients, patients and residents are confidential and not subject to the provisions of the Inspection of Public Records Act [Chapter 14, Article 3 NMSA 1978]. The state ombudsman shall not disclose the identity of any complainant, resident, client or patient about whom the office maintains files or records unless:

(1) the complainant, resident, client or patient or the legal representative of that person consents in writing to the disclosure;

(2) the complainant, resident, client or patient gives oral consent that is documented immediately in writing by a representative of the office;

(3) disclosure is necessary for the provision of ombudsman services to the patient, resident or client and the patient, resident or client is unable to express written or oral consent; or

(4) disclosure is ordered by the court.

B. The director shall have access to the records and files of the office to verify the effectiveness and quality of the program where the identity of any complainant, witness, patient, resident or client is not disclosed.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 14; 1997, ch. 257, § 8; 2003, ch. 109, § 2.

The 2003 amendment, effective June 20, 2003, in Subsection A, deleted "of the ombudsman" preceding "pursuant to Subsection C", substituted "the state ombudsman's designee" for "person designated by him" following "state ombudsman or", inserted the second sentence, substituted "resident, client or patient" for "or resident" following "of any complainant"; rewrote Paragraph A(1); substituted "resident, client or patient" for "or resident" near the beginning of Paragraph A(2); and deleted "ombudsman" following "and quality of the" in Subsection B.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, rewrote Subsection A; deleted former Subsection B relating to access of complainants, witnesses, patients, residents or clients to records and files; and redesignated former Subsection C as Subsection B.

28-17-15. Conflict of interest.

The agency shall ensure that:

A. no individual or a member of the immediate family of an individual involved in the designation of the ombudsman or the designation of a regional or local ombudsman is subject to a conflict of interest;

B. no officer or employee of the office, ombudsman coordinator or representative, or a member of their immediate family, is subject to a conflict of interest; and

C. any ombudsman:

(1) does not have a direct involvement in the licensing or certification of a long-term care facility or of a provider of a long-term care service;

(2) does not have an ownership or investment interest, represented by equity, debt or other financial relationship, in a long-term care facility or a long-term care service;

(3) is not employed by, or participating in the management of, a long-term care facility; and

(4) does not receive, or have the right to receive, directly or indirectly, remuneration in cash or in kind under a compensation arrangement with an owner or operator of a long-term care facility.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 15; 1997, ch. 257, § 9. The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, rewrote the section to such an extent that a detailed comparison would be impracticable.

28-17-16. Representatives of the office.

Any regional or local ombudsman program designated by the office or any individual certified by the office, whether an employee or an unpaid volunteer, shall be treated as a representative of the office.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 16.

28-17-17. Immunity from liability.

No representative of the office shall be liable under state law for the good faith performance of official duties pursuant to the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Act.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 17.

28-17-18. Availability of legal counsel.

The agency shall ensure that:

A. adequate legal counsel is available and is able, without conflict of interest, to:

(1) provide advice and consultation needed to protect the health, safety, welfare and rights to residents; and

(2) assist the ombudsman and representatives of the office in the performance of the official duties of the ombudsman and representatives;

B. representation is provided to any representative of the office against whom suit or other legal action is brought or threatened to be brought in connection with the performance of the official duties of the ombudsman or such a representative; and

C. the office pursues administrative, legal and other appropriate remedies on behalf of residents.

History: Laws 1989, ch. 208, § 18; 1997, ch. 257, § 10. The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, rewrote the section.

28-17-19. Interference with the office and retaliation prohibited; penalty; civil; appeal.

A. No person shall willfully interfere with the lawful actions of the office, including the request for immediate entry into a long-term care facility.

B. No person shall institute discriminatory, disciplinary or retaliatory action against any resident, employee or other person for filing a complaint, providing information to or otherwise cooperating with a representative of the office.

C. Any person who violates Subsection A of this section shall be subject to a civil penalty of up to five thousand dollars ($5,000) per occurrence. Any person who violates Subsection B of this section shall be subject to a civil penalty of up to ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per occurrence. The agency may assess and collect the penalty after notice and an opportunity for hearing, before a hearing officer designated by the agency to hear the matter, upon a determination that a person willfully interfered with the office or discriminated, disciplined or retaliated against an individual who communicated or disclosed information to the office in good faith pursuant to Subsection A or B of this section. The hearing officer has the power to administer oaths on request of any party and issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. However, if the violation is against a person covered by the Personnel Act [Chapter 10, Article 9 NMSA 1978], the office shall refer the matter to the agency employing the person for disciplinary action.

(7) the secretary of state or his designee;

(8) a native American appointed by the New Mexico office of Indian affairs [Indian affairs department];

(9) the director of the human rights division of the labor department or his designee; and

(10) the chairman of the New Mexico state corporation commission [public regulation commission] or his designee.

D. Members of the commission shall be appointed initially for terms as follows: seven members shall be appointed for terms of two years and six members shall be appointed for terms of four years. The initial terms shall be selected by random drawing. After the expiration of the initial terms, all members shall be appointed for four-year terms. The initial commission shall be appointed within forty-five days of the effective date of this act. Vacancies resulting from the death or resignation of a member shall be filled by appointment by the commission chairman for the unexpired portion of the term of the member creating the vacancy. In filling any vacancy, the commission chairman may accept recommendations from the person who originally appointed the member creating the vacancy.

E. The members of the commission shall receive no compensation for their service.

F. The members of the commission shall select a chairman from among the members of the commission.

G. The commission shall appoint an executive director to coordinate all activities on the commission's behalf.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

Laws 1998, ch. 108, § 80 provided that references to the state corporation commission be construed as references to the public regulation commission.

Laws 2004, ch. 24, § 17 provided that statutory references to the New Mexico office of Indian affairs be changed to the Indian affairs department pursuant to an executive order issued in accordance with Laws 2003, Chapter 403.

28-19-2. Martin Luther King, Jr. fund; created.

A. There is created within the state treasury for the commission a fund that shall be designated as the "Martin Luther King, Jr. fund" that shall consist of appropriations, endowments and bequests.

B. Money from the fund shall be disbursed upon warrant of the secretary of finance and administration pursuant to vouchers submitted by the executive director of the commission for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act [28-19-1 to 28-19-4 NMSA 1978].

28-19-3. Duties of the commission.

The duties and powers of the commission shall include, but not be limited to, the following:

A. to develop a plan for the commemoration and celebration of the official legal holiday honoring Martin Luther King, Jr.;

B. to develop and submit to the governor and the legislature recommendations for specific commemorative activities to be undertaken by the state for the Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday;

C. to coordinate state plans and activities with federal plans and activities for the commemoration and celebration of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday;

D. to develop, with other agencies of the state, an interpretive program that explores the historical, social, political and cultural themes associated with the life and works of Martin Luther King, Jr.;

E. to develop and acquire interpretive materials and publications on the significance of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s work and develop a commemorative program for state employees, school children and the general public;

F. to create a process to facilitate the implementation of the master plan project and other recommendations made by the commission;

G. to prepare and provide to the general public advice, assistance and information on the Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday activities recommended by the commission;

H. to submit other studies, reports and recommendations to the governor and the legislature as are necessary with respect to activities for the continued commemoration and celebration of Martin Luther King, Jr.; and

I. to accept endowments and bequests for the Martin Luther King, Jr. fund.

28-19-4. Commission report.

The commission shall make an initial report to the governor and the legislature of its findings, conclusions, proposals and recommendations for the observance of the Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday within ninety days of the effective date of this act. The commission shall submit an annual report of its activities to the legislature no later than December 1 of each year. The first annual report shall be submitted no later than December 1, 1989.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 252, § 4.

Compiler's notes. — The phrase "effective date of this act" means April 4, 1991, the effective date of Laws 1991, Chapter 252.

Sec.
28-21-1. Short title.
28-21-2. Definitions.
28-21-3. Office created; powers and duties.
28-21-4. Fund created; administration.

28-21-1. Short title.

This act [28-21-1 to 28-21-4 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "African American Affairs Act".

History: Laws 1999, ch. 163, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 1999, ch. 163, § 5, made the African American Affairs Act effective July 1, 2000.

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2020 (1st S.S.), ch. 1, § 1, effective June 26, 2020, provided:

A. The "New Mexico civil rights commission" is created and shall function from the date of its appointment until March 31, 2021.

B. The New Mexico civil rights commission consists of nine members, no more than five of which shall be from the same political party, appointed as follows:

(1) the governor shall appoint three members;

(2) the New Mexico legislative council shall appoint six members; and

(3) the appointing authorities shall make every effort to ensure economic, geographic, gender, cultural and racial diversity among the appointed members as well as at least one member experienced in law enforcement.

C. The commission shall elect a chair and may elect such officers as it deems necessary to carry out its duties.

D. Two absences from meetings of the commission constitutes grounds for removal of a member of the commission. Upon the request of the chair of the commission, the appointing authority shall replace the member who has failed to attend two meetings of the commission.

E. A majority of the members appointed constitutes a quorum for the transaction of business. The support of a majority of the members appointed is required for adoption of any action by the commission.

F. The members of the commission shall review policies and develop policy proposals for laws for the creation of a civil right of action for the deprivation, by a public body or a person acting on behalf of or under the authority of a public body, of any right, privilege or immunity secured by the constitution of New Mexico. The commission shall consider whether such right of action shall provide for monetary damages, including punitive damages, and other equitable relief, including injunctive relief. The commission shall consider whether attorney fees shall be mandated for a prevailing plaintiff, the statute of limitations for the right of action and indemnification of employees of a public body in cases involving the right of action.

G. The commission shall review the use of qualified immunity as a defense to liability by an employee of a public body for a claim that would be brought either under 42 U.S.C. Section 1983 or pursuant to the right of action considered by the commission in Subsection F of this section.

H. The commission shall review and assess the need for and costs of additional insurance policies for public employees and public bodies, or for persons acting on behalf of or under the authority of public bodies, if the policies or laws proposed pursuant to Subsections F and G of this section are adopted.

I. The commission shall submit a report of its findings, including specific recommendations and proposed legislation, to the governor, the New Mexico legislative council and the appropriate legislative interim committee dealing with courts, corrections and justice by November 15, 2020.

J. The commission may hire or contract for appropriate staff. Staff shall assist the commission as directed by the chair, including conducting interviews with parties that wish to express their views to the commission and synthesizing this information for the commission. The commission may request assistance from the legislative council service and the risk management division of the general services department.

K. Members of the commission are entitled to compensation pursuant to the provisions of the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 to 10-8-8 NMSA 1978] and shall receive no other perquisite, compensation or allowance.

L. As used in this section, "public body" means the executive, legislative and judicial branches of state and local governments and all advisory boards, commissions, committees, agencies or entities created by the constitution of New Mexico or any branch of government that receives public funding, including political subdivisions, special taxing districts, school districts and institutions of higher education.

28-21-2. Definitions.

As used in the African American Affairs Act:

A. "fund" means the office on African American affairs fund; and

B. "office" means the office on African American affairs.

History: Laws 1999, ch. 163, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 1999, ch. 163, § 5, made the African American Affairs Act effective July 1, 2000.

28-21-3. Office created; powers and duties.

A. The "office on African American affairs" is created and attached administratively to the human services department.

B. The governor shall appoint a director, who shall work at the pleasure of the governor. The director shall employ other necessary employees, who shall be subject to the provisions of the Personnel Act [Chapter 10, Article 9 NMSA 1978].

C. The office, in cooperation with the Martin Luther King, Jr. commission, shall:

(1) study issues important to African Americans, including history and culture; education, scholarships and other financial assistance for education and career development; economic and social problems and issues such as jobs, housing, discrimination, family support, youth idleness and crime; and health care, maternal and child health, teen pregnancy, access and other health issues;

(2) secure recognition of African Americans' accomplishments and contributions to New Mexico and the United States;

(3) cooperate with and assist public and private entities dealing with issues important to African Americans;

(4) direct the operations of the office;

(5) where appropriate, conduct periodic conferences throughout the state to inform African Americans of the opportunities available to them through state and private sources, to encourage them to share their history and culture with other New Mexicans and participate in the social and political processes of their communities and to learn from conference participants their needs and problems; and

(6) otherwise act as an advocate for African American citizens of New Mexico.

D. Additionally, the office shall:

(1) act as a clearinghouse for information important to the African American community;

(2) function as the coordinating office for all services and activities of state agencies and programs pertaining to African Americans;

(3) encourage funding and implementation of training programs and other opportunities for African Americans;

(4) promote and develop programs about community resources designed to meet the needs of African Americans;

(5) prepare and submit a budget for the office; and

(6) publish an annual report on the activities and services of the office.

E. The office may:

(1) adopt and promulgate rules in accordance with the State Rules Act [Chapter 14, Article 4 NMSA 1978] to carry out the duties of the office;

(2) accept gifts, grants, donations, bequests and devises from any source to be used to carry out its duties; and

(3) enter into contracts.

History: Laws 1999, ch. 163, § 3.

Effective dates. — Laws 1999, ch. 163, § 5, made the African American Affairs Act effective July 1, 2000.

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2014, ch. 68, § 1, effective May 21, 2014, provided:

A. By July 1, 2014, the director of the office on African American affairs shall create and implement a one-year pilot program in Bernalillo county. The pilot program shall seek to reduce infant mortality and enhance maternal health among African American residents.

B. The office on African American affairs shall partner with competent direct service providers to employ and track implementation of a prenatal health care model known as "centering" among pregnant African American women that has been proven nationally to reduce infant mortality and premature birth rates.

C. The office on African American affairs shall design and implement a culturally competent tool for providing health care education and outreach to pregnant African American women living in Bernalillo county. Women participating in the pilot program shall be offered solutions for enhancing their health during pregnancy and reducing the risk of infant mortality.

D. The office on African American affairs shall establish benchmarks for the pilot program. It shall collect and analyze qualitative data about the pilot program's outcomes and compare these outcomes to the benchmarks.

E. By November 1, 2015, the director of the office on African American affairs shall report the findings and recommendations arising from the pilot program to the governor, the secretary of health and the legislative health and human services committee.

28-22-1. Short title.

Sections 1 through 5 [28-22-1 to 28-22-5 NMSA 1978] of this act may be cited as the "New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act".

History: Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective July 3, 2000, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

ANNOTATIONS

The New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act does not apply to actions between private parties. — Where plaintiff offered wedding photography services to the general public; plaintiff's business was a public accommodation under the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq.; plaintiff refused to photograph a same-sex commitment ceremony between defendant and defendant's partner on religious grounds, defendant filed a discrimination complaint against plaintiff with the human rights commission; and the human rights commission determined that plaintiff had violated the act by discriminating against defendant on the basis of defendant's sexual orientation, the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act, Section 28-22-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., did not apply to the enforcement of the Human Rights Act by the commission, because the commission acted as an administrative tribunal, not as a party to the suit between plaintiff and defendant as private parties. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2013-NMSC-040, aff'g 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428.

The New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act, Section 28-22-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. applies only in cases that involve a governmental agency as a adverse party. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428, cert. granted, 2012-NMCERT-008.

The act does not apply in cases that involve non-governmental parties. — Where defendant filed a discrimination claim with the human rights commission alleging that plaintiff violated the Human Rights Act, Section 28-1-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., by refusing on religious and moral grounds to photograph defendant's commitment ceremony with defendant's same-sex partner; and plaintiff claimed that the act violated plaintiff's freedom of religion because the act forced plaintiff to photograph same-sex marriages in violation of plaintiff's owner's religious belief that marriage is the union of one man and one woman, the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act, Section 28-22-1 NMSA 1978 et seq., did not apply to the litigation between plaintiff and defendant because neither party was a governmental agency. Elane Photography, LLC v. Willock, 2012-NMCA-086, 284 P.3d 428, cert. granted, 2012-NMCERT-008.

28-22-2. Definitions.

As used in the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act:

A. "free exercise of religion" means an act or a refusal to act that is substantially motivated by religious belief; and

B. "government agency" means the state or any of its political subdivisions, institutions, departments, agencies, commissions, committees, boards, councils, bureaus or authorities.

28-22-3. Religious freedom protected; exceptions.

A government agency shall not restrict a person's free exercise of religion unless:

A. the restriction is in the form of a rule of general applicability and does not directly discriminate against religion or among religions; and

B. the application of the restriction to the person is essential to further a compelling governmental interest and is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling governmental interest.

History: Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17, § 3.
Effective dates. — Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective July 3, 2000, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

ANNOTATIONS

The criminal sexual contact of a minor and contributing to the delinquency of a minor statutes do not violate the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. — Where defendant, who was the spiritual leader of a religious group that lived together, was convicted of criminal sexual contact of a minor and of contributing to the delinquency of a minor based on unclothed experiences with two teenage children; and defendant claimed that because defendant believed that touching the children was a religious act, defendant was not guilty of committing a crime and that the criminal sexual contact of a minor statute, Section 30-9-13 NMSA 1978 and the contributing to the delinquency of a minor statute, Section 30-6-3 NMSA 1978, violate the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, because the statutes are laws of general applicability that do not directly discriminate against or among religions, the protection of minors from sexual abuse and delinquency is a compelling governmental interest, and the statutes are the least restrictive means of achieving the government's goal of protecting minors from sexual abuse and delinquency, the statutes do not violate the act. State v. Bent, 2013-NMCA-108, cert. denied, 2013-NMCERT-012.

28-22-4. Private remedies.

A. A person whose free exercise of religion has been restricted by a violation of the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act may assert that violation as a claim or defense in a judicial proceeding and obtain appropriate relief against a government agency, including:

(1) injunctive or declaratory relief against a government agency that violates or proposes to violate the provisions of the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act; and

(2) damages pursuant to the Tort Claims Act [41-4-1 through 41-4-27 NMSA 1978], reasonable attorney fees and costs.

B. Immunity from liability of the government agency and its employees is waived for an action brought pursuant to this section.

History: Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17, § 4.
Effective dates. — Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective July 3, 2000, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

28-22-5. Construction of act.

Nothing in the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act authorizes a government agency to burden a person's free exercise of religion. The protection of the free exercise of religion granted in that act is in addition to the protections granted by federal law and the state and federal constitutions. The New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act does not affect the grant of benefits or tax exemptions to religious organizations nor does it impair any other exemptions granted by law.

History: Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17, § 5.
Effective dates. — Laws 2000 (2nd S.S.), ch. 17 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective July 3, 2000, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

ANNOTATIONS

The state of New Mexico is an employer subject to claims brought under the Fair Pay for Women Act. — The state, an entity capable of suing and being sued, is a legal entity that falls within the definition of "person" and thus is subject to suit for violating the terms of the Fair Pay for Women Act. Wolinsky v. N.M. Corrections Dep't, 2018-NMCA-071, cert. denied.

State employee's right to pursue wage discrimination claims. — Where plaintiff sued her employer, the New Mexico corrections department, for sex-based pay discrimination in violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act (FPWA), alleging that her salary was approximately $8,000 less than that of a male employee in the same position, the district court erred in dismissing plaintiff's case based on the conclusion that defendant, a state agency, was not subject to the FPWA, because the state, an entity capable of suing and being sued, is a legal entity that falls within the definition of "person" and thus is subject to suit for violating the terms of the FPWA; the FPWA provides state employees the same right to pursue sex-based wage discrimination claims that persons employed by private employers possess. Wolinsky v. N.M. Corrections Dep't, 2018-NMCA-071, cert. denied.

28-23-3. Prohibition on paying employees less for same work.

A. No employer shall discriminate, within any establishment in which such employees are employed, between employees on the basis of sex by paying wages to employees in the establishment at a rate less than the rate that the employer pays wages to employees of the opposite sex in the establishment for equal work on jobs the performance of which requires equal skill, effort and responsibility and that are performed under similar working conditions, except where the payment is made pursuant to a:

(1) seniority system;

(2) merit system; or

(3) system that measures earnings by quantity or quality of production.

B. An employer shall not reduce the wage of an employee to comply with this section.

C. No agreement between an employer and an employee for a specific wage in violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act shall prevent the employee from raising a claim based on a violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act.

Effective dates. — Laws 2013, ch. 12 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 14, 2013, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

ANNOTATIONS

Fair Pay for Women Act inapplicable on federal enclave. — Congress has exclusive authority over federal enclaves, and therefore plaintiffs' claims were barred by the federal enclave doctrine, where plaintiffs, employees of Sandia corporation (Sandia labs) located on Kirtland air force base, brought state-law employment discrimination claims against Sandia labs, a federally funded research and development contractor operating under contract for the department of energy. Kennicott v. Sandia Corp., 314 F.Supp.3d 1142 (D.N.M. 2018)

The state of New Mexico is an employer subject to claims brought under the Fair Pay for Women Act. — The state, an entity capable of suing and being sued, is a legal entity that falls within the definition of "person" and thus is subject to suit for violating the terms of the Fair Pay for Women Act. *Wolinsky v. ## 28-23-4. Grievance procedure.

A. A person claiming to be aggrieved by an unlawful discriminatory practice in violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act may:

(1) maintain an action to establish liability and recover damages and injunctive relief in any court of competent jurisdiction by any one or more employees on behalf of the employee or employees or on behalf of other employees similarly situated; or

(2) seek relief under the Human Rights Act [Chapter 28, Article 1 NMSA 1978] pursuant to the process set out in Sections 28-1-10 through 28-1-13 NMSA 1978.

B. The court in any action brought under this section shall, in addition to any judgment awarded to the plaintiff or plaintiffs, allow costs of the action and reasonable attorney fees to be paid by the defendant. In any proceedings brought pursuant to the provisions of this section, the employee shall not be required to pay any filing fee or other court costs necessarily incurred in such proceedings.

C. The court in any action brought under this section may order appropriate injunctive relief, including requiring an employer to post in the place of business a notice describing violations by the employer as found by the court or a copy of a cease and desist order applicable to the employer.

D. An action arising under the Fair Pay for Women Act shall be brought no later than two years from the last date of the employee's employment.

E. A person claiming to be aggrieved by an unlawful discriminatory practice in violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act need not exhaust state administrative remedies.

F. The initiation of an administrative process under the Human Rights Act pursuant to the process set out in Sections 28-1-10 through 28-1-13 NMSA 1978 shall toll the statute of limitations for initiating a claim under the Fair Pay for Women Act.

28-23-5. Retaliation prohibited.

It is a violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act for an employer or any other person to discharge, demote, deny promotion to or in any other way discriminate against an employee in the terms or conditions of employment in retaliation for the person asserting a claim or right pursuant to the Fair Pay for Women Act or assisting another person to do so, or for informing another person about employment rights or other rights provided by law.

28-23-6. Enforcement; penalties; remedies.

A. An employer who violates a provision of the Fair Pay for Women Act shall be liable to the affected employee for damages and equitable relief, including employment, reinstatement and promotion. Damages shall be calculated on the basis of:

(1) the affected employee's unpaid wages and the damages from retaliation;

(2) all other actual damages; and

(3) treble damages.

B. The court may, in its sound discretion, not award treble damages or award any amount thereof not to exceed the amount specified in this section if the employer shows to the satisfaction of the court that the act or omission giving rise to such action was in good faith and that the employer had reasonable grounds for believing that the employer's act or omission was not a violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act.

C. An employer who violates a provision of the Fair Pay for Women Act may also be liable to the employee for punitive damages.

D. Recovery of unpaid wages is limited to six years prior to the date of the last violation of the Fair Pay for Women Act.

28-24-2. Definitions.

As used in the Gender-Free Restrooms Act:

A. "gender identity" means a person's self- perception, or perception of that person by another, of the person's identity as a male or female based upon the person's appearance, behavior or physical characteristics that are in accord with or opposed to the person's physical anatomy, chromosomal sex or sex at birth;

B. "gender-neutral signage" means a sign that indicates a restroom without preference or distinction to a specific gender identity or sex;

C. "public accommodation" means any establishment that provides or offers its services, facilities, accommodations or goods to the public, but does not include a bona fide private club or other place or establishment that is by its nature and use distinctly private; and

D. "single-user toilet facility" means a single- occupancy restroom with an outer door that can be locked by the occupant.

28-24-3. Public facility availability.

A. A single-user toilet facility that exists or is constructed on or after July 1, 2019 in a public accommodation shall be:

(1) made available to any person regardless of gender identity or sex;

(2) designated for use by not more than one occupant at a time or for family or assisted use; and

(3) identified with gender-neutral signage.

B. Nothing in this section shall be construed to require construction of a new, single-user toilet facility if one does not exist in a public accommodation.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 109, § 3. Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 109, § 4 made Laws 2019, ch. 109, § 3 effective July 1, 2019.

ANNOTATIONS

Plainclothes officer can intrude when he observes truck driven erratically. — This section does not preclude plainclothes officer from making intrusion into pickup truck by opening a door where officer has observed truck being driven rapidly and in an erratic manner and, reaching truck after it has stopped, has observed that occupant appeared incoherent and lacked understanding of request to roll down window. Such facts warranted the officer, as person of reasonable caution, to open the pickup door. State v. Ray, 1977-NMCA-100, 91 N.M. 67, 570 P.2d 605, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 413.

Liability for failure to take proper actions. — A governmental entity and its law enforcement officers may be held liable, after receiving notice, for negligently failing to take adequate action to protect a citizen from imminent danger and injury because of failure to adopt proper procedures for responding to and investigating a reported criminal act. Schear v. Board of Cnty. Comm'rs, 1984-NMSC-079, 101 N.M. 671, 687 P.2d 728.

Liability for failure to cooperate with prosecutors. — The statutory obligations that officers cooperate with prosecutors and bring defendants before the courts are primarily designed to protect the public by ensuring that dangerous criminals are removed from society and brought to justice; accordingly, as with the duty to investigate crimes under this section, the duties of cooperating with prosecutors, diligently filing complaints, and bringing defendants before the courts inure to the benefit of private individuals, and the violation of these statutory duties may give rise to a cognizable claim under the Tort Claims Act, Sections 41-4-1 through 41-4-27 NMSA 1978. Weinstein v. City of Santa Fe ex rel. Santa Fe Police Dep't, 1996-NMSC-021, 121 N.M. 646, 916 P.2d 1313.

Liability for failure to detain intoxicated driver. — Law enforcement officers may be liable if they fail to detain an intoxicated driver, who then acts with the requisite level of intent to commit a battery while driving intoxicated. Blea v. City of Espanola, 1994-NMCA-008, 117 N.M. 217, 870 P.2d 755, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 328, 871 P.2d 984.

Immunity from liability for wrongful issuance of warrant. — Police officers and assistant district attorney were immune from liability for alleged wrongful issuance and service of a search warrant which was valid on its face in which court ordered police officers to search for child, take him into custody, keep him safely and make a return of the proceedings on the warrant. Torres v. Glasgow, 1969-NMCA-053, 80 N.M. 412, 456 P.2d 886.

Class of persons to be protected by duty to investigate. — In creating the duty to investigate, the legislature did not limit the traditional tort concept of foreseeability that would otherwise define the intended beneficiaries of the statute; all persons who are foreseeably at risk within the general population are within the class of persons to be protected by the duty to investigate. Torres v. State, 1995-NMSC-025, 119 N.M. 609, 894 P.2d 386.

When any person of the public, regardless of geographic location, is foreseeably at risk of injury by a party reported to be in violation of the criminal law, officers undertaking the investigation of the crime owe that person a duty to exercise the care ordinarily exercised by prudent and qualified officers. Torres v. State, 1995-NMSC-025, 119 N.M. 609, 894 P.2d 386.

Foreseeability of criminal act. — Since it is not unlikely that a murderer would flee the city in which he committed the crime and, given modern-day transportation, that this person would flee across state lines, and since the police knew or should have known that it is possible that a person who kills randomly with no motive would kill again, the harm in this case was not so removed from the conduct of the defendants that the court may say as a matter of law that the victims were unforeseeable; thus foreseeability is a question for the jury to determine by giving thought to, among other things, the time, space, and distance between the alleged failure to investigate and the deaths of the two victims. Torres v. State, 1995-NMSC-025, 119 N.M. 609, 894 P.2d 386.

Sufficiency of allegations in complaint. — Allegations in a complaint that sheriff deputies failed to apprehend a drunk driver or investigate a tavern disturbance, and that this failure proximately caused personal injury to the plaintiff's family, sufficed to state a cause of action for negligent violation of a right secured under New Mexico law for which Section 41-4-12 NMSA 1978 waives sovereign immunity. California First Bank v. State Dep't of Alcoholic Beverage Control, 1990-NMSC-106, 111 N.M. 64, 801 P.2d 646.

Constables may carry firearms because they are peace officers. 1963-64 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 63-117.

Magistrate or municipal court case may not be continued where appeal filed. — A peace officer who has prosecuted a criminal case in magistrate or municipal court may not continue to prosecute the case in district court after an appeal of the magistrate or municipal court judgment has been filed in district court. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 89-27.

Sheriff may file complaint without consent of district attorney. — The sheriff may file a complaint against a party for game law violation without first obtaining the consent of, or consulting, the district attorney. He should, before filing any criminal charge, consult his district attorney, except perhaps in cases of emergency where the sheriff waives a warrant on hearing in order to arrest someone who is believed about to leave the country. 1939-40 Op. Att'y Gen. 39-3257.

When district attorney has authority to appear in court. — The district attorney as chief law enforcement officer has the authority to appear in any case filed before any justice of the peace (now magistrate court) in any county in his district when, in his opinion, the interests of the people in his district require his participation in any case filed before a justice of the peace (magistrate) in said district. 1953-54 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 53-5669.

ANNOTATIONS

No tort liability for failure to inform out-of-state officials of escape. — In a wrongful death action arising out of the escape of state prisoners, who crossed over into Colorado and killed a resident thereof, the New Mexico State police, who were informed of the escape soon after it occurred and diligently attempted to apprehend the escapees as soon as possible, but who did not inform Colorado officials, did not breach any duty giving rise to tort liability. Wittkowski v. State Corr. Dep't, 1985-NMCA-066, 103 N.M. 526, 710 P.2d 93, cert. quashed, 103 N.M. 442, 708 P.2d 1043, overruled on other grounds, Silva v. State, 1987-NMSC-107, 106 N.M. 472, 745 P.2d 380.

29-1-5. [Penalty for violation by sheriff, constable or deputy; surety's liability.]

If any sheriff, deputy sheriff or constable, or any deputy shall be found guilty of delay, negligence or neglect in compliance with the provisions of the preceding section [29-1-4 NMSA 1978], on complaint being made before any justice of the peace [magistrate] in the county, he shall be fined in any sum not less than fifty dollars [($50.00)], nor more than one hundred dollars [($100)], which shall be collected of them or their securities.

History: Laws 1861-1862, p. 14; C.L. 1865, ch. 61, § 50; C.L. 1884, § 834; C.L. 1897, § 1228; Code 1915, § 3062; C.S. 1929, § 75-131; 1941 Comp., § 40-105; 1953 Comp., § 39-1-5.

Compiler's notes. — The compilers of the 1915 code deleted "coroner" after "deputy sheriff" and substituted "with the provisions of the preceding section" for "herewith".

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law. The office of justice of the peace was abolished, and the jurisdiction, powers and duties were transferred to the magistrate court. See 35-1-38 NMSA 1978.

29-1-6. [Penalty for violation by magistrate.]

If any justice of the peace [magistrate] shall be guilty of a violation of Section 29-1-4 NMSA 1978, on conviction thereof before the district court, he shall be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars [($25.00)] nor more than fifty dollars [($50.00)].

29-1-9. Appointment of peace officers; citizenship certificate of appointment; exceptions.

No sheriff of a county, mayor of a city or other person authorized by law to appoint special deputy sheriffs, marshals, policemen or other peace officers in the state of New Mexico to preserve the public peace and to prevent and quell public disturbances shall appoint as such special deputy sheriff, marshal, policeman or other peace officer any person who shall not be a citizen of the United States of America. No person shall assume or exercise the functions, powers, duties and privileges incident and belonging to the office of special deputy sheriff, marshal, policeman or other peace officer without first having received an appointment in writing from a person authorized by law to appoint special deputy sheriffs, marshals, policemen or other peace officers; provided that nothing in this section shall apply to lawfully appointed United States marshals or to deputies of those marshals or to railroad peace officers appointed pursuant to Section 63-2-18 NMSA 1978 in the performance of their duties as peace officers.

This section shall not apply in times of riot or unusual disturbance and when so declared by the public proclamation of the governor of the state.

The 2006 amendment, effective March 2, 2006, deleted references to special constables; required that appointed peace officers be citizens of the United States of America; and provided that appointed peace officers be appointed by a person authorized by law to appoint such officers.

ANNOTATIONS

Legislature may set restrictions upon public employees. — Nothing in the constitution prevents the legislature setting such restrictions as it sees fit upon public employees. The legislature has exercised its power in Section 10-1-5 NMSA 1978 (repealed) over all public employees, and in this section and Section 4-41-10 NMSA 1978, additional requirements are stated for deputy sheriffs and other peace officers. 1959-60 Op. ## 29-1-10. [Law enforcement agencies, state and local; participation in federal programs.]

All state and local law enforcement agencies are hereby authorized to participate in the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act of 1965 (Public Law 98-197 [89-197]).

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-1-11, enacted by Laws 1966, ch. 24, § 1.

Compiler's notes. — The federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act of 1965 was codified as a note following 18 USCS § 3001 prior to its repeal by Public Law 90-351 on June 19, 1968.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler to correct an error and is not part of the law.

29-1-10.1. Federal funds; receipt and expenditure for law enforcement activities.

Any law enforcement agency of the state of New Mexico may receive and spend for law enforcement activities, in addition to amounts appropriated to it, transfers from the United States department of justice or the United States department of the treasury pursuant to the Controlled Substances Act, 21 U.S.C. § 881(e) (1970), and the Tariff Act of 1930, 19 U.S.C. § 1616(a) (1930), both as amended before or after the effective date of this section.

History: Laws 1986, ch. 87, § 1.

Compiler's notes. — The Tariff Act of 1930, 19 USC 1616, referred to in this section, was repealed in 1986. For present comparable provisions, see 19 USC § 1616a.

29-1-11. Authorization of tribal and pueblo police officers and certain federal officers to act as New Mexico peace officers; authority and procedure for commissioned peace officers.

A. All persons who are duly commissioned officers of the police or sheriff's department of any New Mexico Indian nation, tribe or pueblo or who are law enforcement officers employed by the bureau of Indian affairs and are assigned in New Mexico are, when commissioned under Subsection

B of this section, recognized and authorized to act as New Mexico peace officers. These officers have all the powers of New Mexico peace officers to enforce state laws in New Mexico, including the power to make arrests for violation of state laws.

B. The chief of the New Mexico state police is granted authority to issue commissions as New Mexico peace officers to members of the police or sheriff's department of any New Mexico Indian nation, tribe or pueblo or a law enforcement officer employed by the bureau of Indian affairs to implement the provisions of this section. The procedures to be followed in the issuance and revocation of commissions and the respective rights and responsibilities of the departments shall be set forth in a written agreement to be executed between the chief of the New Mexico state police and the Indian nation, tribe or pueblo or the appropriate federal official.

C. The agreement referred to in Subsection B of this section shall contain the following conditions:

(1) the Indian nation, tribe or pueblo, but not the bureau of Indian affairs, shall submit proof of adequate public liability and property damage insurance for vehicles operated by the peace officers and police professional liability insurance from a company licensed to sell insurance in the state;

(2) each applicant for a commission shall successfully complete four hundred hours of basic police training that is approved by the director of the New Mexico law enforcement academy;

(3) the chief of the New Mexico state police shall have the authority to suspend any commission granted pursuant to Subsection B of this section for reasons solely within the chief's discretion;

(4) if any provision of the agreement is violated by the Indian nation, tribe or pueblo or any of its agents, the chief of the New Mexico state police shall suspend the agreement on five days' notice, which suspension shall last until the chief is satisfied that the violation has been corrected and will not recur;

(5) the goldenrod-colored officer's second copy of any citation issued pursuant to a commission authorized by this section shall be submitted within five days to the chief of the New Mexico state police;

(6) any citation issued pursuant to a commission authorized by this section shall be to a magistrate court of New Mexico; except that any citations issued to Indians within the exterior boundaries of an Indian reservation shall be cited into tribal court;

(7) the agreement or any commission issued pursuant to it shall not confer any authority on a tribal court or other tribal authority that the court or authority would not otherwise have;

(8) the authority conferred by any agreement entered into pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be coextensive with the exterior boundaries of the reservation; except that an officer commissioned under this section may proceed in hot pursuit of an offender beyond the exterior boundaries of the reservation, and the authority conferred in any written agreement between the chief of the New Mexico state police and the Navajo Nation may extend beyond the exterior boundaries of the Navajo reservation to and including the area enclosed by the following description:

Beginning at a point where the southern boundary line of the Navajo Nation reservation intersects the western right-of-way line of US 491, and running thence; southerly along the western right-of-way line of US 491 to the northerly city limits of Gallup; thence, easterly along the northerly city limits of Gallup to the northern side of the right of way of I-40; thence, in an easterly direction along the northerly side of the right of way of I-40 to the northerly limits of the village of Prewitt; thence, in a straight line between the northerly boundary of the village of Prewitt to the southerly boundary of Ambrosia Lake; thence in a straight line between the southerly boundary of Ambrosia Lake to the southerly boundary of Hospah; thence, east along a straight line from the southerly boundary of Hospah to the southern boundary of Torreon; thence along the easterly side of the right of way of state road 197 to the westerly city limits of Cuba; thence, north along the westerly side of the right of way of state road 44 to the southerly boundary of the Jicarilla Apache Nation reservation; thence, westerly along the southerly boundary of the Jicarilla Apache Nation reservation to the southwest corner of that reservation; thence, northerly along the westerly boundary of the Jicarilla Apache Indian reservation to a point where the westerly boundary of the reservation intersects the southerly side of the right of way of state road 44; thence, northerly along the southerly side of the right of way of state road 44 to its intersection with the northerly side of the right of way of Navajo road 3003; thence, along the northerly side of the right of way of Navajo road 3003 to a point where the northerly side of the right of way of Navajo road 3003 intersects the westerly side of the right-of-way line of state road 371; thence, northerly along the west side of the right of way of state road 371 to the southerly side of the right of way of Navajo road 36; thence, westerly along the southerly side of the right of way of Navajo road 36 to the eastern border of the Navajo Nation reservation; thence, along the eastern and southerly borders of the Navajo Nation reservation to the point of beginning.

The municipalities of Cuba and Gallup and the villages of Thoreau and Prewitt are excluded from the grant of authority that may be conferred in any written agreement entered into pursuant to provisions of this section; provided, however, any written agreement may include under such grant of authority the communities of Ambrosia Lake, Hospah, Torreon, Lybrook, Nageezi, Counselors and Blanco Trading Post and those communities commonly known as the Wingate community; the Navajo Nation Blue Water ranch area of the Thoreau community; the Prewitt community, exclusive of the village of Prewitt; the Haystack community; the Desidero community; the Sand Springs community; the Rincon Marquis community; the Charley Jesus Arviso and the Castillo community; and state road 264 beginning at the point where it intersects US 491 and ending where state road 264 intersects the Arizona-New Mexico state line; and

(9) the chief of the New Mexico state police or the chief's designee and the Indian nation, tribe or pueblo or the appropriate federal official shall be required to meet at least quarterly or more frequently at the call of the chief of the New Mexico state police to discuss the status of the agreement and invite other law enforcement or other officials to attend as necessary.

D. Nothing in this section impairs or affects the existing status and sovereignty of an Indian nation, tribe or pueblo as established under the laws of the United States.

E. All persons who are duly commissioned federal law enforcement officers employed by the federal bureau of investigation; drug enforcement administration; bureau of alcohol, tobacco and firearms; United States secret service; United States customs service; immigration and naturalization service; United States marshals service; postal inspection service; United States probation department; and United States pretrial services agency; and other appropriate federal officers whose primary duty is law enforcement related, who are assigned in New Mexico and who are required to be designated by the county sheriff on a case-by-case basis in the county in which they are working, are recognized and authorized to act as New Mexico peace officers and have all the powers of New Mexico peace officers to enforce state laws in New Mexico, including the power to make arrests for violation of state laws. The department of public safety shall maintain a registry that lists the name and affiliated federal agency of every federal law enforcement officer recognized and authorized to act as a New Mexico peace officer pursuant to the provisions of this subsection. This subsection shall not be construed to impose liability upon or to require indemnification by the state for any act performed by a federal law enforcement officer pursuant to this subsection.

F. The provisions of Subsection E of this section regarding designation of federal law enforcement officers by a county sheriff do not apply to federal law enforcement officers who are duly commissioned officers of a police or sheriff's department for an Indian nation, tribe or pueblo in New Mexico or who are federal law enforcement officers employed by the bureau of Indian affairs.

G. Nothing in this section limits, impairs or nullifies the authority of county sheriffs to appoint pursuant to Chapter 4, Article 41 NMSA 1978 duly commissioned state or federally certified officers who are employees of a police or sheriff's department of an Indian nation, tribe or pueblo in New Mexico or who are federal law enforcement officers employed by the bureau of Indian affairs as deputy sheriffs authorized to enforce New Mexico criminal and traffic law.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-1-12, enacted by Laws 1972, ch. 8, § 1; 1979, ch. 39, § 1; 1981, ch. 120, § 1; 1983, ch. 275, § 1; 1988, ch. 14, § 3; 1993, ch. 179, § 1; 1995, ch. 186, § 1; 1997, ch. 260, § 1; 2002, ch. 92, § 1; 2005, ch. 290, § 1.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, added Subsection G to provide that nothing in this section limits, impairs or nullifies the authority of county sheriffs to appoint duly commissioned state or federally certified officers who are employees of a police or sheriff's department of an Indian nation, tribe or pueblo in New Mexico or who are federal law enforcement officers employed by the bureau of Indian affairs as deputy sheriffs authorized to enforce New Mexico criminal and traffic law.

The 2002 amendment, effective May 15, 2002, deleted "payment" following "authority" in the section heading; and deleted Paragraph C(10), which provided for payment from the law enforcement protection fund to tribes or pueblos for each commissioned peace officer in the tribe or pueblo.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, in Subsection E, in the first sentence, inserted "United States probation department; United States pretrial services agency;", deleted "as designated by the chief of the New Mexico state police upon a recommendation by a county sheriff" preceding "who are assigned", and inserted "and who are required to be designated by the county sheriff on a case-by-case basis in the county in which they are working", added the second sentence; and added Subsection F.

The 1995 amendment, effective June 16, 1995, substituted "pursuant to provisions of" for "under" near the end of Paragraph (8) in Subsection C, and in Subsection E deleted "and" preceding "postal" and substituted "whose primary duty is law enforcement related, as designated by the chief of the New Mexico state police upon a recommendation by a county sheriff" for "as designated by the chief of the New Mexico state police".

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, inserted "payment" and substituted "commissioned peace officers" for "commissioning" in the section heading; added Paragraph (10) of Subsection C; and made minor stylistic changes in Paragraphs (2), (4), (8), and (9) of Subsection C and in Subsection E.

ANNOTATIONS

Tribal officer was properly cross-commissioned. — Where defendant, who was a non-Indian, was arrested by a Pueblo police officer on property of the Pueblo and charged in a county magistrate court with aggravated DWI; the officer was cross-commissioned as a county special deputy sheriff by the county sheriff's office; the officer signed an oath of office that was also signed by the county sheriff and carried a card issued by the county sheriff's office indicating the officer's cross-commissioning status; the officer was wearing the Pueblo police department uniform at the time of the arrest; the officer was a commissioned, full-time Pueblo tribal officer; and the officer's salary was paid by the Pueblo police department and included incremental pay financed from a grant from the bureau of Indian affairs to assist the Pueblo police department in targeting the motoring public, the officer was properly cross-commissioned and could properly arrest defendant while wearing the uniform of and receiving a salary from the Pueblo police department. State v. Sanchez, 2014-NMCA-095.

Off-reservations crimes. — State officers have the authority to enter Indian country to investigate off-reservation crimes committed in their presence by Indians, so long as the investigation does not infringe on tribal sovereignty by circumventing or contravening a governing tribal procedure. A traffic stop which included the administration of field sobriety tests, did not circumvent or contravene the Navajo Nation Code and, therefore, did not infringe on the sovereignty of the Navajo Nation. State v. Harrison, 2010-NMSC-038, 148 N.M. 500, 238 P.3d 869, aff'g 2008-NMCA-107, 144 N.M. 651, 190 P.3d 1146.

Authority of non-cross-commissioned officer. — A state police officer, who is not cross-commissioned with the bureau of Indian affairs or the tribe, may pursue an Indian onto the reservation, across jurisdictional lines, for a minor traffic offense committed outside the reservation and after determining that the officer lacks jurisdiction, the officer may continue to detain the Indian and collect evidence for use against him. State v. Harrison, 2008-NMCA-107, 144 N.M. 651, 190 P.3d 1146, aff'd, 2010-NMSC-038, 148 N.M. 500, 238 P.3d 869.

Inconsistency between written agreements. — It is inconsistent for the legislature to require a written agreement for the issuance of a cross commission under this section between state law enforcement and Indian tribal police officers and not require a written agreement for mutual aid agreements under Section 29-8-3 NMSA 1978. State v. Branham, 2004-NMCA-131, 136 N.M. 579, 102 P.3d 646.

Authority of cross-commissioned officer. — Traffic stop and detention and arrest are not illegal where Navajo tribal officer acted as a New Mexico peace officer with authority to enforce the Motor Vehicle Code on non-Indian land in the city of Gallup. State v. Martinez, 2005-NMCA-052, 137 N.M. 432, 112 P.3d 293, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-005, 137 N.M. 522, 113 P.3d 345.

Because Navajo tribal officer claims to have been deputized by the McKinley County sheriff, Subsection C(8) of Section 29-1-11 NMSA 1978 does not defeat his claimed authority to act as a cross-commissioned county deputy. State v. Martinez, 2005-NMCA-052, 137 N.M. 432, 112 P.3d 293, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-005, 137 N.M. 522, 113 P.3d 345.

Authority of non-cross-commissioned officers. — A non-cross-commissioned federal police officer has the lawful authority not only to stop a motor vehicle within an Indian reservation, but also to issue the driver a federal traffic citation based on state law. Ryder v. State, 1982-NMSC-066, 98 N.M. 316, 648 P.2d 774.

A non-cross-commissioned bureau of Indian affairs officer is empowered to stop a vehicle within the borders of an Indian reservation for a traffic law offense and, upon determining that the offender is a non-Indian, to request him to wait until a cross-commissioned BIA officer arrives. State v. Ryder, 1981-NMCA-017, 98 N.M. 453, 649 P.2d 756, aff'd, 1982-NMSC-066, 98 N.M. 316, 648 P.2d 774.

Authority of tribal police officer over non-Indian. — A tribal police officer has the authority to stop and issue a tribal citation, and arrest a non-Indian, so long as the Indian authorities promptly deliver up the non-Indian offender, rather than try and punish him themselves. State v. Ryder, 1981-NMCA-017, 98 N.M. 453, 649 P.2d 756, aff'd, 1982-NMSC-066, 98 N.M. 316, 648 P.2d 774.

Where state police officer initially stopped defendant for speeding on Mescalero reservation, because the officer did not have authority to enforce Mescalero tribal traffic ordinances, defendant's motion to suppress evidence was properly granted. State v. Branham, 2004-NMCA-131, 136 N.M. 579, 102 P.3d 646.

Citations issued to non-Indians. — Traffic citations lawfully issued by a commissioned bureau of Indian affairs officer to a non-Indian cannot legally be referred to a tribal court, but should be referred to state magistrate court. 1992 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 92-07.

Law reviews. — For annual survey of New Mexico law relating to criminal procedure, see 12 N.M.L. Rev. 271 (1982).

firefighting or conservation work shall maintain custody of such ward, offender or prisoner in New Mexico. Such officer or employee may, in the event of escape of such ward, offender or prisoner in New Mexico, retake such ward, offender or prisoner in the same manner as if such officer or employee were a New Mexico police officer and such ward, offender or prisoner had been committed to his custody under New Mexico law.

29-1-13. Unclaimed property; inventory.

A peace officer shall immediately inventory and record any personal property that comes into his possession and is taken under authority of law or is left in his possession or in the possession of the state, county or municipality. As used in Sections 29-1-13 through 29-1-15 NMSA 1978, "peace officer" means any full-time employee of a police or sheriff's department that is part of or administered by the state or any political subdivision of the state and which employee is responsible for the prevention and detection of crime and the enforcement of the penal, traffic or highway laws of the state.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 50, § 1.

Am. Jur. 2d, A.L.R. and C.J.S. references. — Uniform Disposition of Unclaimed Property Act, 98 A.L.R.2d 304.

29-1-14. Unclaimed property; authority to sell; notice of sale; deadly weapons, controlled substances and other contraband excepted.

A. Any personal property having a fair market value greater than fifty dollars ($50.00) that has been unclaimed by the true owner, is no longer necessary for use in obtaining a conviction, is not needed for any other public purpose and has been in the possession of a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency for more than ninety days shall be sold at public sale.

B. Prior to the sale of seized personal property, the law enforcement agency shall make a reasonable attempt to notify the original owner of the seized personal property and shall publish a notice of the sale of unclaimed personal property once each week for two successive weeks. The notice shall contain:

(1) a brief description of the personal property to be sold;

(2) the time and place of the sale; and

(3) the name of any purported owner, if known.

C. If prior to the sale the true owner identifies the personal property to be sold and offers strict proof of identity and ownership of the personal property, the personal property shall be returned to its true owner.

D. Any personal property offered but not sold at a public sale may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of upon application to the district court, ex parte and without notice.

E. Any personal property sold at public sale, claimed by its true owner, destroyed or otherwise disposed of pursuant to this section shall be removed from the inventory record kept by the law enforcement agency.

F. Any personal property having a fair market value equal to or less than fifty dollars ($50.00) that has been unclaimed by the true owner, is no longer necessary for use in obtaining a conviction, is not needed for any other public purpose and has been in the possession of a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency for more than ninety days may be destroyed, except as otherwise provided by order of the district court upon ex parte application without notice.

G. Any alcoholic beverage that has been unclaimed by the true owner, is no longer necessary for use in obtaining a conviction, is not needed for any other public purpose and has been in the possession of a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency for more than ninety days may be destroyed or may be utilized by the scientific laboratory division of the department of health for educational or scientific purposes.

H. This section shall not apply to deadly weapons or items of significant historical value, poisons, controlled substances or other contraband lawfully seized as evidence for the prosecution of a violation of statute or ordinance or which has otherwise come into the lawful possession of a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency and has been in possession for more than ninety days. Once it is determined by the law enforcement agency that any property enumerated in this subsection is no longer necessary for use in obtaining a conviction or is not needed for any other public purpose, the law enforcement agency may apply to the district court, ex parte and without notice, for an order authorizing destruction or other disposition of the property; provided that a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency shall allow state museums access to agency inventory records for the purpose of inspecting and selecting firearms that are appropriate to state museum firearm collections. The court shall grant the application if the proposed destruction or disposition is in the best interest of the public safety and welfare.

I. This section shall not apply to any personal property for which a notice of intent to claim has been served. Any victim, as defined in Section 31-26-3 NMSA 1978, or alleged victim shall be entitled to serve notice of intent to claim ownership of any personal property upon that person, agency or entity in actual custody or control of the property. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to limit, interfere with or affect the rights or remedies of the rightful owner of any seized property.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-1-14, enacted by Laws 1983, ch. 50, § 2; 1989, ch. 147, § 1; 1994, ch. 22, § 1; 2003, ch. 340, § 1.

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003, in Subsection A, deleted the former last sentence concerning the federal Gun Control Act of 1968; in Subsection B, deleted "or owners" following "purported owner"; in Subsection H, deleted "except for firearms" following "deadly weapons" in the first sentence and "prior to the sale of firearms" following "provided that" in the second sentence; in Subsection I, substituted "Section 31-26-3" for "Section 31-24-3".

The 1994 amendment, effective July 1, 1994, substituted "a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency" for "the state, county, municipality or peace officer" in the first sentence in Subsections A and H, and in Subsections F and G, "Prior to the sale of seized personal property, the law enforcement agency shall make a reasonable attempt to notify original owner of seized personal property and shall" for "The peace officer shall" in the first sentence in the introductory paragraph of Subsection B, "law enforcement agency" for "peace officer" in Subsection E and near the beginning of the second sentence in Subsection H, "department of health" for "health and environment department" in Subsection G and "the law enforcement agency" for "he" near the middle of the second sentence in Subsection H; inserted "federal" in the second sentence in Subsection A; and added the proviso clause at the end of the second sentence in Subsection H.

The 1989 amendment, effective June 16, 1989, in Subsection A inserted "having a fair market value greater than fifty dollars ($50.00)" in the first sentence; added present Subsection D; redesignated former Subsection D as present Subsection E, while substituting therein "claimed by its true owner, destroyed or otherwise disposed of pursuant to this section" for "or claimed by its true owner"; added Subsections F and G; redesignated former Subsection E as Subsection H, while substituting "ninety days" for "one year" at the end of the first sentence; and added Subsection I.

29-1-16. Electronic recordings of custodial interrogations.

A. A state or local law enforcement officer shall comply when reasonably able to do so with the following procedures when conducting a custodial interrogation:

(1) the custodial interrogation shall be electronically recorded in its entirety;

(2) if conducted in a police station, the custodial interrogation shall be electronically recorded by a method that includes audio or visual or both, if available; and

(3) the electronic recording shall include the advice of constitutional rights required by law.

B. A law enforcement officer shall comply with the provisions of this section unless the law enforcement officer has good cause not to electronically record the entire custodial interrogation and makes a contemporaneous written or electronic record of the reasons for not doing so. Good cause includes:

(1) the electronic recording equipment was not reasonably available;

(2) the electronic recording equipment failed and obtaining replacement equipment was not feasible;

(3) the individual refused to be recorded; or

(4) the statement was made in a court proceeding or a grand jury proceeding.

C. Statements that are spontaneously volunteered and not the result of custodial interrogation are not subject to the provisions of this section.

D. The provisions of this section shall apply only to custodial interrogations when, at the time of the interrogation, the person is suspected of committing a felony offense.

E. The provisions of this section do not apply to custodial interrogations conducted outside the state of New Mexico.

F. The provisions of this section do not apply to statements used for impeachment purposes.

G. The provisions of this section do not apply within a correctional facility.

H. As used in this section:

(1) "custodial interrogation" means questioning by law enforcement officers that requires the advice of constitutional rights; and

(2) "electronic recording" means a complete and authentic electronic recording created by visual or audio media, including by motion picture, videotape, audio tape or digital media.

I. This section shall not be construed to exclude otherwise admissible evidence in any judicial proceeding.

Severability. — Laws 2005, ch. 252, § 2 provided that if any part of Laws 2005, ch. 252, § 1 is held invalid, the remainder shall not be affected.

ANNOTATIONS

Law not retroactive. — Where defendant made statements to police officers at an interview that occurred on May 31, 2005, and Laws 2005, Chapter 252, Section 3 made Section 29-1-16 NMSA 1978 effective on January 1, 2006, Section 29-1-16 NMSA 1978 did not apply to defendant's statements. State v. Garcia, 2011-NMSC-003, 149 N.M. 185, 246 P.3d 1057.

29-1-17. Identity theft reports.

When a law enforcement officer interviews an alleged identity theft victim, the law enforcement officer shall make a written report of the information provided by the victim and by witnesses on appropriate forms provided by the attorney general. A copy of the police report shall be filed with the office of the attorney general.

29-1-18. Requiring certain law enforcement agencies to use body-worn cameras while on duty; adoption of policies and procedures governing use.

A. A law enforcement agency shall require peace officers the agency employs and who routinely interact with the public to wear a body-worn camera while on duty. Each law enforcement agency subject to the provisions of this section shall adopt policies and procedures governing the use of body-worn cameras, including:

(1) requiring activation of a body-worn camera whenever a peace officer is responding to a call for service or at the initiation of any other law enforcement or investigative encounter between a peace officer and a member of the public;

(2) prohibiting deactivation of a body-worn camera until the conclusion of a law enforcement or investigative encounter;

(3) requiring that any video recorded by a body-worn camera shall be retained by the law enforcement agency for not less than one hundred twenty days; and

(4) establishing disciplinary rules for peace officers who:

(a) fail to operate a body-worn camera in accordance with law enforcement agency policies;

(b) intentionally manipulate a body-worn camera recording; or

(c) prematurely erase a body-worn camera recording in violation of law enforcement agency policies.

B. Peace officers who fail to comply with the policies and procedures required to be adopted pursuant to Subsection A of this section shall be presumed to have acted in bad faith and shall be deemed liable for the independent tort of negligent spoliation of evidence or the independent tort of intentional spoliation of evidence.

C. As used in this section:

(1) "body-worn camera" means an electronic device worn on a person's body that records both audio and video data;

(2) "law enforcement agency" means the police department of a municipality, the sheriff's office of a county, the New Mexico state police or the department of public safety; and

(3) "peace officer" means any full-time salaried or certified part-time salaried officer who by virtue of office or public employment is vested by law with the duty to maintain the public peace.

History: Laws 2020 (1st S.S.), ch. 7, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2020 (1st S.S.), ch. 7 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective September 20, 2020, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

Am. Jur. 2d, A.L.R. and C.J.S. references. — 81A C.J.S. States § 81.

29-2-1.1. Definitions.

As used in Chapter 29 NMSA 1978:

A. "chief" or "chief of the state police" means the director of the New Mexico state police division of the department;

B. "commission" means the public safety advisory commission;

C. "department" means the department of public safety;

D. "member of the New Mexico state police" means a commissioned officer of the New Mexico state police, including an officer who is certified and commissioned as of June 30, 2015 in the former motor transportation division or the former special investigations division;

E. "New Mexico law enforcement academy" or "academy" means a division of the department established pursuant to the Law Enforcement Training Act [Chapter 29, Article 7 NMSA 1978];

F. "New Mexico state police" means the New Mexico state police division of the department; and

G. "secretary" means the secretary of public safety.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-2-1.1, enacted by Laws 1987, ch. 254, § 18; 1989, ch. 204, § 22; 2015, ch. 3, § 4.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by amending certain law enforcement definitions; in Subsection D, after the second occurrence of "state police," added the remainder of the sentence; in Subsection E, after "means a", deleted "bureau of the training and recruiting", after "department", deleted "of public safety" and added "established pursuant to the Law Enforcement Training Act"; in Subsection F, after the semicolon, added "and"; and deleted former Subsection G and redesignated former Subsection H as Subsection G.

The 1989 amendment, effective July 1, 1989, deleted "public safety" preceding "department" in Subsections A and F, and substituted "department of public safety" for "public safety department" in Subsection C, "New Mexico state police" for "department" in Subsection D, and all of the present language of Subsection E following "means" for "the training division of the public safety department".

29-2-2. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1987, ch. 254, § 27 repealed 29-2-2 NMSA 1978, as amended by Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 13, relating to police board composition, effective July 1, 1987.

29-2-3. New Mexico state police; organization.

The New Mexico state police shall consist of a chief and such patrol officers, sergeants, lieutenants and captains as the secretary may deem advisable within the limits of the funds appropriated for the New Mexico state police; provided that the number of captains, lieutenants and sergeants shall not exceed twenty-five percent of the total number of the police, exclusive of the chief; but this requirement shall not be interpreted so as to require the demotion of any member of the Repeals. — Laws 1987, ch. 254, § 27 repealed 29-2-5 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 5, relating to retention of chief and members of state police, effective July 1, 1987.

29-2-6. Qualifications of members.

A. Members of the New Mexico state police, except the chief, shall:

(1) at the time of their appointment, be citizens of the United States;

(2) at the time of their appointment, have reached twenty-one years of age;

(3) except as otherwise provided in Subsection B of this section, at the time of their appointment, have completed at least sixty hours of college credit or have had two years of military or law enforcement service. This requirement shall not apply to officers who are certified and commissioned as of June 30, 2015 in the former motor transportation division or the former special investigations division;

(4) be of good moral character and not have been convicted of a felony or infamous crime in the courts of this state or other state or any country or in the federal courts; and

(5) pass a physical examination that the New Mexico state police may require.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by clarifying qualification requirements for members of the New Mexico state police; in Subsection A, Paragraph 3, added the second sentence relating to certain certified and commissioned officers; in Subsection B, added the second sentence relating to certain certified and commissioned officers; and deleted Subsection C.

The 2011 amendment, effective June 17, 2011, supplemented the educational requirement for state police officers by adding, as an alternative to the college credit requirement, a requirement of two years of military or law enforcement service.

The 2009 amendment, effective June 19, 2009, in Paragraph (3) of Subsection A, added "except as otherwise provided in Subsection B of this section", deleted "not less than", and added "at least"; deleted former Subparagraph (b) of Paragraph (3) of Subsection A that required not less than 30 hours of college credit and completion of an additional 30 hours of college credit; and added Paragraph B.

The 2001 amendment, effective July 1, 2001, added Subparagraph A(3)(b).

The 1998 amendment, effective July 1, 1998, rewrote Paragraph A(3); deleted "any" preceding "or" in two places in Paragraph A(4); substituted "pass a physical" for "successfully pass any physical" in Paragraph A(5); and in Subsection B, substituted "A" for "No", inserted "not" following "shall", and substituted "a member of the public safety advisory commission for "any member of the department of public safety advisory commission".

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, substituted "twenty-one years of age" for "age of majority and be not more than thirty-five years of age" in Paragraph (2) of Subsection A; deleted former Subsection B which read "Members of the New Mexico state police, including the chief, shall not be over sixty-one years of age"; redesignated former Subsection C as Subsection B; and substituted "department of public safety advisory commission" for "New Mexico state police board" at the end of Subsection B.

ANNOTATIONS

Discretion to terminate officer for not passing physical. — The board (now commission) charged with management and control of the department has the discretion to terminate an officer for failure to pass the required physical examination. This is a continuing qualification and members must pass any reasonable physical examination required from time to time. Tafoya v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1970-NMSC-106, 81 N.M. 710, 472 P.2d 973.

Notice and hearing required. — While the board (now commission) may require its officers to submit to and pass any physical examination reasonably required and while the failure to pass may be the basis for a removal proceeding, this is far different from vaulting this section to a power of dismissal at the discretion of the board (now commission) without prior notice and a hearing. Tafoya v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1970-NMSC-106, 81 N.M. 710, 472 P.2d 973.

Nepotism provision controls over general statute. — The general state statute pertaining to nepotism (Section 10-1-10 NMSA 1978) is not applicable in regard to the hiring of state police personnel, but rather this section, which pertains specifically to the state police, is controlling. 1963-64 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 63-114.

When fully qualified individual not appointed as member. — One who is otherwise fully qualified cannot be appointed as a member of the New Mexico state police if his two years of residency did not occur immediately prior to the time of appointment, but such a person can be accepted by the state police as a candidate to attend the recruit training school. 1961-62 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 62-120 (opinion rendered prior to 1963 and 1967 amendments).

Prohibited relationship degrees. — It may be said that the officer and his wife stand one and the same, in relation to the collateral line relationship of the wife. This being so, the wife and her brother stand as to one another in the second degree. And continuing one degree further to the son of the aforesaid brother, being also the nephew of the herein considered officer's wife, a prohibited relationship degree exists, e.g., a third-degree separation. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 58-170 (opinion rendered prior to 1963 and 1967 amendments).

Applicant not considered for state police. — It is not permissible for an applicant to be considered for the New Mexico state police force whose father's sister is married to an officer of said force. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 58-170 (opinion rendered prior to 1963 and 1967 amendments).

29-2-7. Commissioned officers; application; procedure.

The New Mexico state police shall cause all applicants for the position of commissioned officer to submit a written detailed application on forms as the secretary shall prescribe, and the secretary shall cause an investigation to be made of all applicants, subsequent to their taking the examination referred to in Section 29-2-8 NMSA 1978, for the purpose of determining the moral character, general reputation and fitness of any applicant. An applicant who is found unfit as a result of the investigation shall be disqualified for employment. The secretary shall by rule prescribe the physical qualifications of applicants and shall require each applicant to submit to a physical examination by doctors as the secretary shall designate. An applicant who does not meet the physical requirements prescribed by the secretary shall be disqualified for employment. Inasmuch as laws have been enacted providing for retirement, disability and life insurance funds for members of the New Mexico state police, it is the intention of the legislature that no applicants will be appointed who are in such physical condition that the cost of such protection will thereby be increased.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-207, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 7; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-7; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 24; 1978, ch. 82, § 1; 1979, ch. 202, § 18; 2015, ch. 3, § 9.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by clarifying certain duties of the secretary of public safety with regard to commissioning officers; after "application on", deleted "such"; substituted "secretary" for "board" throughout the section; after the first occurrence of "examination", deleted "hereinafter"; after "referred to", added "in Section 29-2-8 NMSA 1978"; after "any applicant", inserted a period, deleted "and any such", began a second sentence and added "An"; in the present second sentence, after "result of", deleted "such" and added "the", after "examination by", deleted "such", and after "designate", inserted a period, deleted "and any", began a third sentence, and added "An".

29-2-8. New Mexico state police; commissioned officers; examination.

The New Mexico state police shall conduct a written examination of all applicants for the position of commissioned officer for the purpose of determining their mental qualifications and knowledge of the laws of New Mexico and their ability to render assistance in case of accidents upon the public highways. No applicant shall be appointed a member of the New Mexico state police, other than the chief, until the applicant has passed the written examination with a grade of not less than seventy-two percent. This section shall not apply to officers who are certified and commissioned as of June 30, 2015 in the former motor transportation division or the former special investigations division.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-208, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 8; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-8; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 25; 1978, ch. 82, § 2; 1979, ch. 202, § 19; 2015, ch. 3, § 10.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by clarifying certain qualification requirements of officers within the New Mexico state police; after "highways", deleted "and", inserted a period, and began a second sentence; in the present second sentence, after "until", deleted "he shall have" and added "the applicant has", after "passed", deleted "such" and added "the"; and added the third sentence relating to certain certified and commissioned officers.

29-2-9. Probationary period; length; permanent commission; salary.

A. All new appointments as members of the New Mexico state police shall be for a probationary period of two years. During the probationary period, the new members may be removed or suspended at the discretion of the chief. At the end of two years of satisfactory service and upon recommendation of the chief and with concurrence of the secretary, the appointee may receive a permanent commission as a member of the New Mexico state police. However, the probationary period may be extended beyond a two-year period upon the recommendation of the chief with the concurrence of the secretary. This subsection shall not apply to officers who are certified and commissioned as of June 30, 2015 in the former motor transportation division or the former special investigations division. Members who are on probation on July 1, 2015 shall complete the probationary period under which they were hired.

B. The salaries of all members of the New Mexico state police, probationary and permanent, and that of the chief shall be fixed by the secretary.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-209, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 9; 1953, ch. 80, § 2; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-9; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 26; 1979, ch. 202, § 20; 2015, ch. 3, § 11.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by clarifying certain duties of the secretary of public safety and amending qualification requirements for certain officers; designated the previously undesignated paragraphs as Subsections A and B; in the second sentence of Subsection A, deleted each occurrence of "such" and added "the", after "chief", deleted "of the New Mexico state police"; in the third sentence of Subsection A, after "concurrence of the", deleted "New Mexico state police board" and added "secretary"; in the fourth sentence of Subsection A, deleted "board" and added "secretary"; added the fifth sentence relating to certain certified and commissioned officers; and in Subsection B, after "fixed by the", deleted board and added "secretary".

29-2-10. Promotions.

All promotions in the New Mexico state police to the rank of sergeant shall be made after written examinations. All promotions above the rank of sergeant shall be made by the chief after concurrence and approval by the secretary. The ranks of sergeant, lieutenant and captain shall be permanent unless established as an exempt rank by the chief with the concurrence of the secretary. All promotions above the rank of captain are by executive appointment of the chief with concurrence of the secretary, and those persons shall serve at the pleasure of the chief with the concurrence of the secretary.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-210, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 10; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-10; Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 21; 2015, ch. 3, § 12.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by clarifying certain duties of the secretary of public safety with regard to promotions in the New Mexico state police; in the first sentence, after "written examinations", deleted the remainder of the sentence; and substituted "secretary" for "New Mexico state police board" and "board" throughout the section.

29-2-11. Disciplinary proceedings; appeal.

A. A New Mexico state police officer holding a permanent commission shall not be removed from office, demoted or suspended except for incompetence, neglect of duty, violation of a published rule of conduct, malfeasance in office or conduct unbecoming an officer, except as provided in this section. A probationary officer not holding a permanent commission may be removed from office, demoted or suspended in accordance with New Mexico state police rules.

B. The secretary may suspend an officer for disciplinary reasons for not more than thirty days in accordance with New Mexico state police rules without further review or appeal.

C. In the event an officer is removed from office, demoted or suspended for a period of more than thirty days, the secretary shall provide written notification of the grounds supporting the action to the officer. The officer may appeal the secretary's action to the commission within thirty days of the date of receipt of the secretary's written notification. The appeal process shall be public and conducted in accordance with New Mexico state police rules.

D. In the event the commission finds that there is just cause for the removal, demotion or suspension of the officer for a period in excess of thirty days, the officer may appeal the decision of the commission to the district court pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-211, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 11; 1953, ch. 80, § 3; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-11; Laws 1970, ch. 5, § 1, 1977, ch. 257, § 27; 1979, ch. 202, § 22; 1987, ch. 254, § 19; 1989, ch. 204, § 23; 1998, ch. 55, § 40; 1999, ch. 265, § 42; 2006, ch. 11, § 1; 2006, ch. 12, § 1.

The 2006 amendment, effective February 24, 2006, provided in Subsection A that a probationary officer not holding a permanent commission may be removed from office, demoted or suspended in accordance with state police rules; deleted the provision in Subsection B, which provided that an officer holding a permanent commission had the right to have a suspension reviewed by the commission; deleted provisions in Subsection C, which provided for the filing of written charges with the commission, notice of charges to the officer, a prompt hearing by the commission, legal representation of the officer, and the making of a record of the hearing; added a provision in Subsection C that the secretary shall provide notification to the officer of the grounds supporting a removal, demotion or suspension; added a provision in Subsection C, which provided for an appeal of the secretary's action to the commission in accordance with state police rules; and provided in Subsection D for an appeal to district court if the commission finds that there is just cause for the removal, demotion or suspension.

Laws 2006, ch. 11, § 1 and Laws 2006, ch. 12, § 1 enacted identical amendments to this section. The section was set out as amended by Laws 2006, ch. 12, § 1. See 12-1-8 NMSA 1978.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, substituted "Section 39-3-1.1" for "Section 12-8A-1" in Subsection D.

The 1998 amendment, effective September 1, 1998, inserted "; appeal" in the section heading; added the subsection designations; in Subsection B, substituted "rules" for "regulations"; in Subsection C, deleted "so" following "person"; and rewrote Subsection D.

The 1989 amendment, effective July 1, 1989, substituted "except as provided in this section" for "and only on specific written charges filed with the commission with timely and adequate notice of the charges to the person charged and after a hearing on the charges by the commission" in the first sentence; added the present second through fifth sentences; inserted "of his own choice and at his own expense" in the sixth sentence; rewrote the ninth sentence, which formerly read: "In the event the commission recommends to the secretary that the person charged shall be removed, demoted or suspended for a period in excess of thirty days and the secretary so orders,

29-2-13. Uniforms and badges; uniform allowance to be set by secretary.

A suitable and distinctive uniform shall be prescribed by the secretary. The secretary shall provide and issue to each commissioned officer a uniform and an appropriate badge which shall contain in plain legible letters the words "New Mexico state police". The prescribed uniform and badge shall be worn at all times when on duty, except when by direction of the chief or the governor, any member of the New Mexico state police is assigned to special duties. Uniform allowance and subsistence pay shall be established by the secretary and allowed in addition to a commissioned officer's salary and paid on a monthly basis to each commissioned officer of the division. The uniform allowance and subsistence pay shall be expended only for the purposes allowed and any portion of the uniform allowance or subsistence pay not so spent in each fiscal year shall revert to the general fund.

ANNOTATIONS

Section allows each officer to purchase own uniform. — This section indicates the legislative intention to allow each officer to purchase his own uniforms, since the phraseology cannot be said to even imply that the purchase of uniforms is to be made by the department pursuant to the State Purchasing Agent Act. 1964 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 64-134.

29-2-14. Unauthorized wearing of uniform or badge; unauthorized marking of motor vehicle; penalty.

A. Unauthorized wearing of uniform or badge consists of the wearing or requiring the wearing, without authorization by the secretary, of a uniform or badge or both whose material, color or design, or any combination of them, is such that the wearer appears to be a member of the New Mexico state police.

B. Unauthorized marking of motor vehicle consists of the marking, using, possessing or owning or requiring the marking or using, without authorization by the secretary, of a motor vehicle whose insignia, color or equipment, or any combination of them, is such that the motor vehicle appears to be a New Mexico state police motor vehicle.

C. Whoever commits unauthorized wearing of uniform or badge or unauthorized marking of motor vehicle is guilty of a petty misdemeanor.

29-2-15. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1987, ch. 254, § 27 repealed 29-2-15 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 14, relating to division of state police, effective July 1, 1987.

29-2-16. State police school; compensation.

A. Before entering upon the appointee's duties, every appointee to the New Mexico state police shall be required to attend a school of instruction approved by the secretary. A uniform course of instruction shall be given all trainees governing the operation, maintenance and temporary roadside repair of motor vehicles, the laws of the state that the appointee may be called on to enforce and other instruction as the secretary may require. Attendance at the school or other course of instruction as may be prescribed renders the person attending subject to the control of the New Mexico state police during attendance.

B. The secretary may, within the budgetary means of the New Mexico state police, allow subsistence and compensation for trainees attending the school of instruction at the New Mexico state police headquarters or elsewhere.

C. This section shall not apply to members of the former motor transportation division or the former special investigations division.

29-2-22. Rulemaking power; rules to establish standards of conduct.

The secretary has authority to make and promulgate rules and regulations for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of Sections 29-2-1 through 29-2-29 NMSA 1978. The secretary shall establish by rules, from time to time, standards of conduct for members of the New Mexico state police, and a copy of the rules shall be delivered to each member and displayed at each station of the department. The rules shall be filed pursuant to the State Rules Act [Chapter 14, Article 4 NMSA 1978].

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-221, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 21; 1953, ch. 80, § 5; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-21; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 37; 1978, ch. 82, § 5; 1979, ch. 202, § 31; 2015, ch. 3, § 19.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by giving the secretary of public safety rulemaking power; in the first sentence, after "The", deleted "New Mexico state police board shall have" and added "secretary has"; in the second sentence, after "The", deleted "New Mexico state police board" and added "secretary", after "copy", deleted "thereof" and added "of the rules", and after "each", deleted "such"; in the third sentence, deleted "Such" and added "The".

ANNOTATIONS

Board's authority to make rules controlled by statute. — Authority of the police board to promulgate rules and regulations must be found in and is limited by statute. Such authority is not limited to those powers expressly granted by statute, but includes, also, all powers that may fairly be implied therefrom. Winston v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1969-NMSC-066, 80 N.M. 310, 454 P.2d 967.

Agency's authority includes express and implied powers granted. — It is a fundamental principle of administrative law that the authority of an agency is not limited to those powers expressly granted by statute, but includes, also, all powers that may fairly be implied therefrom. Wimberly v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1972-NMSC-034, 83 N.M. 757, 497 P.2d 968.

Temporary rank adjustments within scope of powers. — Where New Mexico state police board has adopted a regulation providing that "all ranks above captain will be appointments and not permanent," and the officers who hold these ranks are given additional salary and emoluments, but these ranks, according to the record, are considered by the board and the department to be temporary, plaintiff's adjustments in rank from captain to major and major to lieutenant colonel were not promotions as such but were temporary advancements within the framework of administration of the New Mexico state police and both chief of police and the board acted within the scope of their authority under the laws of the state of New Mexico in adjusting plaintiff's rank from lieutenant colonel to major and from major to captain. Wimberly v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1972-NMSC-034, 83 N.M. 757, 497 P.2d 968.

Regulation allowing director to shift key personnel. — The procedures of advancement and reduction in rank resulting from regulation providing that all ranks above captain will be appointments and not permanent enable the chief of police to shift key personnel to positions where their interest and ability are used to best advantage. Wimberly v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1972-NMSC-034, 83 N.M. 757, 497 P.2d 968.

Board can prohibit employee from running for office. — The board can constitutionally promulgate a rule prohibiting a state police employee from running for or accepting a political office. State ex rel. Harkleroad v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1985-NMSC-076, 103 N.M. 270, 705 P.2d 676.

Involuntary retirement rule is invalid. — State police board regulation providing for involuntary retirement of all police officers who had completed 30 years of service, even where such officers had not reached mandatory retirement age, exceeded statutory authority of the board and therefore was invalid. Winston v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1969-NMSC-066, 80 N.M. 310, 454 P.2d 967.

Effect of using all of sick leave. — Rule 7 of regulation promulgated by state police board filed pursuant to this section makes it clear that under no circumstances can an officer who was injured in line of duty but who has used up all of his sick leave be granted a leave of absence from the police department, and request for such leave constitutes a voluntary resignation. Budagher v. N.M. State Police Bd., 1971-NMSC-077, 82 N.M. 787, 487 P.2d 489 (decided under prior law).

No authority for rule requiring mandatory retirement after 30 years. — There is no delegated authority for the state police board to promulgate a rule requiring mandatory retirement after 30 years of service; such rule would be unreasonable, arbitrary and conflict with the former retirement by age 61 requirement of Section 29-2-6B NMSA 1978. 1967 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 67-72 (rendered under prior law).

29-2-23. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 53 repealed 29-2-23 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1941, Ch. 147, § 23, relating to the transfer of powers and duties in the bureau of identification of the department of justice to the technical services bureau of the criminal justice support division of the criminal justice department, effective July 1, 1979.

29-2-24. Waiver.

The provisions of Sections 29-2-6 through 29-2-8 NMSA 1978 may be waived by the secretary with regard to plainclothes or special investigators and other employees not regularly uniformed.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-225, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 147, § 25; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-25; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 39; 1979, ch. 202, § 32; 2015, ch. 3, § 20.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by providing authority to the secretary of the department of public safety to waive certain qualification requirement for officers; after "waived by the", deleted "unanimous vote of all members of the New Mexico state police board" and added "secretary", and after "plainclothes", deleted "men".

29-2-25. Accident reports.

When any member of the New Mexico state police investigates a motor vehicle accident, the member shall make a written report of the findings on appropriate forms furnished by the New Mexico state police, the original of which report shall be filed in the office of the New Mexico state police and shall be furnished to any person upon written application accompanied by a fee as set by the secretary for the photocopy of each surface of all documents comprising a report.

History: 1941 Comp., § 40-226, enacted by Laws 1947, ch. 38, § 1; 1953 Comp., § 39-2-26; Laws 1957, ch. 59, § 1; 1977, ch. 257, § 40; 1978, ch. 82, § 6; 1979, ch. 202, § 33; 2015, ch. 3, § 21.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by amending the language relating to the completion of vehicle accident reports; after the first occurrence of "police", deleted "shall investigate" and added "investigates"; after "accident", deleted "he" and added "the member"; after "written report of", deleted "his" and added "the"; after the second occurrence of "report", deleted "and of all reports of motor vehicle accidents heretofore made"; after "set by the", deleted "New Mexico state police board" and added "secretary"; and changed "photostat" to "photocopy".

ANNOTATIONS

Limited protection of accused. — Section 29-10-4 NMSA 1978 protects the confidentiality of information concerning the identity of a person who has been accused, but not charged, with a crime only if that information has been collected in connection with an investigation of, or otherwise relates to, another person who has been charged with committing a crime. However, information in other records which identifies a person accused but not charged with or arrested for a crime may be protected from public disclosure under Section 14-2-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. Finally, even if it would otherwise be protected under either statute, information about a person accused but not charged with a crime is open to public inspection if it is contained in a document listed in Section 29-10-7 NMSA 1978. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-02.

No conflict between Arrest Record Information Act and section when accident falls within exemption of former 39-10-8D, 1953 Comp. (repealed and reenacted as Section 29-10-7 NMSA 1978), if the information on the accident report is the same as that information on the initial record of entry, or if any arrest information on the report is deleted from the copy disseminated. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-37 (opinion rendered under former law).

Accident report not confidential. — Reports made by police officers regarding an accident would not be considered confidential under Section 66-7-213 NMSA 1978, and would be subject to inspection by persons interested either in the office of the governor's traffic safety coordinating committee or in the police department which made and transmitted the report. 1953-54 Op. Att'y Gen. 53-5840 (opinion rendered under former law).

29-2-26. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 53 repealed 29-2-26 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1955, Ch. 193, § 1, relating to the representation of the state police board and police officers by the attorney general, effective July 1, 1979.

29-2-27. Security for the governor and the legislature.

A. The New Mexico state police shall provide security and protection for the governor, and security and protection for the governor's family. The extent and manner in which the security is provided shall be determined by the governor and the chief of the New Mexico state police.

B. The New Mexico state police shall provide security and protection for the legislature while it is in session.

29-3-3. New Mexico state police; cooperation; federal.

It shall be the duty of the New Mexico state police and it is hereby granted the power to cooperate with agencies of other states and of the United States having similar powers to develop and carry on a complete interstate, national and international system of criminal identification and investigation, and also to furnish upon request any information in their possession concerning any person charged with crime to any court, district attorney or police officer or any peace officer of this state, or of any other state or the United States.

History: Laws 1935, ch. 149, § 6; 1941 Comp., § 40-303; 1953 Comp., § 39-3-3; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 45; 1979, ch. 202, § 38.

ANNOTATIONS

No tort liability for failure to inform out-of-state officials of escape. — In a wrongful death action arising out of the escape of state prisoners, who crossed over into Colorado and killed a resident thereof, the New Mexico State police, who were informed of the escape soon after it occurred and diligently attempted to apprehend the escapees as soon as possible, but who did not inform Colorado officials, did not breach any duty giving rise to tort liability. Wittkowski v. State Corr. Dep't, 1985-NMCA-066, 103 N.M. 526, 710 P.2d 93, cert. quashed, 103 N.M. 442, 708 P.2d 1043, overruled on other grounds, Silva v. State, 1987-NMSC-107, 106 N.M. 472, 745 P.2d 380.

29-3-4. State agencies; cooperation.

A. It is the duty of the university of New Mexico, the human services department, the department of health and all other state departments, divisions, bureaus, boards, commissions, institutions and officials, free of charge or reward, to cooperate with the law enforcement officers of the state and the New Mexico state police, and to render to them such services and assistance relative to microanalysis, handwriting, toxicology, chemistry, photography, medicine, ballistics and all other sciences and matters relating to or that would aid in controlling crime and the detection, apprehension, identification and prosecution of criminals.

B. Beginning July 1, 2018 and through June 30, 2021, the department of public safety forensic laboratories bureau shall assist a law enforcement agency crime laboratory in a class A county with a population greater than six hundred thousand according to the most recent federal decennial census by processing and testing sexual assault examination kits that consist of one or more samples of biological material collected pursuant to a medical examination of a sexual assault victim for that laboratory. The bureau may charge a laboratory that the bureau assists as provided in this subsection a fee of up to eight hundred dollars ($800) for each sexual assault examination kit that the bureau processes and tests. Fees collected by the bureau in accordance with this subsection shall be deposited in the sexual assault examination kit fund.

C. As used in this section, "biological material" means material that is derived from a human body and includes bodily fluids, hair and skin cells.

History: Laws 1935, ch. 149, § 7; 1941 Comp., § 40-304; 1953 Comp., § 39-3-4; Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 46; 1978, ch. 3, § 1; 1979, ch. 202, § 39; 2017, ch. 98, § 1.

The 2017 amendment, effective June 16, 2017, required the department of public safety forensic laboratories bureau to assist certain local law enforcement crime laboratories for a three year period with testing samples of biological material collected pursuant to a medical examination of a sexual assault victim, allowed the bureau to charge a fee for assisting in testing samples of biological material, and defined "biological material" for purposes of this section; added the subsection designation "A."; in Subsection A, after "It", deleted "shall be" and added "is", after "human services department, the", added "department of" and after "health", deleted "and environment department", and after "departments", added "divisions"; and added Subsections B and C.

29-3-5 to 29-3-7. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 53 repealed 29-3-5 to 29-3-7 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1935, Ch. 149, §§ 8, 9, & 10, relating to supplies, quarters and reports of the technical services bureau of the criminal justice support division, criminal justice department, effective July 1, 1979.

29-3-8. Biometric identifying information of persons arrested; state arrest records; disposition.

A. A booking facility shall electronically collect biometric identifying information from a person arrested for the following crimes prior to the person's release:

(1) the commission of a criminal offense amounting to a felony;

(2) the commission of a criminal offense not amounting to a felony but punishable by imprisonment for more than six months under the laws of the state or a political subdivision of the state; or

(3) the violation of a provision of Section 66-8-102 NMSA 1978 or the violation of a municipal or county ordinance prescribing criminal penalties for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs.

B. Biometric identifying information shall be obtained each time a person is arrested.

C. At the time biometric identifying information is collected, the booking facility shall create an arrest record with a state arrest tracking number provided by the department. The arrest record shall include:

(1) the date of arrest;

(2) the state arrest tracking number assigned to the arrest record;

(3) the state personal identification number assigned to the arrestee by the department;

(4) the arrestee's biometric identifying information; and

(5) a completed description with charge code of each offense charged.

D. The department shall promulgate rules addressing:

(1) collection of biometric identifying information;

(2) submission of biometric identifying information;

(3) creation of a state personal identification number system to identify a person arrested and charged with a crime and ensure that the same state personal identification number is assigned to the person regardless of the number of times the person is arrested or the location of the arrest within the state; and

(4) creation of a state arrest tracking number system for each arrest record.

E. At booking, the booking facility shall immediately forward the arrest record and any other information required by department rule to the department.

F. The department shall immediately provide the:

(1) biometric identifying information to the federal bureau of investigation in Washington, D.C.;

(2) state personal identification number to agencies at all levels of government that are engaged in the apprehension, prosecution or defense, adjudication, incarceration or rehabilitation of criminal offenders; and

(3) arrest record to the administrative office of the district attorneys for submission to the appropriate prosecuting authority.

G. Biometric identifying information shall be collected from an inmate who is charged with a felony or misdemeanor offense while incarcerated, and the jail or corrections facility shall forward the offender's biometric identifying information to the department.

H. The administrative office of the courts shall provide to the department the disposition of all criminal cases assigned a state arrest tracking number. The disposition shall be provided in electronic format, promptly upon the conclusion of the case.

I. The administrative office of the district attorneys shall provide to the department the disposition of all criminal cases assigned a state arrest tracking number when the district attorney decides not to file charges in the case. The disposition shall be provided in electronic format promptly upon a district attorney's decision not to file charges in the case.

J. The department shall forward the disposition of all criminal cases to the federal bureau of investigation and the national crime information center within five business days of receipt.

K. Law enforcement agencies, the administrative office of the courts and the administrative office of the district attorneys shall allow the department access to their records for the purpose of auditing those records to ensure compliance with the provisions of this section.

L. As used in this section:

(1) "biometric identifying information" means physical characteristics used in verifying the identity of an individual, including photographs, fingerprint impressions and palm print impressions;

(2) "booking facility" means a jail, police station, sheriff's office or other place of detention;

(3) "charge code" means the unique code assigned to the crime from the master charge code table distributed by the New Mexico justice information sharing council;

(4) "state arrest tracking number" means an incident-based unique number assigned to the arrest; and

(5) "state personal identification number" means a unique number assigned to the arrestee based on the arrestee's biometric identifying information.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-3-8, enacted by Laws 1978, ch. 87, § 1; 1979, ch. 202, § 40; 1997, ch. 242, § 2; 2002, ch. 46, § 1; 2011, ch. 17, § 1; 2019, ch. 192, § 2.

The 2019 amendment, effective July 1, 2019, specified that photographs, fingerprints and palm prints are biometric identifying information of an arrested person; required booking facilities to electronically collect biometric identifying information from a person arrested for certain crimes, provided requirements for the content and disposition of arrest records, required the department of public safety to promulgate rules addressing the collection of biometric identifying information, and provided additional duties for the department of public safety; in the section heading, deleted "fingerprint and palm print impressions" and added "biometric identifying information", and after "arrested", added "state arrest records"; in Subsection A, after "A", deleted "person arrested for" and added "booking facility shall electronically collect biometric identifying information from a person arrested for the following crimes prior to the person's release:", added subsection designation "(1)", in Paragraph A(1), after "felony", deleted "under the laws of this state or any other jurisdiction shall be required by the arresting peace officer or the jail to make fingerprint and palm print impressions prior to the person's release. The arresting peace officer or the jail shall obtain fingerprint and palm print impressions and a photograph", added new Paragraphs A(2) and A(3); added new subsection designations "B." and "C."; in Subsection B, added "Biometric identifying information shall be obtained"; in Subsection C, after "time", deleted "of fingerprinting and palm printing" and added "biometric identifying information is collected, the booking facility shall create an arrest record with", after "state", added "arrest", and after "number", deleted "shall be assigned to the fingerprint and palm print records and the booking sheet." and added "provided by the department. The arrest record shall include:", and added new Paragraphs C(1) through C(5); deleted former Subsections B and C, added new Subsections D and E and redesignated former Subsections D through G as Subsections F through I, respectively; in Subsection F, deleted "Fingerprint and palm print impressions shall be made pursuant to rules adopted by the department. Fingerprint and palm print record submission policies and a state tracking number system for fingerprint and palm print records shall be implemented pursuant to rules adopted by the department. All felony, misdemeanor and DWI arrest fingerprints and palm prints shall be made in duplicate. Both copies and a photograph of the person arrested shall be forwarded to the department within five days following the date of arrest.", after "department shall", deleted "forward one copy" and added "immediately provide the:", and added new Paragraphs F(1) through F(3); in Subsection G, after the subsection designation, added "Biometric identifying information shall be collected from", after "incarcerated", deleted "shall be fingerprinted, palm printed and photographed", after "offender's", deleted "fingerprint and palm print records and photograph" and added "biometric identifying information"; in Subsection H, after "assigned a state", added "arrest"; in Subsection I, after "assigned a state", added "arrest"; added new Subsection J and redesignated former Subsection H as Subsection K; and added new Subsection L.

The 2011 amendment, effective June 17, 2011, required palm prints of persons who are arrested.

The 2002 amendment, effective July 1, 2002, in Subsection A, inserted "or the jail" and "prior to the person's release" in the first sentence, and added the second and third sentences; in Subsection B, substituted "by the arresting peace officer or the jail to make fingerprint impressions prior to the person's release" for "to make fingerprint impressions" in the first sentence, and added the second and third sentences; in Subsection C, inserted "or the jail" and "prior to the person's release" in the first sentence, and added the second and third sentences; rewrote Subsection D, substituting "the department" for "the New Mexico state police board" in the first sentence, adding the present second sentence, inserting "misdemeanor and DWI" in the third sentence, and adding the requirement of a photograph and the five-day requirement in the fourth sentence; deleted former Subsection E in light of the other amendments, and added present Subsections E through H.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, added Subsection C, redesignating the following subsections accordingly, and substituted "federal bureau of investigation" for "FBI" in Subsection E.

29-3-8.1. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 8 repealed 29-3-8.1 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 2002, ch. 46, § 2, relating to petition to expunge arrest information, effective January 1, 2020. For provisions of former section, see the 2019 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

29-3-9. Instruction.

The governor or the chief of the New Mexico state police may, when deemed necessary or advisable, detail and commission any member or members of the New Mexico state police to attend as a student any school of instruction, now or which may hereafter be established and operated by the United States or any of its agencies, having for its purpose the instruction and training of operators in crime detection and identification, investigation and apprehension of criminals. Such person or persons so detailed and commissioned shall, when they are members of the New Mexico state police, draw the same salaries and allowances as when on duty in this state and shall be deemed to be on leave of absence for such purpose. All other persons so detailed and commissioned for such purpose shall be paid such compensation and allowance as may be provided by law.

29-3-10. DNA collection from persons arrested.

A. A person eighteen years of age or over who is arrested for the commission of a felony under the laws of this state or any other jurisdiction shall provide a DNA sample to jail or detention facility personnel upon booking. A sample is not required if it is determined that a sample has previously been taken, is in the possession of the administrative center, has not been expunged pursuant to the DNA Identification Act [Chapter 29, Article 16 NMSA 1978] and is sufficient for DNA identification testing.

B. Jail or detention facility personnel who collect samples pursuant to this section shall forward the samples to the administrative center. A sample shall not be analyzed and shall be destroyed unless one of the following conditions has been met:

(1) the arrest was made upon an arrest warrant for a felony;

(2) the defendant has appeared before a judge or magistrate who made a finding that there was probable cause for the arrest; or

(3) the defendant posted bond or was released prior to appearing before a judge or magistrate and then failed to appear for a scheduled hearing.

C. Samples shall be collected in accordance with rules and procedures adopted by the DNA oversight committee, shall be subject to the confidentiality and penalty provisions of the DNA Identification Act and shall be used only as authorized by that act.

D. As used in this section:

(1) "administrative center" means the law enforcement agency or unit that administers and operates the DNA identification system pursuant to the provisions of the DNA Identification Act;

(2) "DNA" means deoxyribonucleic acid; and

(3) "sample" means a sample of biological material that is sufficient for DNA testing.

History: Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 1; 2011, ch. 84, § 1.

The 2011 amendment, effective July 1, 2011, required DNA samples from all persons arrested for commission of a felony if the arrest was made upon an arrest warrant, a judge or a magistrate has found probable cause for the arrest, or the defendant failed to appear for a hearing after posting bond.

29-3-11. Uniform crime reporting system established; duties of department.

A. The department of public safety shall develop, operate and maintain a uniform crime reporting system and shall be the central repository for the collection, storage, retrieval and analysis of crime incident and arrest reports generated by all law enforcement agencies in this state. The system shall be operational as of January 1, 2008.

B. The department shall:

(1) compile statistical data and forward such data as required to the federal bureau of investigation or the appropriate department of justice agency in accordance with standards and procedures of the national system;

(2) provide forms, standards and procedures and related training to state and local law enforcement agencies as necessary for the agencies to report incident and arrest activity for inclusion in the statewide system;

(3) in conjunction with the New Mexico sentencing commission, annually publish a report on the nature and extent of crime in New Mexico and submit the report to the governor and to the legislature;

(4) maintain the privacy and security of information in accordance with applicable state and federal laws;

(5) provide the New Mexico sentencing commission access to the data collected and maintained by the department; and

(6) establish rules as necessary to implement the provisions of this section.

C. Every law enforcement agency in the state shall:

(1) submit crime incident reports to the department of public safety on forms or in the format prescribed by the department;

(2) submit any other crime incident information as may be required by the department of public safety; and

(3) use the unique code assigned to the crime from the master charge code table distributed by the New Mexico justice information sharing council for the automated fingerprint identification system and use uniform crime incident reporting as provided by the department for all incidents and arrests.

D. The annual report and other statistical data reports generated by the department shall be made available to state and local law enforcement agencies, the administrative office of the courts and the general public.

The 2019 amendment, effective July 1, 2019, required the department of public safety to share data with the New Mexico sentencing commission; in Subsection B, added new Paragraph B(5); in Subsection C, in Paragraph C(3), after "use the', deleted "state uniform statutory charge codes" and added "unique code assigned to the crime from the master charge code table distributed by the New Mexico justice information sharing council"; and in Subsection D, after "law enforcement agencies," added "the administrative office of the courts".

29-3-12. Updates to criminal history records.

The department of public safety shall maintain an electronic subscription service to provide notice of updates to criminal history records, including dispositions, for agencies authorized by law to receive particular criminal history record information. The department shall update, upon receipt, criminal history repository records and dispositions pursuant to any change in information discovered by the department. Within forty-eight hours after the department becomes aware that an individual's criminal history record information in a repository record has changed, the department shall provide notice of the updated information to any agency authorized by law to receive information on that particular record.

29-3A-1. Short title.

Chapter 29, Article 3A NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Criminal Record Expungement Act".

History: Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 1; 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3, § 3.

The 2021 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective June 29, 2021, changed "This act" to "Chapter 29, Article 3A NMSA 1978".

29-3A-2. Definitions.

As used in the Criminal Record Expungement Act:

A. "arrest records" means records of identification of a person under arrest or under investigation for a crime taken or gathered by an official; "arrest records" includes information gathered from the national crime information center or another criminal record database, photographs, fingerprints and booking sheets; except "arrest records" does not include:

(1) driving while intoxicated citations maintained by the taxation and revenue department;

(2) computer-aided dispatch information; or

(3) log books relating to breath alcohol testing equipment;

B. "expungement" means the removal from access to the general public of a notation of an arrest, complaint, indictment, information, plea of guilty, conviction, acquittal, dismissal or discharge record, including a record posted on a publicly accessible court, corrections or law enforcement internet website; and

C. "public records" means documentation relating to a person's arrest, indictment, proceeding, finding or plea of guilty, conviction, acquittal, dismissal or discharge, including information posted on a court or law enforcement website; but "public records" does not include:

(1) arrest record information that:

(a) reveals confidential sources, methods, information or individuals accused but not charged with a crime and that is maintained by the state or any of its political subdivisions pertaining to any person charged with the commission of any crime; or

(b) is confidential and unlawful to disseminate or reveal, except as provided in the Arrest Record Information Act [Chapter 29, Article 10 NMSA 1978] or other law;

(2) the file of a district attorney or attorney general maintained as a confidential record for law enforcement purposes and not open for inspection by members of the public;

(3) a record maintained by the children, youth and families department, the human services department or the public education department when that record is confidential under state or federal law and is required to be maintained by state or federal law for audit or other purposes; or

(4) a record received pursuant to a background check as authorized by law.

29-3A-3. Expungement of records upon identity theft.

A. A person who is wrongfully identified in arrest records or public records as a result of identity theft may petition the district court for an order to expunge arrest records and public records.

B. After a hearing on the petition and upon a showing that the person is a victim of identity theft, the court shall issue an order within thirty days of the hearing requiring that all arrest records and public records be expunged.

C. The court shall cause a copy of the order to be delivered to all relevant law enforcement agencies and courts. The order shall prohibit all relevant law enforcement agencies and courts from releasing copies of such records to any person, except upon order of the court.

D. After notice to and a hearing for all interested parties and in compliance with all applicable law, the court shall insert in the records the correct name and other identifying information of the offender, if known or ascertainable, in lieu of the name of the person wrongly identified.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 3. Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 9 made Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 3 effective January 1, 2020.

29-3A-4. Expungement of records upon release without conviction.

A. One year from the date of the final disposition in the case, a person released without conviction for a violation of a municipal ordinance, misdemeanor, felony, penalty assessments under the Criminal Code [30-1-1 NMSA 1978] and the Motor Vehicle Code [66-1-1 NMSA 1978] or violations and deferred sentences under the Motor Vehicle Code may petition the district court in the district in which the charges against the person originated for an order to expunge arrest records and public records related to that case.

B. A petitioner shall provide notice by first-class United States mail of the filed petition to the following parties, which parties shall be given thirty days in which to provide to the district court any objections to the petition:

(1) the district attorney for that district; and

(2) the department of public safety.

C. A single petition filed pursuant to Subsection A of this section may include a request to expunge multiple arrest records and public records that originated within the jurisdiction of a district. A petition shall be filed under seal or under pseudonym. Petitions brought pursuant to the Criminal Record Expungement Act and all records of proceedings thereunder shall be expunged upon the conclusion of proceedings. The petitioner shall attach to and file with the petition copies of the petitioner's record of arrest and prosecutions from the department of public safety dated no earlier than ninety days prior to the date the petition is filed.

D. A party that seeks to object to a petition on the basis of the contents of a petitioner's record of arrest and prosecutions from the federal bureau of investigation must provide a copy of that record to a petitioner at no charge at the time the party objects.

E. After a hearing on the petition, the court shall issue an order within thirty days of the hearing requiring that all arrest records and public records related to the case be expunged if it finds that no other charge or proceeding is pending against the petitioner and if the petitioner was released without a conviction, including:

(1) an acquittal or finding of not guilty;

(2) a nolle prosequi, a no bill or other dismissal;

(3) a referral to a preprosecution diversion program;

(4) an order of conditional discharge pursuant to Section 31-20-13 NMSA 1978; or

(5) the proceedings were otherwise discharged.

F. The court shall cause a copy of the order to be delivered to all relevant law enforcement agencies and courts. The order shall prohibit all relevant law enforcement agencies and courts from releasing copies of the records to any person, except upon order of the court.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 4; 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3, § 4.

The 2021 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective June 29, 2021, added penalty assessments under the Criminal Code and the Motor Vehicle Code or violations and deferred sentences under the Motor Vehicle Code to the existing provision that authorizes a person to petition a district court for an order to expunge arrest records and public records related to the case, made changes to the requirements for notice of petitions and objections, and added provisions governing the form and content of petitions; in Subsection A, after "felony", added "penalty assessments under the Criminal Code and the Motor Vehicle Code or violations and deferred sentences under the Motor Vehicle Code"; in Subsection B, after "provide notice", added "by first-class United States mail", and after "shall be given", deleted "an opportunity" and added "thirty days in which", and deleted former Paragraph B(3); and added new Subsections C and D and redesignated former Subsections C and D as Subsections E and F, respectively.

29-3A-5. Expungement of records upon conviction.

A. A person convicted of a violation of a municipal ordinance, misdemeanor or felony, following the completion of the person's sentence and the payment of any fines or fees owed to the state for the conviction, may petition the district court in which the person was convicted for an order to expunge arrest records and public records related to that conviction.

B. A petitioner shall provide notice of the filed petition to the following parties, which parties shall be given an opportunity to provide to the district court any objections to the petition:

(1) the district attorney for that district;

(2) the department of public safety; and

(3) the law enforcement agency that arrested the petitioner.

C. After a hearing on a petition, the court shall issue an order within thirty days of the hearing requiring that all arrest records and public records related to the conviction be expunged if the court finds that:

(1) no other charge or proceeding is pending against the petitioner;

(2) justice will be served by an order to expunge;

(3) the petitioner has fulfilled any victim restitution ordered by the court in connection with the petitioner's conviction; and

(4) no other criminal conviction of the petitioner has occurred for a period of:

(a) two years if the petition relates to a conviction for a violation of a municipal ordinance or a misdemeanor not otherwise provided in this paragraph;

(b) four years if the petition relates to a misdemeanor conviction for aggravated battery as provided in Subsection B of Section 30-3-5 NMSA 1978 or to a conviction for a fourth degree felony not otherwise provided in this paragraph;

(c) six years if the petition relates to a conviction for a third degree felony not otherwise provided in this paragraph;

(d) eight years if the petition relates to a conviction for a second degree felony not otherwise provided in this paragraph; or

(e) ten years if the petition relates to a conviction for a first degree felony or for any offense provided in the Crimes Against Household Members Act [30-3-10 through 30-3-18 NMSA 1978].

D. The court shall cause a copy of the order to be delivered to all relevant law enforcement agencies and courts. The order shall prohibit all relevant law enforcement agencies and courts from releasing copies of such records to any person, except upon order of the court.

E. To determine whether justice will be served by an order to expunge, the court shall consider:

(1) the nature and gravity of the offense or conduct that resulted in the petitioner's conviction;

(2) the petitioner's age, criminal history and employment history;

(3) the length of time that has passed since the offense was committed and the related sentence was completed;

(4) the specific adverse consequences the petitioner may be subject to if the petition is denied; and

(5) any reasons to deny expungement of the records submitted by the district attorney.

F. For the purposes of determining the time lapsed since a criminal conviction as required in Subsection C of this section, time shall be measured from the last date on which a person completed a sentence for a conviction in any jurisdiction.

G. The provisions of Subsection A of this section do not apply to an offense committed against a child, an offense that caused great bodily harm or death to another person, a sex offense as defined in Section 29-11A-3 NMSA 1978, embezzlement pursuant to Section 30-16-8 NMSA 1978 or an offense involving driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs.

29-3A-6. Notices; rulemaking.

The administrative office of the courts and the department of public safety shall develop rules and procedures to implement the Criminal Record Expungement Act, including procedures for notifying the accused of the accused's rights under that act.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 6. Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 9 made Laws 2019, ch. 203, § 6 effective January 1, 2020.

29-3A-7. Effect of an order to expunge.

Upon entry an of order to expunge, the proceedings shall be treated as if they never occurred, and officials and the person who received the order to expunge may reply to an inquiry that no record exists with respect to the person; provided that arrest or conviction records shall be disclosed by the person and officials in connection with any application for or query regarding qualification for employment or association with any financial institution regulated by the financial industry regulatory authority or the securities and exchange commission.

29-3A-8. Expungement of arrest and conviction records; procedure.

If a person was charged with an offense involving cannabis that is no longer a crime on the effective date of the Cannabis Regulation Act [26-2C-1 to 26-2C-42 NMSA 1978] or that would have resulted in a lesser offense if that act had been in effect at the time of the offense, whether or not the person is convicted, all public records held by a court or an agency of the state or a local jurisdiction that relate to the person's arrest or conviction shall be automatically expunged two years after the date of the person's conviction or the date of the person's arrest if there was no conviction; provided that if the arrest or conviction included multiple charges, only the portions of the public records related to the cannabis charge shall be expunged. If the person is or was under eighteen years of age at the time of the arrest or conviction, the public records shall be retained for two years or until the person is eighteen years of age, whichever comes first, and shall then be automatically expunged; provided that if the arrest or conviction included multiple charges, only the portions of the public records related to the cannabis charge shall be expunged. The public records shall be removed from all statewide criminal databases. The supreme court shall promulgate rules to implement the provisions of this section.

History: Laws 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3, § 5. Effective dates. — Laws 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 29, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

29-3A-9. Dismissal of sentences; incarcerated persons.

A. Within thirty days following the effective date of this section, a correctional facility, a county jail or a juvenile correctional facility in which a person is currently incarcerated for an offense that is no longer a crime pursuant to the provisions of the Cannabis Regulation Act [26-2C-1 to 26-2C-42 NMSA 1978], or that would have resulted in a lesser offense if that act had been in effect at the time of the offense, shall notify the court that the convicted person's case may be:

(1) reopened to consider possible dismissal of the person's sentence; or

(2) expunged pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Record Expungement Act.

B. A court shall reopen a case pursuant to Subsection A of this section and dismiss the person's sentence if it is legally invalid.

C. A person who has completed the person's sentence for a conviction, whether by trial or negotiated plea, who would not have been guilty of an offense or who would have been guilty of a lesser offense if the Cannabis Regulation Act had been in effect at the time of the offense is entitled to have the conviction dismissed and expunged because the prior conviction is now legally invalid or redesignated as a penalty assessment citation.

D. On or before January 1, 2022, the department of public safety shall review the public records in the state criminal history databases and shall identify all past convictions that are potentially eligible for dismissal and expungement or redesignation pursuant to the Cannabis Regulation Act. The department of public safety shall notify the corrections department, prosecutors and defense counsel of record in the case resulting in the conviction of all cases that are eligible for dismissal and expungement or redesignation.

E. The prosecutor of the case shall have until July 1, 2022 to review all cases and determine whether to challenge the dismissal and expungement or redesignation.

F. The prosecutor of the case may challenge the resentencing of a person pursuant to this section when the person does not meet the criteria established under the Cannabis Regulation Act.

G. On or before July 1, 2022, the prosecutor of the case shall inform the court and defense counsel of record in the case resulting in the conviction when the prosecutor of the case is challenging a particular dismissal and expungement or redesignation. The prosecutor of the case shall also inform the court when the prosecutor of the case is not challenging a particular dismissal and expungement or redesignation.

H. If the prosecutor of the case does not challenge the dismissal and expungement or redesignation by July 1, 2022, the court shall notify the department of public safety that the case has been dismissed. Upon notice, the department of public safety shall expunge the public record pertaining to the offense; provided that if the arrest included multiple charges, only the portions of the public records related to the cannabis charge shall be expunged.

I. A person who is currently incarcerated or who was incarcerated in the past for a cannabis offense that is no longer a crime may at any time petition to modify the person's criminal sentence or to have the person's conviction vacated. If the petition is granted, the court shall issue an order within thirty days of the granting of the petition requiring that the portions of the public records related to the cannabis offense, as well as all records of proceedings related to the petition for expungement, be expunged.

J. Nothing in this section is intended to diminish or abrogate any rights or remedies otherwise available to a person who was convicted of or incarcerated for a cannabis offense.

K. The provisions of this section shall apply equally to juvenile delinquency adjudications and convictions of a juvenile if the juvenile would not have been guilty of an offense or would have been guilty of a lesser offense as provided in the Cannabis Regulation Act.

L. No fee or cost of any kind shall be imposed upon a person whose sentence is reviewed pursuant to this section.

History: Laws 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3, § 6.

Effective dates. — Laws 2021 (1st S.S.), ch. 3 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 29, 2021, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

29-3B-1. Short title.
29-3B-2. Definitions.
29-3B-3. Eyewitness identification procedures.
29-3B-4. Training of law enforcement officers.

29-3B-1. Short title.

Sections 12 through 15 [29-3B-1 through 29-3B-4 NMSA 1978] of this act may be cited as the "Accurate Eyewitness Identification Act".

History: Laws 2019, ch. 211, § 12.

Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 211, § 17 made Laws 2019, ch. 211, § 12 effective July 1, 2019.

29-3B-2. Definitions.

As used in the Accurate Eyewitness Identification Act:

A. "administrator" means a person conducting a photo lineup or live lineup;

B. "blind" means the administrator does not know the identity of the suspect;

C. "blinded" means the administrator may know who the suspect is but does not know which lineup member is being viewed by the eyewitness;

D. "eyewitness" means a person who observes another person at or near the scene of an offense;

E. "filler" means either a person or a photograph of a person who is not suspected of an offense and is included in an identification procedure;

F. "live lineup" means an identification procedure in which a group of persons, including the suspected perpetrator of an offense and other persons not suspected of the offense, is displayed to an eyewitness for the purpose of determining whether the eyewitness identifies the suspect as the perpetrator;

G. "photo lineup" means an identification procedure in which an array of photographs, including a photograph of the suspected perpetrator of an offense and additional photographs of other persons not suspected of the offense, is displayed to an eyewitness either in hard copy form or via computer for the purpose of determining whether the eyewitness identifies the suspect as the perpetrator;

H. "showup" means an identification procedure in which an eyewitness is presented with a single suspect for the purpose of determining whether the eyewitness identifies this individual as the perpetrator; and

I. "suspect" means a person believed by law enforcement to be the possible perpetrator of the crime.

History: Laws 2019, ch. 211, § 13.

Effective dates. — Laws 2019, ch. 211, § 17 made Laws 2019, ch. 211, § 13 effective July 1, 2019.

29-3B-3. Eyewitness identification procedures.

A. Not later than January 1, 2020, a criminal justice entity conducting eyewitness identification procedures shall adopt and comply with written policies for using an eyewitness to make a decision about whether a suspect is the perpetrator of a crime upon viewing the suspect in person in a live lineup or showup or upon viewing a representation of the suspect in a photo lineup.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

B. Each governmental entity in New Mexico that administers eyewitness identification procedures shall provide a copy of its written policies to the secretary of public safety no later than February 1, 2020 and the secretary shall make those policies available to the public.

C. A law enforcement agency shall biennially review policies adopted pursuant to this section to incorporate new scientifically supported protocols.

D. In developing and revising policies pursuant to this section, a law enforcement agency shall adopt those practices shown by reliable evidence to enhance the accuracy of identification procedures. Each governmental entity in New Mexico that administers eyewitness identification procedures shall submit its updated written policies to the secretary of public safety no later than February 1 of each odd-numbered year.

E. A law enforcement agency shall include in policies adopted pursuant to this section practices to enhance the objectivity and reliability of eyewitness identifications and to minimize the possibility of mistaken identifications, including the following:

(1) having a blind administrator or blinded administrator perform the live lineup or photo lineup;

(2) documenting a description of the suspect provided by the eyewitness, including a description of the circumstances under which the suspect was seen by the eyewitness, the time of day, the length of time the suspect was seen, the perceived or actual distance from the eyewitness to the suspect and the lighting conditions;

(3) providing the eyewitness with instructions that minimize the likelihood of an inaccurate identification, including that the perpetrator may or may not be in the identification procedure and that the investigation will continue regardless of whether an identification is made;

(4) composing the lineup so that the fillers generally resemble the eyewitness's description of the perpetrator so that the suspect does not unduly stand out from the fillers;

(5) using at least four fillers in a live lineup and at least five fillers in a photo lineup;

(6) ensuring, when practicable, that a photograph of the suspect used in a photo lineup is contemporary and resembles the suspect's appearance at the time of the offense;

(7) presenting separate photo lineups and live lineups when there are multiple eyewitnesses, ensuring that the same suspect is placed in a different position for each identification procedure;

(8) having the administrator seek and document a clear statement from the eyewitness, at the time of the identification and in the eyewitness's own words, as to the eyewitness's confidence level that the person identified is the person who committed the crime;

(9) minimizing factors at any point in time that influence an eyewitness to identify a suspect or affect the eyewitness's confidence level in identifying a suspect, including verbal or nonverbal statements by or reactions from the administrator;

(10) presenting lineup members one at a time;

(11) adopting relevant practices shown to enhance the reliability of an eyewitness participating in a showup procedure, such as:

(a) identifying the circumstances under which a showup is warranted;

(b) transporting the eyewitness to a neutral, non-law enforcement location where the detained suspect is being held;

(c) removing the suspect from the law enforcement squad car;

(d) removing restraints from the suspect when the suspect is being observed by the eyewitness; and

(e) administering the showup procedure close in time to the commission of the crime;

(12) video recording the entirety of the photo lineup and live lineup and, where practicable, the showup procedure, unless the recording equipment is not reasonably available or the recording equipment fails and obtaining replacement equipment is not feasible; and

(13) preserving photographic documentation of all live lineup and photo lineup members and showup suspects, as well as all descriptions provided by the eyewitness of the perpetrator.

ANNOTATIONS

Article II, Sec. 18 provides broader due process protections than the United States constitution in the context of admission of eyewitness identification evidence. — Article II, Section 18 of the New Mexico constitution affords broader due process protection than the United States constitution in the context of admission of eyewitness identification evidence because the federal reliability standard, the Manson rule, is both scientifically and jurisprudentially unsound, and hence flawed under an interstitial review, and therefore does not satisfy due process under the New Mexico constitution. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-002, overruling Patterson v. LeMaster, 2001-NMSC-013, 130 N.M. 179, 21 P.3d 1032, State v. Jacobs, 2000-NMSC-026, 129 N.M. 448, 10 P.3d 127, and State v. Baca, 1983-NMSC-049, 99 N.M. 754, 664 P.2d 360.

New standard for determining whether eyewitness identification evidence is admissible at trial. — Under New Mexico's new standard for determining whether eyewitness identification evidence is admissible at trial, if a witness makes an identification of a defendant as a result of a police identification procedure that is unnecessarily suggestive and conducive to misidentification, the identification and any subsequent identification by the same witness must be suppressed. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-002, overruling Patterson v. LeMaster, 2001-NMSC-013, 130 N.M. 179, 21 P.3d 1032, State v. Jacobs, 2000-NMSC-026, 129 N.M. 448, 10 P.3d 127, and State v. Baca, 1983-NMSC-049, 99 N.M. 754, 664 P.2d 360.

Burden of proof for admitting evidence of eyewitness identifications. — Under New Mexico's approach to admitting eyewitness identifications, the initial burden falls on the accused to establish prima facie that some aspect of the identification procedure employed by the police was suggestive in nature. If the accused does not meet that burden, suppression is not required. However, if the accused demonstrates that the identification procedure contained one or more suggestive elements, the burden shifts to the state to prove by clear and convincing evidence either that (1) the procedure employed was not so suggestive as to materially taint the identification made by the eyewitness, which is to say that any departure from proper procedure could not have increased the risk of misidentification, or (2) good reason existed for the police to employ the suggestive procedure in the first instance. If the state fails to carry its responsive burden, the identification evidence and any subsequent in-court identification must be suppressed. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-002, overruling Patterson v. LeMaster, 2001-NMSC-013, 130 N.M. 179, 21 P.3d 1032, State v. Jacobs, 2000-NMSC-026, 129 N.M. 448, 10 P.3d 127, and State v. Baca, 1983-NMSC-049, 99 N.M. 754, 664 P.2d 360.

New Mexico courts abandon the independent source doctrine in the context of disputed eyewitness identifications. — Pursuant to the independent source doctrine, an in-court identification which is independent of and not tainted by an out-of-court identification is admissible at trial. The independent source doctrine in the context of due process and disputed eyewitness identification evidence lacks legal justification and is contrary to existing science. New Mexico therefore abandons the doctrine in the context of disputed eyewitness identifications. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-002, overruling Patterson v. LeMaster, 2001-NMSC-013, 130 N.M. 179, 21 P.3d 1032, State v. Jacobs, 2000-NMSC-026, 129 N.M. 448, 10 P.3d 127, and State v. Baca, 1983-NMSC-049, 99 N.M. 754, 664 P.2d 360.

Suppression of eyewitness identification not required where defendant failed to establish prima facie that some aspect of the identification procedure used was suggestive in nature. — Where defendant was charged with two counts of murder in the first-degree, and where, during the investigation, detectives showed an eyewitness five or six photos of different individuals, including a picture of defendant, and where the eyewitness identified defendant in one of the photographs as the person he saw at the scene of the shooting, and where, two days later, detectives assembled a photo array and requested that the eyewitness view the array which was composed of six photographs, some of which were the same photos shown to the eyewitness two days before as well as some photos that were new to him, and where the eyewitness again identified defendant in a photo as the person he saw at the scene of the shooting, the district court did not err in admitting evidence of the eyewitness's identification because defendant failed to establish prima facie that some aspect of the identification procedure used by the detectives was suggestive in nature. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-002, overruling Patterson v. LeMaster, 2001-NMSC-013, 130 N.M. 179, 21 P.3d 1032, State v. Jacobs, 2000-NMSC-026, 129 N.M. 448, 10 P.3d 127, and State v. Baca, 1983-NMSC-049, 99 N.M. 754, 664 P.2d 360.

29-3B-4. Training of law enforcement officers.

The secretary of public safety shall create, administer and conduct training programs for law enforcement officers and recruits on the methods and technical aspects of the eyewitness identification practices and procedures shown by reliable evidence to enhance the accuracy of eyewitness evidence referenced in the Accurate Eyewitness Identification Act.

29-4A-1. Short title.

Chapter 29, Article 4A NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Peace Officers', New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers' Survivors Supplemental Benefits Act".

History: Laws 1995, ch. 59, § 1; 2002, ch. 78, § 1; 2016, ch. 41, § 1.

The 2016 amendment, effective May 18, 2016, amended the title of the act to include New Mexico mounted patrol members and reserve police officers; and after "Peace Officers'", added "New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers'".

The 2002 amendment, effective May 15, 2002, substituted "Chapter 29, Article 4A NMSA 1978" for "This act".

29-4A-2. Findings; purpose.

The legislature finds that peace officers throughout the state risk their lives daily to protect the citizens of New Mexico. The legislature further finds that when peace officers are killed in the line of duty, their immediate families can suffer grievously, both emotionally and economically. To recognize the substantial public safety benefits conferred by peace officers and in consideration of the sacrifices undertaken by these officers and their families for the citizens of New Mexico, it is the purpose of the Peace Officers' Survivors Supplemental Benefits Act to ensure that certain supplemental death benefits accrue to the spouse and surviving children, or parents if there are no surviving children or spouse, of a peace officer killed in the line of duty.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 59, § 2; 2002, ch. 78, § 2.

The 2002 amendment, effective May 15, 2002, inserted "or parents if there are no surviving children or spouse" in the last sentence.

29-4A-3. Definitions.

As used in the Peace Officers', New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers' Survivors Supplemental Benefits Act:

A. "fund" means the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund;

B. "New Mexico mounted patrol" means units or troops officered and manned to assist with law enforcement pursuant to the provisions of Sections 29-6-1 and 29-6-4 NMSA 1978, Subsection A of Section 29-6-5 NMSA 1978 and Section 29-6-6 NMSA 1978;

C. "peace officer" means any full-time salaried and commissioned or certified law enforcement officer of a police or sheriff's department or a conservation officer of the department of game and fish as used in Chapter 17 NMSA 1978 that is part of or administered by the state or any political subdivision of the state;

D. "reserve police officer" means a volunteer or a temporary or part-time employee of a state or local law enforcement agency who is accepted by that agency as a reserve law enforcement officer after receiving a background check and training as needed by that agency and who is not a member of the New Mexico mounted patrol; and

E. "secretary" means the secretary of public safety.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 59, § 3; 1997, ch. 165, § 1; 2016, ch. 41, § 2.

The 2016 amendment, effective May 18, 2016, defined New Mexico mounted patrol members and reserve police officers as used in the Peace Officers', New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers' Supplemental Benefits Act; in the introductory sentence, after "Peace Officers'", added "New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers'", in Subsection A, after "peace officers'", added ", New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers'"; added new Subsection B and redesignated former Subsection B as Subsection C; and added new Subsection D and redesignated former Subsection C as Subsection E.

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, inserted "or a conservation officer of the department of game and fish as used in Chapter 17 NMSA 1978" in Subsection B.

29-4A-4. Fund created.

The "peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund" is created in the state treasury and shall be administered by the department of public safety.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

The fund shall consist of all gifts, donations and bequests of money to the fund as well as any appropriations made to the fund. Earnings from investment of the fund shall be credited to the fund. Money in the fund is appropriated to the department of public safety for the purpose of paying death benefits pursuant to the Peace Officers', New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers' Survivors Supplemental Benefits Act and shall be paid out only upon warrants issued by the secretary of finance and administration pursuant to vouchers signed by the secretary of public safety. Any unexpended or unencumbered balance remaining in the fund at the end of any fiscal year shall not revert.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 59, § 4; 2016, ch. 41, § 3.

The 2016 amendment, effective May 18, 2016, amended the name of the fund to include New Mexico mounted patrol members and reserve police officers; after "'peace officers'", added", New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers'", and after "Peace Officers'", added "New Mexico Mounted Patrol Members' and Reserve Police Officers'".

29-4A-5. Peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors supplemental death benefits; review committee; determination; payment.

A. There is created the "peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors supplemental death benefits review committee". The committee shall consist of the attorney general, the chief of the New Mexico state police and the state president of the fraternal order of police or their designees.

B. The peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors supplemental death benefits review committee shall determine whether a peace officer, New Mexico mounted patrol member or reserve police officer has been killed in the line of duty and advise the secretary of that determination. In addition to any other death benefits provided by law, the surviving spouse, children or parents shall be paid two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) as supplemental death benefits whenever a peace officer, New Mexico mounted patrol member or reserve police officer is killed in the line of duty. The benefits shall be paid from the fund.

C. The benefits shall be paid first to the surviving spouse. If there is no surviving spouse, the benefits shall be distributed in pro rata shares to all surviving children. If there are no surviving children or spouse, benefits shall be distributed to the surviving parents of the peace officer, New Mexico mounted patrol member or reserve police officer.

29-5-1. Educational institutions; campus traffic regulations.

A. The board of regents of each state educational institution designated in Article 12, Section 11 of the constitution of New Mexico may promulgate regulations governing the operation and parking of vehicles on any area within the exterior boundaries of lands under its control which is not a public street or highway, including but not limited to:

(1) limiting the rates of speed;

(2) assigning parking spaces and designating parking areas and their uses, and collecting rent therefor;

(3) prohibiting parking;

(4) removing vehicles parked in violation of campus traffic regulations, at the expense of the violator who shall pay the expense before the vehicle is released; and

(5) instituting a system of vehicle registration for the identification and regulation of vehicles regularly using institutional premises, including a reasonable charge to defray costs of registration.

B. Areas subject to campus traffic regulations shall be marked with signs conforming with standards used by the state highway department.

C. Any person who violates any campus traffic regulation adopted under this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than five dollars ($5.00). All fines and forfeitures collected under this section may be remitted to the state educational institution on whose campus the violation occurred. The money from such fines and forfeitures remitted to state educational institutions shall be used solely for the purposes of enforcing this act [29-5-1, 29-5-2 NMSA 1978], for planning and improving movement and control and related parking problems, and for use in the operation, management and administration of the institution's security department responsible for the enforcement of this act.

Board may also employ and assign duties of campus security. — The board of regents of the university of New Mexico is specifically given traffic control jurisdiction on its property and may employ and assign duties of campus security officers for the institution. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-48.

Section 35-14-2 NMSA 1978 supplements section. — Section 35-14-2 NMSA 1978, providing for a waiver of the right to regulate university property under agreement between boards of regents of state educational institutions and municipalities for traffic offenses occurring on the university campus, supplements this section and Section 29-5-2 NMSA 1978. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-48.

City crime ordinances not applicable to land under board's control. — Ordinances of the city of Albuquerque dealing with crimes do not apply to land under the control of the board of regents of the university of New Mexico except for traffic offenses as provided in Section 35-14-2 NMSA 1978. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-48.

29-5-1.1. Educational institutions; campus traffic regulations.

A. The board of regents of each state educational institution designated in Article 12, Section 11 of the constitution of New Mexico that is located within a county having a population in excess of ninety-five thousand according to the most recent federal decennial census may promulgate regulations governing the operation and parking of vehicles on any area within the exterior boundaries of lands under its control which is not a municipal street or highway, including but not limited to:

(1) limiting the rates of speed;

(2) assigning parking spaces, designating parking areas and their uses and collecting rent for them;

(3) prohibiting parking;

(4) removing vehicles parked in violation of campus traffic regulations at the expense of the violator who shall pay the expense before the vehicle is released; and

(5) instituting a system of vehicle registration for the identification and regulation of vehicles regularly using institutional premises, including a reasonable charge to defray costs of providing parking and traffic enforcement services and campus parking.

B. Areas subject to campus traffic regulations shall be marked with signs conforming with standards used by the state highway and transportation department.

C. Regulations of a board of regents promulgated pursuant to this section shall include a specific penalty for each type of violation, which shall not exceed one hundred dollars ($100). In addition, the regents may impose an administrative cost assessment not exceeding five dollars ($5.00) for each parking citation issued as costs of administration of a campus traffic program.

D. Except as provided by Subsection J of this section, unless a warning notice or a parking citation is given, at the time of making an arrest for any violation of this section, the arresting officer shall offer the alleged violator the option of accepting a penalty assessment or appearing in the metropolitan, municipal or magistrate court within five days after issuance of the citation. The violator's signature on the penalty assessment notice constitutes as acknowledgment of guilt of the offense stated in the notice.

E. Payment of any parking violation penalty assessment shall be made by mailing the payment within five days from the date the citation was issued to the university police office for processing in the manner prescribed by the board of regents.

F. Payment of any moving violation penalty assessment shall be made by mailing the payment within thirty days from the date of issuance of the citation to the motor vehicle division of the taxation and revenue department, Santa Fe. Payments of penalty assessments are timely if postmarked within thirty days from the date of issuance of the citation. When a penalty assessment is paid by currency, a receipt may be immediately mailed to the violator. When a penalty assessment is paid by check, the canceled check is a sufficient receipt.

G. No record of any penalty assessment payment is admissible as evidence in any court in any civil action.

H. If a penalty assessment is not paid within thirty days from the date of issuance of the citation, the violator shall be prosecuted for the violation charged on the penalty assessment notice in a manner as if a penalty assessment notice had not been issued.

I. Any penalty assessment collected by the motor vehicle division of the taxation and revenue department pursuant to Subsection F of this section shall be remitted to the state treasurer for deposit into the current school fund. Any administrative cost assessment collected by the division pursuant to this section shall be remitted within thirty days to the state educational institution which issued the citation for administering parking and traffic regulations on that campus. Any penalty assessment or administrative cost assessment collected by the university police office pursuant to Subsection E of this section shall be retained by the state educational institution as reimbursement for its expenses.

J. No penalty assessment citation shall be issued for:

(1) speeding in excess of twenty-five miles an hour in excess of the speed limit;

(2) operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs; or

(3) an offense which has caused or contributed to the cause of an accident resulting in injury or death to any person.

K. The uniform traffic citation form approved by the director of the motor vehicle division shall be used as the complaint for violations of regulations promulgated pursuant to the provisions of this section. Citations for moving violations shall be issued in the manner set forth in Sections 66-8-123 through 66-8-127 NMSA 1978.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-5-1.1, enacted by Laws 1981, ch. 304, § 1; 1987, ch. 111, § 1; 1988, ch. 33, § 1; 1989, ch. 59, § 1.

The 1989 amendment, effective March 16, 1989, deleted "within metropolitan court districts" following "institutions" in the section heading; in Subsection A substituted "having a population in excess of ninety-five thousand according to the most recent federal decennial census" for "which has a metropolitan court" in the introductory paragraph; and in Subsection D inserted "municipal or magistrate" in the first sentence.

29-5-2. Educational institutions; university police officers.

A. The board of regents of each state educational institution designated in Article 12, Section 11 of the constitution of New Mexico may employ and assign duties of university police officers for the institution.

B. At all times while on duty, university police officers shall carry commissions of office issued by the board of regents. University police officers have the powers of peace officers within the exterior boundaries of lands under control of the board of regents employing them, including public streets and highways within the boundaries, or immediately adjacent to a campus where students are educated. Within this territory, a university police officer may enforce all applicable laws, ordinances and campus traffic regulations, but no arrest for violation of any law, ordinance or campus traffic regulation relating to motor vehicles is valid unless, at the time of arrest, the university police officer is wearing:

(1) a distinctive badge bearing the name of the institution, issued to the officer by the board of regents; or

(2) a distinctive uniform prescribed and issued to the officer by the board of regents.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-5-2, enacted by Laws 1968, ch. 62, § 154; 1975, ch. 22, § 1; 2019, ch. 14, § 1.

The 2019 amendment, effective July 1, 2019, extended the authority of university police officers to public streets and highways immediately adjacent to a campus where students are educated; and in Subsection B, added "or immediately adjacent to as where students are educated".

ANNOTATIONS

between boards of regents of state educational institutions and municipalities for traffic offenses occurring on the university campus, supplements Section 29-5-1 NMSA 1978 and this section. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-48.

City's jurisdiction over university limited. — With certain exceptions the jurisdiction of the city of Albuquerque over the university of New Mexico campus is limited to the enforcement of state laws on the campus. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-48.

Crime ordinances not applicable except for traffic offenses. — Ordinances of the city of Albuquerque dealing with crimes do not apply to land under the control of the board of regents of the university of New Mexico except for traffic offenses as provided in Section 35-14-2 NMSA 1978. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 69-48.

29-5-3. Post-secondary educational institutions; boards authorized to establish campus police force; qualifications and authority of campus police officers.

A. As used in this section "post-secondary educational institution" means a community college operating pursuant to Chapter 21, Article 13 NMSA 1978, a technical and vocational institute operating pursuant to Chapter 21, Article 16 NMSA 1978 and an area vocational school operating pursuant to Chapter 21, Article 17 NMSA 1978.

B. The governing board of a post-secondary educational institution may adopt and promulgate traffic regulations to apply to areas within the exterior boundaries of the lands under control of the board, including streets and highways.

C. The governing board of a post-secondary educational institution may employ and assign duties to persons as campus police officers for the community college.

D. Persons employed as campus police officers by a post-secondary educational institution governing board:

(1) shall have the powers of peace officers within the exterior boundaries of lands under the control of the board, including streets and highways;

(2) shall at all times while on duty carry commissions of office issued by the board;

(3) shall fulfill the requirements for certification in Subsection A of Section 29-7-6 NMSA 1978 within one year of the date of first employment;

(4) may enforce all applicable laws, ordinances and campus traffic regulations within the territory in which they have powers of peace officers; and

(5) may make arrests for violations of laws, ordinances and campus traffic regulations that they have authority to enforce, but no arrest is valid unless the arresting campus police officer is at the time of the arrest wearing:

(a) a distinctive badge issued to him by the post-secondary educational institution governing board and bearing the name of the post-secondary educational institution; and

(b) a distinctive uniform prescribed and issued to him by the board.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 115, § 1.

29-5-4. Post-secondary educational institutions; campus traffic regulations; agreement with municipality.

A. As used in this section, "post-secondary educational institution" means a community college operating pursuant to the Community College Act [Chapter 21, Article 13 NMSA 1978] or a technical and vocational institute operating pursuant to the Technical and Vocational Institute Act [Chapter 21, Article 16 NMSA 1978] that does not have campus police officers created pursuant to Section 29-5-3 NMSA 1978.

B. The governing board of a post-secondary educational institution may adopt and promulgate traffic regulations to apply to areas within the exterior boundaries of the lands under the control of the board, including streets and highways. Traffic regulations may include:

(1) limiting the rates of speed;

(2) assigning parking spaces and designating parking and no parking areas and their uses;

(3) prohibiting parking;

(4) removing, disabling or booting vehicles parked in violation of campus traffic regulations at the expense of the violator, who shall pay the expense before the vehicle is released; and

(5) instituting a system of vehicle registration for the identification and regulation of vehicles regularly using campus facilities, including a reasonable charge to defray the costs of providing parking and traffic enforcement services and campus parking.

C. All areas subject to traffic regulations shall be marked with signs conforming with standards used by the department of transportation.

D. Traffic regulations adopted by a post-secondary educational institution pursuant to this section shall include a specific penalty for each type of violation that shall not exceed the penalty for the same violation under state law or municipal ordinance for the municipality where the post-secondary educational institution is located.

E. A post-secondary educational institution may enter into a written agreement with the municipality where the institution is located for municipal police enforcement of traffic regulations and for enforcement of applicable laws and ordinances within the exterior boundaries of the lands under the control of the institution. The written agreement shall outline the terms and conditions for municipal enforcement of the institution's traffic regulations, including the following:

(1) unless a warning notice or a parking citation is given at the time of making an arrest for a traffic violation, the arresting officer shall offer the alleged violator the option of accepting a penalty assessment or appearing in municipal court for adjudication within five days after issuance of the citation;

(2) if an alleged violator elects to appear in municipal court in lieu of accepting a penalty assessment, the fine imposed upon later conviction shall not exceed the penalty assessment established for the particular penalty assessment;

(3) a violator's signature on the penalty assessment notice constitutes an acknowledgment of guilt of the offense stated in the notice;

(4) payment of a parking violation penalty assessment shall be made by mailing the payment within five days from the date the citation was issued to the municipality for processing in accordance with the written agreement. Payment of the penalty assessment is timely if postmarked within five days from the date of issuance of the citation;

(5) payment of any moving violation penalty assessment shall be made by mailing the payment within thirty days from the date the citation was issued to the municipality for processing in accordance with the written agreement. Payment of the penalty assessment is timely if postmarked within thirty days from the date of issuance of the citation;

(6) when a penalty assessment is paid by currency, a receipt shall be immediately mailed to the violator;

(7) if a penalty assessment is not paid within thirty days from the date of issuance of the citation, the violator shall be prosecuted for the violation charged on the penalty assessment notice in a manner as if a penalty assessment notice had not been issued;

(8) all penalties and fines assessed shall be paid to the municipality to defray the costs of enforcement and adjudication of citations issued at the post-secondary educational institution; and

(9) the uniform traffic citation form approved by the motor vehicle division of the taxation and revenue department shall be used as the complaint for violations of campus traffic regulations. Citations for moving violations shall be issued in the manner set forth in Sections 66-8-123 through 66-8-127 NMSA 1978.

F. A municipality enforcing campus traffic regulations pursuant to this section may, by commission, authorize campus security personnel at the post-secondary educational institution to issue citations for violations of non-moving traffic regulations on such terms and conditions as provided in the written agreement but in no event shall campus security personnel be given arrest powers.

G. In the absence of a written agreement with a municipality for the enforcement of traffic regulations, campus security personnel may enforce traffic regulations. The punishment for a violation of a campus traffic regulation shall be not more than five dollars ($5.00) per violation. All fines collected pursuant to this subsection shall be remitted to the post-secondary educational institution and shall be used solely for the purposes of enforcing campus traffic regulations and for planning and improving movement and control of vehicles and related parking problems and for use in the operation, management and administration of the institution's security office.

H. When a traffic citation is issued by a campus security officer, the officer shall be wearing a distinctive badge and uniform issued to the officer by the post-secondary educational institution.

I. A record of a penalty assessment payment is not admissible as evidence in court in a civil action.

J. A post-secondary educational institution may withhold the issuance of grades and degrees in order to secure payment of unpaid traffic or parking assessments.

29-6-6. Service upon call of governor.

29-6-1. [Establishment; composition.]

There is hereby created the New Mexico mounted patrol to be composed of units or troops situated throughout the state and organized, officered and manned pursuant to and under the direction of the governor.

History: 1941 Comp., § 66-1101, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 149, § 1; 1953 Comp., § 9-11-1.

29-6-2. Board of directors; elections[; commissions as emergency and voluntary state police].

A. The control, management, supervision and power of internal organization is vested in a board of directors composed of not less than one member from each troop of the New Mexico mounted patrol elected by the members of the organization to serve for a term of two years and until their successors are duly elected and qualified. The first election hereunder shall be held and conducted at such time and pursuant to such rules promulgated by the governor. Succeeding elections shall be pursuant to rules and regulations promulgated by the qualified and active board of directors.

B. The director of the New Mexico state police [division of the department] may, at the expense of members of the New Mexico mounted patrol, execute and deliver to each member of the mounted patrol proper pocket commissions as emergency and voluntary state police, the same to be effective only upon specific request of the New Mexico state police in each instance of service. Such commissions shall bear the written approval of the governor of New Mexico; such commissions shall automatically expire and new ones issued and delivered upon each change in the directorship of the New Mexico state police or the governorship.

History: 1941 Comp., § 66-1103, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 149, § 3; 1951, ch. 49, § 1; 1953 Comp., § 9-11-3; Laws 1979, ch. 327, § 1.

29-6-3. [Duties of board of directors.]

The board of directors shall be empowered to make rules and regulations for the government, control, management, supervision and internal organization of the New Mexico mounted patrol and to provide for the selection of troopers and for such officers and noncommissioned officers as may be necessary from time to time to command the various units or troops.

History: 1941 Comp., § 66-1104, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 149, § 4; 1953 Comp., § 9-11-4.

29-6-4. [Duties of mounted patrol.]

It shall be the duty of the New Mexico mounted patrol and the members thereof to assist in the enforcement of law by cooperating with all law enforcement agencies and regulatory bodies of the state of New Mexico when requested by them and under their direction and control; to act as an official bodyguard to the governor of this state or to distinguished visitors upon the call of the governor.

History: 1941 Comp., § 66-1105, enacted by Laws 1941, ch. 149, § 5; 1953 Comp., § 9-11-5.

ANNOTATIONS

Legislative intent that patrol perform voluntarily. — Since no provision is found relating to the salaries or other compensation for services rendered, it must be concluded as the legislative intent that all members of the patrol were to perform in a voluntary and honorary capacity only. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 57-41.

Power to arrest same as private citizen. — Unless called in specific instances to assist law enforcement officers, officer's power to arrest is no different than that of a private citizen. Throughout the statutes it is seen that authority to arrest, other than as a private citizen, exists only when there is a specific request from regular law enforcement officers. And it is further apparent that when called upon to assist law enforcement agencies that patrol's conduct shall be under their direction and control. The commission which is issued can, of course, have no more force than the authority given by the statutes under which that commission is issued. 1955-56 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 56-6350.

Uniform unnecessary to exercise authority. — It is not necessary that mounted patrol be in uniform in order to exercise the authority which it has. 1955-56 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 56-6350.

Extra-hazardous duty not performed under color of employment agreement. — A trooper or officer of the New Mexico mounted patrol, in carrying out duties as provided, is without question engaging in extra-hazardous activities. However, such extra-hazardous duty is not being performed under any color of an employment agreement. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 57-41.

29-6-4.1. Training and entrance requirements of the New Mexico mounted patrol.

A. The New Mexico law enforcement academy is hereby empowered to approve a basic law enforcement training program for New Mexico mounted patrol members. The academy is authorized to promulgate the necessary rules and regulations setting program standards and record keeping requirements.

B. New Mexico mounted patrol members who began active service prior to July 1, 1983 are exempted from the basic law enforcement training requirements set forth in Subsection A of this section.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-6-4.1, enacted by Laws 1985, ch. 83, § 1.

Cross references. — For law enforcement training, see 29-7-1 NMSA 1978 et seq.

29-6-4.2. Mounted patrol; applicants; criminal history screening; denial of commission.

A. As used in this section:

(1) "criminal record" means information concerning a person's arrests, indictments or other formal criminal charges and any dispositions arising from them, including convictions, dismissals, acquittals, sentencing and correctional supervision, collected by criminal justice agencies and stored in the databases of the federal bureau of investigation, the national law enforcement telecommunications system, the department of public safety or the repositories of criminal history information of other states; and

(2) "criminal history screening" means a criminal history background investigation of an applicant for the New Mexico mounted patrol conducted by using fingerprints collected by the department of public safety or a local law enforcement agency and submitted to the federal bureau of investigation.

B. The New Mexico mounted patrol shall perform a criminal history screening on all applicants for mounted patrol. If an applicant has a criminal record, his application for a commission in the mounted patrol may be denied. If an applicant has a felony conviction or a conviction for a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, his application for a commission in the mounted patrol shall be denied.

C. The chief of the New Mexico state police shall determine whether to grant a commission to an applicant who has a criminal record that did not result in conviction of a felony or a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude. The chief's decision to deny an application for a commission in the mounted patrol is final and may not be appealed.

D. An applicant for the New Mexico mounted patrol shall be fingerprinted and the applicant shall provide two fingerprint cards or the equivalent electronic fingerprints to the mounted patrol to assist the mounted patrol in conducting a criminal history screening of the applicant. The applicant shall pay the cost of the criminal history screening. The mounted patrol shall not charge the applicant more than the actual cost of the nationwide criminal history screening.

29-6-5. Mounted patrol; aid to law enforcement agencies; workmen's compensation.

A. Members of the New Mexico mounted patrol may be detailed to assist and render aid in specific instances involving law enforcement or other matters when request is made for such assistance and aid by the New Mexico state police or other state or local law enforcement agencies. When acting upon such call, members shall be deemed to be the agents or deputies of the authority issuing such request, shall be possessed of the same powers and duties as such requesting authorities and shall be completely covered by the Workmen's [Workers'] Compensation Act [Chapter 52, Article 1 NMSA 1978] if the employer's insurance policy is endorsed to clearly show that its coverage extends to the claimant.

B. For purposes of calculating the amount of any mounted patrol member's disability or death benefits pursuant to the Workmen's [Workers'] Compensation Act, the member's average weekly wages shall be deemed to be the average weekly wages the member was receiving from any and every employer, regardless of whether the member's employment with such employer was covered in fact by the Workmen's [Workers'] Compensation Act. The degree of disability, if any, shall be determined on the basis of the member's disability in regard to such other employment.

C. If a mounted patrol member is covered by workmen's compensation coverage pursuant to Subsection A of this section, the Workmen's [Workers'] Compensation Act shall be his exclusive remedy against the mounted patrol and the supervising law enforcement agency for any injury or death proximately caused by accident arising out of and in the course of the member's duties.

ANNOTATIONS

Meaning of "state police". — When the statute refers to the New Mexico state police without any qualification, it grants power to any regularly appointed, active member of the state police to call upon a member of the mounted patrol for assistance. 1959-60 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 60-239.

State police may call for law enforcement matters only. — The mounted patrol may only be called upon by the state police for matters involving law enforcement, to assist and render aid to the state police, and for other matters related to the function of the state police. The statute does not contemplate calling upon members of the mounted patrol for training purposes, and the state police may not call upon members of the mounted patrol for the purpose of giving training to the mounted patrol. But where the purpose is law enforcement, or to render assistance to the state police in a proper function of the state police, then any member of the state police is authorized to call out members of the mounted patrol for assistance. 1959-60 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 60-239.

When no actual emergency exists, a member of the mounted patrol whose assistance is requested by the state police must be furnished the request in writing, signed by the officer making the request. 1959-60 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 60-239.

No state insurance or compensation plan coverage. — Members of the New Mexico mounted patrol are not covered by any state insurance or compensation plan during periods of service as provided. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 57-41.

If group insurance is acquired, then classification is as a unit. — For purposes of acquiring group insurance protection, a troop of the New Mexico mounted patrol was classified as a unit or group under former Section 59-18-16 NMSA 1978. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 57-41.

29-6-6. [Service upon call of governor.]

The governor shall have the power in case of insurrection, invasion, riot, breach of the peace or imminent danger to call into service the New Mexico mounted patrol or any unit or member thereof. Any and all service under such call shall be under the direction and control of the governor.

29-7-3. New Mexico law enforcement academy board.

A. There is created the "New Mexico law enforcement academy board".

B. The academy shall be controlled and supervised by policy set by the board. The board shall be composed of the attorney general, who shall serve automatically by reason of office and serve as chair of the board, and eight members who are qualified electors to be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate. An appointed board member shall serve and have all of the duties, responsibilities and authority of that office during the period prior to the final action by the senate in confirming or rejecting the appointment.

C. Appointments to the board shall be for terms of four years or less made in such manner that the terms of not more than two members expire on July 1 of each year. At all times, the board shall have represented on it, as members, one municipal police chief, one sheriff, one state police officer, one attorney who is currently employed in a district attorney's office, one certified police chief of a New Mexico Indian tribe or pueblo, one certified New Mexico police officer holding the rank of sergeant or below and two citizen-at-large members, neither of whom shall be a police officer or retired police officer or have familial or financial connections to a police officer or any agency or department for which a police officer works. Vacancies shall be filled by the governor for the unexpired term.

D. Members of the board shall receive, for their service as members of the board, per diem and mileage as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 through 10-8-8 NMSA 1978].

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-7-3, enacted by Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 42; 1983, ch. 121, § 1; 1993, ch. 250, § 1; 1993, ch. 255, § 2; 1994, ch. 39, § 1; 2015, ch. 3, § 22.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1977, ch. 257, § 51 repealed a former 39-6-3, 1953 Comp., relating to the academy board, and enacted a new 39-6-3, 1953 Comp. (29-7-3 NMSA 1978).

Laws 1979, ch. 202, § 42 repealed former 29-7-3 NMSA 1978, relating to the control and management of the law enforcement academy, and enacted a new 29-7-3 NMSA 1978.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by amending the qualifications for the composition of the New Mexico law enforcement academy board; in Subsection B, after "reason of", deleted "his", after "serve as", deleted "chairman" and added "chair", and after "of the board, and", deleted "six" and added "eight"; in Subsection C, deleted "On or before July 1, 1994, the governor shall increase the number of members on the board to eight by appointing two additional members. The seventh member of the board shall be a citizen at-large member whose term shall end on July 1, 1996. The eighth member of the board shall be a police officer who is a New Mexico certified police officer, holding the rank of sergeant or below at the time of his appointment, and whose term shall end on July 1, 1996 or sooner if he retires or is deactivated from duty for longer than thirty days.", after "police officer, one", deleted "district", after "attorney", added "who is currently employed in a district attorney's office", and after "citizen-at-large members", added the remainder of the sentence.

The 1994 amendment, effective May 18, 1994, deleted "not later than July 1, 1983" following "governor" in the second sentence in Subsection B; and, in Subsection C, substituted the first three sentences for the former first three sentences, relating to appointment of the first board members, and substituted "Appointments to the board" for "Thereafter, all appointments" in the fourth sentence and "one certified New Mexico police officer holding the rank of sergeant or below and two citizen-at-large members" for "and one citizen-at-large member" in the next-to-last sentence.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, substituted "academy" for "New Mexico law enforcement academy" in the first sentence of Subsection B.

29-7-3. New Mexico law enforcement standards and training council. (Effective July 1, 2023.)

A. There is created the "New Mexico law enforcement standards and training council".

B. The council shall develop and adopt basic training and in-service training standards for police officers and telecommunicators in New Mexico.

C. The council shall consist of the director of the New Mexico law enforcement academy and the directors of all the satellite law enforcement academies, who shall serve automatically by reason

29-7-6. Qualifications for certification.

A. An applicant for certification shall provide evidence satisfactory to the board that he:

(1) is a citizen of the United States and has reached the age of majority;

(2) holds a high school diploma or the equivalent;

(3) holds a valid driver's license;

(4) has not been convicted of or pled guilty to or entered a plea of nolo contendere to any felony charge or, within the three-year period immediately preceding his application, to any violation of any federal or state law or local ordinance relating to aggravated assault, theft, driving while intoxicated, controlled substances or other crime involving moral turpitude and has not been released or discharged under dishonorable conditions from any of the armed forces of the United States;

(5) after examination by a licensed physician, is free of any physical condition that might adversely affect his performance as a police officer or prohibit him from successfully completing a prescribed basic law enforcement training required by the Law Enforcement Training Act;

(6) after examination by a certified psychologist, is free of any emotional or mental condition that might adversely affect his performance as a police officer or prohibit him from successfully completing a prescribed basic law enforcement training required by the Law Enforcement Training Act;

(7) is of good moral character;

(8) has met any other requirements for certification prescribed by the board pursuant to regulations adopted by the board; and

(9) has previously been awarded a certificate of completion by the director attesting to the applicant's completion of an approved law enforcement training program.

B. A person employed as a police officer by any law enforcement agency in this state shall forfeit his position unless, no later than twelve months after beginning his employment as a police officer, the person satisfies the qualifications for certification set forth in Subsection A of this section and is awarded a certificate attesting to that fact.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-7-6, enacted by Laws 1993, ch. 255, § 6.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1993, ch. 255, § 6 repealed former 29-7-6 NMSA 1978, as amended by Laws 1988, ch. 58, § 1, and enacted a new section, effective July 1, 1993. For provisions of former section, see the 1992 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

Cross references. — For the inapplicability of the Criminal Offender Employment Act to law enforcement agencies, see 28-2-5 NMSA 1978.

ANNOTATIONS

Authority to act as a police officer prior to certification. — An officer who becomes employed as a police officer after a break in service that was not intended to circumvent the certification requirement is provided twelve (12) months from the date of the officer's new employment to obtain certification. State v. Reyes, 2009-NMCA-091, 146 N.M. 776, 215 P.3d 85, cert. denied, 2009-NMCERT-007, 147 N.M. 361, 223 P.3d 358.

Where a police officer was employed by a municipal police department and attended the police academy; after two months of employment, the officer dropped out of the police academy due to traffic violations and for two years, obtained different employment; the officer then restarted a career as a police officer by re-enrolling in the police academy and obtaining a job as an officer with a municipal police department; after four months of employment with the police department and while the officer was still in the police academy, the officer arrested defendant; and after the officer arrested defendant, within twelve months of the officer's employment with the police department, the officer completed training in the police academy and received police certification, the officer was authorized to perform the duties of a police officer when the officer arrested defendant. State v. Reyes, 2009-NMCA-091, 146 N.M. 776, 215 P.3d 85, cert. denied, 2009-NMCERT-007, 147 N.M. 361, 223 P.3d 358.

Health inquiry not necessarily excepted from ADA. — The fact that New Mexico law makes good health a prerequisite for police officer certification does not necessarily mean that inquiring into officer's health and terminating him as a result of his response falls within the "job-related and consistent with business necessity" exception of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 USC § 12112(d)(4)(A); whether an inquiry falls within this exception is a fact-intensive question, and the existence of the New Mexico law, although it supports such a finding, is only one fact to be considered. Gonzales v. Sandoval Cnty., 2 F. Supp. 2d 1442 (D.N.M. 1998).

Forfeiture of position for failure to receive certificate of completion. — A deputy sheriff must forfeit the deputy sheriff's position if the deputy sheriff has not been awarded a certificate of completion by the director of the New Mexico law enforcement academy board attesting to the deputy sheriff's completion of an approved law enforcement training program within twelve months after beginning the deputy sheriff's employment as a deputy. 2009 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 09-01.

Decommissioning process for failure to receive certificate of completion. — The mechanical process of decommissioning a deputy sheriff, for failure to obtain a certificate under Subsection B of Section 29-7-6 NMSA 1978 or otherwise, is a matter for the reasonably exercised discretion of the sheriff. If a deputy sheriff fails to obtain a certificate, procedural due process would not require a hearing in order to terminate employment as a deputy sheriff and consequent revocation of the appointment or commission to act as such. 2009 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 09-01

A merit system ordinance does not override the forfeiture provision. — There is no indication that the legislature intended that a merit system ordinance enacted by a county pursuant to Section 4-41-5 NMSA 1978, as further authorized by Section 4-41-6 NMSA 1978, overrides the "forfeiture" provision of Subsection B of Section 29-7-6 NMSA 1978. 2009 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 09-01.

Regulations cannot be waived. — A county sheriff and a board of county commissioners do not have the authority to waive or otherwise disregard the regulations promulgated by the law enforcement academy board where a deputy sheriff fails to submit to the department of public safety training and recruiting division an application for certification and required supporting documentation within fourteen days of the deputy sheriff's employment as a deputy sheriff, as set forth in 10.29.9.18 (C) NMAC, or within thirty days of his employment, as set forth in 10.29.9.10 (B)(1) NMAC. 2009 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 09-01.

Must reach eighteenth birthday. — One who has reached his eighteenth birthday is entitled to apply for, and be admitted to, the New Mexico law enforcement academy, provided he meets the other requirements specified in the section. 1971 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 71-126.

Candidate with general discharge from military may be certified. — A candidate for admission to the law enforcement academy who received a general discharge from the military may be certified as a police officer. In order to comply with constitutional and statutory requirements, the academy should evaluate candidates who have received general discharges on an individual basis. The circumstances surrounding the discharge should be evaluated to determine if the discharge was predicated on reasons which would render the applicant ineligible for certification. In the absence of such circumstances, applicants with general discharges should not be excluded solely because they received a general discharge. 1989 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 89-23.

Effect of gubernatorial pardon on eligibility of convicted felon. — An unconditional gubernatorial pardon allows a person convicted of a felony to be eligible for certification by the law enforcement academy for permanent appointment as a police officer. However, if authorized by statute or regulation, a pardoned felon's character and the acts underlying the conviction may be considered in certification or licensing. 1992 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 92-09.

29-7-6.1. County sheriffs; training requirement.

A. Every county sheriff, except sheriffs who have previously been awarded a certificate attesting to completion of a basic law enforcement training program, shall participate in and complete an administrative law enforcement training program no later than twelve months after the date the sheriff assumes office as a county sheriff.

B. The director shall establish the administrative law enforcement training program for county sheriffs, subject to review and approval by the executive committee of the sheriff's affiliate of the New Mexico association of counties.

C. A county sheriff's per diem, mileage and tuition expenses attributed to attendance at the administrative law enforcement training shall be paid for by the governing body of the county served by that sheriff.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-7-6.1, enacted by Laws 1993, ch. 255, § 7; 2015, ch. 3, § 24.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by amending language relating to training requirements for county sheriffs; in Subsection A, after "date", deleted "he" and added "the sheriff"; and in Subsection B, after "director", deleted "of the training and recruiting division of the department of public safety".

29-7-7. Definitions.

For the purpose of the Law Enforcement Training Act:

A. "academy" means the New Mexico law enforcement academy;

B. "basic law enforcement training" means a course consisting of not less than four hundred hours of instruction in basic law enforcement training as required by the Law Enforcement Training Act;

C. "board" means the New Mexico law enforcement academy board;

D. "conviction" means an adjudication of guilt or a plea of no contest and includes convictions that are suspended or deferred;

E. "director" means the director of the division;

F. "division" means the New Mexico law enforcement academy of the department of public safety;

G. "in-service law enforcement training" means a course of instruction required of all certified peace officers and designed to train and equip all police officers in the state with specific law enforcement skills and to ensure the continuing development of all police officers in the state. The training and instruction shall be kept current and may be conducted on a regional basis at the discretion of the director;

H. "police officer" means any commissioned employee of a law enforcement agency that is part of or administered by the state or any political subdivision of the state, and includes any employee of a missile range civilian police department who is a graduate of a recognized certified regional law enforcement training facility and who is currently certifiable by the academy, which employee is responsible for the prevention and detection of crime or the enforcement of the penal, or traffic or highway laws of this state. The term specifically includes deputy sheriffs. Sheriffs are eligible to attend the academy and are eligible to receive certification as provided in the Law Enforcement Training Act. As used in this subsection, "commissioned" means an employee of a law enforcement agency who is authorized by a sheriff or chief of police to apprehend, arrest and bring before the court all violators within the state; and

I. "certified regional law enforcement training facility" means a law enforcement training facility within the state certified by the director, with the approval of the academy's board of directors, that offers basic law enforcement training and in-service law enforcement training that is comparable to or exceeds the standards of the programs of the academy.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-7-7, enacted by Laws 1981, ch. 114, § 6; 1988, ch. 58, § 2; 1993, ch. 255, § 8; 1997, ch. 213, § 1; 2015, ch. 3, § 25.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1981, ch. 114, § 6 repealed former 29-7-7 NMSA 1978, relating to basic course minimum requirements, and enacted a new 29-7-7 NMSA 1978.

The 2015 amendment, effective July 1, 2015, provided for the reorganization of the department of public safety by clarifying definitions of the Law Enforcement Training Act; in Subsection E, after "director of the", deleted "academy" and added "division"; added new Subsection F, and redesignated the subsequent subsections accordingly; in the present Subsection G, after "officers", added "and"; and in the present Subsection H, after "certifiable by the", deleted "New Mexico law enforcement".

The 1997 amendment, effective June 20, 1997, inserted "and includes any employee of a missile range civilian police department who is a graduate of a recognized certified regional law enforcement training facility, and who is currently certifiable by the New Mexico law enforcement academy" in the first sentence of Subsection G.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, substituted "the Law Enforcement Training Act" for "this Act" in Subsection B; added present Subsection D; redesignated former Subsections D through G as E through H; substituted "academy" for "New Mexico law enforcement academy" in Subsection E; rewrote Subsection F; and made minor stylistic changes in Subsections G and H.

ANNOTATIONS

Police officers are public employees, not public officers, and have no sovereign power. Walck v. City of Albuquerque, 1994-NMCA-058, 117 N.M. 651, 875 P.2d 407, cert. denied, 118 N.M. 695, 884 P.2d 1174.

An agent of the department of alcoholic beverage control (ABC) is a "police officer" as defined in Subsection G and is required to satisfy the law enforcement certification requirement of former Section 29-7-8 NMSA 1978, even if the agent was hired by the department before the enactment of this section in 1981, which expanded the definition of "police officer" to include agents such as those employed by ABC. *Serrano v. ## 29-7-7.1. In-service law enforcement training; requirements; eligibility.

A. In-service law enforcement training consists of at least forty hours of academic instruction, approved by the board, for each certified police officer during each twenty-four month period of employment or service with a political subdivision. The first training course shall commence no later than twelve months after graduation from an approved basic law enforcement training program.

B. All certified police officers who are eligible for in-service training shall, during each twenty-four month period of employment, complete a minimum of forty hours of in-service law enforcement training in courses approved by the board. All certified police officers shall provide proof of completing in-service law enforcement training requirements to the director no later than March 1 of the year in which the requirements must be met. The director shall provide annual notice to all certified police officers regarding in-service law enforcement training requirements. Failure to complete in-service law enforcement training requirements may be grounds for suspension of a certified police officer's certification. A police officer's certification may be reinstated by the board when the police officer presents the board with evidence of satisfying in-service law enforcement training requirements.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-7-7.1, enacted by Laws 1981, ch. 114, § 7; 1993, ch. 255, § 9.

The 2022 amendment, effective July 1, 2023, amended an existing provision that required every law enforcement agency within the state to submit a quarterly report to the director of the law enforcement academy to also submit the report to the law enforcement certification board, and provided that the law enforcement certification board is required to prescribe the reporting forms and submittal dates, and removed this duty from the director of the law enforcement academy; after "report to the director", added "and the board", and after "prescribed by the", deleted "director" and added "board".

29-7-7.3. Ensuring child safety upon arrest; training.

Training for ensuring child safety upon the arrest of a parent or guardian shall be included in the curriculum of each basic law enforcement training class and as a component of in-service training each year for certified police officers.

History: Laws 2007, ch. 89, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2007, ch. 89, contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 15, 2007, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

29-7-7.4. Missing person and AMBER alert training.

A minimum of four hours of combined missing person and AMBER alert training shall be included in the curriculum of each basic law enforcement training class. Missing person and AMBER alert training shall be included as a component of in-service training each year for certified police officers.

History: Laws 2010, ch. 33, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2010, ch. 33 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2010, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

29-7-7.5. Interaction with persons with mental impairments; training.

A. A minimum of forty hours of crisis management, including crisis intervention, confrontation de-escalation practicum and proper interaction with persons with mental impairments training, shall be included in the curriculum of each basic law enforcement training class.

B. A minimum of two hours of crisis management, including crisis intervention, confrontation de-escalation practicum and proper interaction with persons with mental impairments training, shall be included as a component of in-service law enforcement training pursuant to Section 29-7-7.1 NMSA 1978.

C. A pre-recorded course on crisis management, including crisis intervention, confrontation de-escalation practicum and proper interaction with persons with mental impairments training, shall not satisfy the requirements of the basic law enforcement training class required pursuant to Subsection A of this section.

D. As used in this section, "mental impairment" includes a mental illness, developmental disability, posttraumatic stress disorder, dual diagnosis, autism, youth in crisis and traumatic brain injury.

History: Laws 2011, ch. 180, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2011, ch. 180, § 6 made Laws 2011, ch. 180, § 1 effective July 1, 2011.

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2011, ch. 180, § 3 provided:

A. The chief law enforcement officer of a state, county or municipal law enforcement agency who was elected or appointed prior to July 1, 2011 shall complete a minimum of two hours of crisis management, including crisis intervention, confrontation de-escalation practicum and proper interaction with persons with mental impairments training, no later than July 1, 2012.

B. A law enforcement officer who on September 1, 2010 held an intermediate proficiency certificate or an advanced proficiency certificate issued pursuant to Section 29-7-7.1 NMSA 1978 shall complete a minimum of two hours of crisis management, including crisis intervention, confrontation de-escalation practicum and proper interaction with persons with mental impairments training, no later than July 1, 2012.

C. As used in this section, "mental impairment" includes a mental illness, developmental disability, posttraumatic stress disorder, dual diagnosis, autism, youth in crisis and traumatic brain injury.

29-7-7.6. Law enforcement officers; naloxone rescue kit.

A. As agency funding and agency supplies of naloxone rescue kits permit, each local and state law enforcement agency shall provide naloxone rescue kits to its law enforcement officers and require that officers carry the naloxone rescue kits in accordance with agency procedures so as to optimize the officers' capacity to timely assist in the prevention of opioid overdoses.

B. Nothing in this section shall be construed to impose civil or criminal liability on a local or state law enforcement agency or law enforcement officer when ordinary care is used in the administration or provision of naloxone in cases where an individual appears to be experiencing an opioid overdose.

C. As used in this section:

(1) "naloxone" means naloxone hydrochloride, which is an opioid antagonist for the treatment of opioid overdose; and

(2) "naloxone rescue kit" means a kit containing:

(a) two doses of naloxone in either a generic form or in a form approved by the federal food and drug administration; and

(b) overdose education materials that conform to department of health or federal substance abuse and mental health services administration guidelines for opioid overdose education that explain the signs and causes of an opioid overdose and instruct when and how to administer in accordance with medical best practices: 1) life-saving rescue techniques; and 2) an opioid antagonist.

History: Laws 2017, ch. 59, § 2.

29-7-7.7. Tourniquet and trauma kit training and distribution.

A. Tourniquet and trauma kit training shall be included in the curriculum of each basic law enforcement training class and as a component of in-service law enforcement training each year for certified police officers. The academy, in coordination with certified regional law enforcement training facilities, shall provide a tourniquet and trauma kit to each cadet who graduates from the academy or from a certified regional law enforcement training facility and to each previously certified police officer who attends a certification-by-waiver course.

B. The academy shall provide hands-on tourniquet and trauma kit training to all officers using tourniquet and trauma kit equipment designed for training purposes. The training shall be designed in a manner that will safely replicate field conditions without the risk of injury in order for officers to develop the necessary skills to use tourniquets and trauma kits. In order to supplement

B. A certified telecommunicator shall provide proof of completion of in-service training requirements to the director no later than March 1 of the year subsequent to the year in which the requirements are met. The director shall provide annual notice to all certified telecommunicators regarding in-service training requirements. Failure to complete in-service training requirements may be grounds for suspension of a telecommunicator's certification at the director's discretion. A telecommunicator may be reinstated at the discretion of the director when the telecommunicator presents to the director evidence the telecommunicator has satisfied the in-service training requirements.

C. As used in this section, "mental impairment" includes a mental illness, developmental disability, posttraumatic stress disorder, dual diagnosis, autism, youth in crisis and traumatic brain injury.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 320, § 9; 2011, ch. 180, § 2.

The 2011 amendment, effective July 1, 2011, required training in crisis management, including interaction with persons with mental impairments training, and added a definition of "mental impairment".

29-7C-8. Reports and rosters.

A. A safety agency that operates within the state shall submit a quarterly report to the director on the status of each telecommunicator. The reporting forms and submittal dates shall be prescribed by the director.

B. The director shall maintain a roster of all certified telecommunicators.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 320, § 10.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 320, § 13 made Laws 2003, ch. 320, § 10 effective on July 1, 2003.

29-7C-8. Reports and rosters. (Effective July 1, 2023.)

A. A safety agency that operates within the state shall submit a quarterly report to the director and the board on the status of each telecommunicator. The reporting forms and submittal dates shall be prescribed by the director.

B. The director and the board shall maintain a roster of all certified telecommunicators.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 320, § 10; 2022, ch. 56, § 18.

The 2022 amendment, effective July 1, 2023, amended an existing provision that required safety agencies that operate within the state to submit a quarterly report to the director of the law enforcement academy to also submit the report to the law enforcement certification board, and required the board, along with the director, to maintain a roster of all certified telecommunicators; in Subsection A, after "report to the director", added "and the board"; and in Subsection B, after "The director", added "and the board".

29-7C-9. Refusal, suspension or revocation of certification.

A. The board shall refuse to issue or shall suspend or revoke a telecommunicator's certification, after consultation with his employing safety agency, if the board determines that a person has:

(1) failed to satisfy the qualifications for certification set forth in Section 29-7A-3 NMSA 1978 [repealed];

(2) committed acts that constitute dishonesty or fraud;

(3) been convicted of, pled guilty to or entered a plea of nolo contendere to a:

(a) felony charge; or

(b) violation of a federal or state law, a local ordinance relating to aggravated assault or theft or a law involving moral turpitude; or

(4) knowingly made a false statement on his application.

B. The board shall develop, adopt and promulgate administrative procedures for suspension or revocation of a telecommunicator's certification that include:

(1) notice and opportunity for the affected telecommunicator to be heard; and

(2) procedures for review of the board's decision.

29-8-3. Mutual aid agreements.

29-8-1. Short title.

This act [29-8-1 to 29-8-3 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "Mutual Aid Act".

29-8-2. [Public agency defined.]

As used in the Mutual Aid Act, "public agency" includes the federal government or any department or agency thereof, an Indian tribal council, Indian pueblo council and the state or any county or municipality thereof.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-7-2, enacted by Laws 1971, ch. 153, § 2.

29-8-3. Mutual aid agreements.

Any state, county or municipal agency having and maintaining peace officers may enter into mutual aid agreements with any public agency as defined in the Mutual Aid Act, with respect to law enforcement, provided any such agreement shall be approved by the agency involved and the governor.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-7-3, enacted by Laws 1971, ch. 153, § 3.

ANNOTATIONS

Applicability to gaming compacts with Indian tribes. — The Mutual Aid Act does not in any way pertain to gaming compacts and thus provides no statutory basis for the governor to enter into compacts and revenue-sharing agreements with Indian tribes which would permit gaming on Indian lands pursuant to the federal Indian gaming laws. State ex rel. Clark v. Johnson, 1995-NMSC-048, 120 N.M. 562, 904 P.2d 11.

By adding the limiting language that mutual aid agreements must be approved by both the agency involved and the governor of the state of New Mexico, the legislature contemplated a written agreement.

State v. Branham, 2004-NMCA-131, 136 N.M. 579, 102 P.3d 646.

Inconsistency between written agreements. — It is inconsistent for the legislature to require a written agreement for the issuance of a cross commission under Section 29-1-11 NMSA 1978 between state law enforcement and Indian tribal police officers and not require a written agreement for mutual aid agreements under this section. State v. Branham, 2004-NMCA-131, 136 N.M. 579, 102 P.3d 646.

Where state police officer initially stopped defendant for speeding on Mescalero reservation, because the officer did not have authority to enforce Mescalero tribal traffic ordinances, defendant's motion to suppress evidence was properly granted. State v. Branham, 2004-NMCA-131, 136 N.M. 579, 102 P.3d 646.

Deputization of city or county officials by state agency. — The environmental improvement division (EID) (now Air Quality Bureau of Environment Department) may seek assistance from city and county law enforcement agencies to enforce asbestos disposal regulations pursuant to the Mutual Aid Act, Sections 29-8-1 to 29-8-3 NMSA 1978, but it cannot deputize city or county law enforcement officials to act as EID agents to enforce the division's asbestos disposal regulations. 1987 Op. ## 29-9-1. Short title.

Sections 29-9-1 through 29-9-17 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Organized Crime Act".

Compiler's notes. — Laws 1981, ch. 234, § 2 repealed Laws 1977, ch. 215, § 9, which had provided that the act shall terminate on July 1, 1981.

ANNOTATIONS

Statute not amenable to vagueness claim. — The Organized Crime Act [Sections 29-9-1 through 29-9-17 NMSA 1978] is not the type of statute that is amenable to a claim of unconstitutional vagueness because the vagueness doctrine is applied when a potential actor is exposed to criminal sanctions without a fair warning as to the nature of a proscribed activity, whereas the Organized Crime Act is not a penal statute; the only sanction that can come from the act is a contempt citation for failure to abide by a court order. In re Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Comm'n, 1978-NMSC-022, 91 N.M. 516, 577 P.2d 414.

Word "racketeering" does not need to appear in title to Laws 1977, ch. 215, which amends the Organized Crime Act; nor does the title violate N.M. Const., art. IV, § 16, although the 1977 amendment for the first time authorizes the commission to investigate racketeering, since racketeering is reasonably germane to the subject matter of organized crime. In re Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Comm'n, 1978-NMSC-022, 91 N.M. 516, 577 P.2d 414.

29-9-2. Definitions.

As used in the Organized Crime Act:

A. "organized crime" means the supplying for profit of illegal goods and services, including, but not limited to, gambling, loan sharking, narcotics and other forms of vice and corruption, by members of a structured and disciplined organization;

B. "public officer" means any elected or appointed officer of the state or any of its political subdivisions, serving with or without remuneration for his services; and

C. "commission" means the governor's organized crime prevention commission.

29-9-3. Commission created; membership.

A. There is created the "governor's organized crime prevention commission". The commission shall consist of seven members appointed by the governor with the advice and the consent of the senate. No more than four members shall belong to the same political party and at least one member shall be a member of the New Mexico bar.

B. Persons appointed to the commission shall:

(1) be of unquestioned integrity and of high standing and influence within the state by virtue of their demonstrated capacity for leadership;

(2) be selected from the various parts of the state in such manner as to provide broad geographical representation on the commission; and

(3) be given a security clearance by an appropriate agency designated by the governor to conduct a clearance investigation.

C. Members of the commission shall be appointed for staggered terms of four years each, three ending on December 31, 1975, two ending on December 31, 1976, and two ending on December 31, 1977. Thereafter, appointments shall be made for terms of four years or less so that the terms of not more than three commission members expire on December 31 of any year.

D. Members of the commission shall receive per diem and mileage as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 through 10-8-8 NMSA 1978] and shall receive no other compensation, perquisite or allowance.

E. Any vacancy on the commission shall be filled for the unexpired term by the governor. A vacancy on the commission shall not impair the right of the remaining members to exercise all the powers of the commission, provided the commission has at least four members.

29-9-4. Purpose of commission.

The purpose of the commission is to forestall, check and prevent the infiltration and encroachment of organized crime into public and private affairs within New Mexico by:

A. investigating the extent to which organized crime and racketeering has or has not infiltrated and encroached into private and public affairs within New Mexico;

B. investigating those conditions, including the effectiveness of the execution and enforcement of the laws and the conduct of public officers and employees, which may lead to, or may have led to, the infiltration and encroachment of organized crime into public and private affairs within New Mexico; and

C. reporting to the proper authorities and making public as authorized by this act [29-9-1 through 29-9-17 NMSA 1978] the results of its investigations and recommending corrective measures and improvements.

29-9-5. Powers and duties of commission.

A. The commission shall:

(1) assess and evaluate the activities and problems involving organized crime within New Mexico;

(2) develop a comprehensive plan for the suppression and control of organized crime in New Mexico and its encroachment into the state;

(3) recommend programs to combat organized crime;

(4) examine matters relating to law enforcement extending across the boundaries of the state into other states and consult and exchange information with officers and agencies of other states with respect to law enforcement problems of mutual concern in regard to organized crime;

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(5) make an annual report to the governor and legislature which shall include its recommendations concerning matters within its jurisdiction and authority;

(6) keep the public informed as to the operation of organized crime and the problems of criminal law enforcement in New Mexico as they relate to organized crime by such means and to such extent as it deems appropriate;

(7) advise and assist, upon request, the attorney general, a district attorney or any other law enforcement official in the performance of his official powers and duties;

(8) cooperate with departments and officers of the federal government in the suppression of organized crime; and

(9) cooperate with agencies concerned with organized crime in coordinating efforts to investigate and suppress organized crime.

B. The commission shall conduct investigations as are necessary to carry out the purpose of the commission pursuant to Section 29-9-4 NMSA 1978.

C. The commission is authorized to:

(1) empower its staff to conduct any investigation authorized by this section and to maintain offices and hold meetings and functions at any place within New Mexico as it may deem necessary;

(2) conduct private and public hearings and designate one or more commission members or staff members to preside over any such hearings; provided staff members shall be without vote in such hearings;

(3) receive testimony from witnesses, request their attendance, examine them and request production of any books, records, documents or other evidence as it may deem relevant or material to an investigation. The commission may designate any of its members or members of its staff to exercise any such powers pursuant to regulations adopted by the commission;

(4) administer oaths or affirmations; examine witnesses under oath or affirmation; and subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance before the commission and require them to produce before the commission any books, records, documents or other evidence relevant or material to an investigation. No subpoena shall be issued without the adoption and acknowledgment, by resolution of five members of the commission, and further provided that a copy of said resolution with acknowledgments be attached to any and all subpoenas issued by the commission. The commission may designate any of its members or members of its staff to exercise any such powers, pursuant to regulations adopted by the commission. If any person subpoenaed pursuant to this section neglects or refuses to obey the command of the subpoena, any district court may, on proof by affidavit of service of the subpoena and of refusal or neglect by the person to obey the command of the subpoena, issue an order for the person to appear immediately before the court, which is authorized to proceed against the person as for a contempt of court. At any time before the return date of the subpoena, the person subpoenaed may file a petition to set aside the subpoena, modify the subpoena, or extend the return date thereon in the district court of any county in which the commission has an office or the district court of the county to which the person is subpoenaed to appear, and the court upon a showing of good cause may set aside the subpoena, modify it or extend the return date of the subpoena;

(5) petition a district court ex parte to order the attendance of witnesses before the commission and the production before the commission of any books, records, documents or other evidence relevant or material to an investigation, where it appears that the witness resides outside the state, may imminently depart the state or may secrete himself to avoid attendance before the commission or to avoid other lawful process. A witness may challenge execution of the order by filing a motion to quash the order with the district court before the return date named in the order;

(6) any and all proceedings brought before the court pursuant to Paragraphs 4 and 5 of this section, regarding subpoenas, shall be conducted in camera and shall be kept under the seal of the court.

D. Every witness appearing before the commission may request to be examined in private. Upon such request, the witness's testimony shall be in private with no persons present other than members of the commission, members of the commission's staff and the witness. The testimony and other evidence may be disseminated to law enforcement agencies as deemed proper by the commission but the content or details of the testimony and records produced by the witness shall not be made public, except that the commission, without disclosing the name of the witness, may issue a public report summarizing information obtained from its private hearings for the purpose of informing the public and its officials of the extent to which organized crime has infiltrated New Mexico and conditions which may lead to the infiltration of organized crime.

E. The commission shall not take testimony at a public hearing unless at least four of its members are present, or unless at least two members of the commission and at least two staff members are present. The commission shall not take testimony at a private hearing unless at least one of its members is present.

F. Witnesses appearing before the commission shall receive per diem and mileage as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 through 10-8-8 NMSA 1978] and shall receive no other compensation, perquisite or allowance.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-9-4, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 225, § 4; 1977, ch. 215, § 4; 1979, ch. 148, § 1.

ANNOTATIONS

Limitations on subpoena power. — Any exception or limitation to the express power of the commission should be strictly construed. Doe v. State ex rel. Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Comm'n, 1992-NMSC-022, 114 N.M. 78, 835 P.2d 76.

Administrative subpoenas not subject to fourth amendment. — The commission is an investigatory rather than an accusatory body, and, therefore, its subpoenas are administrative subpoenas. Administrative subpoenas, including subpoenas duces tecum, are not subject to the search and seizure provisions of the fourth amendment of the United States constitution. In re Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Comm'n, 1978-NMSC-022, 91 N.M. 516, 577 P.2d 414 (decided before 1979 amendment).

Requirements for lawful subpoena. — In order to obtain a subpoena, the commission must show, and the district court must decide, that the investigation is within the power of the commission, the subpoena is definite enough and the material sought is reasonably relevant to the purpose of the investigation; what is reasonably relevant depends on the nature and purpose of the investigation, and relevancy cannot be determined in the absence of a stated purpose. In re Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Comm'n, 1978-NMSC-022, 91 N.M. 516, 577 P.2d 414 (decided before 1979 amendment).

Right to challenge subpoena. — After a subpoena is issued the individual or institution upon whom it is served has an opportunity to challenge it. Since the subpoenas issued under the Organized Crime Act (Sections 29-9-1 to 29-9-17 NMSA 1978) ask only for voluntary compliance, and the commission is authorized to go to district court to seek enforcement, the legislature must have contemplated that the subpoenaed person would be allowed to show at that hearing why the subpoena should not be enforced. In re Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Comm'n, 1978-NMSC-022, 91 N.M. 516, 577 P.2d 414 (decided before 1979 amendment).

29-9-6. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1989, ch. 204, § 26 repealed 29-9-6 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 225, § 5, relating to employees, effective July 1, 1989. For provisions of former section, see the 1988 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

29-9-7. Construction.

Nothing contained in the Organized Crime Act shall be construed to supersede, repeal or limit any power, duty or function of the executive department, or any agency of the state, or any political subdivision thereof, conferred by law.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-9-6, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 225, § 6.

29-9-8. Confidentiality; impounding of exhibits.

A. Upon application of the commission, a district court may impound an exhibit marked in evidence at any public or private hearing held by the commission, and may order the exhibit to be retained by or delivered to and placed in the custody of the commission. If impounded, an exhibit shall not be taken from the custody of the commission except upon order of the district court granted after five days' notice to the commission or at the request or with the consent of the commission. Upon the removal from the custody of the commission of any impounded exhibit, it shall be returned to the person lawfully entitled to its possession.

B. The records, reports and files of the commission are not subject to the Public Records Act [Chapter 14, Article 3 NMSA 1978] or Sections 10-15-1 through 10-15-4 NMSA 1978. The records, reports and files of the commission shall not be subject to subpoena except by order of the supreme court of New Mexico.

C. Any person, except the governor or the commission, who discloses information contained in the records, reports and files of the commission or obtained in a private hearing conducted by the commission, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year or the imposition of a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or both imprisonment and fine.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-9-7, enacted by Laws 1973, ch. 225, § 7; 1977, ch. 215, § 5.

ANNOTATIONS

Discovery of commission records only by supreme court order unconstitutional. — The last sentence in Subsection B, allowing discovery of the records of the governor's organized crime prevention commission by supreme court order only, is unconstitutional, as the legislature lacks the power to prescribe and regulate practice, pleading and procedure. In re Motion for a Subpoena Duces Tecum, 1980-NMSC-010, 94 N.M. 1, 606 P.2d 539.

Unconstitutional last sentence in Subsection B is severable; the remainder of the organized crime act remains in full force and effect. In re Motion for a Subpoena Duces Tecum, 1980-NMSC-010, 94 N.M. 1, 606 P.2d 539.

District courts authorized to hear duces tecum subpoena application for commission records. — The district courts are authorized and directed, upon proper application for a subpoena duces tecum under Rule 1-045 NMRA, to hear and determine whether the records, reports and files of the governor's organized crime prevention commission may be subpoenaed, and, if so, upon what conditions. In re Motion for a Subpoena Duces Tecum, 1980-NMSC-010, 94 N.M. 1, 606 P.2d 539.

29-9-9. Immunity from criminal prosecution or penalty.

A. If, in the course of any investigation or hearing conducted by the commission pursuant to the Organized Crime Act, a person refuses to answer a question or questions or produce evidence of any kind on the ground that he will thereby be exposed to criminal prosecution or penalty or forfeiture, the commission may order the person to answer the question or questions or produce the requested evidence and confer immunity as provided in this section. No order to answer or produce evidence with immunity shall be made except by resolution of a two-thirds majority of all the members of the commission and after the attorney general and the appropriate district attorney have been given at least ten days' written notice of the commission's intention to issue such order and afforded an opportunity to be heard in respect to any objections they or either of them may have to the granting of immunity. Upon application of the attorney general or the appropriate district attorney within ten days of the written notice, the commission shall defer the issuance of any order under this subsection for such period, not longer than thirty days from the date of the application, as the attorney general or district attorney may specify.

B. If, upon issuance of an order pursuant to Subsection A of this section, the person complies with such order, he shall be immune from having such responsive answer given by him or such responsive evidence produced by him, or evidence derived therefrom used to expose him to criminal prosecution or penalty or forfeiture, except that such person may be prosecuted for any perjury committed in such answer or in producing such evidence, or for contempt for failing to give an answer or produce evidence in accordance with the order of the commission; and any such answer given or evidence produced shall be admissible against him upon any criminal investigation, proceeding or trial against him for such perjury, or upon any investigation, proceeding or trial against him for such contempt.

29-9-12 to 29-9-16. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 2003, ch. 223, § 3 repealed 29-9-12 to 29-9-16 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1975, Ch. 230, §§ 1 through 5, relating to a legislative oversight committee on organized crime. For provisions of former sections, see the 2002 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

29-9-17. Code of fair procedure.

A. As used in this section:

(1) "hearing" means any hearing in the course of an investigatory proceeding conducted before the commission at which testimony or the production of other evidence is compelled by subpoena;

(2) "public hearing" means any hearing open to the public, or any hearing, or such part thereof, as to which testimony or other evidence is made available or disseminated to the public by the commission; and

(3) "private hearing" means any hearing other than a public hearing.

B. No person may be required to appear at a hearing or to testify at a hearing unless there has been personally served upon him prior to the time when he is required to appear, a copy of the Organized Crime Act, and a general statement of the subject of the investigation. A copy of the resolution, statute, order or other provision of law authorizing the investigation shall be furnished by the commission upon request by the person summoned.

C. A witness summoned to a hearing shall have the right to be accompanied by counsel, who shall be permitted to advise the witness of his rights, subject to reasonable limitations to prevent obstruction of or interference with the orderly conduct of the hearing. Counsel for any witness who testifies at a public hearing may submit proposed questions to be asked of the witness relevant to the matters upon which the witness has been questioned, and the commission shall ask the witness such of the questions as it may deem appropriate to its inquiry.

D. A complete and accurate record shall be kept of each public hearing and a witness shall be entitled to receive a copy of his testimony at such hearing at his own expense. Where testimony which a witness has given at a private hearing becomes relevant in a criminal proceeding in which the witness is a defendant, or in any subsequent hearing in which the witness is summoned to testify, the witness shall be entitled to a copy of such testimony, at his own expense, provided a copy is available, and provided further that the furnishing of such copy will not prejudice the public safety or security.

E. A witness who testifies at any hearing shall have the right at the conclusion of his examination to file a brief sworn statement relevant to his testimony for incorporation in the record of the investigatory proceeding.

F. Any person whose name is mentioned or who is specifically identified and who believes that testimony or other evidence given at a public hearing or comment made by any member of the commission or its counsel at such a hearing tends to defame him or otherwise adversely affect his reputation shall have the right, either to appear personally before the commission and testify in his own behalf as to matters relevant to the testimony or other evidence complained of, or in the alternative at the option of the commission, to file a statement of facts under oath relating solely to matters relevant to the testimony or other evidence complained of, which statement shall be incorporated in the record of the investigatory proceeding.

G. Nothing in the Organized Crime Act shall be construed to prevent the commission from granting to witnesses appearing before it, or to persons who claim to be adversely affected by testimony or other evidence adduced before it, such further rights and privileges as it may determine.

H. Nothing in the Organized Crime Act shall be construed to affect, diminish or impair the right, under any other provision of law, rule or custom, of any member or group of members of the commission to file a statement or statements of minority views to accompany and be released with or subsequent to the report of the commission.

29-10-1. Short title.

Chapter 29, Article 10 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Arrest Record Information Act".

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-1, enacted by Laws 1975, ch. 260, § 1; 1993, ch. 260, § 2.

Cross references. — For right to inspect public records, see 14-2-1 NMSA 1978.

For children's code, confidentiality of social and legal records, see 32A-2-32 NMSA 1978.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, substituted "Chapter 29, Article 10 NMSA 1978" for "This act".

ANNOTATIONS

Article does not authorize expungement. — The Arrest Records Information Act [Chapter 29, Article 10 NMSA 1978] does not grant the courts authority to expunge or seal criminal records. Toth v. Albuquerque Police Dep't, 1997-NMCA-079, 123 N.M. 637, 944 P.2d 285.

Arrest Record Information Act may be viewed as establishing statutory exceptions to the fundamental right to inspect. It does so, however, in a rather conflicting manner, and it appears that virtually all arrest record information is subject to at least a limited or conditional disclosure. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09.

Identity of individuals arrested or charged with crime not protected. — Neither the Arrest Record Information Act [Chapter 29, Article 10 NMSA 1978] nor the Inspection of Public Records Act [Chapter 14, Article 2 NMSA 1978] authorizes a law enforcement agency to protect the identity of persons who have been arrested or charged with a crime. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-02.

Release of timely, accurate information. — The Arrest Record Information Act does not prohibit release of timely, accurate information when a juvenile is arrested for a criminal act. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 87-29.

29-10-2. Purpose of act.

The legislature finds and declares that the responsible exchange of complete and accurate information among law enforcement agencies is recognized as necessary and indispensable to effective law enforcement. Individual rights, however, may be infringed if information is inaccurate, incomplete or is disseminated irresponsibly. The Arrest Record Information Act is for the purpose of protecting those rights.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-2, enacted by Laws 1975, ch. 260, § 2.

ANNOTATIONS

Violation not limited. — The Arrest Record Information Act does not limit the violation of the act to any particular class of persons. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-37 (opinion superseded by 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09).

Release of juvenile's arrest information. — A law enforcement agency is not prohibited by the Children's Code (Chapter 32A NMSA 1978), this act, or any other law from releasing to the public the names of juveniles who have been arrested for criminal acts and the charges for which they were arrested. 1987 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 87-29.

29-10-3. Definition.

As used in the Arrest Record Information Act, "arrest record information" means notations of the arrest or detention or indictment or filing of information or other formal criminal charge against an individual made by a law enforcement agency.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-3, enacted by Laws 1975, ch. 260, § 3; 1977, ch. 339, § 1; 1993, ch. 260, § 3.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, made a minor stylistic change in the section heading, deleted the Subsection A designation which formerly preceded "arrest record information", deleted "which resulted in a negative disposition; and" which formerly followed "law enforcement agency", and deleted former Subsection B which defined "negative disposition".

ANNOTATIONS

Section includes both felony and misdemeanor arrest records. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-37 (opinion superseded by 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09).

Definition of "arrest record information" does not include investigative reports. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09.

29-10-4. Confidentiality of arrest records.

Arrest record information that reveals confidential sources, methods, information or individuals accused but not charged with a crime and that is maintained by the state or any of its political subdivisions pertaining to any person charged with the commission of any crime is confidential and dissemination or revealing the contents of the record, except as provided in the Arrest Record Information Act or any other law, is unlawful.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-4, enacted by Laws 1975, ch. 260, § 4; 1993, ch. 260, § 4.

Cross references. — For use of police reports for commercial solicitation, see 14-2A-1 NMSA 1978.

For crimes defined and classified, see 30-1-4 to 30-1-6 NMSA 1978.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, inserted "that reveals confidential sources, methods, information or individuals accused but not charged with a crime and that is", inserted "or any other law", and made minor stylistic changes throughout the section.

ANNOTATIONS

Penalty provision repealed. — While this section still provides that violations of the Arrest Record Information Act are "unlawful," there are no longer any criminal sanctions for releasing arrest record information in violation of the provisions of the act, since 39-10-7, 1953 Comp., the penalty provision, was repealed by Laws 1977, ch. 339, § 6. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09.

Limited protection of accused. — This section protects the confidentiality of information concerning the identity of a person who has been accused but not charged with a crime only if that information has been collected in connection with an investigation of, or otherwise relates to, another person who has been charged with committing a crime. However, information in other records which identifies a person accused but not charged with or arrested for a crime may be protected from public disclosure under Section 14-2-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. Finally, even if it would otherwise be protected under either statute, information about a person accused but not charged with a crime is open to public inspection if it is contained in a document listed in Section 29-10-7 NMSA 1978. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-02.

29-10-5. Exchange of information.

A law enforcement agency may disseminate arrest record information to a federal, state or local government law enforcement agency, provided that when the arrest record information is disseminated to a law enforcement agency situated outside this state, the information shall be accompanied by a statement substantially embodying the intent set forth in Section 29-10-4 NMSA 1978. Nothing in the Arrest Record Information Act prohibits direct access by the attorney general, the district attorney, the crime victims reparation commission or the courts to such information where it is deemed necessary in the performance of their functions under law. Nothing in that act prohibits direct access by a law enforcement agency to automated wanted information pertaining to a person or to stolen property information.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-5, enacted by Laws 1975, ch. 260, § 5; 1977, ch. 339, § 2; 1987, ch. 140, § 1.

29-10-6. Access by individuals.

A. Upon satisfactory verification of his identity, any individual may inspect, in person, through counsel or through his authorized agent, arrest record information maintained by a law enforcement agency concerning him.

B. Personnel assigned to contractual research for a state or federally approved criminal justice project shall be permitted access to arrest record information. Approval personnel shall not further disseminate such information except as statistical or analytical records or reports in which individuals are not identified and from which their identities are not ascertainable.

29-10-7. Application.

A. Information contained in the following documents shall be available for public inspection:

(1) posters, announcements or lists for identifying or apprehending fugitives or wanted persons;

(2) original records of entry such as police blotters maintained by criminal justice agencies, compiled chronologically and required by law or long-standing custom to be made public, if the records are organized on a chronological basis;

(3) court records of public judicial proceedings;

(4) published court or administrative opinions or public judicial, administrative or legislative proceedings;

(5) records of traffic offenses and accident reports;

(6) announcements of executive clemency; and

(7) statistical or analytical records or reports in which individuals are not identified and from which their identities are not ascertainable.

B. Nothing prevents a law enforcement agency from disclosing to the public arrest record information related to the offense for which an adult individual is currently within the criminal justice system. A law enforcement agency is not prohibited from confirming prior arrest record information to members of the news media or any other person, upon specific inquiry as to whether a named individual was arrested, detained, indicted or whether an information or other formal charge was filed on a specified date, if the arrest record information disclosed is based on data enumerated by Subsection A of this section.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-8, enacted by Laws 1977, ch. 339, § 4; 1993, ch. 260, § 5.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1977, ch. 339, § 4 repealed 39-10-8, 1953 Comp., relating to the application of the Arrest Record Information Act, and enacted a new section.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, in Subsection A, in the introductory language, deleted "The provisions of the Arrest Record Information Act do not apply to criminal history record", inserted "the following documents shall be available for public inspection" and made stylistic changes; and, in Subsection B, deleted "in this act" following "Nothing" near the beginning of the first sentence and made stylistic changes.

ANNOTATIONS

Information to be included in police blotter. — The following information may be appropriately included by a law enforcement agency in a police blotter or original record of entry: the name, physical description, place and date of birth, address and occupation of the individual arrested; the time and place of arrest; the offense for which the individual was arrested or detained; and the name of the arresting officer. This list should be interpreted as a minimum requirement but not to the exclusion of additional information which may presently appear on the initial records of entry or police blotters being used by some law enforcement agencies. 1975 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 75-37 (opinion superseded by 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09).

Limited privacy of accused. — Section 29-10-4 NMSA 1978 protects the confidentiality of information concerning the identity of a person who has been accused but not charged with a crime only if that information has been collected in connection with an investigation of, or otherwise relates to, another person who has been charged with committing a crime. However, information in other records which identifies a person accused but not charged with or arrested for a crime may be protected from public disclosure under Section 14-2-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. Finally, even if it would otherwise be protected under either statute, information about a person accused but not charged with a crime is open to public inspection if it is contained in a document listed in this section. 1994 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-02.

Repeal and reenactment broadened exemption. — In the repeal and reenactment of this section, the phrase "indexed chronologically" in Subsection A(2) became "compiled chronologically," thus removing the requirement that the records must be "indexed" to qualify as "original records of entry." The phrase "or long-standing custom" was added also, thereby legitimating a long-standing custom by which many law enforcement agencies had released information from police blotters and other such original records. 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09.

Meaning of "within the criminal justice system". — While the statute does not specify what is meant by "within the criminal justice system," the term appears to relate to the status of an adult who has been arrested or formally charged with a criminal offense until such time as there is a final "negative disposition." 1978 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 78-09.

29-10-8. Review of arrest record information; appeal.

A person who believes that arrest record information concerning him is inaccurate or incomplete is, upon satisfactory verification of his identity, entitled to review the information and obtain a copy of it for the purpose of challenge or correction. In the event a law enforcement agency refuses to correct challenged information to the satisfaction of the person to whom the inaccurate or incorrect information relates, the person is entitled to appeal to the district court to correct the information pursuant to the provisions of Section 39-3-1.1 NMSA 1978.

History: 1953 Comp., § 39-10-9, enacted by Laws 1977, ch. 339, § 5; 1998, ch. 55, § 41; 1999, ch. 265, § 43.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, substituted "Section 39-3-1.1" for "Section 12-8A-1" in the last sentence.

The 1998 amendment, effective September 1, 1998, inserted "; appeal" in the section heading; substituted "is" for "shall"; deleted "be" preceding "entitled"; substituted "the" for "such" twice; substituted "is" for "shall be"; substituted "appeal to" for "petition"; and inserted "pursuant to the provisions of Section 12-8A-1 NMSA 1978" at the end of the section.

29-11-2. Purpose.

The purpose of the Sexual Crimes Prosecution and Treatment Act is to promote effective law enforcement and prosecution of sexual crimes and to provide medical and psychological assistance for victims of such crimes. Implementation of the Sexual Crimes Prosecution and Treatment Act will serve to assist existing community-based victim treatment programs, to provide interagency cooperation, training of law enforcement, criminal justice and medical personnel and to effect proper handling and testing of evidence in sexual crime offenses.

29-11-3. Definitions.

As used in the Sexual Crimes Prosecution and Treatment Act:

A. "administrator" means the director of the mental health division of the department of health, or such person or office as the administrator may designate to act in his stead;

B. "evidence" means that evidence relating to the commission of a sexual crime;

C. "medical and psychological treatment" includes that medical, mental or emotional treatment provided a victim of a sexual crime. In addition to the improved physical and emotional condition of a victim, the treatment should result in the improved ability of a victim to make informed and rational choices about serving as a witness in the prosecution of a suspect of a sexual crime; and

D. "sexual crime" includes any act which may be alleged to be a sexual offense or an attempted sexual offense under the provisions of Sections 30-9-10 through 30-9-16 and 30-10-3 NMSA 1978.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-11-3, enacted by Laws 1978, ch. 27, § 3; 1995, ch. 91, § 1.

The 1995 amendment, effective July 1, 1995, substituted "mental health division of the department of health" for "behavioral health services division of the health and environment department" in Subsection A; substituted "Sections 30-9-10 through 30-9-16 and 30-10-3 NMSA 1978" for "Sections 40A-9-20 through 40A-9-26 and 40A-10-3 NMSA 1953" in Subsection D; and made a minor stylistic change.

29-11-4. Fund created; administration.

A. There is created in the state treasury the "sexual crimes prosecution and treatment fund". Money appropriated to the fund shall be used to carry out the purposes of the Sexual Crimes Prosecution and Treatment Act.

B. The fund shall be administered by the administrator.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-11-4, enacted by Laws 1978, ch. 27, § 4.

29-11-5. Sexual crimes prosecution and treatment program.

A. The administrator shall develop, with the cooperation of the criminal justice department [corrections department], the New Mexico state police, the New Mexico law enforcement academy, other authorized law enforcement agencies and existing community-based victim treatment programs, a statewide comprehensive plan to train law enforcement officers and criminal justice and medical personnel in the ability to deal with sexual crimes; to develop strategies for prevention of such crimes; to provide assistance in the assembly of evidence for the facilitation of prosecution of such crimes; and to provide medical and psychological treatment to victims of such crimes. This plan shall include, but not be limited to:

(1) education and training of law enforcement officers and criminal justice and medical personnel;

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(2) collection, processing and analysis of evidence which facilitates prosecution of suspects of sexual crimes; and

(3) medical and psychological treatment of victims of such crimes.

B. The comprehensive plan shall be implemented throughout the state, and the administrator may contract with appropriate persons, entities, agencies or community-based programs to provide the services to be rendered pursuant to Subsection A of this section and may pay a reasonable fee for such services.

C. Nothing in this section shall be construed to require criminal prosecution of a suspect of a sexual crime by the victim to whom services are rendered pursuant to the provisions of the Sexual Crimes Prosecution and Treatment Act.

D. Training for law enforcement officers in the proper treatment of victims of sexual crimes and collection of evidence and coordination among agencies shall be incorporated in the regular training program for recruits by the New Mexico state police; the basic course taught by the New Mexico law enforcement academy or by other authorized law enforcement agencies. Already-commissioned officers and sex-crime investigators shall receive advanced training through in-service programs.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-11-5, enacted by Laws 1978, ch. 27, § 5; 1979, ch. 202, § 50.

Compiler's notes. — The bracketed phrase "corrections department" was inserted in Subsection A by the compiler, as Laws 1980, ch. 150 renames the criminal justice department as the corrections and criminal rehabilitation department. Laws 1981, chs. 73 and 127 rename the corrections and criminal rehabilitation department as the corrections department. The bracketed material was not enacted by the legislature and is not part of the law.

29-11-6. Report.

By December 15 of each year, a report shall be filed with the governor and the legislative council by the administrator concerning all aspects of the sexual crimes prosecution and treatment program and specifically the administrator's conclusions and recommendations regarding the effectiveness of the sexual crimes prosecution and treatment program implemented throughout the state.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-11-6, enacted by Laws 1978, ch. 27, § 6.

29-11-7. Free forensic medical exams for victims of sexual crimes.

The administrator shall:

A. provide free forensic medical exams to victims of sexual crimes;

B. arrange for victims of sexual crimes to obtain free forensic medical exams; or

C. reimburse victims of sexual crimes for the cost of forensic medical exams, provided that:

(1) the reimbursement covers the full cost of the forensic medical exam, without any deductible requirement or limit on the amount of the reimbursement;

(2) the victim of a sexual crime is entitled to apply for reimbursement for a period of one year from the date of the forensic medical exam;

(3) reimbursement is provided not later than ninety days after the administrator receives written notification of the expense incurred by the victim for the forensic medical exam; and

(4) all victims of sexual crimes, including victims with limited or no English proficiency, are provided with information at the time of the forensic medical exam regarding how to obtain reimbursement for the cost of the exam.

29-11A-2. Findings; purpose.

A. The legislature finds that:

(1) sex offenders pose a significant risk of recidivism; and

(2) the efforts of law enforcement agencies to protect their communities from sex offenders are impaired by the lack of information available concerning convicted sex offenders who live within the agencies' jurisdictions.

B. The purpose of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act is to assist law enforcement agencies' efforts to protect their communities by:

(1) requiring sex offenders who are residents of New Mexico to register with the county sheriff of the county in which the sex offender resides;

(2) requiring sex offenders who are residents in other states, but who are employed in New Mexico or who attend school in New Mexico, to register with the county sheriff of the county in which the sex offender works or attends school;

(3) requiring the establishment of a central registry for sex offenders; and

(4) providing public access to information regarding certain registered sex offenders.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 106, § 2; 1999, ch. 19, § 2.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, inserted "and Notification" in Subsection B, inserted "who are residents of New Mexico" in Paragraph B(1), added Paragraphs B(2) and B(4), redesignated former Paragraph B(2) as Paragraph B(3), and made minor stylistic changes.

ANNOTATIONS

Constitutionality of act. — Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act does not violate either the federal or state ex post facto clause, does not violate either the federal or the state due process clause, and does not violate N.M. Const. art. IV, §ection 34. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

Where a constitutionally permissible retroactive application of Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act requirements to defendant made him subject to a probation violation if he knowingly failed to register and if he were found to have committed a felony by failing to register, this does not constitute a legislative act that changes rules of evidence or procedure in a pending case. Therefore, the legislative changes are too indirect, remote, and attenuated to be considered unconstitutional under N.M. Const. art. IV, § 34. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

Retroactive application of Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act does not violate the ex post facto clause of the United States or New Mexico constitutions. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act is part of New Mexico's law enforcement code and not part of the criminal code. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

Legislative intent. — Legislature's intent in enacting Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act was to enact a civil, remedial, regulatory, nonpunitive law. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

Notification provisions are rationally related to a legitimate governmental interest, purpose, and goal. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

The State's interest in attempting to protect society from convicted sex offenders who pose a significant risk of recidivism is both legitimate and compelling. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

Purpose and principal effect of notification provisions are to inform the public for its own safety, not to punish or stigmatize and ostracize the offender. State v. Druktenis, 2004-NMCA-032, 135 N.M. 223, 86 P.3d 1050.

J. "social networking site" means an internet web site that facilitates online social interaction by offering a mechanism for communication with other users, where such users are likely to include a substantial number of minors under the age of sixteen, and allowing users, through the creation of web pages, profiles or other means, to provide information about themselves that is available to the public or to other users.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 106, § 3; 1999, ch. 19, § 3; 2000, ch. 8, § 1; 2003 (1st S.S.), ch. 1, § 10; 2005, ch. 279, § 1; 2007, ch. 68, § 1; 2007, ch. 69, § 5; 2013, ch. 152, § 1.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, added terms and definitions; added Subsections A, C, E, F and J; in Paragraph (6) of Subsection I, after "Section 30-4-1 NMSA 1978", deleted "the victim is less than eighteen years of age and the offender is not a parent of the victim" and added "committed with the intent to inflict a sexual offense"; in Paragraph (7) of Subsection I, after "Section 30-4-3 NMSA 1978, when", deleted "the victim is less than eighteen years of age and the offender is not a parent of the victim" and added "committed with the intent to inflict a sexual offense"; and in Paragraph (11) of Subsection I, after "Section 30-37-3.2 NMSA 1978", added "for convictions occurring on or after July 1, 2013":

Applicability. — Laws 2013, ch. 152, § 5 provided that the provisions of the amendments to the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act enacted by Laws 2013, ch. 152 are applicable to a person who, on or after July 1, 2013, is found guilty of committing a sex offense.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, defined "sex offender" as a New Mexico resident who is convicted of a sex offense pursuant to state, federal, tribal or military law; and defined "sex offense" to mean offenses or their equivalents in any other jurisdiction, including aggravated criminal sexual penetration.

Applicability. — Laws 2007, ch. 69, § 8 provided that Laws 2007, ch. 69, § 5 was applicable to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 1995 and a person convicted of a sexual offense prior to July 1, 1995 and who, on July 1, 1995, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added the definition of "conviction" in Subsection A; added the definition of "institution of higher education" in Subsection B; added the definition of "registration requirement" in Subsection C; deleted the requirement that a person be eighteen years of age or older in the definition of "sex offender" in Subsection D; added the reference to tribal law in Subsection D(2), (3) and (5); added Subsection D(4) to provide that a sex offender is a person who does not have an established residence in New Mexico, but stays in temporary quarters in New Mexico and who has been convicted of a sex offense; provided in Subsection B(5)(a) that employment includes any employment or vocation, whether financially compensated, volunteered or for the purpose of government or educational benefit; provided in Subsection B(5)(b) that the person is enrolled in an institution of higher education in New Mexico; deleted the former reference in Subsection B(5)(b) secondary school, trade school, professional institution or an institution of higher education; and added Subsections E(8) through (10) to provide that sex offense includes aggravated indecent exposure, enticement of child and incest respectively.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

The 2003 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective February 3, 2004, inserted "second" in Paragraphs (3) and (8) of Subsection B, and deleted "Subsection A, B or C of" preceding "Section" in Paragraph (4) of that subsection.

The 2000 amendment, effective July 1, 2000, deleted "employed in New Mexico or attends school in New Mexico; and" from the end of Subsection A(4), added Subsections A(4)(a) and A(4)(b), added Subsections B(6) and B(7) and redesignated former Subsections B(6) and B(7) as present Subsections B(8) and B(9), substituted "(7)" for "(5)" in present Subsection B(9).

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, inserted "and Notification" in the introductory language; added "a person eighteen years of age or older" in Subsection A; in Paragraph A(1), substituted "who is a resident of New Mexico who is" for "a person" and substituted "in New Mexico" for "on or after July 1, 1995; or"; in Paragraph A(2), deleted "a person" at the beginning, and substituted "pursuant to state, federal or military law" for "on or after July 1, 1995; and"; added Paragraphs A(3), A(4), B(6), and B(7); and made minor stylistic changes.

ANNOTATIONS

Determination of equivalency of sex offenses. — Where defendant, who had been convicted of taking indecent liberties with children in North Carolina, moved to New Mexico; although there was no one-to-one correlation between the North Carolina offense and a single New Mexico sex offense, indecent liberties with children encompassed several sex offenses in New Mexico, the district court was required to determine if defendant's actual conduct supporting defendant's North Carolina conviction would have constituted any of the sex offenses under the New Mexico Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, Section 29-11A-1 NMSA 1978 et seq. State v. Orr, 2013-NMCA-069, 304 P.3d 449.

Equivalent offense is based on actual conduct. — An offense is "equivalent" to a New Mexico offense, for purposes of the New Mexico Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, if the defendant's actual conduct that gave rise to the out-of-state conviction would have constituted one of the enumerated offenses requiring registration pursuant to the Act. When the defendant's out-of-state conviction results from a plea agreement, courts may look to the charging documents, the defendant's written plea agreement, and the transcript of the plea hearing to determine the defendant's actual conduct and whether the conduct would have constituted one of the enumerated offenses. State v. Hall, 2013-NMSC-001, 294 P.3d 1235, rev'g 2011-NMCA-047, 149 N.M. 546, 252 P.3d 770.

Failure to prove equivalent offense. — Where defendant had been convicted in California of a misdemeanor offense of annoying or molesting a child under the age of eighteen; the state alleged that the California offense was equivalent to the New Mexico crime of sexual contact of a minor in the fourth degree because defendant's California conviction was based on defendant inappropriately touching the private parts of several boys that defendant lifted up to look into a camera's viewfinder; and the state failed to provide evidence to support the elements of the New Mexico offense by establishing the California victim's ages at the time of the offense or, other than saying that defendant touched the victims' clothed private parts, where on their bodies defendant touched the California victims, a court could not determine whether defendant's conduct violated one of the enumerated offenses in Section 29-11A-3 NMSA 1978 because the record was insufficient for a court to determine in what conduct defendant engaged that gave rise to defendant's California conviction. State v. Hall, 2013-NMSC-001, 294 P.3d 1235, rev'g 2011-NMCA-047, 149 N.M. 546, 252 P.3d 770.

Sex offense. — Defendant's conviction in California of the misdemeanor offense of annoying or molesting a child, which does not require touching or application of force, was not the equivalent of sexual contact of a minor, which requires touching or the application of force, was not a "sex offense" as that term is defined in the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, and did not require defendant to register as a sex offender in New Mexico. State v. Hall, 2011-NMCA-047, 149 N.M. 546, 252 P.3d 770, cert. granted, 2011-NMCERT-005, 150 N.M. 666, 265 P.3d 717.

Determining equivalency under SORNA. — Where defendant appealed from the judgment and sentence entered upon his conditional guilty plea to one count of failure to register as a sex offender, the trial court erred in ruling that defendant's Colorado conviction, had it occurred in New Mexico, required registration pursuant to SORNA, because the statute under which defendant was convicted in Colorado is not, on its face, equivalent to a SORNA offense, and the trial court's reliance on an unsigned and unfiled presentence report was not sufficient to determine actual conduct for purposes of an equivalency analysis under SORNA. The presentence report lacked proof of authenticity and reliability and therefore constituted inadmissible evidence that the trial court erred in considering and determining defendant's actual conduct underlying his Colorado sexual assault conviction. State v. Winn, 2019-NMCA-011.

A nolo contendere plea which is a conviction in a foreign jurisdiction is a conviction in New Mexico. — Where petitioner pled nolo contendere to engaging in a sex act with a child under eighteen years old in Florida; the Florida court required petitioner to serve thirty days imprisonment, two years of community control, five years of probation, pay restitution for mental counseling of the victim, have no unsupervised contact with children under eighteen years old, surrender the petitioner's teaching credentials and register as a sex offender in Florida; Florida did not adjudicate petitioner's guilt; and Florida law defined a conviction of a sex offense for purposes of sex offender registration to be a determination of guilt as the result of a plea of nolo contendere regardless of whether adjudication is withheld, Florida's disposition of petitioner's case was a conviction for purposes of SORNA. Vives v. Verzino, 2009-NMCA-083, 146 N.M. 673, 213 P.3d 823.

"Sex offender". — A court order granting defendant an early discharge from supervised probation and dismissing the charges against him did not eradicate his convictions and his status as a sex offender under Subsection A(1). State v. Brothers, 2002-NMCA-110, 133 N.M. 36, 59 P.3d 1268, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 30, 59 P.3d 1262.

Application of multiple amendments of definition of "sex offense". — Where in 2012, defendant pled guilty to the charge of solicitation of a child by electronic communication device; in 2007, the legislature enacted two acts amending Sections 29-11A-3 and 29-11A-5 NMSA 1978 which were signed on the same day by the governor; Laws 2007, ch. 68 created the new criminal offense of child solicitation by electronic communication device; Laws 2007, ch. 69 created the new crime of aggravated criminal sexual penetration; in 2012, Section 12-1-8 NMSA 1978 provided that if, in the same legislative session, the legislature enacted two or more acts amending the same section of the New Mexico Statutes Annotated, then the last act signed by the governor is presumed to be the law and shall be compiled into the NMSA; and Laws 2007, ch. 69 was compiled into the NMSA, child solicitation by electronic communication device was not a SORNA-covered crime in 2012 when defendant pled guilty and defendant was not subject to SORNA. State v. Ho, 2014-NMCA-038, cert. granted, 2014-NMCERT-003.

29-11A-4. Registration of sex offenders; information required; verification; criminal penalty for noncompliance.

Mexico shall register with the county sheriff no later than five business days after arrival in this state. When a sex offender initially registers with the county sheriff, the sex offender shall provide the following registration information:

(1) the sex offender's legal name and any other names or aliases that the sex offender is using or has used;

(2) the sex offender's date of birth;

(3) the sex offender's social security number;

(4) the sex offender's current physical and mailing address and the address of every place where the sex offender habitually lives;

(5) the sex offender's place of employment;

(6) the sex offense for which the sex offender was convicted;

(7) the date and place of the sex offense conviction;

(8) the sex offender's names, email addresses and monikers and other self-identifiers used on social networking sites, to be used only for law enforcement purposes;

(9) the sex offender's landline and cellular telephone numbers and any other telephone numbers primarily used by the sex offender;

(10) the sex offender's professional licenses;

(11) the license plate or other identifier and the description of any vehicle owned or primarily operated by the sex offender, including aircraft and watercraft;

(12) the name and address of any school or institution of higher education that the sex offender is attending; and

(13) copies of the sex offender's passport and immigration documents.

C. A sex offender who is a resident of another state but who is employed in New Mexico or attending public or private school or an institution of higher education in New Mexico shall register with the county sheriff for the county in which the sex offender is working or attending school or an institution of higher education.

D. A sex offender who is a resident of another state but who is employed in New Mexico or attending public or private school or an institution of higher education in New Mexico shall register with the county sheriff no later than five business days after beginning work or school. When the sex offender registers with the county sheriff, the sex offender shall provide the following registration information:

(1) the sex offender's legal name and any other names or aliases that the sex offender is using or has used;

(2) the sex offender's date of birth;

(3) the sex offender's social security number;

(4) the sex offender's current physical and mailing address in the sex offender's state of residence and, if applicable, the address of the sex offender's place of lodging in New Mexico while working or attending school or an institution of higher education;

(5) the sex offender's place of employment or the name of the school the sex offender is attending;

(6) the sex offense for which the sex offender was convicted; and

(7) the date and place of the sex offense conviction.

E. When a sex offender registers with a county sheriff, the sheriff shall obtain:

(1) a photograph of the sex offender and a complete set of the sex offender's fingerprints and a palm print;

(2) a physical description, including a description of any tattoos, scars or other distinguishing features on the sex offender's body that would assist in identifying the sex offender; and

(3) a DNA sample for inclusion in the sex offender DNA identification system pursuant to the provisions of the DNA Identification Act [Chapter 29, Article 16 NMSA 1978].

F. When a sex offender who is registered changes any information required under this section, the sex offender shall send written notice of the change on a form approved by the department to the county sheriff no later than five business days after the change occurs.

G. When a sex offender who is registered changes residence to a new county in New Mexico, the sex offender shall register with the county sheriff of the new county no later than five business days after establishing the new residence. The sex offender shall also send written notice of the change in residence to the county sheriff with whom the sex offender last registered no later than five business days after establishing the new residence.

H. When a sex offender who is registered or required to register is homeless or does not have an established residence, but lives in a shelter, halfway house or transitional living facility or stays in multiple locations in New Mexico, the sex offender shall register each address or temporary location with the county sheriff for each county in which the sex offender is living or temporarily located. The sex offender shall register no later than five business days after a change in living arrangements or temporary location.

I. When a sex offender who is registered or required to register is employed, begins a vocation or is enrolled as a student at an institution of higher education in New Mexico, the sex offender shall disclose the sex offender's status as a sex offender in writing to the county sheriff for the county in which the institution of higher education is located, the law enforcement entity responsible for the institution of higher education and the registrar for the institution of higher education no later than five business days after beginning employment, beginning a vocation or enrolling at the institution of higher education. The sex offender shall also send written notice of any change regarding employment, vocation or enrollment status at an institution of higher education to the county sheriff, the law enforcement entity and the registrar no later than five business days after the change in employment, vocation or enrollment status.

J. When a sex offender who is registered or required to register is employed or is enrolled as a student at a public or private school in New Mexico, the sex offender shall disclose the sex offender's status as a sex offender in writing to the county sheriff for the county in which the school is located and to the principal of the school no later than five business days after beginning employment or enrolling at the school. The sex offender shall also send written notice of any change regarding employment or enrollment status at a school to the county sheriff and the principal no later than five business days after the change in employment or enrollment status.

K. When a sex offender who is registered or required to register is employed, begins a vocation or volunteers services, regardless of whether the sex offender receives payment or other compensation, the sex offender shall disclose the sex offender's status as a sex offender in writing to the sex offender's employer, supervisor or person similarly situated. The written disclosure shall be made immediately upon beginning employment, vocation or volunteer service.

L. Following initial registration pursuant to the provisions of this section:

(1) a sex offender required to register pursuant to the provisions of Subsection D of Section 29-11A-5 NMSA 1978 shall verify registration information with the county sheriff as provided in Subsection N of this section not less than once in each ninety-day period following the date of the sex offender's initial registration for the remainder of the sex offender's natural life;

(2) a sex offender required to register pursuant to the provisions of Subsection E of Section 29-11A-5 NMSA 1978 shall verify registration information with the county sheriff as provided in Subsection N of this section once every six months for a period of ten years; and

(3) an out-of-state registrant shall verify registration information with the county sheriff for whichever is the longer of:

(a) the duration of time remaining in the registrant's convicting jurisdiction and at the same frequency as required in that state or territory, but no less than once every six months; or

(b) the duration of time remaining that would be required for the equivalent offense in New Mexico.

M. Notwithstanding the provisions of Paragraph (2) of Subsection L of this section, if a sex offender is convicted a second or subsequent time for a sex offense set forth in Subsection E of Section 29-11A-5 NMSA 1978, the sex offender shall verify registration information with the county sheriff as provided in Subsection N of this section not less than once in each ninety-day period following the date of the sex offender's initial registration for the remainder of the sex offender's natural life.

N. At least fifteen days prior to the time a sex offender is required to verify registration information, the department shall send a verification form to the sex offender, by first class mail, containing the sex offender's current registration information and a notice of the date that the sex offender's next verification is due. The sex offender shall appear in person at a location designated by the department to verify the information contained on the form, to change the information as necessary and to sign a statement under oath that the information is true and correct. The department may photograph the sex offender at that time if the sex offender's appearance is significantly different from the photograph already contained in the sex offender's file. If a sex offender does not receive a verification form before the time that the sex offender is required to verify registration pursuant to Subsection L of this section, the sex offender shall appear at a location designated by the department to verify registration information as required by this section.

O. The department shall establish a secure system that will permit a sex offender to notify the department electronically of any change in registration information.

P. A sex offender who willfully or knowingly fails to comply with the registration or verification requirements set forth in this section is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978. A sex offender who willfully or knowingly fails to comply with the registration or verification requirements set forth in this section after a first or subsequent conviction for a violation pursuant to this section is guilty of a third degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978. The willful failure to comply with any registration or verification requirement set forth in this section shall be deemed part of a continuing transaction or occurrence. A conviction pursuant to this subsection shall not be considered a felony for purposes of the imposition of sentencing enhancements pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-17 NMSA 1978.

Q. A sex offender who willfully or knowingly provides false information when complying with the registration or verification requirements set forth in this section is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978. A sex offender who willfully or knowingly provides false information when complying with the registration or verification requirements set forth in this section after a first or subsequent conviction for a violation pursuant to this section is guilty of a third degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978. The willful providing by a sex offender of false information with respect to the registration or verification requirements set forth in this section shall be deemed part of a continuing transaction or occurrence. A conviction pursuant to this subsection shall not be considered a felony for purposes of the imposition of sentencing enhancements pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-17 NMSA 1978.

Applicability. — Laws 2013, ch. 152, § 5 provided that the provisions of the amendments to the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act enacted by Laws 2013, ch. 152 are applicable to a person who, on or after July 1, 2013, is found guilty of committing a sex offense.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, provided in Subsection B that sex offender shall register after being released from a municipal or county jail, or a federal, military or tribal correctional facility, or detention center and that a sex offender shall register within ten days after his arrival in New Mexico; provided in Subsection C that a non-resident sex offender who is attending a public or private school or an institution of higher education in New Mexico shall register in the county in which the school or institution of higher education is located; provided in Subsection D that a sex offender who is attending a public or private school or an institution of higher education shall register within ten days after beginning school; provided in Subsection D(4) that a sex offender who is attending an institution of higher education must give his residence address and the address of his place of lodging in New Mexico; added Subsection E(3) to provide that the sheriff shall obtain a sample of the sex offender's DNA for inclusion in the sex offender DNA identification system; adds Subsection H to provide for the registration of a sex offender who does not have an established residence; added Subsection I to require a sex offender to disclose his status when he is employed, begins a vocation or is enrolled in an institution of higher education or changes his employment, vocation or enrollment status; added Subsection J to require a sex offender to disclose his status if he is employed or enrolled as a student at a public or private school; added Subsection K to require a sex offender to disclose his status when he is employed, begins a vocation or volunteers his services; deleted the former provisions in Subsection L that a sex offender annually renew his registration prior to December 31 of each subsequent calendar year for a period of twenty years; provided in Subsection L that a sex offender shall renew his registration not less than once in each ninety-day period for his natural life; added Subsection M to provide that a sex offender who is convicted of a sex offense set forth in Section 29-11A-5E NMSA 1978, he shall renew his registration once in each ninety-day period for his natural life; provided in Subsection N that if a sex offender knowingly fails to comply with the registration requirement he is guilty of a fourth degree felony, that a sex offender who willfully or knowingly fails to comply with the registration requirements of this section after a first or subsequent conviction under this section is guilty of a third degree felony, that a willful failure to comply with the requirements of this section is a continuing transaction or occurrence, and that a conviction under Subsection N is not a felony for purposes of imposing sentencing enhancements; and provided in Subsection O that a sex offender who knowingly provides false information is guilty of a fourth degree felony, that a sex offender who willfully or knowingly provides false information after a first or subsequent conviction under this section is guilty of a third degree felony, that the willful providing of false information is a continuing transaction or occurrence and that a conviction under Subsection N is not a felony for purposes of imposing sentencing enhancements.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

The 2000 amendment, effective July 1, 2000, inserted "registration" near the end of the introductory paragraph in Subsection B and near the end of Subsection D; rewrote Subsection H, which formerly read "Following his initial registration pursuant to the provisions of this section, a sex offender shall annually renew his registration with the county sheriff prior to December 31 of each subsequent calendar year"; and substituted "fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978" for "misdemeanor and shall be punished by imprisonment for a definite term less than one year or a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000) or both" in Subsections I and J.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, in Subsection B substituted "ten days" for "thirty days" in the first sentence and "ten days" for "forty-five days" in the second sentence; substituted "he" for "the sex offender" in Paragraph B(1); added present Subsections C, D, and H; and redesignated former Subsections C through E, F, and G as Subsections E through G, I, and J, respectively.

ANNOTATIONS

Statutory elements of California and New Mexico offenses were not equivalent. — Defendant's conviction in California of the misdemeanor offense of annoying or molesting a child, which does not require touching or application of force, was not the equivalent of sexual contact of a minor, which requires touching or the application of force, was not a "sex offense" as that term is defined in the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, and did not require defendant to register as a sex offender in New Mexico. State v. Hall, 2011-NMCA-047, 149 N.M. 546, 252 P.3d 770, cert. granted, 2011-NMCERT-005, 150 N.M. 666, 265 P.3d 717.

Assistance of counsel. — Defense counsel has an affirmative duty to advise a defendant charged with a sex offense that a plea of guilty or no contest will almost certainly subject the defendant to the registration requirements of SORNA. Proper advice will also include a discussion regarding what SORNA registration will mean, both in terms of the specific registration and notification provisions set forth in this article, as well as the likely social consequences of being a registered sex offender. This is the minimum advice a defendant needs before deciding to waive his or her constitutional rights by entering into a plea agreement. Failure to so advise the defendant amounts to deficient performance under the Strickland test. State v. Edwards, 2007-NMCA-043, 141 N.M. 491, 157 P.3d 56, cert. quashed, 142 N.M. 436, 166 P.3d 1090.

Court cannot stay registration pending appeal. — Trial judges have neither the power nor the discretion to stay the application of the SORNA pending the outcome of an appeal. State v. Myers, 2011-NMSC-028, 150 N.M. 1, 256 P.3d 13, rev'g 2010-NMCA-007, 147 N.M. 574, 226 P.3d 673.

A trial court has discretion to stay Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act registration pending appeal. State v. Myers, 2010-NMCA-007, 147 N.M. 574, 226 P.3d 673, rev'd, 2011-NMSC-028, 150 N.M. 1, 256 P.3d 13.

Stay of registration pending appeal. — Where defendant was convicted of sexual exploitation of children by manufacturing child pornography; the diagnostic evaluation of defendant concluded that defendant is not a pedophile and that with treatment, defendant's risk of re-offending was low; defendant was required to inform the sheriff's department of defendant's current residence and work location and update the information with any changes; and the trial court released defendant pending appeal, the trial court did not abuse its discretion by staying defendant's registration as a sex offender pending the outcome of the appeal. State v. Myers, 2010-NMCA-007, 147 N.M. 574, 226 P.3d 673, rev'd, 2011-NMSC-028, 150 N.M. 1, 256 P.3d 13.

Not applicable to Native Americans. — The state does not have authority to require an Indian who was convicted of a sex offense in a court other than a New Mexico state court, is an Indian living in Indian country, and is not attending school or employed outside of Indian country, to comply with the requirements of Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. State v. Atcitty, 2009-NMCA-086, 146 N.M. 781, 215 P.3d 90, cert. quashed, 2010-NMCERT-010, 149 N.M. 64, 243 P.3d 1146.

Insufficient evidence that defendant willfully failed to register. — Where the defendant was released from probation on the defendant's convictions for sex offenses in 1998; the defendant registered in 2003 after the defendant received a letter informing the defendant that the defendant was required to register; the defendant registered in 2004, but failed to register after 2004; the defendant's judgment and sentence for sex offenses, which was entered before the enactment of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, did not mention any requirement that the defendant register as a sex offender; there was no evidence that when the defendant was released from probation, the defendant was informed of a duty to register as a sex offender; when the deputy sheriff validated the defendant's sex offender registry information he did not inform the defendant that the defendant had a continuing duty to register annually; there was no evidence that when the defendant registered in 2003 and 2004, the defendant was informed that he had the duty to register annually, the evidence failed to show that the defendant willfully failed to comply with the annual registration requirements. State v. Billington, 2009-NMCA-014, 145 N.M. 526, 201 P.3d 857, cert. denied, 2009-NMCERT-001, 145 N.M. 655, 203 P.3d 870.

The only issue raised by an appeal of a conviction for failure to register as a sex offender is whether the defendant's failure to register was willful. State v. Burke, 2008-NMSC-052, 144 N.M. 772, 192 P.3d 767, rev'g 2007-NMCA-093, 142 N.M. 218, 164 P.3d 99.

The sheriff has discretion to adopt reasonable time, place and manner restrictions on the process of registration of sex offenders. State v. Burke, 2007-NMCA-093, 142 N.M. 218, 164 P.3d 99, rev'd, 2008-NMSC-052, 144 N.M. 772, 192 P.3d 767.

A protocol that restricted the time when sex offenders could register to the hours between 1:00 and 4:00 on Wednesday afternoon was reasonable. State v. Burke, 2007-NMCA-093, 142 N.M. 218, 164 P.3d 99, rev'd, 2008-NMSC-052, 144 N.M. 772, 192 P.3d 767.

No violation of due process. — Court's failure to advise defendant, at the time of his plea, of sex offender registration consequences under New Mexico's Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act did not violate due process of law. State v. Moore, 2004-NMCA-035, 135 N.M. 210, 86 P.3d 635.

Multiple convictions for failure to register violated double jeopardy. — Where defendant was convicted of third degree criminal sexual penetration, and was thereafter required to register as a sex offender pursuant to the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, 29-11A-1 to -10 NMSA 1978, which required that he register every ninety days and also within ten days of changing his address, and where during a certain period of time defendant was evicted and required to move out of his home which resulted in defendant missing both statutory deadlines, defendant's multiple convictions for failure to register violated his right to be free from double jeopardy, because the legislature's use of "any" in Subsection P indicates that it contemplated that more than one violation may occur within a given period of non-compliance before the offender next registers, and expressly stated that those violations are part of a continuing transaction or occurrence such that defendant may only be charged with one offense. State v. Cain, 2019-NMCA-059, cert. denied.

Act does not constitute punishment. — Although the notification and registration provisions under Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act are immediate and automatic, they do not constitute punishment for a crime. State v. Moore, 2004-NMCA-035, 135 N.M. 210, 86 P.3d 635.

Registration and notification consequences are collateral. — Sex offender registration law consequences are collateral consequences of a plea and therefore not consequences that require a court, under the due process clause, to advise a defendant of the consequences of registration under Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. State v. Moore, 2004-NMCA-035, 135 N.M. 210, 86 P.3d 635.

Role of court. — The court does not impose Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act provisions or have discretion to modify them in accepting a plea. State v. Moore, 2004-NMCA-035, 135 N.M. 210, 86 P.3d 635.

Where defendant was charged with crimes that require, on conviction, registration under SORNA and where defendant pleaded no contest to crimes that do not require registration, district court did not have the authority to include, as a condition of defendant's probation, that defendant provide the sheriff information required under SORNA and to give the sheriff the discretion to process the information under SORNA. State v. Williams, 2006-NMCA-092, 140 N.M. 194, 141 P.3d 538.

Effect of vacated conviction. — Where petitioner positioned petitioner's truck across the roadway to block the path of the victim's car, entered the victim's car and raped the victim; petitioner was convicted of first-degree kidnapping and second-degree criminal sexual penetration; petitioner was required to register as a sex offender; the court of appeals vacated the rape conviction because petitioner's conviction for both first-degree kidnapping and rape would result in double punishment for the same conduct in violation of the double jeopardy clause; petitioner argued that petitioner was no longer required to register as a sex offender; the jury found petitioner guilty of both first-degree kidnapping and rape based on the same conduct; and the elements of first-degree kidnapping were supported by the elements of the rape conviction, petitioner was required to register as a sex offender. Montoya v. Driggers, 2014-NMSC-009.

Effect of dismissed charges. — When a deferred sentence expires and charges are dismissed, a conviction is not eradicated under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, Chapter 29, Article 11A NMSA 1978; therefore, the defendant is still subject to the registration requirements of this section. State v. Brothers, 2002-NMCA-110, 133 N.M. 36, 59 P.3d 1268, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 30, 59 P.3d 1262.

Effect of conditional discharge. — A person granted a conditional discharge under Section 31-20-13 NMSA 1978 is not required to register as a sex offender under this section. State v. Herbstman, 1999-NMCA-014, 126 N.M. 683, 974 P.2d 177.

Effect of release from incarceration. — A registered sex offender is required to renew the offender's registration upon release from custody of the corrections department on unrelated charges if the offender returns to the offender's previous registered residence. State v. Parrish, 2013-NMCA-066, 304 P.3d 730, cert. denied, 2013-NMCERT-004.

Where defendant was a convicted sex offender and was properly registered; defendant was subsequently incarcerated in a department of corrections facility on an unrelated matter; on the day of defendant's release from the facility, defendant was given a copy of the department's notice to register form, which defendant signed and which stated that a convicted sex offender was required to register after being released from custody; and defendant returned to defendant's registered residence, defendant was required to register upon release from custody. State

29-11A-4.1. Procedures when a sex offender moves from New Mexico to another state.

A. If a sex offender intends to move from New Mexico to another state, no later than thirty days prior to moving to the other state, he shall:

(1) notify the county sheriff of the county he resides in that he is moving to the other state; and

(2) provide the county sheriff with a written notice that identifies the state to which the sex offender is moving.

B. Within five days of receiving a sex offender's written notice of intent to move to another state, the county sheriff shall transmit that information to the department of public safety. Within five days of receiving that information from a county sheriff, the department shall contact the state agency responsible for registering sex offenders in the state to which the sex offender is moving. The department shall provide that state agency with registration information regarding the sex offender. The department shall also obtain information regarding registration requirements for sex offenders in the state to which the sex offender is moving. The department shall provide the sex offender with written notification of the registration requirements in the state to which the sex offender is moving.

C. A sex offender who willfully fails to comply with the requirements set forth in this section is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 2000, ch. 8, § 6; 2005, ch. 279, § 3.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, deleted the former provision in Subsection C that the crime is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for a definite term of not less that one year or a fine of not more that $1,000, or both; and provided in Subsection C that the crime is a fourth degree felony punishable as provided in Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

29-11A-5. Local registry; central registry; administration by department of public safety; participation in the national sex offender registry; rules.

A. A county sheriff shall maintain a local registry of sex offenders in the sheriff's jurisdiction required to register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act.

B. The county sheriff shall forward:

(1) registration information obtained from sex offenders to the department of public safety. The initial registration information and any new registration information subsequently obtained from a sex offender shall be forwarded by the county sheriff no later than ten working days after the information is obtained from a sex offender. If the department of public safety receives information regarding a sex offender from a governmental entity other than a county sheriff, the department shall send that information to the sheriff for the county in which the sex offender resides; and

(2) samples of DNA obtained from sex offenders to the administrative center for the sex offender DNA identification system pursuant to the provisions of the DNA Identification Act [Chapter 29, Article 16 NMSA 1978].

C. The department of public safety shall maintain a central registry of sex offenders required to register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. The department shall participate in the national sex offender registry administered by the United States department of justice. The department shall send conviction information and fingerprints for all sex offenders registered in New Mexico to the national sex offender registry administered by the United States department of justice and to the federal bureau of investigation.

D. The department of public safety shall retain registration information regarding a sex offender convicted for any of the following sex offenses for the entirety of the sex offender's natural life:

(1) aggravated criminal sexual penetration or criminal sexual penetration in the first, second or third degree, as provided in Section 30-9-11 NMSA 1978;

(2) criminal sexual contact of a minor in the second, third or fourth degree, as provided in Section 30-9-13 NMSA 1978;

(3) sexual exploitation of children, as provided in Section 30-6A-3 NMSA 1978;

(4) kidnapping, as provided in Section 30-4-1 NMSA 1978, when the victim is less than eighteen years of age and the offender is not a parent of the victim;

(5) criminal sexual contact in the fourth degree, as provided in Section 30-9-12 NMSA 1978; or

(6) attempt to commit any of the sex offenses set forth in Paragraphs (1) through (5) of this subsection, as provided in Section 30-28-1 NMSA 1978.

E. The department of public safety shall retain registration information regarding a sex offender convicted for the following offenses for a period of ten years following the sex offender's conviction, release from prison or release from probation or parole, whichever occurs later:

(1) criminal sexual penetration in the fourth degree, as provided in Section 30-9-11 NMSA 1978;

(2) sexual exploitation of children by prostitution, as provided in Section 30-6A-4 NMSA 1978;

(3) false imprisonment, as provided in Section 30-4-3 NMSA 1978, when the victim is less than eighteen years of age and the offender is not a parent of the victim;

(4) aggravated indecent exposure, as provided in Section 30-9-14.3 NMSA 1978;

(5) enticement of child, as provided in Section 30-9-1 NMSA 1978;

(6) incest, as provided in Section 30-10-3 NMSA 1978, when the victim is less than eighteen years of age;

(7) solicitation to commit criminal sexual contact of a minor in the second, third or fourth degree, as provided in Sections 30-9-13 and 30-28-3 NMSA 1978;

(8) child solicitation by electronic communication device, as provided in Section 30-37-3.2 NMSA 1978; or

(9) attempt to commit any of the sex offenses set forth in Paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection, as provided in Section 30-28-1 NMSA 1978.

F. Notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection E of this section, if a sex offender is convicted a second or subsequent time for a sex offense set forth in that subsection, the department of public safety shall retain information regarding the sex offender for the entirety of the sex offender's natural life.

G. The department of public safety shall adopt rules necessary to carry out the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. Rules necessary for the collection of DNA samples and the administration and operation of the sex offender DNA identification system shall be adopted by the DNA identification system oversight committee pursuant to the provisions of the DNA Identification Act.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 106, § 5; 1999, ch. 19, § 5; 2000, ch. 8, § 3; 2003 (1st S.S.), ch. 1, § 11; 2005, ch. 279, § 4; 2007, ch. 68, § 2; 2007, ch. 69, § 6.

2007 Multiple Amendments. — Laws 2007, ch. 68, § 2 and Laws 2007, ch. 69, § 6 enacted different amendments to this section that can be reconciled. Pursuant to 12-1-8 NMSA 1978, Laws 2007, ch. 69, § 6, as the last act signed by the governor, is set out above and incorporates both amendments. The amendments enacted by Laws 2007, ch. 68, § 2 and Laws 2007, ch. 69, § 6 are described below. To view the session laws in their entirety, see the 2007 session laws on NMOneSource.com.

Laws 2007, ch. 69, § 6, effective July 1, 2007, required the department of public safety to retain registration information regarding a sex offender convicted of aggravated criminal sexual penetration.

Laws 2007, ch. 68, § 2, effective July 1, 2007, required the department of public safety to retain registration information regarding sex offenders convicted of child solicitation by electronic communication device.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added Subsection B(2) to provide that the sheriff shall forward samples of DNA obtained from sex offenders to the administrative center for the sex offender DNA identification system; deleted the former provision in Subsection D that the department shall retain registration information for a period of twenty years after a sex offender's conviction, release from prison or release from probation or parole, whichever is later; provided in Subsection D that the department shall retain registration information for the natural life of a sex offender; added criminal sexual penetration in the third degree in Subsection D(1); added criminal sexual contact of a minor in the fourth degree in Subsection D(2); added criminal sexual contract in the fourth degree, as provided in Section 30-9-12 NMSA 1978 in Subsection D(5); deleted the former reference to criminal sexual contact in the fourth degree as provided in Section 30-9-12 NMSA 1978 in Subsection E(2); deleted the former reference to criminal sexual contact of a minor in the fourth degree as provided in Section 30-9-13 NMSA 1978 in Subsection E(3); added the reference to aggravated indecent exposure in Subsection E(4); added enticement of child in Subsection E(5); added incest when the victim is less than eighteen years of age in Subsection E(6); added Subsection F to provide that if a sex offender is convicted a second or subsequent time for a sex offence set forth in Subsection E, the department shall retain information regarding that sex offender for the sex offender's natural life; and provided in Subsection G that the DNA identification system oversight committee shall adopt rules for the collection of DNA samples and the administration and operation of the sex offender DNA identification system.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

The 2003 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective February 3, 2004, deleted "county" preceding "sheriff" near the end of the last sentence of Subsection B, inserted "second or" in Paragraph (2) and deleted "Subsection A, B or C of" preceding "Section" in Paragraph (3) of Subsection D, and inserted "second" in Paragraph (6) of Subsection E.

The 2000 amendment, effective July 1, 2000, inserted "initial" and "and any new registration information subsequently obtained from a sex offender" in the second sentence and added the last sentence in Subsection B; added the last sentence in Subsection C, added a new Subsection D(4) and redesignated former Subsection D(4) as present Subsection D(5); added a new Subsection E(5) and redesignated former Subsections E(5) and E(6) as present Subsections E(6) and E(7).

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, in the section heading substituted "participation in the national sex offender registry" for "exchange of registration information with other states" and deleted "and regulations" following "rules"; inserted "and Notification" in Subsections A, C and F; substituted the language following "The department" through the end for "may enter into interstate compact agreements providing for the exchange of information regarding sex offenders, provided that the other state does not permit dissemination of information regarding sex offenders to any persons or entities other than law enforcement agencies" in the last sentence of Subsection C; added Paragraphs D(4), E(5) and E(6); and deleted "and regulations" following "rules" in Subsection F.

ANNOTATIONS

Application of multiple amendments of definition of "sex offense". — Where in 2012, defendant pled guilty to the charge of solicitation of a child by electronic communication device; in 2007, the legislature enacted two acts amending Sections 29-11A-3 and 29-11A-5 NMSA 1978 which were signed on the same day by the governor; Laws 2007, ch. 68 created the new criminal offense of child solicitation by electronic communication device; Laws 2007, ch. 69 created the new crime of aggravated criminal sexual penetration; in 2012, Section 12-1-8 NMSA 1978provided that if, in the same legislative session, the legislature enacted two or more acts amending the same section of the New Mexico Statutes Annotated, then the last act signed by the governor is presumed to be the law and shall be compiled into the NMSA; and Laws 2007, ch. 69 was compiled into the NMSA, child solicitation by electronic communication device was not a SORNA-covered crime in 2012 when defendant pled guilty and defendant was not subject to SORNA. State v. Ho, 2014-NMCA-038, cert. granted, 2014-NMCERT-003.

29-11A-5.1. Public access to information regarding certain registered sex offenders; active community notification; internet web site.

A. If a sex offender is convicted of one of the following sex offenses, the county sheriff shall forward registration information obtained from the sex offender to the district attorney for the judicial district in which the sex offender resides and, if the sex offender is a resident of a municipality, the chief law enforcement officer for the municipality in which the sex offender resides:

(1) aggravated criminal sexual penetration or criminal sexual penetration in the first, second or third degree, as provided in Section 30-9-11 NMSA 1978;

(2) criminal sexual contact of a minor in the second, third or fourth degree, as provided in Section 30-9-13 NMSA 1978;

(3) sexual exploitation of children, as provided in Section 30-6A-3 NMSA 1978;

(4) sexual exploitation of children by prostitution, as provided in Section 30-6A-4 NMSA 1978; or

(5) attempt to commit any of the sex offenses set forth in Paragraphs (1) through (4) of this subsection, as provided in Section 30-28-1 NMSA 1978.

B. A person who wants to obtain registration information regarding sex offenders described in Subsection A of this section may request that information from the:

(1) sheriff for the county in which the sex offenders reside;

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(2) chief law enforcement officer for the municipality in which the sex offenders reside;

(3) district attorney for the judicial district in which the sex offenders reside; or

(4) secretary of public safety.

C. Upon receiving a request for registration information regarding sex offenders described in Subsection A of this section, the county sheriff, chief municipal law enforcement officer, district attorney or secretary of public safety shall provide that registration information, with the exception of a sex offender's social security number and DNA information, within a reasonable period of time, and no later than seven days after receiving the request.

D. Within seven days of receiving registration information from a sex offender described in Subsection A of this section, the county sheriff shall contact every licensed daycare center, elementary school, middle school and high school within a one-mile radius of the sex offender's residence and provide them with the sex offender's registration information, with the exception of the sex offender's social security number and DNA information.

E. The department shall establish and manage an internet web site that provides the public with registration information regarding sex offenders described in Subsection A of this section, except that the department shall not provide registration information on the internet web site regarding a sex offender who was less than eighteen years of age when the sex offender committed the sex offense for which the sex offender was convicted as a youthful offender, as provided in Section 32A-2-3 NMSA 1978, unless at the time of sentencing, the court made a finding that the sex offender is not amenable to treatment and is a danger to the community. The registration information provided to the public pursuant to this subsection shall not include a sex offender's social security number or DNA information or the identity of a sex offender's place of employment, unless the sex offender's employment requires the sex offender to have direct contact with children. The internet web site shall provide only the following registration information:

(1) the sex offender's legal name and any other names or aliases that the sex offender is using or has used;

(2) the sex offender's current address and the address of every place where the sex offender habitually lives;

(3) if the sex offender's employment involves direct contact with children, the sex offender's place of employment;

(4) the sex offenses for which the sex offender has been convicted;

(5) a photograph of the sex offender;

(6) the sex offender's date of birth;

(7) a physical description, including a description of any tattoos, scars or other distinguishing features on the sex offender's body that would assist in identifying the sex offender; and

(8) a link that will pinpoint the location of the sex offender's place of employment if the sex offender has direct contact with children.

History: Laws 1999, ch. 19, § 8; 2000, ch. 8, § 4; 2003 (1st S.S.), ch. 1, § 12; 2005, ch. 279, § 5; 2007, ch. 69, § 7; 2013, ch. 152, § 3.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, provided for the availability of information on the sex offender internet web site; in Subsection E, in the introductory paragraph, in the second sentence, after "DNA information or", added "the identity", added the third introductory sentence; and added Paragraphs (1) through (8) of Subsection E.

Applicability. — Laws 2013, ch. 152, § 5 provided that the provisions of the amendments to the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act enacted by Laws 2013, ch. 152 are applicable to a person who, on or after July 1, 2013, is found guilty of committing a sex offense.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, amended Subsection A to add a request that the sheriff forward registration information regarding a sex offender convicted of aggravated criminal sexual penetration to district attorneys and municipalities.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, adds criminal sexual penetration in the third degree in Subsection A(1); provides in Subsection C that DNA information shall not be disclosed to a person requesting registration information; provides in Subsection D that DNA information shall not be disclosed to daycare centers or schools; provides in Subsection E that the department shall establish a web site and that the department shall not provide information on the web site regarding a sex offender who was less than eighteen years of age when he committed the sex offense unless the sentencing court found that the sex offender is not amenable to treatment and is a danger to the community or regarding DNA information.

The 2003 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective February 3, 2004, deleted "Subsection A, B or C of" preceding "Section" in Paragraph (3) of Subsection A and "county" preceding "sheriff" in Paragraph (1) of Subsection B.

The 2000 amendment, effective July 1, 2000, inserted "active community notification; internet web site" in the section heading, rewrote Subsection C, which formerly read "All requests for registration information regarding a sex offender described in Subsection A of this section are subject to the provisions of the Inspection of Public Records Act", and added Subsections D and E.

Applicability. — Laws 1999, ch. 19, § 11 makes the provisions §§ 1 to 9 of the act applicable to persons convicted of a sex offense committed on or after July 1, 1999. As to persons convicted of a sex offense committed prior to July 1, 1999, the laws with respect to registration requirements for sex offenders in effect at the time the sex offense was committed shall apply.

Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

29-11A-7. Notice to sex offenders of duty to register.

A. A court shall provide a sex offender convicted in that court with written notice of his duty to register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. The written notice shall be included in judgment and sentence forms provided to the sex offender. The written notice shall inform the sex offender that he is required to:

(1) register with the county sheriff for the county in which the sex offender will reside or, if the sex offender will not have an established residence, with the county sheriff for each county in which the sex offender will live or be temporarily located pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(2) report subsequent changes of address pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(3) notify the county sheriff of the county he resides in if the sex offender intends to move to another state and that the sex offender is required to register in the other state pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(4) disclose his status as a sex offender in writing when he begins employment, begins a vocation or enrolls as a student at an institution of higher education in New Mexico to the county sheriff for the county in which the institution of higher education is located and to the law enforcement entity and registrar for the institution of higher education pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(5) provide written notice of any change regarding his employment, vocation or enrollment status at an institution of higher education to the county sheriff, the law enforcement entity and the registrar pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(6) disclose his status as a sex offender in writing when he enrolls as a student at a private or public school in New Mexico, to the county sheriff for the county in which the school is located and to the principal of the school pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(7) provide written notice of any change regarding his enrollment status at a public or private school in New Mexico to the county sheriff and the principal of the school pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(8) disclose his status as a sex offender in writing to his employer, supervisor or other person similarly situated, when he begins employment, begins a vocation or volunteers his services, regardless of whether the sex offender receives payment or other compensation, pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act; and

(9) read and sign a form that indicates that the sex offender has received the written notice and that a responsible court official, designated by the chief judge for that judicial district, has explained the written notice to the sex offender.

B. The corrections department, a municipal or county jail or a detention center at the time of release of a sex offender in its custody, shall provide a written notice to the sex offender of his duty to register, pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. The written notice shall inform the sex offender that he is required to:

(1) register with the county sheriff for the county in which the sex offender will reside or, if the sex offender will not have an established residence, with the county sheriff for each county in which the sex offender will live or be temporarily located pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(2) report subsequent changes of address pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(3) notify the county sheriff of the county he resides in if the sex offender intends to move to another state and that the sex offender is required to register in the other state pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(4) disclose his status as a sex offender in writing when he begins employment, begins a vocation or enrolls as a student at an institution of higher education in New Mexico to the county sheriff for the county in which the institution of higher education is located and to the law enforcement entity and registrar for the institution of higher education pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(5) provide written notice of any change regarding his employment, vocation or enrollment status at an institution of higher education to the county sheriff, the law enforcement entity and the registrar pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(6) disclose his status as a sex offender in writing when he enrolls as a student at a private or public school in New Mexico, to the county sheriff for the county in which the school is located and to the principal of the school pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(7) provide written notice of any change regarding his enrollment status at a public or private school in New Mexico to the county sheriff and the principal of the school pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act;

(8) disclose his status as a sex offender in writing to his employer, supervisor or other person similarly situated, when he begins employment, begins a vocation or volunteers his services, regardless of whether the sex offender receives payment or other compensation, pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act; and

(9) read and sign a form that indicates that the sex offender has received the written notice and that a responsible corrections department official, designated by the secretary of corrections, or a responsible municipal or county jail official or detention center official has explained the written notice to the sex offender.

C. A court, the corrections department, a municipal or county jail or a detention center shall also provide written notification regarding a sex offender's release to the sheriff of the county in which the sex offender is released and to the department of public safety.

D. The department of public safety, at the time it is notified by officials from another state that a sex offender will be establishing residence in New Mexico, shall provide written notice to the sex offender of his duty to register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 106, § 7; 1999, ch. 19, § 6; 2000, ch. 8, § 5; 2005, ch. 279, § 6.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, provided in Subsection A(1) that the notice shall inform the sex offender that if he does not have an established address, he shall register with the sheriff of each county in which he will live or be temporarily located; added Subsections A(4) through (8) to provide that the notice shall inform the sex offender that he is required to disclose his status when he begins employment or a vocation or enrolls in an institution of higher education, provide notice of any changes in his employment, vocation or enrollment status, disclose his status as a sex offender when he enrolls at a private or public school; provide notice of any changes in his enrollment at a public or private school; disclose his status as a sex offender when he begins employment, a vocation or volunteers his services; provided in Subsection B that a municipal or county jail or detention center at the time of release of a sex offender shall provide notice to the sex offender of this duty to register; provided in Subsection B(1) that the notice shall inform the sex offender that if he will not have an established residence, he must register with the sheriff of each county in which he will live or be temporarily located; added Subsections B(4) through (8) to provide that the notice shall inform the sex offender that he is required to disclose his status when he begins employment or a vocation or enrolls in an institution of higher education, provide notice of any changes in his employment, vocation or enrollment status, disclose his status as a sex offender when he enrolls at a private or public school; provide notice of any changes in his enrollment at a public or private school; disclose his status as a sex offender when he begins employment, a vocation or volunteers his services; provided in Subsection B(9) that the sex offender shall sign a form that he has received the notice and that a responsible municipal or county jail official or detention center official has explained the notice to him; and provided in Subsection C that a municipal or county jail or a detention center shall provide notification to the sheriff of the county in which the sex offender is released and to the department.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

The 2000 amendment, effective July 1, 2000, rewrote Subsections A and B, adding Paragraphs (1) to (4); designated the former last sentence in Subsection B as present Subsection C and redesignated former Subsection C as present Subsection D, in present Subsection C, added "and to the department of public safety" at the end; and, in Subsection D, substituted "notice" for "notification".

Applicability. — Laws 2000, ch. 8, § 9 made the provisions of this 2000 version of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act applicable to persons convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 1995 and to persons convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 1995 and who, on July 1, 1995, were incarcerated, on probation or on parole.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, inserted "and Notification" in Subsections A, B, and C, and substituted "convicted" for "adjudicated guilty" in Subsection A.

ANNOTATIONS

Conditional discharge. — Notice requiring defendant to register as a sex offender pursuant to this section did not need to be placed in a conditional discharge order. State v. Herbstman, 1999-NMCA-014, 126 N.M. 683, 974 P.2d 177.

Jurisdiction of district court. — Under its broad grant of jurisdiction and under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, Chapter 29, Article 11A NMSA 1978, a district court has jurisdiction to determine whether a defendant is a sex offender and to give the defendant written notice of the registration requirements under this section; however, the court is not authorized to order defendant to comply with the registration requirement, that is a statutorily mandated duty under Section 29-11A-4 NMSA 1978. State v. Brothers, 2002-NMCA-110, 133 N.M. 36, 59 P.3d 1268, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 30, 59 P.3d 1262.

Failure to advise a defendant of collateral sex offender registration requirements is per se deficient performance. — A defense attorney's failure to advise a defendant entering into a plea which requires Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act registration of that consequence is per se deficient performance under the first prong of the Strickland test. State v. Trammell, 2016-NMSC-030, rev'g 2014-NMCA-107, 336 P.3d 977.

Where defendant, who stole a truck, unaware that there was a twelve-year-old boy in the back seat, pleaded guilty to false imprisonment of a minor, which at the time was a sex offense requiring registration under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA), and where, prior to defendant's plea, defense counsel failed to advise defendant of the SORNA registration consequences of his guilty plea, defendant's attorney's performance was per se deficient, because the failure to advise a defendant of collateral SORNA registration requirements has been a well-established prerequisite to the effective assistance of counsel when arranging a plea agreement, but defendant's claim of ineffective assistance of counsel failed, because defendant failed to establish a reasonable probability that, but for defense counsel's unprofessional errors, he would not have pleaded guilty and instead gone to trial, based on defendant's testimony that had he been advised that he was pleading to a sex offense, he would have tried to negotiate a different plea agreement, the fact that defendant received some benefits by accepting the plea, and that the state had a strong case against defendant. State v. Trammell, 2016-NMSC-030, rev'g 2014-NMCA-107, 336 P.3d 977.

29-11A-8. Immunity.

Nothing in the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act creates a cause of action on behalf of a person against a public employer, public employee or public agency responsible for enforcement of the provisions of that act, so long as the public employer, public employee or public agency complies with the provisions of that act.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 106, § 8; 1999, ch. 19, § 7.

The 1999 amendment, effective July 1, 1999, inserted "and Notification".

Severability. — Laws 1995, ch. 106, § 9 provided for the severability of the act if any part or application thereof is held invalid.

29-11A-9. State preemption; saving clause.

A. The state preempts the field of sex offender registration and notification. Cities, counties, home rule municipalities and other political subdivisions of the state are prohibited from adopting or continuing in effect any ordinance, rule, regulation, resolution or statute on sex offender registration and notification and from imposing any other restrictions on sex offenders that are not included in the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. The department, cities, counties, home rule municipalities and other political subdivisions of the state shall not require a sex offender to report or to register more frequently or to provide information not required by the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

B. After January 18, 2005, cities, counties, home rule municipalities and other political subdivisions of the state are prohibited from adopting or amending an ordinance, rule, regulation or resolution on sex offender registration and notification. An ordinance in effect on January 18, 2005 shall continue in force and effect until repealed; provided that the ordinance shall only continue in force and effect with regard to sex offenders who are required to register pursuant to the provisions of the ordinance but who are not required to register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. All other sex offenders shall register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 279, § 7; 2013, ch. 152, § 4.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, reiterated state preemption of the field of sex offender registration; prohibited law enforcement from requiring additional registration or from imposing other restrictions; in Subsection A, in the second sentence, after "registration and notification", added the remainder of the sentence and added the second sentence.

Applicability. — Laws 2013, ch. 152, § 5 provided that the provisions of the amendments to the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act enacted by Laws 2013, ch. 152 are applicable to a person who, on or after July 1, 2013, is found guilty of committing a sex offense.

Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

ANNOTATIONS

More restrictive city ordinance not preempted. — The Albuquerque Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act ordinance did not conflict with state law even though the ordinance was more restrictive than state law because the ordinance required a broader class of sex offenders to register than did state law, sex offenders who are required to register under state law are not required to register under the ordinance, and the ordinance required sex offenders to provide more detailed information than did state law. ACLU v. City of Albuquerque, 2006-NMCA-078, 139 N.M. 761, 137 P.3d 1215.

29-11A-10. Severability.

If any part or application of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act is held invalid, the remainder of that act and its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 279, § 8.

Effective dates. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, § 15 made the act effective July 1, 2005.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

29-12A-1. Short title.

This act [29-12A-1 to 29-12A-6 NMSA 1978] may be cited as the "Crime Stoppers Act".

History: Laws 2003, ch. 249, § 1.
Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 249 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 20, 2003, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

29-12A-2. Advisory council; composition; vacancies; payment.

A. The "crime stoppers advisory council" is created. The council shall consist of five members from local crime stoppers programs, four of whom shall be from the four quadrants of the state and one from Albuquerque. All members of the council shall be appointed by the governor for two-year terms.

B. A vacancy on the council shall be filled by gubernatorial appointment for the remainder of the unexpired term. A vacancy on the council shall not impair the right of the remaining members to exercise all the powers and duties of the council.

C. Members of the council shall receive per diem and mileage as provided in the Per Diem and Mileage Act [10-8-1 NMSA 1978] and shall receive no other compensation or allowance.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 249, § 2.
Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 249 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 20, 2003, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

29-12A-3. Powers and duties of advisory council.

A. The powers and duties of the crime stoppers advisory council are to:

(1) advise and assist in the creation and maintenance of local crime stoppers programs;

(2) certify local crime stoppers programs for the purposes of confidentiality of records, privileges and immunities set forth in the Crime Stoppers Act;

(3) encourage the media to promote the functions of local crime stoppers programs; and

(4) facilitate training for local crime stoppers programs.

B. The council shall not take part in the receipt of reports or tips regarding criminal activity.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 249, § 3.
Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 249 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 20, 2003, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

29-12A-4. Confidentiality of records.

A. Evidence of a communication between a person submitting a report to a local crime stoppers program and the person accepting the report on behalf of the program is not admissible in a court or an administrative proceeding, except as provided in Subsection B of this section.

B. Records and reports of a local crime stoppers program are confidential and shall not be produced before a court or other tribunal, except on a motion by:

(1) a criminal defendant claiming that a record or report contains specific evidence that is exculpatory to the defendant on trial for that offense; or

(2) a person in civil court who has been exonerated of a criminal charge that was filed as a result of a report to a local crime stoppers program, and denial of access to a record or report would leave the person without the ability to offer prima facie proof that a legal injury was suffered through the wrongful acts of another.

C. Upon motion made pursuant to Subsection B of this section, a court may subpoena a record or report, but shall conduct an in camera inspection of the materials produced to determine whether there is evidence as alleged to warrant disclosure pursuant to Subsection B of this section. If the court finds such evidence, the court shall determine how much of the evidence to disclose and whether the identity of the person who submitted the report to the local crime stoppers program must be disclosed.

D. The court shall protect the identity of a person who submits a report to a local crime stoppers program as it would protect the identity of a confidential police informer.

E. A local crime stoppers program shall be certified by the crime stoppers advisory council before it can claim confidentiality under this section.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 249, § 4.
Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 249 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 20, 2003, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

29-12A-5. Confidentiality; penalty.

29-13-2. Purpose of act.

The purpose of the Law Enforcement Protection Fund Act is to provide for the equitable distribution of money to state police, municipal police, university police, tribal police, county sheriff's and school district police departments for use in the maintenance and improvement of those departments in order to enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of law enforcement services and to sustain at a reasonable level the payments available to the surviving eligible family members of a peace officer killed in the line of duty.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 289, § 2; 1993, ch. 179, § 3; 1998, ch. 83, § 1; 2002, ch. 78, § 4; 2020, ch. 67, § 2.

The 2020 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, added state police and school district police to the departments that receive distributions from the law enforcement protection fund; and after "distribution of money to", added "state police" and after "county sheriff's", added "and school district police".

The 2002 amendment, effective May 15, 2002, inserted "and to sustain at a reasonable level the payments available to the surviving eligible family members of a peace officer killed in the line of duty" at the end of the section.

The 1998 amendment, effective March 9, 1998, substituted "police, university police" for "and" near the middle of the section.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, substituted "money" for "funds" and substituted "tribal police and county sheriff's departments" for "county police and sheriff departments".

29-13-2.1. Definitions.

As used in the Law Enforcement Protection Fund Act:

A. "academy" means the New Mexico law enforcement academy;

B. "division" means the local government division of the department of finance and administration;

C. "fund" means the law enforcement protection fund;

D. "governmental entity" means the academy, the department of public safety, a municipality, a county, a university, a tribe or a school district;

E. "school district police department" means a department of commissioned law enforcement officers who are charged with preventing, investigating and solving crimes on school district property;

F. "tribal police department" means the police department of a tribe that has entered into an agreement with the department of public safety pursuant to Section 29-1-11 NMSA 1978;

G. "tribe" means an Indian nation, tribe or pueblo located wholly or partly in New Mexico; and

H. "university" means a four-year post-secondary educational institution listed in Article 12, Section 11 of the constitution of New Mexico.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-13-2.1, enacted by Laws 1993, ch. 179, § 4; 1998, ch. 83, § 2; 2002, ch. 92, § 2; 2017, ch. 35, § 2; 2020, ch. 67, § 3.

The 2020 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, revised the definition of "governmental entity" and defined "school district police department" as used in the Law Enforcement Protection Fund Act; in Subsection D, after "academy", added "the department of public safety", after "municipality", added "a county, a", and after "tribe or a", deleted "county" and added "school district"; and added a new Subsection E and redesignated the succeeding subsections accordingly.

fund in excess of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) that is not obligated for expenses in that current fiscal year.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 289, § 3; 1985, ch. 29, § 1; 1988, ch. 96, § 1; 1993, ch. 179, § 5; 2003, ch. 202, § 1; 2004, ch. 122, § 1; 2017, ch. 1, § 1; 2018, ch. 57, § 12.

Cross references. — For the general fund, see 6-4-2 NMSA 1978.

The 2018 amendment, effective January 1, 2020, removed the exception for the health insurance premium surtax from paying into the law enforcement protection fund; and after "New Mexico Insurance Code", deleted "except for money received from the health insurance premium surtax, imposed by Subsection C of Section 59A-6-2 NMSA 1978".

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2018, ch. 57, § 30 provided that:

A. On January 1, 2020, all personnel directly involved with the audit and collection of the taxes imposed pursuant to the New Mexico Insurance Code prior to the effective date of this act, functions, appropriations, money, records, furniture, equipment and other property of, or attributable to, the financial audit bureau of the office of superintendent of insurance shall be transferred to the taxation and revenue department.

B. On January 1, 2020, no contractual obligations of the office of superintendent of insurance shall be binding on the taxation and revenue department.

The 2017 amendment, effective June 16, 2017, modified the formula for the amount of funds that the state treasurer is required to transfer to the general fund from any balances in the law enforcement protection fund at the end each fiscal year; after "($100,000) that is not obligated", deleted "and that is in excess of the amount certified by the division to be distributed from that fund" and added "for expenses in that current fiscal year".

The 2004 amendment, effective July 1, 2004, amended this section to change "department" to "division" in the catchline and to insert after "New Mexico Insurance Code" "except for money received from the health insurance premium surtax imposed by Subsection C of Section 59A-6-2 NMSA 1978".

The 2003 amendment, effective June 20, 2003, substituted "monthly" for "daily" preceding "to the state treasurer".

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, deleted "law enforcement protection" preceding "fund" near the end of the second sentence and rewrote the last sentence.

29-13-3. Distribution of certain insurance collections; law enforcement protection fund created. (Effective July 1, 2023.)

*There is created in the state treasury the "law enforcement protection fund". ## 29-13-4. Determination of needs and rate of distribution.

A. Annually on or before April 15, the division shall consider and determine the relative needs as requested by tribal, municipal, school district and university police departments, county sheriff's departments, the department of public safety and the academy for money in the fund in the succeeding fiscal year pursuant to the provisions of Subsections C and E of this section.

B. As necessary during the year, the division shall transfer an amount from the fund to the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund that enables the balance of the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund to be maintained at a minimum balance of three hundred fifty thousand dollars ($350,000) through fiscal year 2023 and one million dollars ($1,000,000) thereafter.

C. The division shall determine the rate of distribution of money in the fund as follows:

(1) all municipal police, school district police and county sheriff's departments shall be entitled to a rate of distribution of forty-five thousand dollars ($45,000) through fiscal year 2023 and ninety-five thousand dollars ($95,000) thereafter;

(2) university police departments shall be entitled to a rate of distribution of forty-five thousand dollars ($45,000) through fiscal year 2023 and ninety-five thousand dollars ($95,000) thereafter;

(3) the academy shall be entitled to a rate of distribution of twenty-four thousand five hundred dollars ($24,500) to carry out the purposes of Section 29-7-7.7 NMSA 1978 and to a rate of distribution of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) to carry out the purposes of the Law Enforcement Training Act [Chapter 29, Article 7 NMSA 1978];

(4) tribal police departments shall be entitled, unless allocations are adjusted pursuant to the provisions of Subsection D of this section, to one thousand dollars ($1,000) through fiscal year 2023 and one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500) thereafter for each commissioned peace officer in the tribe. To be counted as a commissioned peace officer for the purposes of this paragraph, a commissioned peace officer shall have been assigned to duty and have worked in New Mexico for no fewer than two hundred days in the calendar year immediately prior to the date of payment. Payments shall be made for only those divisions of the tribal police departments that perform services in New Mexico. A tribal police department shall not be eligible for any disbursement under the fund if commissioned peace officers cite non-Indians into the tribal court for civil or criminal citations;

(5) municipal, school district and university police and county sheriff's departments shall be entitled, unless allocations are adjusted pursuant to the provisions of Subsection D of this section, to one thousand dollars ($1,000) through fiscal year 2023 and one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500) thereafter for each police officer or sheriff's deputy employed full time by that department who has been certified by the law enforcement certification board as a police officer or has been authorized to act as a New Mexico peace officer pursuant to the provisions of Section 29-1-11 NMSA 1978; and

(6) municipal police, sheriff's and school district police departments that assign officers as school resource officers shall be entitled to one thousand dollars ($1,000) through fiscal year 2023 and one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500) thereafter for each assigned school resource officer's training pursuant to Section 29-7-14 NMSA 1978.

D. After distributions are determined in accordance with Subsection A, Subsection B and Paragraphs (1), (2), (3) and (6) of Subsection C of this section, if the balance in the fund is insufficient to permit the total allocations provided by Paragraphs (4) and (5) of Subsection C of this section, the division shall reduce that allocation to the maximum amount permitted by available money.

E. After all distributions have been made in accordance with Subsections A through D of this section, and if the balance in the fund is sufficient, the department of public safety shall be entitled to a rate of distribution of not more than two million dollars ($2,000,000).

F. The division shall confirm, before making any distribution under this section, that the beneficiary is in compliance with all of the beneficiary's statutory reporting requirements, including those described in Subsection C of Section 29-3-11 NMSA 1978, Subsection B of Section 29-7-7.1 NMSA 1978 and Sections 29-7-7.2, 29-7C-7 and 29-7C-8 NMSA 1978.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-13-4, enacted by Laws 1993, ch. 179, § 6; 1998, ch. 83, § 3; 2000, ch. 59, § 1; 2002, ch. 78, § 5; 2002, ch. 92, § 3; 2017, ch. 1, § 2; 2017, ch. 35, § 3; 2020, ch. 67, § 4; 2022, ch. 56, § 21.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1993, ch. 179, § 6 repealed former 29-13-4 NMSA 1978, as amended by Laws 1988, ch. 96, § 2, and enacted a new section, effective June 18, 1993.

The 2022 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, increased the amount of distributions from the law enforcement protection fund, and increased the distribution from the law enforcement protection fund by two hundred thousand dollars for the New Mexico law enforcement academy to implement the provisions of the Law Enforcement Training Act; in Subsection B, after "three hundred fifty thousand dollars ($350,000)", added "through fiscal year 2023 and one million dollars ($1,000,000) thereafter"; in Subsection C, Paragraphs C(1) and C(2), after "forty-five thousand dollars ($45,000)", added "through fiscal year 2023 and ninety-five thousand dollars ($95,000) thereafter", in Paragraph C(3), added "and to a rate of distribution of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) to carry out the purposes of the Law Enforcement Training Act", in Paragraphs C(4), C(5) and C(6), after "one thousand dollars ($1,000)", added "through fiscal year 2023 and one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500) thereafter", and after "has been certified by the", deleted "academy, or by a regional law enforcement training facility in the state certified by the director of the academy" and added "law enforcement certification board", in Paragraph C(6), after "pursuant to Section", deleted "1 of this 2020 act" and added "29-7-14 NMSA 1978"; and added Subsection F.

The 2020 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, increased the amounts distributed from the law enforcement protection fund, and provided for distributions from the fund to the department of public safety and school districts; in Subsection A, after "municipal", added "school district", after "university police", added "departments", after "sheriff's departments", added "the department of public safety", after "the provisions of", deleted "Subsection" and added "Subsections", and after "C", added "and E"; in Subsection C, Paragraph C(1), after "municipal police",

2017 Amendments. — Laws 2017, ch. 35, § 3, effective July 1, 2017, included the New Mexico law enforcement academy for distribution of funds from the law enforcement protection fund, made a twenty-four thousand five hundred dollar ($24,500) distribution from the law enforcement protection fund to the New Mexico law enforcement academy to carry out the purposes of tourniquet and trauma kit training, and made technical changes; in Subsection A, after "county sheriff's departments", added "and the academy"; in Subsection B, after "transfer an amount from the", deleted "law enforcement protection", after the next occurrence of "fund", added "to the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund", and added "New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers'"; in Subsection C, in the introductory clause, after "remaining in the fund", deleted "to each tribal, municipal and university police and county sheriff's department", added a new Paragraph C(3) and redesignated former Paragraph C(3) as Paragraph C(4), in Paragraph C(4), after "Subsection", changed "C" to "D", and in the fourth sentence, deleted "No" and added "A", and after "shall", added "not", and in Paragraph C(5), after "certified by the", deleted "New Mexico law enforcement", and added "or by a regional law enforcement training facility in the state certified by the director of the academy"; and in Subsection D, after "Paragraphs (1)", deleted "and", after "(2)", added "and (3)", after the next occurrence of "Paragraphs", deleted "(3)" and added "(4)", and after the next occurrence of "and", deleted "(4)" and added "(5)".

Laws 2017, ch. 1, § 2, effective June 16, 2017, in Subsection A, after "money in the fund", added "in the succeeding fiscal year"; in Subsection B, added "to the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund", and after "balance of the", deleted "peace officers' survivors" and added "latter"; and in Subsection C, in the introductory clause, after "distribution of money", deleted "remaining", in Paragraph C(3), after "Subsection", changed "C" to "D", in the fourth sentence, deleted "No" and added "A", and after "shall", added "not", and in Paragraph C(4), after "employed full time", deleted "by his department".

2002 Amendments. — Laws 2002, ch. 92, § 3, effective May 15, 2002, deleted Subsection A(2), relating to the calculation of considerations due to tribal police department under former Subsection C(10) of Section 29-1-11 NMSA 1978; and in Subsection B, added Paragraph (3) and redesignated former Paragraph (3) as Paragraph (4).

Laws 2002, ch. 78, § 5, effective May 15, 2002, added a new Subsection B and relettered the succeeding subsections accordingly.

The 2000 amendment, effective May 17, 2000, in Subsection B(1), changed the Class 1 funding amount from $17,000 to $20,000 and, in Subsection B(3), changed the amount for each officer or deputy from $300 to $600.

The 1998 amendment, effective March 9, 1998, inserted "and university" throughout the section; made a minor stylistic change in the table in Paragraph B(1); added Paragraph B(2), redesignated former Paragraph B(2) as Paragraph B(3); substituted "as a police officer" for "pursuant to the provisions of Section 29-7-8 NMSA 1978" near the end of Paragraph B(3); and, in Subsection C, substituted "Paragraphs (1) and (2)" for "Paragraph (1)" and "(3)" for "(2)", respectively.

29-13-5. Determination of needs; review.

No later than May 1 of each year, the division shall notify in writing each affected municipal police, school district police, university police, tribal police and county sheriff's department, the department of public safety and the academy of its determination of money to be distributed pursuant to the provisions of Section 29-13-4 NMSA 1978. Any affected governmental entity may appeal that determination by filing a notice of appeal with the secretary of finance and administration no later than May 15. If an appeal is filed, the secretary of finance and administration shall review the determination of the division in an informal and summary proceeding and shall certify the result of the appeal to the division no later than June 30, and the division shall adjust its determination accordingly. If no appeal is filed, the original determination of the division shall be final and binding and not subject to further review.

History: Laws 1983, ch. 289, § 5; 1988, ch. 96, § 3; 1993, ch. 179, § 7; 1998, ch. 83, § 4; 2017, ch. 35, § 4; 2020, ch. 67, § 5.

The 2020 amendment, effective July 1, 2022, added the department of public safety and affected school district police departments to the list of law enforcement departments required to receive notice in writing from the division of the amount of money they will receive from the law enforcement protection fund; and after "municipal police", added "school district police", and after "sheriff's department", added "the department of public safety".

29-13-6. Distribution of law enforcement protection fund.

A. Based on a periodic allotment approved by the division for the current fiscal year, the state treasurer shall distribute from the fund the amounts certified by the division to be distributed to governmental entities and the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund as required in Section 29-13-4 NMSA 1978. Payments shall be made by the treasurer to the appropriate governmental entity or fund unless otherwise specified in Subsection C of this section.

B. The state treasurer is authorized to redirect a distribution to the New Mexico finance authority in an amount certified by the division, pursuant to an ordinance or a resolution passed by the municipality or county and a written agreement of the municipality or county and the New Mexico finance authority.

C. Based on a periodic allotment approved by the division for the current fiscal year, the state treasurer shall distribute from the money in the fund money certified by the division to be distributed to tribes. Payment shall be made to the chief financial officer of the tribe. If necessary, the fund may be decreased below the level of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) to enable payment to the tribes. If insufficient money remains in the fund to fully compensate the tribes, a report shall be made to the Indian affairs department and to an appropriate interim committee of the legislature that reviews issues having impact on tribes by September 1 of the year of the shortfall.

The 2017 amendment, effective June 16, 2017, created a new requirement for the local government division of the department of finance and administration to use periodic allotments approved by the division for the current fiscal year; in Subsection A, deleted "Annually on or before July 31" and added "Based on a periodic allotment approved by the division for the current fiscal year", after "distributed to governmental entities and", deleted "the transfer shall distribute money from the law enforcement protection fund to", after "the peace officers'", added "New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers'", after "Payments shall be made", deleted "to" and added "by", and after "the treasurer", deleted "of" and added "to"; and in Subsection C, deleted "Annually on or before July 31" and added "Based on a periodic allotment approved by the division for the current fiscal year", after "report shall be made to the", deleted "New Mexico office of", and after "Indian affairs", added "department".

2002 Amendments. — Laws 2002, ch. 92, § 4, effective May 15, 2002, in Subsection A, substituted "governmental entities" for "municipalities, universities and counties" and added the phrase beginning "unless otherwise specified" at the end of the second sentence; in Subsection C, substituted "money" for "excess money remaining" and deleted "after distributions pursuant to Subsection A of this section are made" following "in the fund" in the first sentence and deleted all references to pueblos in the subsection.

Laws 2002, ch. 78, § 5, effective May 15, 2002, in Subsection A, at the end of the first sentence, added "and the transfer shall distribute money from the law enforcement protection fund to the peace officers' survivors fund as required in Section 29-13-4 NMSA 1978", and in the second sentence, after "governmental entity", added "or fund".

The 1998 amendment, effective March 9, 1998, inserted "universities" near the end of the second sentence in Subsection A.

The 1996 amendment, effective March 4, 1996, inserted "or a resolution" following "ordinance" and "or county" following "by the municipality" in Subsection B.

The 1994 amendment, effective May 18, 1994, inserted present Subsection B and redesignated former Subsection B as Subsection C, and deleted "of each year" following "July 31" in the first sentence thereof.

The 1993 amendment, effective June 18, 1993, designated the existing provision as Subsection A; in the first sentence of Subsection A, deleted "law enforcement protection" preceding "fund" and substituted "division" for "local government division of the department of finance and administration"; and added Subsection B.

29-13-7. Expenditure limitation; control.

A. Except as provided for the academy and the department of public safety in Subsections B and C of this section, amounts distributed from the fund shall be expended only for the following:

(1) the repair and purchase of law enforcement apparatus and equipment, including the financing and refinancing thereof, that meet minimum nationally recognized standards;

(2) the purchase of law enforcement equipment, including protective vests, for police dogs;

(3) expenses associated with advanced law enforcement planning and training;

(4) maintaining the balance of the peace officers', New Mexico mounted patrol members' and reserve police officers' survivors fund at a minimum amount of three hundred fifty thousand dollars ($350,000) through fiscal year 2023 and one million dollars ($1,000,000) thereafter;

(5) complying with match or contribution requirements for the receipt of federal funds relating to criminal justice programs;

29-14-2. Findings and purpose.

A. The legislature finds and declares that effective law enforcement is dependent upon the maintenance of stable relations between peace officers and their employers. Moreover, the existence of stable relations between peace officers and their employers will enhance law enforcement services provided to the citizens of New Mexico.

B. The purpose of the Peace Officer's Employer-Employee Relations Act is to prescribe certain rights for peace officers, particularly when they are placed under investigation by their employer.

C. Provisions of this act only apply to administrative actions and shall not apply to criminal investigations of a peace officer except as provided in Section 8 [29-14-8 NMSA 1978] of this act.

29-14-3. Definition.

As used in the Peace Officer's Employer-Employee Relations Act, "peace officer" or "officer" means any employee of a police or sheriff's department that is part of or administered by the state or any political subdivision of the state who is responsible for the prevention and detection of crime and the enforcement of the penal, traffic or highway laws of the state.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 3.

29-14-4. Investigations of peace officers; requirements.

When any peace officer is under investigation by his employer for alleged actions that could result in administrative sanctions being levied against the officer, the following requirements shall be adhered to:

A. any interrogation of an officer shall be conducted when the officer is on duty or during his normal waking hours, unless the urgency of the investigation requires otherwise;

B. any interrogation of an officer shall be conducted at the employer's facility, unless the urgency of the investigation requires otherwise;

C. prior to commencement of any interrogation session:

(1) an officer shall be informed of the name and rank of the person in charge of the interrogation and all other persons who will be present during the interrogation;

(2) an officer shall be informed of the nature of the investigation, and the names of all known complainants shall be disclosed to the officer unless the chief administrator of the officer's employer determines that the identification of the complainant shall not be disclosed because it is necessary for the protection of an informant or because disclosure would jeopardize or compromise the integrity or security of the investigation; and

(3) a reasonable attempt shall be made to notify the officer's commanding officer of the pending interrogation;

D. during any interrogation session, the following requirements shall be adhered to:

(1) each interrogation session shall not exceed two hours unless the parties mutually consent to continuation of the session;

(2) there shall not be more than two interrogation sessions within a twenty-four hour period, unless the parties mutually consent to additional sessions, provided that there shall be at least a one-hour rest period between the sessions;

(3) the combined duration of an officer's work shift and any interrogation session shall not exceed fourteen hours within a twenty-four hour period, unless the urgency of the investigation requires otherwise;

(4) there shall not be more than two interrogators at any given time;

(5) an officer shall be allowed to attend to physical necessities as they occur in the course of an interrogation session; and

(6) an officer shall not be subjected to offensive language or illegal coercion by his interrogator in the course of an interrogation session;

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

E. any interrogation of an officer shall be recorded, either mechanically or by a stenographer, and the complete interrogation shall be published as a transcript; provided that any recesses called during the interrogation shall be noted in the transcript; and

F. an accurate copy of the transcript or tape shall be provided to the officer, upon his written request, no later than fifteen working days after the investigation has been completed.

29-14-5. Polygraph examinations.

After reviewing all the information collected in the course of an investigation of a peace officer, the chief administrator of the officer's employer may order the officer to submit to a polygraph examination administered by a licensed polygraph examiner, provided that:

A. all other reasonable investigative means have been exhausted; and

B. the officer has been advised of the administrator's reasons for ordering the polygraph examination.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 5.

ANNOTATIONS

29-14-6. Investigation of administrative matters.

When any peace officer is under investigation for an administrative matter, the officer shall be permitted to produce any relevant documents, witnesses or other evidence to support his case and he may cross-examine any adverse witnesses during any grievance process or appeal involving disciplinary action.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 6.

29-14-7. Personnel files.

A. No document containing comments adverse to a peace officer shall be entered into his personnel file unless the officer has read and signed the document. When an officer refuses to sign a document containing comments adverse to him, the document may be entered into an officer's personnel file if:

(1) the officer's refusal to sign is noted on the document by the chief administrator of the officer's employer; and

(2) the notation regarding the officer's refusal to sign the document is witnessed by a third party.

B. A peace officer may file a written response to any document containing adverse comments entered into his personnel file and the response shall be filed with the officer's employer within thirty days after the document was entered into the officer's personnel file. A peace officer's written response shall be attached to the document.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 7.

29-14-8. Constitutional rights; notification.

When any peace officer is under administrative investigation and a determination is made to commence a criminal investigation, he shall be immediately notified of the investigation and shall be afforded all the protections set forth in the bill of rights of the United States and New Mexico constitutions.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 8.

29-14-9. Forced disclosure of financial status prohibited.

A peace officer shall not be required by his police or sheriff's department employer to disclose information regarding his financial status, unless all other reasonable investigative means have been exhausted or except as otherwise required by law.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 9.

29-14-10. Political activity.

A. A peace officer shall not be prohibited by his police or sheriff's department employer from engaging in any political activity when the officer is off duty, except as otherwise required by law.

B. Notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection A of this section, any peace officer employed by the New Mexico state police department shall be governed by the provisions of regulations adopted by the department regarding political activity.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 10.

29-14-11. Exercise of rights.

A peace officer shall not be subjected to any retaliation by his employer due to the officer's lawful exercise of his rights under the Peace Officer's Employer-Employee Relations Act.

History: Laws 1991, ch. 117, § 11.

29-15-3. Missing persons information clearinghouse; function.

A. The "missing persons information clearinghouse" is established in the department of public safety. The department of public safety shall provide for the administration of the clearinghouse. The department of public safety may adopt rules to carry out the provisions of the Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act [Chapter 29, Article 15 NMSA 1978] in the manner prescribed in Subsection E of Section 9-1-5 NMSA 1978.

B. The clearinghouse is a central repository of information on missing persons and shall be used by all law enforcement agencies, including tribal agencies, in this state.

C. The clearinghouse shall:

(1) establish a system of intrastate communication of information relating to missing persons;

(2) provide a centralized file for the exchange of information on missing persons and unidentified human remains within the state;

(3) communicate with the national crime information center for the exchange of information on missing persons suspected of interstate travel;

(4) collect, process, maintain and disseminate accurate and complete information on missing persons;

(5) provide a statewide toll-free telephone line for the reporting of missing persons and for receiving information on missing persons;

(6) disseminate to custodians, law enforcement agencies, the public education department, the children, youth and families department and the general public information that explains how to prevent child abduction and what to do if a child becomes missing;

(7) compile statistics relating to the incidence of missing persons within the state;

(8) provide training and technical assistance to law enforcement agencies and social services agencies pertaining to missing persons;

(9) establish a media protocol for disseminating information pertaining to missing persons; and

(10) host the annual missing in New Mexico event.

D. The clearinghouse shall print and distribute posters, flyers and other forms of information containing descriptions of missing persons.

E. The department of public safety may accept public or private grants, gifts and donations to assist the department in carrying out the provisions of the Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 3; 2010, ch. 33, § 4; 2022, ch. 3, § 2.

to host the annual missing in New Mexico event; and in Subsection C, added new Paragraph 10.

Temporary provisions. — Laws 2019, ch. 106, § 1, effective March 28, 2019, provided:

A. The "missing and murdered indigenous women task force" is created and shall exist until the end of fiscal year 2021.

B. The task force consists of:

(1) the secretary of Indian affairs or the secretary's designee from the Indian affairs department, who shall be chair of the task force;

(2) the secretary of public safety or the secretary's designee from the department of public safety;

(3) a representative of the United State bureau of Indian affairs office of justice services designated by the southwest region's deputy regional director for Indian services of the bureau of Indian affairs;

(4) one person who is a member of a pueblo, appointed by the governor;

(5) one person who is a member of the Jicarilla Apache Nation, appointed by the governor;

(6) one person who is a member of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, appointed by the governor;

(7) one person who is a member of the Navajo Nation, appointed by the governor;

(8) one person from the office of the medical investigator;

(9) one person who is a representative of an indigenous women's nongovernmental organization that provides counseling services for indigenous women and girls who have been victims of violence, appointed by the governor;

(10) one person who is a representative of a statewide or local nongovernmental organization that provides legal services to indigenous women and girls who have been victims of violence, appointed by the governor; and

(11) one person who is an indigenous woman who has been a victim of violence or a family member of an indigenous woman who has been a victim of violence, appointed by the governor.

C. Vacancies by members of the task force appointed by the governor shall be filled by appointment by the governor.

D. Task force members appointed by the governor may receive per diem and mileage as provided for non-salaried public officers in the Per Diem and Mileage Act and shall receive no other compensation, perquisite or allowance.

E. The task force shall conduct a study to determine how to increase state resources for reporting and identifying missing and murdered indigenous women in the state. The task force shall collaborate with tribal law enforcement agencies to determine the scope of the problem, identify barriers to address the problem and create partnerships to improve the reporting of and the investigation of missing and murdered indigenous women.

F. The task force shall work with tribal governments and shall respect tribal sovereignty. The task force shall collaborate with the United States department of justice to improve its processes for information sharing and coordination of resources in regard to reporting and investigating cases of missing and murdered indigenous women in the state.

G. The task force shall report its findings and recommendations to the governor, the legislative council service library and the appropriate interim legislative committee and present those findings to the appropriate interim legislative committee prior to November 1, 2020.

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection A, in the third sentence, after "may adopt rules", deleted "and regulations" and changed the name of the act from the "Missing Persons Information Act" to the "Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act"; in Subsection C(2), after "persons and unidentified", deleted "bodies of persons" and added "human remains"; in Subsection C(6), changed "state department of public education" to "public education department"; and in Subsection E, changed the name of the act from the "Missing Persons Information Act" to the "Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act".

29-15-3.1. Endangered person advisory.

A. The department of public safety shall issue an endangered person advisory if, after review and investigation of a missing person report of an endangered person, the department makes an independent determination that the missing person is an endangered person.

B. The department shall develop and implement endangered person advisory procedures for the purpose of disseminating, as rapidly as possible, information about an endangered person. The procedures shall include:

(1) notification to the lead station of the endangered person advisory;

(2) notification to other public and private media sources and members of the public as necessary; and

(3) providing information about the endangered person, including all identifying information, to the lead station and other media sources.

History: Laws 2007, ch. 119, § 3.

Effective dates. — Laws 2007, ch. 119, § 4 made the section effective July 1, 2007.

29-15-3.2. Silver alert advisory.

A. The department of public safety shall issue a silver alert if, after review and investigation of a missing person report of a person subject to the alert, the department makes an independent determination that the missing person is a person subject to the alert.

B. The department of public safety shall develop and implement a silver alert plan for the purpose of disseminating, as rapidly as possible, information about a person subject to the alert. The plan shall:

(1) provide a procedure for the department to notify the lead station that a silver alert has been declared. The procedure shall include codes for use by the department in communicating with the lead station to prevent false alerts;

(2) provide a procedure in which other state and private print, radio, television or other media may alert members of the public of the missing person;

(3) include a procedure for notifying the department of information technology that a silver alert has been declared. The department of information technology shall immediately transmit the notification and related information to all state field operations employees so that they may be aware and vigilant in the course of their regular activities;

(4) require cellular service companies to implement silver alerts in accordance with the federal communication commission's wireless emergency alerts processes;

(5) include a procedure for notifying all local and federal law enforcement agencies that a silver alert has been declared;

(6) provide for dissemination of information about the missing person to the lead station, the department of information technology and local law enforcement agencies when a silver alert has been declared; and

(7) provide for collecting and maintaining the following records regarding each silver alert issued:

(a) the municipality where the missing person report originated;

(b) the age of the missing person;

(c) the gender of the missing person;

(d) the date of the missing person report;

(e) the date the silver alert is issued; and

(f) the date of recovery of the missing person.

C. The department of public safety shall distribute the silver alert notification plan to all local law enforcement agencies and provide such training and other assistance as is necessary to ensure that the plan can be properly implemented.

D. Once a silver alert has been declared, only the department of public safety may terminate the silver alert.

29-15-5. Custodian or immediate family member request for information.

A. Upon written or oral request to a law enforcement agency by a custodian or immediate family member of a missing person, the law enforcement agency shall immediately request from the clearinghouse information concerning the missing person that may aid the custodian or immediate family member in the identification or location of the missing person.

B. A law enforcement agency to which a request has been made pursuant to Subsection A of this section shall report to the custodian or immediate family member on the results of its inquiry to the clearinghouse within seven calendar days after the day the request is received by the law enforcement agency, or as soon as the results of its inquiry become available, whichever occurs last.

C. A law enforcement agency shall not report to a custodian or immediate family member pursuant to Subsection B of this section if the missing person is not a minor, has been found and has informed a law enforcement agency or the clearinghouse that the person requests confidentiality regarding the person's status and location. If the missing person who requests confidentiality regarding the person's status and location is a person with a custodian appointed by a judge, the law enforcement agency shall inform the court that the person has been found and has requested confidentiality regarding the person's status and location. A law enforcement agency shall also report to the custodian that the person has been found unless there is competent evidence that to do so may cause harm to the incapacitated person.

D. The Inspection of Public Records Act [Chapter 14, Article 2 NMSA 1978] shall not apply to a request to inspect records regarding a person who has requested confidentiality pursuant to Subsection C of this section.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 5; 2010, ch. 33, § 5; 2021, ch. 39, § 1.

The 2021 amendment, effective June 18, 2021, required confidentiality in certain circumstances for a person who has been reported missing and is found by law enforcement, provided additional duties for law enforcement under these circumstances, and provided that the Inspection of Public Records Act shall not apply to a request to inspect records regarding a person who has been reported missing, is found by law enforcement and has requested confidentiality; and added Subsections C and D.

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection A, after "Upon written", deleted "notification" and added "or oral request"; after "information concerning the", added "missing"; and after "location of the", added "missing"; and in Subsection B, after "law enforcement agency to which", deleted "notification" and added "a request"; after "request has been", deleted "provided" and added "made"; after "results of its inquiry", added "to the clearinghouse"; and after "days after the day the", deleted "written notification" and added "request".

29-15-6. Missing person report forms.

A. The clearinghouse shall distribute missing person report forms to law enforcement agencies in the state.

B. A missing person report may be made to a law enforcement agency in person, or by telephone, electronic media or other indirect method of communication and the person taking the report may enter the information on the form for the reporter. A missing person report form may be completed by the reporter and delivered to a law enforcement officer.

C. A copy of the missing person report form shall be filed with the clearinghouse.

D. A missing person report form shall include, to the extent available, the following information:

(1) the missing person's:

(a) name, including any alternative names used;

(b) date of birth;

(c) identifying marks, including birthmarks, moles, tattoos and scars;

(d) height and weight;

(e) gender;

(f) race;

(g) current hair color and true or natural hair color;

(h) eye color;

(i) prosthetics, surgical implants or cosmetic implants;

29-15-7. Law enforcement requirements; missing person reports; unidentified human remains.

A. A law enforcement agency shall accept without delay and without exception for any reason any report of a missing person and, no later than two hours after receiving a missing person report or additional or supplemental information for the report, shall:

(1) start an appropriate investigation to determine the present location of the missing person and to determine whether the missing person is an endangered person;

(2) provide to the clearinghouse all information the law enforcement agency has relating to an investigation regarding or the location or identification of a missing person;

(3) enter the name of the missing person into the clearinghouse and the national crime information center missing person file; and

(4) if the missing person is determined to be an endangered person, notify the department of public safety in accordance with procedures prescribed by the department.

B. Information not immediately available shall be obtained as soon as possible by the law enforcement agency and, no later than two hours after receipt of the information, entered into the clearinghouse and the national crime information center file as a supplement to the original entry.

C. All New Mexico law enforcement agencies are required to enter information about all unidentified human remains found in their jurisdiction into the clearinghouse and the national crime information center unidentified person file, including all available identifying features of the human remains and a description of the clothing found on the human remains. If an information entry into the national crime information center file results in an automatic entry of the information into the clearinghouse, the law enforcement agency is not required to make a direct entry of that information into the clearinghouse.

Laws 2010, ch. 33, § 7 [set out above], effective May 19, 2010, in the title of the section, after "unidentified", deleted "bodies" and added "human remains"; in Subsection A, after "law enforcement agency" deleted "upon" and added "shall accept without delay and without exception for any reason any report of a missing person and, no later than two hours after" and after "missing person report", added "or additional or supplemental information for the report"; in Subsection A(1) and (3), deleted "immediately" from the beginning of the each sentence; in Subsection A(4), after "an endangered person," deleted "immediately"; in Subsection B, after "law enforcement agency and" added "no later than two hours after receipt of the information"; and in Subsection C, in the first sentence, after "information about all unidentified", deleted "bodies of persons" and added "human remains"; after "identifying features of the", deleted "body" and added "human remains"; and after "clothing found on the" deleted "body" and added "human remains".

Laws 2010, ch. 32, § 3 [set out below], effective May 19, 2010, in the title of the section, after "unidentified", deleted "bodies" and added the "human remains"; in Paragraph (4) of Subsection A, after "endangered person", deleted "immediately" and after "department of public safety", added "within twelve hours of receiving the report"; and in Subsection C, in the first sentence, after "available identifying features of the", deleted "body" and inserted "human remains"; and after "description of the clothing found", deleted "of the body" and inserted "with the body", and provided:

"29-15-7. Law enforcement requirements; missing person reports; unidentified human remains.

A. A law enforcement agency, upon receiving a missing person report, shall:

(1) immediately start an appropriate investigation to determine the present location of the missing person and to determine whether the missing person is an endangered person;

(2) provide to the clearinghouse all information the law enforcement agency has relating to an investigation regarding, or the location or identification of, a missing person;

(3) immediately enter the name of the missing person into the clearinghouse and the national crime information center missing person file; and

(4) if the missing person is determined to be an endangered person, notify the department of public safety within twelve hours of receiving the report, in accordance with procedures prescribed by the department.

B. Information not immediately available shall be obtained as soon as possible by the law enforcement agency and entered into the clearinghouse and the national crime information center file as a supplement to the original entry.

C. All New Mexico law enforcement agencies are required to enter information about all unidentified human remains of persons found in their jurisdiction into the clearinghouse and the national crime information center unidentified person file, including all available identifying features of the human remains and a description of the clothing found with the human remains. If an information entry into the national crime information center file results in an automatic entry of the information into the clearinghouse, the law enforcement agency is not required to make a direct entry of that information into the clearinghouse."

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, required law enforcement agencies to determine whether a missing person is an endangered person and if the missing person is an endangered person, to notify the department of public safety.

29-15-7.1. Missing child reports; law enforcement agencies; duties; registrar.

A. Upon receiving a report of a child believed to be missing, a law enforcement agency shall:

(1) no later than two hours after receiving the report, enter identifying and descriptive information about the child into the national crime information center computer. Law enforcement agencies having direct access to the national crime information center computer shall enter and retrieve the data directly and shall cooperate in the entry and retrieval of data on behalf of law enforcement agencies that do not have direct access to the system; and

(2) notify the state registrar within twenty-four hours, by telephone, facsimile or electronic transmission, of the missing child. Within three days of this initial notification, the law enforcement agency shall make a written notification in a manner and form prescribed by the state registrar. Both notifications shall include the missing child's name, date of birth and county and state of birth; the mother's maiden name; the name of the noncustodial parent if the parents are not married; the name and telephone number of a contact person at the reporting law enforcement agency; and any other information required by the state registrar.

B. Immediately after a missing child is located, the law enforcement agency that located or returned the missing child shall notify the law enforcement agency having jurisdiction over the investigation, and the originating agency shall clear the entry from the national crime information center computer and shall, within twenty-four hours, notify the state registrar in writing that the missing child has been located.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-15-7.1, as enacted by Laws 2010, ch. 33, § 8.

Effective dates. — Laws 2010, ch. 33 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2010, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

29-15-7.2. Birth records of missing children; state registrar's duties.

A. Upon notification by a law enforcement agency that a child born in the state is missing, the state registrar shall flag the child's birth record in such a manner that whenever a copy of the birth certificate or information concerning the birth record is requested, the state registrar shall be alerted to the fact that the certificate is that of a missing child.

B. Upon notification by a law enforcement agency that a child born outside the state is missing, the state registrar shall notify the corresponding officer in the state where the child was born that the child has been reported missing.

C. In response to any inquiry, the state registrar or any local registrar appointed by the state registrar or any employee of the vital statistics bureau of the health services division of the department of health shall not provide a copy of a birth certificate or information concerning the birth record of any missing child whose birth record is flagged pursuant to this section, except following notification of the law enforcement agency having jurisdiction over the investigation of the missing child. Such inquiries shall be handled in the following manner:

(1) when a copy of the birth certificate of a missing child whose record has been flagged is requested in person, the local registrar or employee accepting the request shall immediately notify that person's supervisor or the state registrar. If possible, the person making the request shall complete a form supplying the requester's name, address, telephone number and relationship to the missing child and the name, address and birth date of the missing child. The driver's license of the requester, if available, shall be photocopied and returned. The requester shall be informed that a copy of the birth certificate will be mailed to the requester. The local registrar or employee shall note the physical description of the requester, and, upon that requester's departure from the vital statistics bureau office, the supervisor or state registrar shall immediately notify the law enforcement agency having jurisdiction of the request and the information obtained pursuant to this paragraph. The state registrar will retain the form completed by the person making the request; and

(2) when a copy of the birth certificate of a missing child whose birth record has been flagged is requested in writing, the state registrar shall immediately notify the law enforcement agency having jurisdiction of the request and shall provide a copy of the written request. The state registrar shall retain the original written request.

D. Upon notification by a law enforcement agency that a missing child has been recovered, the state registrar shall remove the flag from the child's birth record.

History: 1978 Comp., § 29-15-7.2, as enacted by Laws 2010, ch. 33, § 9.

Cross references. — For the vital statistics bureau, see 24-14-3 NMSA 1978.

Effective dates. — Laws 2010, ch. 33 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 19, 2010, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

29-15-8. Release of dental records; immunity.

A. At the time a missing person report is made, the law enforcement agency to which the missing person report is given shall provide a dental record release form conforming to the requirements of the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 to the custodian or immediate family member of the missing person, provided that the custodian or immediate family member is authorized pursuant to that federal act to execute a release on behalf of the missing person. The law enforcement agency shall endorse the dental record release form with a notation that a missing person report has been made in compliance with the provisions of the Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act. When the dental record release form is properly completed by the custodian or immediate family member of the missing person and contains the endorsement, the form is sufficient to permit a dentist or physician in this state to release dental records relating to the missing person to the law enforcement agency.

B. If a release form cannot be executed, the law enforcement agency shall seek disclosure of the dental records of a missing person directly from the records custodian pursuant to the provisions of the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 that allow disclosure of health information for law enforcement purposes.

C. The law enforcement agency shall send the dental records to the clearinghouse.

D. A dentist or physician who releases dental records pursuant to this section is immune from civil liability or criminal prosecution for the release of the dental records.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 8; 2010, ch. 33, § 10.

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection A, in the first sentence, after "dental record release form", added "conforming to the requirements of the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996" and after "family member of the missing person", added "provided that the custodian or immediate family member is authorized pursuant to that federal act to execute a release on behalf of the missing person"; and in the second sentence, after "Missing Persons Information", added "and Reporting"; deleted the former language of Subsection B, which authorized a district court judge to release dental records of a missing person to a law enforcement agency; added the current language of Subsection B; and in Subsection D, after "physician who releases dental records", deleted "to a person presenting a proper release executed or ordered".

29-15-9. Cross-checking and matching.

A. The clearinghouse shall cross-check and attempt to match unidentified human remains with descriptions of missing persons. When the clearinghouse discovers a possible match between unidentified human remains and a missing person description, the clearinghouse shall notify the appropriate law enforcement agencies.

B. Law enforcement agencies that receive notice of a possible match shall make arrangements for positive identification. If a positive identification is made, the law enforcement agency shall complete and close the investigation with written notification to the clearinghouse.

C. Law enforcement agencies that receive notice of a possible match between human remains and a missing person description shall notify the office of the state medical investigator.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 9; 2010, ch. 33, § 11.

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection A, in the first sentence, after "to match unidentified", deleted "bodies" and added "human remains"; and in the second sentence, after "possible match between unidentified", deleted "body" and added "human remains"; and added Subsection C.

29-15-10. Interagency cooperation.

A. State agencies and public and private schools shall cooperate with a law enforcement agency that is investigating a missing person report and shall furnish any information that will assist the law enforcement agency in completing the investigation.

B. Information provided by a state agency or a public or private school shall not be released to any person outside the law enforcement agency or the clearinghouse, except as provided by rule of the department of public safety.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 10; 2010, ch. 33, § 12.

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection B, after "except as provided by", deleted "regulation" and added "rule".

29-15-11. Confidentiality of records.

A. The department of public safety shall by rule provide for the classification of information and records as confidential that:

(1) are otherwise confidential under state or federal law or rules adopted pursuant to state or federal law;

(2) are related to the investigation by a law enforcement agency of a missing person or unidentified human remains, if the department of public safety, in consultation with the law enforcement agency, determines that release of the information would be deleterious to the investigation;

(3) are records or notations that the clearinghouse maintains for internal use in matters relating to missing persons and unidentified human remains and the department of public safety determines that release of the internal documents might interfere with an investigation by a law enforcement agency in New Mexico or any other jurisdiction; or

(4) the department of public safety determines might interfere with an investigation or otherwise harm a person, custodian or reporter.

B. The rule may provide for the sharing of confidential information with the custodian or immediate family member of the missing person, except as provided pursuant to Section 29-15-5 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 11; 2010, ch. 33, § 13; 2021, ch. 39, § 2.

The 2021 amendment, effective June 18, 2021, provided an exception to the provision authorizing the sharing of confidential information with the custodian or immediate family member of a missing person; and in Subsection B, after "missing person", added "except as provided pursuant to Section 29-15-5 NMSA 1978".

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in Subsection A, after "public safety shall by", deleted "regulation" and added "rule"; in Paragraph (1) of Subsection A, after "state or federal law or", deleted "regulations" and added "rules"; in Paragraph (2) of Subsection A, after "missing person or unidentified", deleted "body" and added "human remains"; in Paragraph (3) of Subsection A, after "missing persons and unidentified", deleted "bodies" and added "human remains"; and in Subsection B, at the beginning of the sentence, after "The", deleted "regulation" and added "rule".

29-15-12. Attorney general to require compliance; removal or discipline.

A. The attorney general shall enforce state agency compliance with the provisions of the Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act as appropriate to assure the immediate response to a report of a missing person.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 146, § 12; 2010, ch. 33, § 14.

The 2010 amendment, effective May 19, 2010, in the catchline, after "compliance", added "; removal or discipline"; in Subsection A, after "The attorney general shall" deleted "require each law enforcement agency to comply with the provisions of the Missing Persons Information Act and may seek writs of mandamus or other appropriate remedies to enforce the provisions of that act" and added the remainder of the sentence.

29-15-13. Missing in New Mexico event.

Each year, the department of public safety, in collaboration with the clearinghouse, shall host a "missing in New Mexico event" in support of all New Mexicans who are searching for missing relatives. The missing in New Mexico event is designated to:

A. provide an opportunity for federal, state, local and tribal governments to come together in one location and virtually to assist families to file missing persons reports, update missing persons reports, submit DNA records or meet with an investigator;

B. provide a network for New Mexicans with missing relatives to heal, access support services and access media outlets to distribute information about missing relatives to the general public; and

C. encourage the department of public safety, local law enforcement agencies, the office of the attorney general, the office of the state medical investigator, the Indian affairs department, the department of health and the behavioral health services and income support divisions of the human services department to come together to provide support and services for New Mexican families with missing relatives.

29-15A-1. Short title.

This act [29-15A-1 to 29-15A-5] may be cited as the "AMBER Alert Law".

History: Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 1. Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 6 made Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 1 effective April 1, 2003.

29-15A-2. Definitions.

As used in the AMBER Alert Law:

A. "AMBER alert" means a declaration by the authorized requester that an abduction has occurred and that notifications and broadcasts should be made pursuant to the AMBER alert notification plan;

B. "authorized requester" means the person designated by the chief of the state police to implement the AMBER alert notification plan;

C. "chief of the state police" means the director of the New Mexico state police division of the department of public safety;

D. "lead station" means an AM radio station that has been designated as the "state primary station" by the federal communications commission for the emergency alert system; and

E. "state police" means the New Mexico state police division of the department of public safety.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 2. Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 6 made Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 2 effective April 1, 2003.

29-15A-3. State police; AMBER alert notification plan; declaration of AMBER alert.

A. The state police shall develop and implement an AMBER alert notification plan for the purpose of disseminating, as rapidly as possible, information about a child abduction so that law enforcement agencies and citizens throughout the state may be aware and vigilant. The plan shall:

(1) provide a procedure for notifying the lead station by the authorized requester that an AMBER alert has been declared. The procedure shall include codes for use by the authorized requester in communicating with the lead station to prevent false alerts;

(2) provide a procedure in which other state and private print, radio, television or other media may alert the members of the public of the abduction;

(3) include a procedure for notifying the department of information technology that an AMBER alert has been declared. The department of information technology shall immediately transmit the notification and related information to all state field operations employees so that they may be aware and vigilant in the course of their regular activities;

(4) include a procedure for notifying a representative of each cellular service company and paging service company operating in New Mexico so that a text message may be sent to the company's customers at no additional expense to the recipient or to any service that accepts the information from the authorized requester and delivers it to the cellular service or paging service company;

(5) include a procedure for notifying all local and federal law enforcement agencies that an AMBER alert has been declared; and

(6) provide for dissemination of information about a child or a child's abductor to the lead station, the department of information technology and local law enforcement agencies when an AMBER alert has been declared.

B. The state police shall distribute the AMBER alert notification plan to all local law enforcement agencies and provide such training and other assistance as is necessary to ensure that the plan can be properly implemented.

C. The authorized requester may declare an AMBER alert when the requester has reason to believe that:

(1) a child under the age of eighteen has been abducted;

(2) the child is in imminent danger of serious bodily harm or death; and

(3) there is specific information available about the child or the child's abductor that may assist in an expedient and successful end to the abduction.

D. Once an AMBER alert has been declared, only the authorized requester may terminate the AMBER alert.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 93, § 3; 2005, ch. 142, § 1; 2007, ch. 290, § 24; 2013, ch. 51, § 1.

The 2013 amendment, effective June 14, 2013, expanded the reasons for declaring an AMBER alert to include abduction by a person related to the child; and in Paragraph (1) of Subsection C, after "has been abducted", deleted "by an unrelated person".

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, required the AMBER alert notification plan to provide for notification to and transmission of information by the department of information technology.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added Subsection A(4) to require that the AMBER notification plan include a procedure for notifying each cellular and paging service company in New Mexico so that a message may be sent to the company's customers at no additional expense to the person who accepts the information and delivers it to the cellular or paging service company.

29-15A-4. AMBER alert; initiation by other law enforcement agencies.

A. The procedures for initiating an AMBER alert pursuant to the AMBER Alert Law are available to all law enforcement agencies in New Mexico; provided that nothing in that law prohibits a local law enforcement agency from developing and implementing its own similar notification plan; provided further that nothing in that act supercedes a provision or procedure in such a local notification plan.

B. If a law enforcement agency that has not developed and implemented its own similar plan desires that an AMBER alert be declared, it shall notify the authorized requester. The authorized requester shall declare an AMBER alert if, after evaluating the information, the authorized requester believes that the criteria for declaring an alert has been satisfied.

C. If an AMBER alert is initiated and there is information that the child's abductor may be traveling or has traveled across state lines, the authorized requester shall notify the other states or the Republic of Mexico in order for those governments to issue an alert. The state police shall work with all bordering states and the Republic of Mexico in order to establish agreements to carry out regional alerts.

29-16-1. Short title.

Chapter 29, Article 16 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "DNA Identification Act".

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 1; 2003, ch. 256, § 4.

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003 substituted "Chapter 29, Article 16 NMSA 1978" for "This act [29-16-1 to 29-16-13 NMSA 1978]" at the beginning of the section.

ANNOTATIONS

Constitutionality. — New Mexico's DNA Identification Act, which requires all persons arrested for certain crimes to provide a DNA sample, is not unconstitutional on its face, because weighing the law enforcement need to identify all persons it has arrested for committing a felony, and the sample's subsequent use in a database, against the minimally invasive means for securing the DNA sample from a defendant's cheek weighs in favor of concluding that the search is reasonable under the fourth amendment to the U.S. Constitution and of the N.M. Const., art. II, § 10. State v. Blea, 2018-NMCA-052, cert. denied.

Where defendant was convicted of multiple counts of first degree criminal sexual penetration and first degree kidnapping involving four separate victims, and where defendant claimed that New Mexico's DNA Identification Act, which requires all persons arrested for certain crimes to provide a DNA sample, is unconstitutional on its face, defendant's claim was denied, because weighing the law enforcement need to identify all persons it has arrested for committing a felony, and the sample's subsequent use under the combined DNA index system database, against the minimally invasive means for securing the DNA sample from a defendant's cheek weighs in favor of concluding that the search is reasonable under the fourth amendment to the U.S. Constitution and of the N.M. Const., art. II, § 10. State v. Blea, 2018-NMCA-052, cert. denied.

29-16-2. Purpose of act.

The purpose of the DNA Identification Act is to:

A. establish a DNA identification system for covered offenders and persons required to provide a DNA sample pursuant to the provisions of Section 1 [29-3-10 NMSA 1978] of this 2006 act;

B. facilitate the use of DNA records by local, state and federal law enforcement agencies in the:

(1) identification, detection or exclusion of persons in connection with criminal investigations; and

(2) registration of sex offenders required to register pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act [Chapter 29, Article 11A NMSA 1978];

C. establish a missing persons DNA identification system consisting of the following DNA indexes:

(1) unidentified persons;

(2) unidentified human remains; and

(3) relatives of, or known reference samples from, missing persons; and

D. facilitate the use of DNA records by local, state and federal law enforcement agencies and the state medical investigator in the identification and location of missing and unidentified persons or human remains.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 2; 2003, ch. 256, § 5; 2005, ch. 279, § 9; 2006, ch. 104, § 2.

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, in Subsection A, added "persons required to provide a DNA sample pursuant to the provisions of Section 1 of this 2006 act".

Severability. — Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 11, effective January 1, 2007, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added Subsection B(2) to provide that a purpose of the act is to facilitate the use of DNA records in the registration of sex offenders.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

and DNA records for forensic and humanitarian purposes. Those purposes shall include generation of investigative leads, statistical analysis of DNA profiles and identification of missing persons and unidentified human remains. Procedures used for DNA testing shall be compatible with the procedures the federal bureau of investigation has specified, including comparable test procedures, laboratory equipment, supplies and computer software. Procedures used shall meet or exceed the provisions of the federal DNA Identification Act of 1994 regarding minimum standards for state participation in CODIS, including minimum standards for the acceptance, security and dissemination of DNA records;

(2) coordinate sample collection activities;

(3) perform or contract for DNA testing;

(4) serve as a repository for samples and DNA records;

(5) act as liaison with the federal bureau of investigation for purposes of CODIS;

(6) adopt rules and procedures governing:

(a) sample collection;

(b) DNA testing;

(c) the DNA identification system and DNA records;

(d) the acceptance, security and dissemination of DNA records; and

(e) communication between local, state and federal law enforcement agencies, the corrections department and local jails and detention facilities in order to minimize duplicate sample collections from the same individual;

(7) provide training to jail and detention facility personnel who are required to collect samples pursuant to Section 29-3-10 NMSA 1978;

(8) be reimbursed for, pursuant to the DNA Identification Act, the costs of sample collection and DNA testing of samples taken for the purposes of the identification of missing persons and unidentified human remains;

(9) establish and administer the missing persons DNA identification system as a part of the DNA identification system; and

(10) establish and administer the sex offender DNA identification system as part of the DNA identification system.

B. The chief of the law enforcement agency where the administrative center is located shall select the head of the administrative center with the approval of six members of the DNA oversight committee. The head of the administrative center shall manage the operations of the administrative center and shall have the education and experience to meet or exceed the requirements for a technical leader or a CODIS administrator pursuant to the federal bureau of investigation's quality assurance standards.

C. The administrative center shall be located at the crime laboratory of the law enforcement agency for the largest municipality in a class A county having a population of more than five hundred thousand at the most recent federal decennial census. If a relocation of the administrative center is required for continued compliance with the provisions of the DNA Identification Act, the DNA oversight committee shall designate any future locations of the administrative center upon approval of six voting members of the committee.

D. The DNA oversight committee shall enter into a written agreement with the law enforcement agency where the administrative center is located and may designate the attorney general to enter into the agreement on its behalf and with its approval.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 4; 2003, ch. 256, § 7; 2005, ch. 279, § 11; 2006, ch. 104, § 3; 2009, ch. 24, § 2; 2013, ch. 208, § 2.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, provided for the location and relocation of the administrative center and for the selection of the head of the administrative center; provided for the qualifications of the head of the administrative center; required a written agreement between the committee and the law enforcement agency where the administrative center will be located; in the title, after "duties", deleted "transfer to other law enforcement agency" and added "head; location; written agreement"; deleted former Subsection A, which required the secretary of public safety to designate the unit to which the administrative center would be attached; deleted former Subsections C and D, which authorized the secretary of public safety to designate the location of the administrative center; and added Subsections B through D.

The 2009 amendment, effective June 19, 2009, in Subsection A, at the end of the sentence, deleted "part of a crime laboratory" and added "that meets the requirements for participation in the national DNA index system".

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, added Subparagraph (e) of Paragraph (6) of Subsection B to provide for communication in order to minimize duplicate sample collections; and added Paragraph (7) of Subsection B to provide for training to personnel to collect samples.

Severability. — Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 11, effective January 1, 2007, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added Subsection B(9) to provide that the administrative center shall establish and administer the sex offender DNA identification system as part of the DNA identification system.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

29-16-5. DNA oversight committee; created; powers and duties.

A. The "DNA identification system oversight committee" is created. The DNA oversight committee shall be composed of nine voting members as follows:

(1) a scientific representative from the department crime laboratory appointed by the secretary of public safety;

(2) a scientific representative from the crime laboratory of the police department for the largest municipality in a class A county having a population of more than two hundred fifty thousand at the most recent federal decennial census;

(3) the secretary of corrections or the secretary's designated representative;

(4) the state medical investigator or the investigator's designated representative;

(5) the attorney general or the attorney general's designated representative;

(6) the president of the district attorneys' association or the president's designated representative;

(7) the chief public defender or the chief public defender's designated representative;

(8) the president of the New Mexico criminal defense lawyers association or the president's designated representative; and

(9) the head of the administrative center or the head's designated representative.

B. The DNA oversight committee shall adopt rules and procedures regarding the administration and operation of the DNA identification system.

C. The administrative center shall review and make recommendations to the DNA oversight committee regarding rules and procedures for the administration and operation of the DNA identification system.

D. The DNA oversight committee shall oversee the establishment and administration of the missing persons DNA identification system as part of the DNA identification system.

E. The DNA oversight committee shall adopt rules and procedures regarding the administration and operation of the missing persons DNA identification system as part of the DNA identification system.

F. The DNA oversight committee shall oversee the establishment and administration of the sex offender DNA identification system as part of the DNA identification system.

G. The DNA oversight committee shall adopt rules and procedures regarding the administration and operation of the sex offender DNA identification system as part of the DNA identification system.

H. The DNA oversight committee shall designate and approve the location of the administrative center as provided in Section 29-16-4 NMSA 1978.

I. The DNA oversight committee may award grants and loans pursuant to Section 29-16-13 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 5; 2003, ch. 256, § 8; 2005, ch. 279, § 12; 2009, ch. 24, § 3; 2013, ch. 208, § 3.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, required that the DNA identification system oversight committee designate and approve the location of the administrative center; and added Subsections H and I.

The 2009 amendment made no changes.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added Subsection F to provide for the establishment and administration of the sex offender DNA identification system and added Subsection G to provide for the adoption of rules and procedures regarding the establishment and administration of the sex offender DNA identification system.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003 substituted "attorneys" for "attorney's" in Subsection A(6); deleted "regulations" following "adopt rules" near the middle of Subsection B; and deleted "regulations" following "regarding rules" near the middle of Subsection C; and added Subsections D and E.

29-16-6. Collection of samples.

A. A covered offender shall provide one or more samples to the administrative center, as follows:

(1) a covered offender convicted on or after July 1, 1997 shall provide a sample immediately upon request to the corrections department as long as the request is made before release from any correctional facility or, if the covered offender is not sentenced to incarceration, before the end of any period of probation or other supervised release;

(2) a covered offender incarcerated on or after July 1, 1997 shall provide a sample immediately upon request to the corrections department as long as the request is made before release from any correctional facility;

(3) a covered offender on probation or other supervised release on or after July 1, 1997 shall provide a sample immediately upon request to the corrections department as long as the request is made before the end of any period of probation or other supervised release; and

(4) a covered offender required to register or renew his registration pursuant to the provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act [Chapter 29, Article 11A NMSA 1978] shall provide a sample immediately upon request to the county sheriff located in any county in which the sex offender is required to register, unless the sex offender provided a sample while in the custody of the corrections department or to the county sheriff of another county in New Mexico in which the sex offender is registered.

B. A person eighteen years of age or over who is arrested on or after January 1, 2007 for the commission of a felony as provided in Section 1 [29-3-10 NMSA 1978] of this 2006 act shall provide a sample immediately upon request to jail or detention facility personnel, unless:

(1) the person has previously provided a sample sufficient for DNA testing pursuant to the provisions of this section;

(2) the sample is in the possession of the administrative center; and

(3) the sample has not been expunged.

C. Samples from unidentified persons or relatives of a missing person shall be provided to the administrative center, as follows:

(1) upon the completion of a permission to search form authorizing the collection of a DNA sample;

(2) upon the receipt of a properly executed search warrant; or

(3) upon the issuance of a court order.

D. Samples from unidentified human remains shall be provided by the state medical investigator.

E. Samples of known reference materials from missing persons shall be provided by the investigating law enforcement agency.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 6; 2003, ch. 256, § 9; 2005, ch. 279, § 13; 2006, ch. 104, § 4.

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, added Subsection B to provide with exception for the collection of samples from persons eighteen years of age or older, who are arrested for a felony.

Severability. — Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 11, effective January 1, 2007, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 1, 2005, added Subsection A(4) to provide that a covered offender shall provide a sample upon request of the sheriff of any county in which the sex offender is required to register, unless the sex offender has given a sample while in custody of the corrections department of a sheriff of another county.

Applicability. — Laws 2005, ch. 279, §14, effective July 1, 2005, provided that Laws 2005, ch. 279, §§ 1 through 13 apply to a person convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 2005 and a person convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 2005 and who, on July 1, 2005, was still incarcerated, on probation or on parole for commission of that sex offense.

ANNOTATIONS

Constitutionality. — New Mexico's DNA Identification Act, which requires all persons arrested for certain crimes to provide a DNA sample, is not unconstitutional on its face, because weighing the law enforcement need to identify all persons it has arrested for committing a felony, and the sample's subsequent use in a database, against the minimally invasive means for securing the DNA sample from a defendant's cheek weighs in favor of concluding that the search is reasonable under the fourth amendment to the U.S. Constitution and of the N.M. Const., art. II, § 10. State v. Blea, 2018-NMCA-052, cert. denied.

Where defendant was convicted of multiple counts of first degree criminal sexual penetration and first degree kidnapping involving four separate victims, and where defendant claimed that New Mexico's DNA Identification Act, which requires all persons arrested for certain crimes to provide a DNA sample, is unconstitutional on its face, defendant's claim was denied, because weighing the law enforcement need to identify all persons it has arrested for committing a felony, and the sample's subsequent use under the combined DNA index system database, against the minimally invasive means for securing the DNA sample from a defendant's cheek weighs in favor of concluding that the search is reasonable under the fourth amendment to the U.S. Constitution and of the N.M. Const., art. II, § 10. State v. Blea, 2018-NMCA-052, cert. denied.

29-16-6.1. Reimbursement of costs.

A. When the DNA testing of samples listed in Section 29-16-6 NMSA 1978 is required, the administrative center shall be reimbursed for the costs of the sample collection and DNA testing:

(1) of unidentified persons by the investigating law enforcement agency;

(2) of unidentified human remains by the state medical investigator or by the investigating law enforcement agency; and

(3) for relatives of, or known reference samples from, a missing person by the relatives of the missing person or by the investigating law enforcement agency.

B. Reimbursements shall be deposited in the fund.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 256, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 256, § 12 made Laws 2003, ch. 256, § 2 effective July 1, 2003.

29-16-7. Procedures for collection of samples.

A. The collection of samples pursuant to the provisions of Section 29-16-6 NMSA 1978 shall be conducted in a medically approved manner in accordance with rules and procedures adopted by the DNA oversight committee.

B. A person who collects samples shall be trained in procedures that meet the requirements and standards specified in Subsection A of this section.

C. A person authorized to collect samples and his employer shall be immune from liability in any civil or criminal action with regard to the collection of samples, if the collection is performed without negligence. This subsection shall not be deemed to create any additional liability or waive any immunity of public employees under the Tort Claims Act [41-4-1 through 41-4-27 NMSA 1978].

D. Samples shall be stored in accordance with rules and procedures adopted by the administrative center.

E. DNA testing shall be performed by the administrative center or a contract facility it may designate.

F. DNA records and samples shall be securely classified and stored by the administrative center.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 7; 2003, ch. 256, § 10.

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003, deleted "regulations" following "rules" throughout the section; in Subsection A substituted "29-16-6 NMSA 1978" for "6 of the DNA Identification Act" following "provisions of Section" near the beginning; and substituted "by" for "at" near the end of Subsection F.

29-16-8. Confidentiality; disclosure and dissemination of DNA records.

A. DNA records and samples are confidential and shall not be disclosed except as authorized in the DNA Identification Act pursuant to the rules and regulations developed and adopted by the DNA oversight committee.

B. The administrative center shall make DNA records available for identification, comparison and investigative purposes to local, state and federal law enforcement agencies and the state medical investigator pursuant to the rules developed and adopted by the DNA oversight committee. The administrative center may disseminate statistical or research information derived from samples and DNA testing if all personal identification is removed pursuant to the rules developed and adopted by the DNA oversight committee.

C. To minimize duplicate sample collection and testing, the administrative center may make information available, by secure electronic methods, to local, state and federal law enforcement agencies, the corrections department, jails and detention facilities for the purpose of verifying whether a sample has been collected from a specific individual. Information provided under this subsection shall not include DNA testing results.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 8; 2003, ch. 256, § 11; 2006, ch. 104, § 5.

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, added Subsection C to provide for release of information in order to minimize duplicate sample collection and testing.

Severability. — Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 11, effective January 1, 2007, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

The 2003 amendment, effective July 1, 2003, in Subsection B inserted "and the state medical investigator" following "law enforcement agencies" near the middle and deleted "and regulations" following "to the rules" throughout the section.

29-16-8.1. DNA searches.

A. Searches of samples collected pursuant to the DNA Identification Act, for purposes of the missing persons DNA identification system, shall be limited to searches against DNA indexes consisting of:

(1) unidentified persons;

(2) unidentified human remains;

(3) relatives of, or known reference samples from, missing persons;

(4) covered offenders as defined by the DNA Identification Act and maintained by the DNA identification system; and

(5) persons arrested for the commission of a felony as provided in Section 1 of this 2006 act [29-3-10 NMSA 1978].

B. Searches of samples collected from unidentified persons or relatives of missing persons pursuant to the DNA Identification Act shall not be performed against DNA indexes consisting of evidentiary samples resulting from criminal investigations.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 256, § 3; 2006, ch. 104, § 6.

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, added Paragraph (5) of Subsection A to add persons arrested for a felony.

Severability. — Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 11, effective January 1, 2007, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

Const., art. II, § 10. State v. Blea, 2018-NMCA-052, cert. denied.

29-16-9. Enforcement.

A. The attorney general or a district attorney may petition a district court for an order requiring a covered offender or a person required to provide a DNA sample pursuant to the provisions of Section 1 of this 2006 act [29-3-10 NMSA 1978] to:

(1) provide a sample; or

(2) provide a sample by alternative means if the covered offender or person will not cooperate.

B. Nothing in this section shall prevent the collection of samples by order of a court of competent jurisdiction or the collection of samples of covered offenders.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 9; 2006, ch. 104, § 7.

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, in Subsection A, added a person required to provide a DNA sample pursuant to Section 1 of the 2006 act [29-3-10 NMSA 1978]; and added Subsection B to provide that nothing in this section prevents collection of samples by order or a court or the collection of samples of covered offenders.

29-16-10. Expungement of samples and DNA records from the DNA identification system and CODIS.

A. A person may request expungement of the person's sample and DNA records from the DNA identification system on the following grounds:

(1) the conviction that led to the inclusion of the sample has been reversed; or

(2) the arrest that led to the inclusion of the sample has:

(a) resulted in a felony charge that has been resolved by a dismissal, nolle prosequi, successful completion of a pre-prosecution diversion program or a conditional discharge, misdemeanor conviction or acquittal; or

(b) not resulted in a felony charge within one year of arrest.

B. The administrative center shall expunge a person's sample and DNA records from the DNA identification system when the person provides the administrative center with the following materials:

(1) a written request for expungement of the sample and DNA records; and

(2) a certified copy of a court order that reverses the conviction that led to the inclusion of the sample; or

(3) for samples included pursuant to arrest:

(a) a certified copy of the dismissal, nolle prosequi, successful completion of a pre-prosecution diversion program or a conditional discharge, misdemeanor conviction or acquittal; or

(b) a sworn affidavit that no felony charges arising out of the arrest have been filed within one year.

C. When a person's sample and DNA records are expunged from the DNA identification system, the head of the administrative center shall ensure that the person's sample and DNA records are expunged from CODIS.

D. The administrative center shall not expunge a person's sample and DNA records from the DNA identification system if the person has a prior felony conviction or a pending felony charge for which collection of a sample is authorized pursuant to the provisions of the DNA Identification Act.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 10; 2006, ch. 104, § 8.

The 2006 amendment, effective January 1, 2007, in Paragraph (1) of Subsection A, deleted DNA records in the DNA identification system; added Paragraph (2) of Subsection A and Paragraph (3) of Subsection B to provide for expungement based on certain resolutions of an arrest; and added Subsection D to prohibit expungement in certain cases.

Severability. — Laws 2006, ch. 104, § 11, effective January 1, 2007, provided that if any part or application of this act is held invalid, the remainder or its application to other situations or persons shall not be affected.

29-16-10.1. Expungement of samples and DNA records.

A. A person may request expungement of his sample and DNA records from the missing persons DNA identification system.

B. The administrative center shall expunge a person's sample and DNA records from the missing persons DNA identification system when the person provides the administrative center with the following materials:

(1) a written request for expungement of his sample and DNA records; and

(2) if applicable, a certified copy of a court order that overturns the original search warrant or court order that led to the inclusion of his sample and DNA records in the missing persons DNA identification system.

C. When a person's sample and DNA records are expunged from the missing persons DNA identification system, the head of the administrative center shall ensure that the person's sample and DNA records are expunged from CODIS.

29-16-11. Assessment; collection; DNA fee.

A. Each time that a covered offender is convicted, the court shall assess a DNA fee of one hundred dollars ($100) in addition to any other fee, restitution or fine. The corrections department shall collect the DNA fee from the covered offender for deposit in the fund.

B. When a covered offender is transferred to New Mexico from another state pursuant to an interstate compact, the corrections department shall assess and collect from the covered offender a DNA fee of one hundred dollars ($100) for deposit in the fund.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 11; 2013, ch. 208, § 4.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, provided for the collection of the DNA fee by the corrections department; in the title, after "assessment", deleted "of" and added "collection; DNA fee"; deleted the former introductory sentence "On and after the effective date of the DNA Identification Act"; in Subsection A, in the first sentence, deleted "When" and added "Each time that" and after "shall assess a", added "DNA", and deleted the former second sentence, which provided that "The fee shall be deposited in the fund" and added the second sentence; and added Subsection B.

29-16-12. Penalty.

A. Any person who by virtue of his employment or official position possesses or has access to samples or DNA records and who willfully discloses any of them to any person or in any manner not authorized by the DNA Identification Act is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978.

B. Any person who uses or attempts to use samples or DNA records for a purpose not authorized by the DNA Identification Act is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978.

C. Any person who obtains or attempts to obtain samples or DNA records for a purpose not authorized by the DNA Identification Act is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 12.

29-16-13. DNA identification system fund created; purposes.

A. The "DNA identification system fund" is created in the state treasury. The fund shall consist of all money received by appropriation, gift or grant, all DNA fees collected pursuant to Section 29-16-11 NMSA 1978 and all investment income from the fund.

B. Money and investment income in the fund at the end of any fiscal year shall not revert to the general fund but shall remain in the fund. Money and investment income in the fund is appropriated to the administrative center for expenditure in fiscal year 1998 and subsequent fiscal years for the purposes provided in this section.

C. The fund shall be used to implement the purposes of the DNA Identification Act, including paying the expenses incurred by the administrative center and all other reasonable expenses. Money in the fund may be used for loans or grants of money, equipment or personnel to any law enforcement agency, correctional facility, jail, detention facility, judicial agency, the public defender department or the office of the medical investigator, upon approval of the DNA oversight committee.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 105, § 13; 2006, ch. 104, § 9; 2013, ch. 208, § 5.

The 2013 amendment, effective July 1, 2013, made grammatical changes; in the title, after "DNA", added "identification system" and after "purposes", deleted "procedure; accounting"; in Subsection A, after "gift or grant, all" deleted "money" and added "DNA fees"; in Subsection B, after "for the purposes", deleted "of the fund" and added "provided in this section"; and in Subsection C, in the first sentence, after "shall be used", deleted "for" and added "to implement", in the second sentence, deleted "The administrative center may use", and in the second sentence, after "Money in the fund", added "may be used" and after

29-17-1. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1998, ch. 68, § 6, repealed 29-17-1 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1997, ch. 202, § 1, relating to criminal records screening for caregivers, effective May 20, 1998. For provisions of former section, see the 1997 NMSA 1978 on NMOneSource.com.

29-17-2. Title.

Sections 1 though 5 [29-17-2 to 29-17-5 NMSA 1978] of this act may be cited as the "Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act".

History: Laws 1998, ch. 68, § 1.

ANNOTATIONS

Law reviews. — For note and comment, "Spence v. Health Force, Inc.: One Step Forward, Two Steps Back For New Mexico Tort Jurisprudence?", see 36 N.M.L. Rev. 687 (2006).

29-17-3. Purpose.

The purpose of the Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act and its requirement that caregivers undergo a nationwide criminal history screening is to ensure to the highest degree possible the prevention of abuse, neglect or financial exploitation of care recipients.

History: Laws 1998, ch. 68, § 2.

29-17-4. Definitions.

As used in the Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act:

A. "applicant" means a person who seeks and is offered employment or contractual service as a caregiver or hospital caregiver with a care provider;

B. "caregiver" means a person, not otherwise required to undergo a nationwide criminal history screening by the New Mexico Children's and Juvenile Facility Criminal Records Screening Act [Chapter 32A, Article 15 NMSA 1978], whose employment or contractual service with a care provider includes direct care or routine and unsupervised physical or financial access to any care recipient served by that provider;

C. "care provider" or "provider" means a skilled nursing facility; an intermediate care facility; a care facility for the mentally retarded; a general acute care facility; a psychiatric facility; a rehabilitation facility; a home health agency; a homemaker agency; a home for the aged or disabled; a group home; an adult foster care home; a guardian service provider; a case management entity that provides services to people with developmental disabilities; a private residence that provides personal care, adult residential care or nursing care for two or more persons not related by blood or marriage to the facility's operator or owner; an adult daycare center; a boarding home; an adult residential care home; a residential service or habilitation service authorized to be reimbursed by medicaid; any licensed or medicaid-certified entity or any program funded by the aging and long-term services department that provides respite, companion or personal care services; or programs funded by the children, youth and families department that provide homemaker or adult daycare services. "Care provider" or "provider" does not include resident care facilities located at or performing services exclusively for any correctional facility, outpatient treatment facilities, diagnostic and treatment facilities, ambulatory surgical centers and facilities, end-stage renal dialysis and treatment facilities, rural health clinics, private physicians' offices or other clinics that operate in the same manner as private physicians' offices in group practice settings;

D. "care recipient" means any person under the care of a provider who has a physical or mental illness, injury or disability or who suffers from any cognitive impairment that restricts or limits the person's activities;

E. "conviction" means a plea, judgment or verdict of guilty, a plea of nolo contendere, an Alford plea or any plea or judgment entered in connection with a suspended sentence, in this state or any other state or jurisdiction;

F. "hospital caregiver" means a person who provides direct unsupervised patient care in an inpatient setting and is not a licensed New Mexico health care professional practicing within the scope of a profession's license;

G. "nationwide criminal history screening" means a criminal history background investigation of an applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver through the use of fingerprints collected by the department of public safety and submitted to the federal bureau of investigation, resulting in generation of a nationwide criminal history record for that applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver;

H. "nationwide criminal history record" means information concerning a person's arrests, indictments or other formal criminal charges and any dispositions arising therefrom, including convictions, dismissals, acquittals, sentencing and correctional supervision and collected by criminal justice agencies; and

I. "statewide criminal history screening" means a criminal history background investigation of an applicant or caregiver through the comparison of identifying information with the department of public safety's criminal record repository.

History: Laws 1998, ch. 68, § 3; 1999, ch. 112, § 1; 2005, ch. 226, § 1.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, defined "applicant" in Subsection A to include a hospital caregiver; defined "care provider" or "provider" in Subsection C to include a general acute care facility; added the definition of "conviction" in Subsection E; added the definition of "hospital caregiver" in Subsection F; defined "nationwide criminal history screening" in Subsection G to include a hospital caregiver; deleted from the definition of "nationwide criminal history record" in Subsection H information stored in computerized data bases of the federal bureau of investigation, national law enforcement telecommunications system, department of public safety or the repositories of criminal history or other states; and added the definition of "statewide criminal history screening" in Subsection I.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, in Subsection B, deleted "(32A-15-1 to 32A-15-4)" following "New Mexico Children's and Juvenile Facility Criminal Records Screening Act," and deleted "or volunteer service" following "contractual service"; in Subsection C, divided the existing provisions into two sentences, and in the first sentence inserted "a guardian service provider; a case management entity that provides services to people with developmental disabilities", deleted "providers" following "habilitation service," substituted "or any program" for "programs" and deleted "however, it" from the end, and in the second sentence inserted "'Careprovider' or 'provider'" at the beginning and added "outpatient treatment facilities . . . group practice settings" to the end; and made stylistic changes throughout the section.

29-17-5. Criminal history screening required; regulatory implementation; appeals.

A. The department of health is authorized to receive an applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's nationwide criminal history record obtained by the department of public safety as a result of a nationwide criminal history screening pursuant to an applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's authorization for such nationwide criminal history screening. Providers shall submit a set of fingerprints of applicants, caregivers and hospital caregivers to the department of health for a nationwide criminal history screening, and the department of public safety shall accept from the department of health such fingerprints for the purpose of conducting a nationwide criminal history screening.

B. The department of health is authorized to promulgate rules to implement the Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act, including rules establishing a three-year phased implementation based upon provider type; fingerprint submission procedures; fees; confidentiality; time frames for an applicant's or caregiver's nationwide criminal history screening; procedures for clarifying incomplete or confusing criminal history information; provider sanctions for noncompliance; and employment procedures pending the results of the nationwide criminal history screening relating to applicants and caregivers.

C. No caregiver or hospital caregiver may be employed by a care provider unless the caregiver or hospital caregiver first has submitted to a request for a nationwide criminal history screening prior to beginning employment in accordance with procedures established by rule by the departments of health and public safety. A caregiver or hospital caregiver shall apply for statewide criminal history screening when applying for employment with a care provider within twelve months of the caregiver's or hospital caregiver's most recent nationwide criminal history screening.

D. The following felony convictions disqualify an applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver from employment as a caregiver:

(1) homicide;

(2) trafficking controlled substances;

(3) kidnapping, false imprisonment, aggravated assault or aggravated battery;

(4) rape, criminal sexual penetration, criminal sexual contact, incest, indecent exposure or other related sexual offenses;

(5) crimes involving adult abuse, neglect or financial exploitation;

(6) crimes involving child abuse or neglect;

(7) robbery, larceny, burglary, fraud, extortion, forgery, embezzlement, credit card fraud or receiving stolen property; or

(8) an attempt, solicitation or conspiracy involving any of the felonies in this subsection.

E. Upon receipt by the department of health of the results of the applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's nationwide criminal history screening, the department of health shall give notice to the submitting care provider whether the applicant or caregiver has a disqualifying conviction of a crime specified in Subsection D of this section. No other results of the applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's nationwide criminal history screening shall be provided to the care provider. Except as provided in Subsection F of this section, a care provider shall not employ an applicant or continue to employ a caregiver or hospital caregiver whose nationwide criminal history screening record reflects a disqualifying conviction. When the department of health provides notice to the care provider of a disqualifying conviction of a crime specified in Subsection D of this section, it shall also notify the applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver, stating with specificity the convictions on which its decision is based and identifying the agency that provided the records.

F. An applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver whose nationwide criminal history record, obtained through the applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's nationwide criminal history screening and other clarifying endeavors of the department of health, reflects a disqualifying conviction of a crime specified in Subsection D of this section may request from the department of health an administrative reconsideration. The care provider may, in its discretion, continue to employ such person during the pendency of the reconsideration. A care provider may employ the applicant or caregiver if the reconsideration proceeding results in a determination by the department of health that the applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's nationwide criminal history record inaccurately reflects a disqualifying conviction of a crime specified in Subsection D of this section or that the employment presents no risk of harm to a care recipient or that the conviction does not directly bear upon the applicant's, caregiver's or hospital caregiver's fitness for the employment.

G. The department of health is authorized to adopt rules for the administrative reconsideration proceeding available to an applicant or caregiver whose nationwide criminal history record reflects a disqualifying conviction. The rules shall take into account the requirements of the Criminal Offender Employment Act [28-2-1 to 28-2-6 NMSA 1978].

H. A care provider shall maintain records evidencing compliance with the requirements of this section with respect to all applicants and caregivers employed on or after May 20, 1998.

I. All criminal history records obtained pursuant to this section by the department of health are confidential. No criminal history records obtained pursuant to this section shall be used for any purpose other than determining whether an applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver has a criminal conviction that would disqualify the applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver from employment as a caregiver or hospital caregiver. Except on court order or with the written consent of the applicant, caregiver or hospital caregiver, criminal records obtained pursuant to this section and the information contained therein shall not be released or otherwise disclosed to any other person or agency. A person who discloses confidential records or information in violation of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Subsection A of Section 31-19-1 NMSA 1978.

J. The department of health shall maintain a registry of all applicants who are disqualified from employment or contractual service as caregivers or hospital caregivers. An applicant's arrest record information shall not be released except upon request of the applicant as provided in the Arrest Record Information Act [Chapter 29, Article 10 NMSA 1978].

K. A care provider, including its administrators and employees, is not civilly liable to an applicant or a caregiver for a good faith decision to employ, not employ or terminate employment pursuant to the Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act.

L. Failure to comply with the requirements of this section are grounds for the state agency having enforcement authority with respect to the care provider to impose appropriate administrative sanctions and penalties.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, provided in Subsection A that the department is authorized to receive a hospital caregiver's nationwide criminal history record or a hospital caregiver's authorization for nationwide criminal history screening and requires providers to provide a set of fingerprints of hospital caregivers to the department; changed "regulations" to "rules" in Subsection B; provided that no hospital caregiver may be employed by a care provider unless the hospital caregiver has submitted a request for a nationwide criminal history screening and provides that a caregiver or hospital caregiver shall apply for a statewide criminal history screening when applying for employment with a care provider within twelve months of the caregiver's or hospital caregiver's most recent nationwide criminal history screening; provided in Subsection D that the listed felony convictions disqualifies a hospital caregiver from employment as a caregiver; added Subsection D(8); provided in Subsection E that the department shall not give the care provider any results of the nationwide criminal screening other than whether the hospital caregiver has a disqualifying conviction, that a care provider shall not employ a hospital caregiver who has a disqualifying conviction, and that the department shall give the hospital caregiver notice of the disqualifying conviction; provided in Subsection F that a hospital caregiver who has a disqualifying conviction may request a reconsideration from the department, that a care provider may employ the ccaregiver if the department determines that the hospital caregiver's record inaccurately reflects a disqualifying conviction or that the conviction does not directly bear on the hospital caregiver's fitness for employment; provided in subsection I that criminal history records shall be used only to determine whether a hospital caregiver has a disqualifying conviction, and that criminal records shall not be released or disclosed unless the hospital caregiver consents; and provided in Subsection J that the department shall maintain a registry of disqualified hospital caregivers.

The 1999 amendment, effective June 18, 1999, in Subsection A, in the first sentence, twice deleted "records" preceding "screening", and inserted "nationwide" preceding the second occurrence of "criminal screening"; in the second sentence, substituted "department of health" for "department of public safety", and inserted "from the department of health" preceding "such fingerprints"; and deleted "New Mexico" preceding "department" throughout the subsection; in Subsection B, substituted "the Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act" for "this act", deleted "but not limited to" following "including," and deleted "volunteers" preceding "applicants and caregivers"; inserted Subsection D(7); in Subsection E, twice substituted "screening" for "records" and twice inserted "nationwide" preceding "criminal history"; in Subsection F, in the first sentence, deleted "records" preceding "screening" and inserted "nationwide" preceding "criminal history", and, in the third sentence, substituted "department of health" for "agency on aging"; in Subsection G, deleted "20-2-1- to 20-2-6, NMSA 1978" following "Criminal Offender Employment Act"; in Subsection H, substituted "May 20, 1998" for "the effective date of this act"; in Subsection I, in the second sentence, substituted "has a criminal conviction that would disqualify him" for "has criminal records that disqualify him"; in Subsection K, substituted "the Caregivers Criminal History Screening Act" for "this act"; and made stylistic changes throughout the section.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 2 effective July 1, 2003.

29-19-3. Date of licensure; period of licensure.

Effective January 1, 2004, the department is authorized to issue concealed handgun licenses to qualified applicants. Original and renewed concealed handgun licenses shall be valid for a period of four years from the date of issuance, unless the license is suspended or revoked.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 3; 2005, ch. 242, § 2.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, increased the period of licensure for original and renewal license from two to four years.

29-19-4. Applicant qualifications.

A. The department shall issue a concealed handgun license to an applicant who:

(1) is a citizen of the United States;

(2) is a resident of New Mexico or is a member of the armed forces whose permanent duty station is located in New Mexico or is a dependent of such a member;

(3) is twenty-one years of age or older;

(4) is not a fugitive from justice;

(5) has not been convicted of a felony in New Mexico or any other state or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any other jurisdiction;

(6) is not currently under indictment for a felony criminal offense in New Mexico or any other state or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any other jurisdiction;

(7) is not otherwise prohibited by federal law or the law of any other jurisdiction from purchasing or possessing a firearm;

(8) has not been adjudicated mentally incompetent or committed to a mental institution;

(9) is not addicted to alcohol or controlled substances; and

(10) has satisfactorily completed a firearms training course approved by the department for the category and the largest caliber of handgun that the applicant wants to be licensed to carry as a concealed handgun.

B. The department shall deny a concealed handgun license to an applicant who has:

(1) received a conditional discharge, a diversion or a deferment or has been convicted of, pled guilty to or entered a plea of nolo contendere to a misdemeanor offense involving a crime of violence within ten years immediately preceding the application;

(2) been convicted of a misdemeanor offense involving driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs within five years immediately preceding the application for a concealed handgun license;

(3) been convicted of a misdemeanor offense involving the possession or abuse of a controlled substance within ten years immediately preceding the application; or

(4) been convicted of a misdemeanor offense involving assault, battery or battery against a household member.

C. Firearms training course instructors who are approved by the department shall not be required to complete a firearms training course pursuant to Paragraph (10) of Subsection A of this section.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 4; 2005, ch. 242, § 3.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, lowered the minimum age of applicants from 25 to 21 years in Subsection A(3); provided in Subsection A(10) that the applicant complete training for the largest caliber of handgun that will be licensed; provided in Subsections B(1) and (3) respectively that the department shall deny a license if the offense involved a crime of violence or possession or abuse of a controlled substance within ten years immediately preceding the application; and added Subsection C to provide that firearms training course instructors are not required to complete a firearms training course.

ANNOTATIONS

Pardoned felony conviction. — A pardoned felony conviction is not, itself, sufficient grounds to deny the person convicted on the felony a concealed handgun license and if the person is otherwise qualified, the person may obtain a concealed carry license. 2014 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 14-02.

29-19-5. Application form; screening of applicants; fee; limitations on liability.

A. Effective July 1, 2003, applications for concealed handgun licenses shall be made readily available at locations designated by the department. Applications for concealed handgun licenses shall be completed, under penalty of perjury, on a form designed and provided by the department and shall include:

(1) the applicant's name, current address, date of birth, place of birth, social security number, height, weight, gender, hair color, eye color and driver's license number or other state-issued identification number;

(2) a statement that the applicant is aware of, understands and is in compliance with the requirements for licensure set forth in the Concealed Handgun Carry Act;

(3) a statement that the applicant has been furnished a copy of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act and is knowledgeable of its provisions; and

(4) a conspicuous warning that the application form is executed under penalty of perjury and that a materially false answer or the submission of a materially false document to the department may result in denial or revocation of a concealed handgun license and may subject the applicant to criminal prosecution for perjury as provided in Section 30-25-1 NMSA 1978.

B. The applicant shall submit to the department:

(1) a completed application form;

(2) a nonrefundable application fee in an amount not to exceed one hundred dollars ($100);

(3) two full sets of fingerprints;

(4) a certified copy of a certificate of completion for a firearms training course approved by the department;

(5) two color photographs of the applicant;

(6) a certified copy of a birth certificate or proof of United States citizenship, if the applicant was not born in the United States; and

(7) proof of residency in New Mexico.

C. A law enforcement agency may fingerprint an applicant and may charge a reasonable fee.

D. Upon receipt of the items listed in Subsection B of this section, the department shall make a reasonable effort to determine if an applicant is qualified to receive a concealed handgun license. The department shall conduct an appropriate check of available records and shall forward the applicant's fingerprints to the federal bureau of investigation for a national criminal background check. The department shall comply with the license-issuing requirements set forth in Section 29-19-7 NMSA 1978. However, the department shall suspend or revoke a license if the department receives information that would disqualify an applicant from receiving a concealed handgun license after the thirty-day time period has elapsed.

E. A state or local government agency shall comply with a request from the department pursuant to the Concealed Handgun Carry Act within thirty days of the request.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 5; 2005, ch. 242, § 4.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, added Subsection E to provide that every state or local governmental agency shall comply with a request from the department pursuant to the Concealed Handgun Carry Act within thirty days.

29-19-6. Appeal; license renewal; refresher firearms training course; suspension or revocation of license.

A. Pursuant to rules adopted by the department, the department, within thirty days after receiving a completed application for a concealed handgun license and the results of a national criminal background check on the applicant, shall:

(1) issue a concealed handgun license to an applicant; or

(2) deny the application on the grounds that the applicant failed to qualify for a concealed handgun license pursuant to the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

B. Information relating to an applicant or to a licensee received by the department or any other law enforcement agency is confidential and exempt from public disclosure unless an order to disclose information is issued by a court of competent jurisdiction. The information shall be made available by the department to a state or local law enforcement agency upon request by the agency.

C. A concealed handgun license issued by the department shall include:

(1) a color photograph of the licensee;

(2) the licensee's name, address and date of birth;

(3) the expiration date of the concealed handgun license; and

(4) the category and the largest caliber of handgun that the licensee is licensed to carry, with a statement that the licensee is licensed to carry smaller caliber handguns but shall carry only one concealed handgun at any given time.

D. A licensee shall notify the department within thirty days regarding a change of the licensee's name or permanent address. A licensee shall notify the department within ten days if the licensee's concealed handgun license is lost, stolen or destroyed.

E. If a concealed handgun license is lost, stolen or destroyed, the license is invalid and the licensee may obtain a duplicate license by furnishing the department a notarized statement that the original license was lost, stolen or destroyed and paying a reasonable fee. If the license is lost or stolen, the licensee shall file a police report with a local law enforcement agency and include the police case number in the notarized statement.

F. A licensee may renew a concealed handgun license by submitting to the department:

(1) a completed renewal form, under penalty of perjury, designed and provided by the department;

(2) a payment of a seventy-five-dollar ($75.00) renewal fee; and

(3) a certificate of completion of a four-hour refresher firearms training course approved by the department.

G. The department shall conduct a national criminal records check of a licensee seeking to renew a license. A concealed handgun license shall not be renewed more than sixty days after it has expired. A licensee who fails to renew a concealed handgun license within sixty days after it has expired may apply for a new concealed handgun license pursuant to the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

H. A licensee shall complete a two-hour refresher firearms training course two years after the issuance of an original or renewed license. The refresher course shall be approved by the department and shall be taken twenty-two to twenty-six months after the issuance of an original or renewed license. A certificate of completion shall be submitted to the department no later than thirty days after completion of the course.

I. The department shall suspend or revoke a concealed handgun license if:

(1) the licensee provided the department with false information on the application form or renewal form for a concealed handgun license;

(2) the licensee did not satisfy the criteria for issuance of a concealed handgun license at the time the license was issued; or

(3) subsequent to receiving a concealed handgun license, the licensee violated a provision of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 6; 2005, ch. 242, § 5.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, provided in Subsection C(4) that a license shall include the largest caliber of handgun that is licensed and a statement that the licensee is licensed to carry smaller caliber handguns, but shall carry only one handgun at a time; provided in Subsection E that if a license is lost or stolen, the licensee shall file a police report and include the police case number in the notarized statement; increased the renewal fee from $50 to $75 in Subsection F(2); required that a certificate of completion of a training course approved by the department be submitted with a request to renew a license; and added Subsection H to provide that a licensee must complete a refresher course approved by the department two years after licensure.

29-19-7. Demonstration of ability and knowledge; course requirement; proprietary interest; exemptions.

A. The department shall prepare and publish minimum standards for approved firearms training courses that teach competency with handguns. A firearms training course shall include classroom instruction and range instruction and an actual demonstration by the applicant of his ability to safely use a handgun. An applicant shall not be licensed unless he demonstrates, at a minimum, his ability to use a handgun of .32 caliber. An approved firearms training course shall be a course that is certified or sponsored by a federal or state law enforcement agency, a college, a firearms training school or a nationally recognized organization, approved by the department, that customarily offers firearms training. The firearms training course shall be not less than fifteen hours in length and shall provide instruction regarding:

(1) knowledge of and safe handling of single- and double-action revolvers and semiautomatic handguns;

(2) safe storage of handguns and child safety;

(3) safe handgun shooting fundamentals;

(4) live shooting of a handgun on a firing range;

(5) identification of ways to develop and maintain handgun shooting skills;

(6) federal, state and local criminal and civil laws pertaining to the purchase, ownership, transportation, use and possession of handguns;

(7) techniques for avoiding a criminal attack and how to control a violent confrontation; and

(8) techniques for nonviolent dispute resolution.

B. Every instructor of an approved firearms training course shall annually file a copy of the course description and proof of certification with the department.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 7. Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 7 effective July 1, 2003.

29-19-8. Limitation on license.

A. Nothing in the Concealed Handgun Carry Act shall be construed as allowing a licensee in possession of a valid concealed handgun license to carry a concealed handgun into or on premises where to do so would be in violation of state or federal law.

B. Nothing in the Concealed Handgun Carry Act shall be construed as allowing a licensee in possession of a valid concealed handgun license to carry a concealed handgun on school premises, as provided in Section 30-7-2.1 NMSA 1978.

C. Nothing in the Concealed Handgun Carry Act shall be construed as allowing a licensee in possession of a valid concealed handgun license to carry a concealed handgun on the premises of a preschool.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 8. Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 8 effective July 1, 2003.

29-19-9. Possession of license.

A licensee shall have his concealed handgun license in his possession at all times while carrying a concealed handgun.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 9. Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 9 effective July 1, 2003.

29-19-10. Validity of license on tribal land.

A concealed handgun license shall not be valid on tribal land, unless authorized by the governing body of an Indian nation, tribe or pueblo.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 10. Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 10 effective July 1, 2003.

29-19-11. Validity of license in a courthouse or court facility.

A concealed handgun license shall not be valid in a courthouse or court facility, unless authorized by the presiding judicial officer for that courthouse or court facility.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 11.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 11 effective July 1, 2003.

29-19-12. Rules; department to administer; reciprocal agreements with other states.

The department shall promulgate rules necessary to implement the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act. The rules shall include:

A. grounds for the suspension and revocation of concealed handgun licenses issued pursuant to the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act;

B. provision of authority for a law enforcement officer to confiscate a concealed handgun license when a licensee violates the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act;

C. provision of authority for a private property owner to disallow the carrying of a concealed handgun on the owner's property;

D. creation of a sequential numbering system for all concealed handgun licenses issued by the department and display of numbers on issued concealed handgun licenses; and

E. provision of discretionary state authority for the transfer, recognition or reciprocity of a concealed handgun license issued by another state if the issuing authority for the other state:

(1) includes provisions at least as stringent as or substantially similar to the Concealed Handgun Carry Act;

(2) issues a license or permit with an expiration date printed on the license or permit;

(3) is available to verify the license or permit status for law enforcement purposes within three business days of a request for verification;

(4) has disqualification, suspension and revocation requirements for a concealed handgun license or permit; and

(5) requires that an applicant for a concealed handgun license or permit:

(a) submit to a national criminal history record check;

(b) not be prohibited from possessing firearms pursuant to federal or state law; and

(c) satisfactorily complete a firearms safety program that covers deadly force issues, weapons care and maintenance, safe handling and storage of firearms and marksmanship.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 12; 2005, ch. 242, § 6.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, provided in Subsection E that the rules shall include provision of discretionary authority for the recognition or reciprocity of a license issued by another state; and added Subsections E(1) through (5)(c) to provide the criteria for reciprocity with the license issued by an authority of another state.

29-19-13. Fund created.

A. The "concealed handgun carry fund" is created in the state treasury.

B. All money received by the department pursuant to the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act shall be deposited by the state treasurer for credit to the concealed handgun carry fund. The state treasurer shall invest the fund as all other state funds are invested, and income from the investment of the fund shall be credited to the fund. Balances remaining at the end of any fiscal year shall not revert to the general fund and may be used to maintain the state's criminal history database.

C. Money in the concealed handgun carry fund is appropriated to the department to carry out the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

History: Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 13.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 16 made Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 13 effective July 1, 2003.

Severability. — Laws 2003, ch. 255, § 15 provided for the severability of the act if any part or application thereof is held invalid.

29-19-14. Current and retired law enforcement officers and New Mexico mounted patrol members.

A. An application fee, a renewal fee and a firearms training course are not required for an applicant or licensee who is:

(1) a current or retired certified law enforcement officer pursuant to the Law Enforcement Training Act [Chapter 29, Article 7 NMSA 1978]; or

(2) a current member of the New Mexico mounted patrol who has successfully completed a law enforcement academy basic law enforcement training program for New Mexico mounted patrol members pursuant to Section 29-6-4.1 NMSA 1978.

B. A law enforcement officer or New Mexico mounted patrol member shall submit to the department two full sets of fingerprints and a color photograph of the law enforcement officer or New Mexico mounted patrol member. The department shall conduct an appropriate check of available records and shall forward the fingerprints to the federal bureau of investigation for a national criminal background check.

C. A retired law enforcement officer is not required to submit an application fee or a renewal fee if:

(1) the officer was a certified law enforcement officer pursuant to the Law Enforcement Training Act for at least fifteen years prior to retirement; and

(2) the retirement is in good standing as shown by a letter from the agency from which the officer retired.

D. A retired law enforcement officer who has been retired ten years or less is not required to complete a firearms training course.

E. A retired law enforcement officer who has been retired for more than ten years shall be required to complete a firearms training course. The officer shall be allowed to attend any local law enforcement agency's firearms qualification course; provided that the officer supplies the officer's own ammunition, handgun, targets and range equipment. A local law enforcement agency shall not be liable under the Tort Claims Act [41-4-1 through 41-4-27 NMSA 1978] for providing a firearms training course to a retired law enforcement officer pursuant to this subsection.

F. A retired law enforcement officer's concealed handgun license shall have printed on the license "retired police officer" and shall be valid for a period of five years.

History: Laws 2005, ch. 242, § 7; 2015, ch. 157, § 1.

The 2015 amendment, effective June 19, 2015, provided an exception to the fee and firearms training course requirements of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act for certain certified law enforcement officers and New Mexico mounted patrol members, and required the department of public safety to obtain fingerprints and available records and forward fingerprints to the FBI for a national criminal background check; in the catchline, added "and New Mexico mounted patrol members"; in Subsection A, after "licensee who is", added the paragraph designation "(1)", in new Paragraph (1) of Subsection A, added "current or retired", and after the semicolon, added "or"; added new Paragraph (2) of Subsection A; and added new Subsection B and redesignated the succeeding subsections accordingly.

29-19-15. Military service persons; requirements.

A. For a concealed handgun license applicant or licensee who submits with a concealed handgun license application documentation satisfactory to the department that the applicant is a military service person as defined in Subsection E of this section, an application fee or renewal fee is not required. For a military service person discharged from military service within twenty years of the application for a license or renewal of a license, a firearms training course or refresher firearms training course is not required.

B. A military service person shall submit to the department two full sets of fingerprints and a color photograph of the military service person. The department shall conduct an appropriate check of available records and shall forward the fingerprints to the federal bureau of investigation for a national criminal background check.

C. A military service person's concealed handgun carry license shall have printed on the license "military service person" and shall be valid for a period of five years.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

D. The department shall suspend or revoke a military service person's concealed handgun license if:

(1) the military service person provided the department with false information on the application form or renewal form;

(2) the military service person did not satisfy the criteria for issuance of a concealed handgun license at the time the license was issued; or

(3) subsequent to receiving a concealed handgun license, the military service person violated a provision of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

E. As used in this section, "military service person" means a person who was accepted into the United States armed forces and:

(1) is on active duty with the United States armed forces;

(2) is on reserve or guard duty with the United States armed forces; or

(3) is a veteran or a retiree who received an honorable discharge as indicated on a United States department of defense form 214.

History: Laws 2015, ch. 157, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2015, ch. 157 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 19, 2015, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

A. No later than December 31, 2004, the New Mexico law enforcement academy board shall develop and incorporate into the basic law enforcement training required pursuant to the Law Enforcement Training Act [Chapter 29, Article 7 NMSA 1978] a course of instruction of at least sixteen hours concerning the safe initiation and conduct of high speed pursuits.

B. The course of instruction shall emphasize the importance of protecting the public at all times and the need to balance the known offense and risk posed by a fleeing suspect against the danger to law enforcement officers and other people by initiating a high speed pursuit.

C. The course of instruction shall include adequate consideration of each of the following subjects:

(1) when to initiate a high speed pursuit;

(2) when to terminate a high speed pursuit;

(3) evaluating risks due to conditions of the vehicle, driver, roadway, weather and traffic during a high speed pursuit;

(4) evaluating dangers to uninvolved motorists and bystanders during a high speed pursuit;

(5) the number of law enforcement units permitted to participate in the high speed pursuit;

(6) the responsibilities of primary, secondary and supervisory law enforcement units during a high speed pursuit;

(7) proper communication and coordination procedures when a high speed pursuit enters another law enforcement agency's jurisdiction, including a tribal jurisdiction;

(8) driving tactics during a high speed pursuit;

(9) communications during a high speed pursuit;

(10) capture of suspects following a high speed pursuit;

(11) supervisory responsibilities during a high speed pursuit;

(12) use of blocking, ramming, boxing and roadblocks as high speed pursuit tactics;

(13) use of alternative methods and technologies for apprehending suspects during a high speed pursuit; and

(14) preparing a report and evaluation and analysis of a high speed pursuit after it has concluded.

D. The New Mexico law enforcement academy board shall develop the program of instruction, learning and performance objectives and standards for training in conjunction with appropriate groups and individuals that have an interest in and expertise regarding high speed pursuits, including law enforcement agencies, law enforcement academy instructors, experts on the subject and members of the public.

E. In-service law enforcement training, as required pursuant to Section 29-7-7.1 NMSA 1978, shall include at least four hours of instruction that conform with the requirements set forth in Subsection C of this section.

F. Each certified regional law enforcement training facility shall incorporate into its basic law enforcement training and in-service law enforcement training a course of training in the safe initiation and conduct of high speed pursuits that is comparable to or exceeds the standards of the course of instruction developed by the New Mexico law enforcement academy board.

29-20-4. Pursuit policies.

A. The chief law enforcement officer of every state, county and municipal law enforcement agency shall establish and enforce a written policy governing the conduct of law enforcement officers employed by the agency who are involved in high speed pursuits. A copy of the written policy shall be submitted to the director of the New Mexico law enforcement academy and the traffic safety bureau of the state highway and transportation department.

B. The policy shall specify, at a minimum:

(1) the conditions under which a law enforcement officer may engage in a high speed pursuit and the conditions when the officer shall terminate a high speed pursuit;

(2) measures other than a high speed pursuit that may be employed to apprehend a suspect in a fleeing motor vehicle or to impede the movement of the vehicle;

(3) the coordination and responsibility, including control over the high speed pursuit, of supervisory personnel and the law enforcement officers engaged in the pursuit; and

(4) the procedures to be followed to notify and coordinate high speed pursuits with law enforcement agencies in other jurisdictions, including tribal jurisdictions.

C. The written policy shall, at a minimum, require that:

(1) a law enforcement officer may initiate a high speed pursuit to apprehend a suspect who the officer has reasonable grounds to believe poses a clear and immediate threat of death or serious injury to others or who the officer has probable cause to believe poses a clear and immediate threat to the safety of others that is ongoing and that existed prior to the high speed pursuit;

(2) a law enforcement officer shall not initiate or continue a high speed pursuit when the immediate danger to the officer and the public created by the high speed pursuit exceeds the immediate danger to the public if the occupants of the motor vehicle being pursued remain at large;

(3) when deciding whether to initiate or continue a high speed pursuit, the following factors, at a minimum, shall be taken into consideration:

(a) the seriousness of the offense for which the high speed pursuit was initiated;

(b) whether a suspect poses a clear and immediate threat of death or serious injury to others;

(c) road, weather, environmental and vehicle conditions;

(d) the amount of motor vehicle and pedestrian traffic; and

(e) knowledge of the suspect's identity, possible destination and previous activities that may make apprehension at a later time feasible; and

(4) no more than two law enforcement vehicles shall become actively involved in a high speed pursuit, unless specifically authorized by a supervisor.

29-21-2. Profiling practices prohibited.

A. In conducting a routine or spontaneous investigatory activity, including an interview, a detention, a traffic stop, a pedestrian stop, a frisk or other type of bodily search or a search of personal or real property, or in determining the scope, substance or duration of the routine or spontaneous investigatory activity, a law enforcement agency or a law enforcement officer shall not rely on race, ethnicity, color, national origin, language, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, political affiliation, religion, physical or mental disability or serious medical condition, except in a specific suspect description related to a criminal incident or suspected criminal activity, to select a person for or subject a person to the routine or spontaneous investigatory activity.

B. In conducting an investigatory activity in connection with an investigation, a law enforcement agency or a law enforcement officer shall not rely on race, ethnicity, color, national origin, language, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, political affiliation, religion, physical or mental disability or serious medical condition, except to the extent that credible information, relevant to the locality or time frame, links a person with those identifying characteristics to an identified criminal incident or criminal activity.

29-21-3. Policies and procedures; required.

A. A law enforcement agency shall:

(1) maintain written policies and procedures designed to eliminate practices by its law enforcement officers that violate the provisions of Section 2 [29-21-2 NMSA 1978] of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act; and

(2) provide training to its law enforcement officers, during orientation and at least once every two years, that the law enforcement agency determines will assist its law enforcement officers in adhering to the applicable provisions of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act and to the law enforcement agency's policies and procedures.

B. As part of a law enforcement agency's administrative complaint procedures, the law enforcement agency shall, at a minimum:

(1) investigate a complaint alleging its law enforcement officer violated the provisions of Section 2 of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act;

(2) take appropriate measures to discipline a law enforcement officer, including facilitating mediation or other restorative justice measures, when it is determined that the law enforcement officer violated the provisions of Section 2 of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act;

(3) provide appropriate forms for submitting the complaint against its law enforcement officer;

(4) publish the policies and procedures designed to eliminate practices that violate the provisions of Section 2 of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act; and

(5) submit a redacted copy of the complaint and the disposition to the attorney general, which shall disclose the nature and disposition of the complaint but shall not disclose personal identifying information of a law enforcement officer or complainant.

C. A law enforcement agency shall establish a time frame within which a complaint alleging a violation of the provisions of Section 2 of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act may be made; provided that in no event shall the time frame be less than ninety days or exceed one hundred eighty days after the commission of the alleged violation of the provisions of Section 2 of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act. A law enforcement agency shall allow a complaint alleging a violation of the provisions of Section 2 of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act by its law enforcement officer to be made:

(1) in person or in writing sent by mail, facsimile or electronic mail and signed by the complainant; or

(2) by telephone, anonymously or by a third party; provided that the law enforcement agency shall determine the complaint to be valid before taking appropriate measures pursuant to Paragraph (2) of Subsection B of this section and shall comply with the provisions of Section 29-14-4 NMSA 1978.

29-21-4. Independent oversight; complaints; confidentiality.

The attorney general shall establish independent procedures for receiving, and for maintaining a record of, complaints alleging profiling by a law enforcement officer or agency. The attorney general may initiate an investigation of a complaint alleging a violation, or a systematic pattern of violations, of the provisions of Section 2 [29-21-2 NMSA 1978] of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act and take necessary actions as the attorney general deems appropriate. The attorney general may publish a report or summary of the attorney general's findings regarding violations of the provisions of the Prohibition of Profiling Practices Act; provided that personal and identifying information shall not be published or released to the public.

30-1-1. Name and effective date of code.

This act is called and may be cited as the "Criminal Code". It shall become effective on July 1, 1963.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-1, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-1.

Meaning of "this act". — The words "this act" refer to Laws 1963, ch. 303, which enacted the original Criminal Code. Most of the provisions of Laws 1963, ch. 303, that have not been repealed are compiled in arts. 1 to 28 of this chapter, but some are compiled in Chapter 31. See the Table of Disposition of Acts. In addition, the Criminal Code includes later acts in which the legislature specifically stated its intention to add to the Criminal Code.

30-1-2. Application of code.

The Criminal Code [30-1-1 NMSA 1978] has no application to crimes committed prior to its effective date.

A crime is committed prior to the effective date of the Criminal Code if any of the essential elements of the crime occurred before that date.

Prosecutions for prior crimes shall be governed, prosecuted and punished under the laws existing at the time such crimes were committed.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-2, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-2.

ANNOTATIONS

Indian country. — Where a state road, which was built on land owned by the federal government and administered by the United States forest service pursuant to an easement granted to the state by the forest service, served as the border between two pueblos, but was not within either pueblo and where there has been no explicit congressional or executive action recognizing the property as Indian country or transferring the property for the use of Indians or to the bureau of Indian affairs, the road was not located in Indian country for purposes of criminal jurisdiction. State v. Quintana, 2008-NMSC-012, 143 N.M. 535, 178 P.3d 820, aff'g 2008-NMCA-025, 143 N.M. 538, 178 P.3d 823.

A person need not be enrolled in a tribe to be recognized as an Indian for purposes of criminal jurisdiction. — Where the state filed a petition to revoke defendant's probation, alleging that he violated a condition of his probation by committing two new offenses, battery on a household member and criminal damage to property, and that the charged offenses occurred on the Mescalero Apache reservation and that the offenses involved two non-tribal members, but where defendant presented additional facts by proffer that he is 7/32 Mescalero by blood, that he is an affiliate of the tribe, that he attended school on the reservation, and that he receives services on the reservation, the district court erred in denying defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction because enrollment as a member of a recognized tribe or pueblo is not a mandatory prerequisite for Indian status. A court must consider other factors to determine whether tribal or federal recognition as an Indian is satisfied. State v. Salazar, 2020-NMCA-021.

This section was enacted as a transitional rule prior to the enactment of the Criminal Code. State v. Shay, 2004-NMCA-077, 136 N.M. 8, 94 P.3d 8, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-002, 137 N.M. 266, 110 P.3d 74.

Application of savings clause of this section. — Based upon the savings clause of the Criminal Code, found in this section, and N.M. Const., art. IV, § 33, providing that no person shall be exempt from prosecution for any crime by reason of repeal of the law in question, the court correctly applied former 41-16-1, 1953 Comp., the Habitual Criminal Act (now Section 31-18-17 NMSA 1978), when sentence was imposed on defendant. State v. Tipton, 1967-NMSC-270, 78 N.M. 600, 435 P.2d 430.

Section conflict with Section 12-2A-16 NMSA 1978. — To the extent 12-2A-16 NMSA 1978, enacted in 1997, and this section, enacted in 1963, conflict, the latter enactment supercedes the prior. State v. Shay, 2004-NMCA-077, 136 N.M. 8, 94 P.3d 8, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-002, 137 N.M. 266, 110 P.3d 74.

30-1-3. Construction of Criminal Code.

In criminal cases where no provision of this code is applicable, the common law, as recognized by the United States and the several states of the Union, shall govern.

Common-law crimes recognized only where applicable to state. — Only so much of the common law was adopted as was applicable to New Mexico's conditions and circumstances. Blake v. Hoover Motor Co., 1923-NMSC-005, 28 N.M. 371, 212 P. 738; Childers v. Talbott, 1888-NMSC-003, 4 N.M. (Gild.) 336, 16 P. 275; Bent v. Duran, 1915-NMSC-043, 20 N.M. 348, 149 P. 302, L.R.A. 1915F. 648 (1915).

Common-law crimes recognized when not in conflict with constitution or laws. — The territorial legislature adopted the common law, as the rule of practice and decision in criminal cases, thereby incorporating into the body of our law the common law, lex non scripta, of England, and such British statutes of a general nature not local to that kingdom, nor in conflict with the constitution or laws of the United States, nor of this territory, which were applicable to our condition and circumstances, and which were in force at the time of the revolution. State v. Hartzler, 1967-NMCA-022, 78 N.M. 514, 433 P.2d 231; Ex parte De Vore, 1913-NMSC-072, 18 N.M. 246, 136 P. 47.

Application of common law. — The common law of crimes applies except where the common law has been changed by statute. State v. Willis, 1982-NMCA-151, 98 N.M. 771, 652 P.2d 1222 (specially concurring opinion).

Strict construction of statutes. — The common-law rule for strict construction of criminal statutes was in force in New Mexico. Territory v. Davenport, 1912-NMSC-023, 17 N.M. 214, 124 P. 795.

Common-law year-and-a-day rule abolished. — The common-law year-and-a-day rule, under which, if a person injured by an assailant survived beyond a year and a day after receiving the injuries, the defendant was excused from criminal culpability for the death, should no longer be recognized in this jurisdiction. Due to modern advances in medical and criminal science and technology, the rationale behind the rule no longer exists. State v. Gabehart, 1992-NMCA-074, 114 N.M. 183, 836 P.2d 102.

B. PARTICULAR OFFENSES.

Perjury. — At common law, perjury was committed when a lawful oath was administered in some judicial proceeding to a person who swore willfully, absolutely and falsely in matters material to the issue, and it was perjury to take a false oath in justifying bail in any of the courts or before any person acting as a court, justice or tribunal, having power to hold such proceedings. Hence, a surety on an appeal bond from a justice of the peace (now magistrate) who swore falsely regarding his property was guilty of perjury even where the statute did not require an oath from him. Territory v. Weller, 1883-NMSC-004, 2 N.M. 470.

Prison breach. — Prison breach, a common-law practice, was punishable in New Mexico under laws 1851, p. 144 (41-11-1, 1953 Comp.). Ex parte De Vore, 1913-NMSC-072, 18 N.M. 246, 136 P. 47 (decided under prior law).

Offense against public decency. — The common law is sufficiently broad to punish as a misdemeanor, although there may be no exact precedent, any act which directly injures or tends to injure the public to such an extent as to require the state to interfere and punish the wrongdoer, as in the case of acts which injuriously affect public morality or obstruct or pervert public justice or the administration of government; and it is the common law of this commonwealth that whatever openly outrages decency and is injurious to public morals is a misdemeanor and punishable at law. State v. Hartzler, 1967-NMCA-022, 78 N.M. 514, 433 P.2d 231.

Indecent treatment of dead body. — The offense, which was and is punishable at common law, is that of indecency in the treatment or handling of a dead human body. That which outrages or shocks the public sense of decency and morals, or that which contravenes the established and known public standards of decency and morals, relative to the care, treatment or disposition of a dead human body, is punishable as an act of indecency. State v. Hartzler, 1967-NMCA-022, 78 N.M. 514, 433 P.2d 231.

The length of time the body was kept, the manner and places in which it was kept, the obvious facts of changes in and decomposition of the body, and the concealment of the body from the police officers, all evidence failure to conform to the acceptable standards of decency and morals of our society in the treatment or handling of a dead human body. State v. Hartzler, 1967-NMCA-022, 78 N.M. 514, 433 P.2d 231.

Act relating to embezzlement not part of state's common law. — The act of parliament passed in 1799 (39 Geo. III), relating to embezzlement and the decisions construing it, was not part of the common law of New Mexico. Territory v. Maxwell, 1882-NMSC-010, 2 N.M. 250.

III. CRIMINAL INTENT.

Existence of criminal intent essential. — Generally speaking, when an act is prohibited and made punishable by statute only, the statute is to be construed in the light of the common law and the existence of a criminal intent is to be regarded as essential, although the terms of the statute do not require it. State v. Austin, 1969-NMCA-095, 80 N.M. 748, 461 P.2d 230.

Instruction on intent jurisdictional absent legislative indication to contrary. — Except where the legislature clearly indicates a desire to eliminate the requirement of criminal intent, criminal statutes will be construed in the light of the common law and criminal intent will be required, and failure to instruct on this required element will be considered jurisdictional. State v. Fuentes, 1973-NMCA-069, 85 N.M. 274, 511 P.2d 760, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 265, 511 P.2d 751.

Legislative indication must clearly appear. — The legislature may forbid the doing of an act and make its commission criminal, without regard to the intent with which such act is done; but in such case it must clearly appear from the act, from its language or clear inference, that such was the legislative intent. State v. Austin, 1969-NMCA-095, 80 N.M. 748, 461 P.2d 230.

Whether criminal intent is essential is matter of construction. State v. Craig, 1962-NMSC-072, 70 N.M. 176, 372 P.2d 128.

IV. INDICTMENT, TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

Constitutional provisions for presentments, indictments and information were self-executing. State v. Rogers, 1926-NMSC-028, 31 N.M. 485, 247 P. 828.

Indictment for murder. — The common-law procedure being in force in New Mexico, where the statutes have adopted the common-law definition of murder, an indictment may omit a direct charge of a purpose or intent to kill as an overt act. Territory v. Montoya, 1912-NMSC-015, 17 N.M. 122, 125 P. 622.

Charging assault with intent to murder. — In indictment for assault with intent to commit murder, the means or instrument of committing the assault should be stated, the common law being made, by statute, the rule of decision and practice, where not specifically changed. Territory v. Carrera, 1892-NMSC-023, 6 N.M. 594, 30 P. 872 (decided under prior law, now Rule 5-205 NMRA).

Raising defense of former jeopardy. — Common law required defense of former jeopardy to be specially pleaded. It could not be raised by motion for instructed verdict at conclusion of state's case. Territory v. Lobato, 1913-NMSC-030, 17 N.M. 666, 134 P. 222, aff'd, 242 U.S. 199, 37 S. Ct. 107, 61 L. Ed. 244 (1916) (decided under prior law, now Section 30-1-10 NMSA 1978).

Trial by jury. — The constitution preserves the right of trial by jury already existing, which means as it existed in the territory prior to adoption of constitution. Guiterrez v. Gober, 1939-NMSC-008, 43 N.M. 146, 87 P.2d 437.

Common-law presumption relating to spouses. — The presumption of the common law that a married woman committing a crime in presence of her husband was under coercion was rebuttable. State v. Asper, 1930-NMSC-098, 35 N.M. 203, 292 P. 225.

Opportunity for defendant to speak before judgment. — On failure of trial court to ask defendant before judgment was passed whether he had anything to say why judgment should not be pronounced upon him, or to have the record affirmatively show that fact, the cause must be remanded upon that ground alone. Territory v. Herrera, 1901-NMSC-018, 11 N.M. 129, 66 P. 523 (decided under prior law).

Discretion in sentencing. — The common law gives trial courts the discretion to make sentences consecutive or concurrent. State v. Crouch, 1965-NMSC-131, 75 N.M. 533, 407 P.2d 671.

Assessment of costs in criminal cases was unknown at common law and therefore requires statutory authority. State v. Valley Villa Nursing Ctr., Inc., 1981-NMCA-133, 97 N.M. 161, 637 P.2d 843.

Review of judgments. — The common law, vested the supreme court with jurisdiction to review judgments in criminal cases by writ of error. Borrego v. Territory, 1896-NMSC-011, 8 N.M. 446, 46 P. 349, cert. denied, 8 N.M. 655, 46 P. 211, aff'd sub nom. Gonzales v. Cunningham, 164 U.S. 612, 17 S. Ct. 182, 41 L. Ed. 572 (1896).

30-1-4. Crime defined.

A crime is an act or omission forbidden by law and for which, upon conviction, a sentence of either death, imprisonment or a fine is authorized.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-4, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-4.

ANNOTATIONS

Nature of criminal intent. — Criminal intent is more than intentional taking. It is a mental state of conscious wrongdoing. State v. Austin, 1969-NMCA-095, 80 N.M. 748, 461 P.2d 230.

Crime as public offense. — A crime is a public offense, and all public offenses are expressly defined to be crimes in New Mexico. 1959-60 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 59-154 (opinion rendered under 40-1-2 to 40-1-4, 1953 Comp.).

Violation of public law. — A "public offense" is the same as a "crime," and may include a breach of the laws established for the protection of the public, as distinguished from an infringement of mere private rights. It is an act committed or omitted in violation of public law. 1959-60 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 59-154 (opinion rendered under 40-1-2 to 40-1-4, 1953 Comp.).

30-1-5. Classification of crimes.

Crimes are classified as felonies, misdemeanors and petty misdemeanors.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-5, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-5.

ANNOTATIONS

Meaning of "crime" in Detoxification Act. — The Criminal Code makes it clear that the prohibition in the Detoxification Act (Section 43-2-16 NMSA 1978) against charging an individual held in protective custody with any "crime" includes misdemeanors and petty misdemeanors. 1973-74 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-52.

30-1-6. Classified crimes defined.

A. A crime is a felony if it is so designated by law or if upon conviction thereof a sentence of death or of imprisonment for a term of one year or more is authorized.

B. A crime is a misdemeanor if it is so designated by law or if upon conviction thereof a sentence of imprisonment in excess of six months but less than one year is authorized.

C. A crime is a petty misdemeanor if it is so designated by law or if upon conviction thereof a sentence of imprisonment for six months or less is authorized.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-6, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-6.

ANNOTATIONS

Police officer may make warrantless arrest for misdemeanor if he has probable cause to believe the offense occurred in his presence. Tanberg v. Shlotis, 401 F.3d 1151 (10th Cir. 2005).

Special statute controls over general. — This section and Section 31-19-1 NMSA 1978 refer generally to the sentence for misdemeanors; former 64-10-1, 1953 Comp., relating to fraudulent applications in motor vehicle registration and the like, provides a specific sentence for that misdemeanor. If the general statute, standing alone, would include the same matter as the special statute and thus conflict with the special statute, the special statute controls since it is considered an exception to the general statute. State v. Sawyers, 1968-NMCA-051, 79 N.M. 557, 445 P.2d 978.

Classification of criminal contempt in discretion of courts. — Where the sole punishment of the criminal contemnor is a fine the New Mexico courts are free to make their own determination as to what is a "petty" and what is a "serious" offense, guided by the standards of District of Columbia v. Clawans, 300 U.S. 617, 57 S. Ct. 660, 81 L. Ed. 843 (1937) and other federal cases. Seven Rivers Farm, Inc. v. Reynolds, 1973-NMSC-039, 84 N.M. 789, 508 P.2d 1276.

Penalty imposed as indication of nature of offense. — Under the rule in Cheff v. Schnackenberg, 384 U.S. 373, 86 S.Ct. 1523, 16 L. Ed. 2d 629 (1966), when the legislature has not expressed a judgment as to the seriousness of an offense by fixing a maximum penalty which may be imposed, the court is to look to the penalty actually imposed as the best evidence of the seriousness of the offense. Seven Rivers Farm, Inc. v. Reynolds, 1973-NMSC-039, 84 N.M. 789, 508 P.2d 1276; In re D'Angelo, 1986-NMSC-052, 105 N.M. 391, 733 P.2d 360.

Falsely obtaining unemployment benefits is petty misdemeanor. — When Subsection C is read together with Section 51-1-38 NMSA 1978, it is clear that the crime of falsely obtaining unemployment benefits is a petty misdemeanor, for which the statute of limitations is one year under Section 30-1-8F NMSA 1978. Robinson v. Short, 1979-NMSC-099, 93 N.M. 610, 603 P.2d 720 (decided under prior law, now Section 30-1-8 NMSA 1978).

Violation of municipal ordinance constitutes petty misdemeanor because imprisonment may not exceed 90 days. State v. Luna, 1980-NMSC-009, 93 N.M. 773, 606 P.2d 183 (decided under prior law, now Section 3-17-11 NMSA 1978).

Effect of altering classification of crime. — Statute under which the placing of poison in food for dogs would be a misdemeanor (Laws 1912, ch. 38, § 2, 40-4-1, 1953 Comp.) was impliedly repealed by subsequent statute (Laws 1919, ch. 82, § 1, 40-4-2, 1953 Comp.) making such offense a felony, under rule that if the same offense, identified by name or otherwise, is altered in degree or incidents, or if a felony is changed to a misdemeanor, or vice versa, the statute making such changes has the effect of repealing the former act. State v. Anderson, 1936-NMSC-016, 40 N.M. 173, 56 P.2d 1134.

Federal right to jury trial for contempt. — So long as the fine for criminal contempt which is, or may be, imposed is not more than $1000, there is no federal constitutional right to jury trial as the crime is a petty offense, nor need prosecution be by information. Seven Rivers Farm, Inc. v. Reynolds, 1973-NMSC-039, 84 N.M. 789, 508 P.2d 1276.

Jury trial of misdemeanor. — Those misdemeanors triable in district court do not provide for a trial by jury unless such crime was of the type which enjoyed and permitted trial by jury at the time of the adoption of N.M. Const., art. II, § 12. 1964 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 64-37.

Jury trial of misdemeanor. — Persons charged with offenses classified as misdemeanors under the Motor Vehicle Code may under Rule 23, N.M.R. Crim. P. (Magis. Cts.) (now see Rule 6-602) demand a jury trial but are not afforded one as a matter of right. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-17.

30-1-7. Degrees of felonies.

Felonies under the Criminal Code are classified as follows:

A. capital felonies;
B. first degree felonies;
C. second degree felonies;
D. third degree felonies; and
E. fourth degree felonies.

A felony is a capital, first, second, third or fourth degree felony when it is so designated under the Criminal Code. A crime declared to be a felony, without specification of degree, is a felony of the fourth degree.

30-1-8. Time limitations for commencing prosecution.

A person shall not be prosecuted, tried or punished in any court of this state unless the indictment is found or information or complaint is filed within the time as provided:

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

A. for a second degree felony, within six years from the time the crime was committed;

B. for a third or fourth degree felony, within five years from the time the crime was committed;

C. for a misdemeanor, within two years from the time the crime was committed;

D. for a petty misdemeanor, within one year from the time the crime was committed;

E. for any crime against or violation of Section 51-1-38 NMSA 1978, within three years from the time the crime was committed;

F. for a felony pursuant to Section 7-1-71.3, 7-1-72 or 7-1-73 NMSA 1978, within five years from the time the crime was committed; provided that for a series of crimes involving multiple filing periods within one calendar year, the limitation shall begin to run on December 31 of the year in which the crimes occurred;

G. for an identity theft crime pursuant to Section 30-16-24.1 NMSA 1978, within five years from the time the crime was discovered;

H. for any crime not contained in the Criminal Code [30-1-1 NMSA 1978] or where a limitation is not otherwise provided for, within three years from the time the crime was committed; and

I. for a capital felony, a first degree violent felony or second degree murder pursuant to Subsection B of Section 30-2-1 NMSA 1978, no limitation period shall exist and prosecution for these crimes may commence at any time after the occurrence of the crime.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-8, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-8; 1979, ch. 5, § 1; 1980, ch. 50, § 1; 1997, ch. 157, § 1; 2005, ch. 108, § 7; 2009, ch. 95, § 2; 2022, ch. 56, § 23.

The 2022 amendment, effective May 18, 2022, eliminated the statute of limitations for second degree murder; and in Subsection I, after "first degree violent felony", added "or second degree murder pursuant to Subsection B of Section 30-2-1 NMSA 1978".

The 2009 amendment, effective July 1, 2009, in Subsection F, added Section 7-1-71.3 NMSA 1978, and after "NMSA 1978", deleted "or Section 4 of this 2005 act"; and added Subsection G.

The 2005 amendment, effective June 17, 2005, added Subsection F to a five year limitation for commencing a felony prosecution pursuant to Sections 7-1-72 or 7-1-73 NMSA 1978 from the time the crime was committed or if the prosecution is for a series of crimes involving multiple filing periods within one calendar year, from December 31 of the year in which the crimes occurred.

The 1997 amendment, effective July 1, 1997, deleted former Subsections A and B providing for 15 year limitations for capital murder and first degree murder, added Subsection G, and redesignated the remaining subsections accordingly.

ANNOTATIONS

Application of 1997 amendment. — The 1997 amendment, which abolished the fifteen year statute of limitations for all capital felonies and first degree violent felonies, applies to unexpired criminal conduct committed before the amendment's effective date of July 1, 1997. State v. Morales, 2010-NMSC-026, 148 N.M. 305, 236 P.3d 24, rev'g 2008-NMCA-155, 145 N.M. 259, 196 P.3d 490.

Where defendant was charged with aggravated criminal sexual penetration of a child less that thirteen years of age, a first degree felony, based on conduct that occurred between January 1, 1978 and December 30, 1985, the crimes committed by defendant after July 1, 1982 were not time barred as of July 1, 1997 and the 1997 amendment, which abolished the fifteen year statute of limitations for all capital felonies and first degree violent felonies applied to the crimes committed by defendant. State v. Morales, 2010-NMSC-026, 148 N.M. 305, 236 P.3d 24, rev'g 2008-NMCA-155, 145 N.M. 259, 196 P.3d 490.

The 1997 amendment, which eliminated the statute of limitations on the prosecution of first degree felonies, applies prospectively. State v. Morales, 2008-NMCA-155, 145 N.M. 269, 196 P.3d 490, cert. granted, 2008-NMCERT-011, rev'd, 2010-NMSC-026, 148 N.M. 305, 236 P.3d 24.

Waiver. — The statute of limitations is a substantive right that may only be waived by a defendant after consultation with counsel, and only if the waiver is knowing, intelligent and voluntary. State v. Kerby, 2007-NMSC-014, 141 N.M. 413, 156 P.3d 704.

Waiver of statute of limitations. — Where defendant pleaded no contest to two second-degree felonies, attempted first-degree murder and aggravated burglary with a deadly weapon, for acts that were committed in 2010, and where, following the district court's denial of defendant's motion to dismiss which asserted that the statute of limitations had run on those counts before the state filed an indictment that named him as a defendant, defendant and the state entered into an unconditional plea agreement in which defendant agreed to plead no contest to attempted first-degree murder and aggravated burglary with a deadly weapon, defendant's no contest plea waived his statute of limitations defense, and where defendant was advised of the statute of limitations, the factual and legal basis for asserting the defense, and the range of outcomes that could result from its assertion or waiver, the waiver was knowing, intelligent and voluntary. State v. Hansen, 2021-NMCA-048, cert. denied.

Where state alleges that defendant committed criminal sexual penetration of minor under 13 between September and December of 1988 and in January of 1989, the applicable statute of limitations at the time defendant allegedly committed the crime is 15 years. State v. Hill, 2005-NMCA-143, 138 N.M. 693, 125 P.3d 1175, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-012, 138 N.M. 772, 126 P.3d 1136.

Limitation "not otherwise provided for". — A limitation is "otherwise provided for" for purposes of Subsection H (now F), based on Subsection F (now D), which limits the prosecution of petty misdemeanors, if the punishment for the crime is such as to make it a petty misdemeanor under Section 30-1-6 NMSA 1978, even if the statute under which the defendant was charged does not expressly state the degree of the crime. Robinson v. Short, 1979-NMSC-099, 93 N.M. 610, 603 P.2d 720.

Period begins running when crime completed. — Where the final "taking" under a fraudulent loan occurred on July 17, 1973, the crimes of fraud and conspiracy to defraud were completed on that date, and the limitation period began to run. State v. Thoreen, 1978-NMCA-024, 91 N.M. 624, 578 P.2d 325, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 610, 577 P.2d 1256.

Limitations against prosecution for conspiracy run from time last overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy was committed. State v. Thoreen, 1978-NMCA-024, 91 N.M. 624, 578 P.2d 325, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 610, 577 P.2d 1256.

Time of filing superseding indictment or information not controlling. — Although a felony charge may be initiated by the filing of a complaint, the felony must be prosecuted by indictment or information, so that at some point the complaint is superseded by an indictment or information. This section, however, does not distinguish among complaint, indictment or information, and by providing for a complaint charging a felony within the time limitation, the legislature intended that the time of filing a superseding indictment or information should not control the limitation question. State v. Martinez, 1978-NMCA-095, 92 N.M. 291, 587 P.2d 438, cert. quashed, 92 N.M. 260, 586 P.2d 1089.

Charges initiated by complaint continued by later indictment. — Since upon being advised that a defendant has been indicted prior to a preliminary examination, a magistrate takes no further action in the case, charges initiated by a complaint in a magistrate court should be considered as continued by a later indictment, and for purposes of this section the prosecution should be considered as commenced by the filing of the complaint. State v. Martinez, 1978-NMCA-095, 92 N.M. 291, 587 P.2d 438, cert. quashed, 92 N.M. 260, 586 P.2d 1089.

Jury to consider solely date charged. — Although it is not error to instruct the jury that it must find that the crime occurred within the applicable statute of limitations, it is error not to limit the jury's consideration to the date charged in the information. State v. Foster, 1974-NMCA-150, 87 N.M. 155, 530 P.2d 949.

New prosecution potentially barred after dismissal for failure to prosecute. — If there is a dismissal of a charge for failure to prosecute, a new prosecution would be barred if initiated after the limitation period expires. State v. Martinez, 1978-NMCA-095, 92 N.M. 291, 587 P.2d 438, cert. quashed, 92 N.M. 260, 586 P.2d 1089.

Filing complaint within period tolls statute. — An indictment filed prior to dismissal of a complaint but more than three years after the commission of a third degree felony may be timely because the limitation period was tolled by the filing of the complaint within the three-year period. State v. Martinez, 1978-NMCA-095, 92 N.M. 291, 587 P.2d 438, cert. quashed, 92 N.M. 260, 586 P.2d 1089.

The statute of limitations prescribe time limits within which the state must commence a prosecution by filing the initial charging documents in a case, not time limits within which a defendant must be brought to trial. State v. Collier, 2013-NMSC-015, 301 P.3d 370.

Statute did not bar retrial of lesser-included offense. — Where, on February 13, 2006, defendant injured a horse causing the horse's death; on August 31, 2006, less than seven months after the horse's death, the grand jury returned an indictment charging defendant with felony extreme cruelty to animals; defendant's first trial in March 2008 resulted in a mistrial due to jury deadlock; at defendant's second trial in January 2009, after the statute of limitations period for misdemeanors had run, the district court, at the state's request and without objection from defendant, instructed the jury on the lesser included offense of misdemeanor cruelty to animals; the jury acquitted defendant of the felony charge; and the district court declared a mistrial on the misdemeanor charge due to jury deadlock, the statute of limitations did not bar retrial of the misdemeanor charge because the state commenced the prosecution by timely filing the indictment on the felony charge, which necessarily included the lesser-included misdemeanor charge, within the two-year statute of limitations period for the misdemeanor charge. State v. Collier, 2013-NMSC-015, 301 P.3d 370.

Time limitation instruction. — Generally, the time limitation instruction is a necessary part of the instructions; however, where the uncontradicted evidence shows the offenses were committed within the time limitation, the instruction stating the time limitation is not a required instruction, but giving it is not error. State v. Salazar, 1974-NMCA-026, 86 N.M. 172, 521 P.2d 134.

Error not prejudicial. — Although the offense of unlawfully drawing or discharging a firearm in a settlement was barred by the statute of limitations, which defense was timely raised in the district court, so that the trial court erred in not dismissing this count, nevertheless, no sentence was imposed for this offense, and furthermore, the elements of the offense were embraced in the crime of assault with intent to kill, for which defendant was properly convicted, so that the error was without prejudice to him. State v. Shawan, 1967-NMSC-013, 77 N.M. 354, 423 P.2d 39.

Falsely obtaining unemployment benefits is petty misdemeanor. — When Section 30-1-6C NMSA 1978 is read together with Section 51-1-38 NMSA 1978, it is clear that the crime of falsely obtaining unemployment benefits is a petty misdemeanor, for which the statute of limitations is one year under Subsection F. Robinson v. Short, 1979-NMSC-099, 93 N.M. 610, 603 P.2d 720(decided under prior law, now Section 30-1-8 NMSA 1978).

Contributions payable under Section 51-1-19 NMSA 1978 are not "revenues" within meaning of Subsection G. Robinson v. Short, 1979-NMSC-099, 93 N.M. 610, 603 P.2d 720 (decided under prior law).

Prosecution for sale of property of another not barred. — Under former law, prosecution for unlawful sale of one head of neat cattle, the property of another, was not barred where commenced within three years from time of alleged offense. State v. Stone, 1937-NMSC-050, 41 N.M. 547, 72 P.2d 9.

Prosecution of misdemeanor. — Under former 41-9-1, 1953 Comp., as well as this section, the maximum time for commencing prosecution for a misdemeanor was within two years from the time the offense was committed. 1957-58 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 57-74.

30-1-9. Tolling of time limitation for prosecution for crimes.

A. If after any crime has been committed the defendant shall conceal himself, or shall flee from or go out of the state, the prosecution for such crime may be commenced within the time prescribed in Section 1-8 [30-1-8 NMSA 1978], after the defendant ceases to conceal himself or returns to the state. No period shall be included in the time of limitation when the party charged with any crime is not usually and publicly a resident within the state.

B. When

(1) an indictment, information or complaint is lost, mislaid or destroyed;

(2) the judgment is arrested;

(3) the indictment, information or complaint is quashed, for any defect or reason; or

(4) the prosecution is dismissed because of variance between the allegations of the indictment, information or complaint and the evidence; and a new indictment, information or complaint is thereafter presented, the time elapsing between the preferring of the first indictment, information or complaint and the subsequent indictment, information or complaint shall not be included in computing the period limited for the prosecution of the crime last charged; provided that the crime last charged is based upon and grows out of the same transaction upon which the original indictment, information or complaint was founded, and the subsequent indictment, information or complaint is brought within five years from the date of the alleged commission of the original crime.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-9, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-9.

Cross references. — For defects, errors and omissions in a complaint, indictment or information, and variances between the allegations therein and the evidence, see Rule 5-204 NMRA.

ANNOTATIONS

This section is a tolling statute, not a statute of limitations, and does not independently limit the period within which prosecution must commence. State v. Hill, 2008-NMCA-117, 144 N.M. 775, 192 P.3d 770, cert. quashed, 2009-NMCERT-009, 147 N.M. 423, 224 P.3d 650.

Constitutionality. — The application of the tolling provision did not violate either defendant's right to travel or his constitutional guarantee of equal protection of the laws. State v. Cawley, 1990-NMSC-088, 110 N.M. 705, 799 P.2d 574.

Statute not exclusive. — Although this section does show a legislative intent that the limitation period is not to be utilized to bar a prosecution delayed by procedural problems, it does not evince an intent to bar prosecutions not beset with procedural problems. State v. Martinez, 1978-NMCA-095, 92 N.M. 291, 587 P.2d 438, cert. quashed, 92 N.M. 260, 586 P.2d 1089.

Indictment timely because complaint had tolled statute. — An indictment filed prior to dismissal of a complaint but more than three years after the commission of a third degree felony is timely because the limitation period was tolled by the filing of the complaint within the three-year period. State v. Martinez, 1978-NMCA-095, 92 N.M. 291, 587 P.2d 438, cert. quashed, 92 N.M. 260, 586 P.2d 1089.

Evidence of absence from state insufficient. — Where there was no evidence tending to show defendant's whereabouts from the time of his escape from prison on September 17, 1956 until his apprehension in Oklahoma on January 24, 1960, defendant's plea of not guilty put the statute of limitations in issue, and his motion for a directed verdict on the grounds that the three-year statute of limitations was a bar to prosecution should have been granted. State v. Oliver, 1963-NMSC-015, 71 N.M. 317, 378 P.2d 135.

Evidence negating residence insufficient. — There being no substantial evidence in record that defendant was not usually and publicly a resident of state, after commission of crime for sufficient time to toll statute of limitations, he was entitled to instructed verdict in his favor. State v. Mersfelder, 1927-NMSC-049, 34 N.M. 465, 284 P. 113.

30-1-9.1. Offenses against children; tolling of statute of limitations.

The applicable time period for commencing prosecution pursuant to Section 30-1-8 NMSA 1978 shall not commence to run for an alleged violation of Section 30-6-1, 30-9-11 or 30-9-13 NMSA 1978 until the victim attains the age of eighteen or the violation is reported to a law enforcement agency, whichever occurs first.

Applicability. — Laws 1987, ch. 117, § 2 provided that the provisions of Laws 1987, ch. 117, § 1 apply only to crimes committed on or after June 19, 1987.

ANNOTATIONS

Report of a violation to a law enforcement agency. — The statute of limitations to commence a prosecution for a violation of Section 30-6-1, 30-9-11 or 30-9-13 NMSA 1978 is triggered only for the specific violation that was reported to a law enforcement agency and does not commence to run until the facts that form the basis for the violation that is being prosecuted were reported to a law enforcement agency. State v. Whittington, 2008-NMCA-063, 144 N.M. 85, 183 P.3d 97.

30-1-9.2. Criminal sexual penetration; tolling of statute of limitations.

A. When DNA evidence is available and a suspect has not been identified, the applicable time period for commencing a prosecution pursuant to Section 30-1-8 NMSA 1978 shall not commence to run for an alleged violation of Section 30-9-11 NMSA 1978 until a DNA profile is matched with a suspect.

B. As used in this section, "DNA" means deoxyribonucleic acid."

History: Laws 2003, ch. 257, § 1.

Effective dates. — Laws 2003, ch. 257, § 3 made the act effective on July 1, 2003.

Applicability. — Laws 2003, ch. 257, § 2 provided that the provisions of Laws 2003, ch. 257, § 1 apply to an alleged violation of Section 30-9-11 NMSA 1978 for which the applicable time period for commencing a prosecution as provided in Section 30-1-8 NMSA 1978 had not expired as of July 1, 2003.

30-1-10. Double jeopardy.

No person shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same crime. The defense of double jeopardy may not be waived and may be raised by the accused at any stage of a criminal prosecution, either before or after judgment. When the indictment, information or complaint charges different crimes or different degrees of the same crime and a new trial is granted the accused, he may not again be tried for a crime or degree of the crime greater than the one of which he was originally convicted.

  B. SAME EVIDENCE.
  C. MERGER, COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL AND SAME TRANSACTION.
III. MISTRIAL.
IV. RAISING THE DEFENSE.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Waiver of rights. — Double jeopardy rights may not be waived and may be raised by the accused at any stage of a criminal prosecution either before or after judgment. Defendant may raise the issue of violation of double jeopardy even though he expressly waived the issue during a plea hearing. State v. Jackson, 1993-NMCA-092, 116 N.M. 130, 860 P.2d 772.

Finality of decision. — The trial court's oral and written statements during the proceedings did not constitute acquittals and therefore there was no violation of double jeopardy protections when the court subsequently found the defendant guilty in the same proceedings. State v. Vaughn, 2005-NMCA-076, 137 N.M. 674, 114 P.3d 354, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-006, 137 N.M. 766, 115 P.3d 229.

Removal of child from the custody of the child's parents pending an investigation of child abuse is not a punishment. — Where the children, youth and families department investigated defendants for child abuse and found the allegations to be unsubstantiated; a tribal court held a custody hearing on the same allegations and ultimately returned the child to defendants; the defendant who was the primary caretaker agreed to temporary guardianship of the child during the investigation and tribal court proceeding; and the removal of the child from the custody of defendants for fourteen months during the child abuse investigation by the department and the custody proceeding in tribal court was not intended to punish defendants, the state's prosecution of defendants for criminal child abuse did not violate double jeopardy. State v. Diggs, 2009-NMCA-099, 147 N.M. 122, 217 P.3d 608, cert. denied, 2009-NMCERT-007, 147 N.M. 361, 223 P.3d 358.

Identical counts and jury instructions. — Where multiple counts of criminal sexual penetration of a minor in the indictment and the counts in the jury instructions were carbon-copy counts of each other and where the child's testimony distinguished facts for each count and the defendant admitted to having sexual intercourse with the child on several occasions, there was sufficient evidence from which a jury could find separate incidents of criminal sexual penetration and there was no violation of double jeopardy. State v. Martinez, 2007-NMCA-160, 143 N.M. 96, 173 P.3d 18, cert. denied, 2007-NMCERT-011, 143 N.M. 155, 173 P.3d 762.

Constitutional provision. — This section provides the same protections as N.M. Const., art. II, § 15, although those protections are more clearly stated in the statute. State v. Lynch, 2003-NMSC-020, 134 N.M. 139, 74 P.3d 73.

Reinstatement of convictions. — Where one of two otherwise valid convictions must be vacated to avoid violation of double jeopardy protections, the conviction carrying the shorter sentence must be vacated. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426.

Where defendant and defendant's companions were accosted by a rival gang in front of defendant's family home, guns were pulled on both sides and defendant's sibling was severely wounded by gunshots in the leg and abdomen; while defendant's group were trying to help defendant's sibling in the driveway and stop the bleeding from the gunshot wounds, the person in the rival gang who had been shooting at defendant and defendant's companions returned in a Ford Expedition; when defendant saw gunfire coming from the Expedition, defendant ran into the house and retrieved an AK-47 rifle and began shooting at the Expedition; the driver of Expedition was shot seven times and died; the jury convicted defendant of voluntary manslaughter and shooting into a motor vehicle resulting in great bodily harm, the conviction for voluntary manslaughter should be vacated and the conviction for shooting into a motor vehicle upheld because the conviction for shooting into a motor vehicle carried a more severe potential sentence. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426.

State protections broader than those of federal constitution. — The differences between N.M. Const., art. II, § 15, and this section suggest that the legislature was attempting to articulate the protections of the state constitution as being broader than those of the federal constitution. State v. Lynch, 2003-NMSC-020, 134 N.M. 139, 74 P.3d 73.

When section applied. — The double jeopardy clause only comes to the aid of defendants subjected to multiple prosecutions for the identical offense, or in such situations in which collateral estoppel, the concept of lesser included offenses or the same evidence test apply. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

This section precludes retrial of a greater offense only after an acquittal of that offense and does not address the situation in which the state prosecutes various crimes or degrees of crimes and the jury returns a verdict on less than all of the crimes charged. State v. Martinez, 1995-NMSC-064, 120 N.M. 677, 905 P.2d 715.

The New Mexico supreme court's statement in State v. Martinez, 1995-NMSC-064, 120 N.M. 677, 905 P.2d 715, that this section precludes a retrial of a greater offense only after an acquittal of that offense, was not intended to introduce a new principle of law into its double jeopardy jurisprudence, but rather was a summary of existing case law. State v. Lynch, 2003-NMSC-020, 134 N.M. 139, 74 P.3d 73.

This section precludes a retrial of a greater offense only after an (implied or explicit) acquittal of that offense, provided that the greater offense was charged in the first trial. State v. Lynch, 2003-NMSC-020, 134 N.M. 139, 74 P.3d 73.

Section applies to children's court proceedings involving delinquent child. State v. Doe, 1977-NMCA-058, 90 N.M. 536, 565 P.2d 1053.

Acquittal of accused protects against second prosecution for same crime. Borrego v. Territory, 1896-NMSC-011, 8 N.M. 446, 46 P. 349, aff'd sub nom. Gonzales v. Cunningham, 164 U.S. 612, 17 S. Ct. 182, 41 L. Ed. 572 (1896).

No jeopardy if information fails to state offense. — Where information failed to state an offense at time of arraignment and entry of plea of not guilty, defendant was not placed in jeopardy. State v. Ardovino, 1951-NMSC-018, 55 N.M. 161, 228 P.2d 947.

No jeopardy if court lacks jurisdiction. — Since marijuana is not defined as a narcotic drug under the relevant statutes, a charge of violating Section 30-31-20 NMSA 1978 (trafficking) in the first proceeding brought against defendant for selling marijuana did not charge defendant with a public offense. Hence, as the court lacked jurisdiction in the first proceeding, there was no basis for a claim of double jeopardy where defendant was later charged under the proper section. State v. Mabrey, 1975-NMCA-098, 88 N.M. 227, 539 P.2d 617.

No jeopardy on retrial after appeal. — The former jeopardy clause does not preclude retrial of defendant whose sentence is set aside because of error in the proceedings leading to sentence or conviction. State v. Sneed, 1967-NMSC-272, 78 N.M. 615, 435 P.2d 768; State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Constitutional protection against double jeopardy does not prevent a second trial for the same offense where the defendant himself, by an appeal, has invoked the action which resulted in the second trial. State v. Sneed, 1967-NMSC-272, 78 N.M. 615, 435 P.2d 768.

No jeopardy after collateral attack. — Where a conviction is overturned on collateral rather than direct attack, retrial is not precluded on double jeopardy grounds. State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Waiver of defense by plea agreement. — The defendant waived his double jeopardy defense by entering a plea agreement which provided that the state could pursue additional habitual offender proceedings to enhance the defendant's sentence in the event his probation was revoked or he otherwise failed to fulfill his obligations under the agreement, and the provision precluding waiver of a double jeopardy defense did not apply to prevent waiver in such case. Montoya v. New Mexico, 55 F.3d 1496 (10th Cir. 1995).

Charging in alternative. — The concept of double jeopardy was not involved in charging defendant with fraud or in the alternative embezzlement since the charges were in the alternative; nor were the concepts of included offenses, same evidence or merger. State v. Ortiz, 1977-NMCA-036, 90 N.M. 319, 563 P.2d 113.

Trial de novo on alternative means of committing offense did not violate double jeopardy. — When a defendant is convicted based on one of two alternative means of committing a single crime, there is not an implied acquittal of the other alternative unless the conviction logically excludes guilt of the other alternative; if there is no implied acquittal, there is no constitutional prohibition against retrial of both alternatives after a conviction is set aside. State v. Ben, 2015-NMCA-118, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-011.

Where defendant was charged in magistrate court with multiple means of committing DWI, per se DWI and impaired to the slightest degree, and was convicted on the per se theory of DWI, defendant's double jeopardy rights were not violated when he was retried de novo on the impaired theory in the district court, because his conviction on the per se theory of DWI was not logically inconsistent with a finding of impaired DWI. State v. Ben, 2015-NMCA-118, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-011.

Prosecution and forfeiture generally. — State v. Nunez, 2000-NMSC-013, 129 N.M. 63, 2 P.3d 264, does not stand for the proposition that a criminal prosecution may never advance independently of a forfeiture proceeding. Rather, Nunez appears to mandate only proper initiation of the dual penalty proceeding, meaning that the criminal charges and the forfeiture proceeding must be merged or consolidated prior to the occurrence of any event that signals the attachment of jeopardy. State v. Esparza, 2003-NMCA-075, 133 N.M. 772, 70 P.3d 762, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 771, 70 P.3d 761.

Civil penalty and criminal prosecution under the Voter Action Act. — The civil penalty authorized under Section 1-19A-17 NMSA 1978 is remedial and does not constitute punishment for double jeopardy purposes. The imposition of a civil penalty does not bar a subsequent criminal prosecution under the Voter Action Act for the same conduct for which the secretary of state assessed the civil penalty. State v. Block, 2011-NMCA-101, 150 N.M. 598, 263 P.3d 940.

Where the secretary of state assessed civil penalties against defendant for violations of the Voter Action Act and the attorney general subsequently filed criminal charges against defendant for the same violations of the act, the assessment of the civil penalties and the subsequent criminal prosecution did not violate double jeopardy. State v. Block, 2011-NMCA-101, 150 N.M. 598, 263 P.3d 940.

Civil forfeiture under Controlled Substances Act. — Because civil forfeiture under the Controlled Substances Act is punishment for double-jeopardy purposes under the New Mexico constitution, all forfeiture complaints and criminal charges for violations of the Controlled Substances Act may both be brought only in a single, bifurcated proceeding. State v. Nunez, 2000-NMSC-013, 129 N.M. 63, 2 P.3d 264.

The legislature is not prevented from assessing both civil and criminal penalties for violations of the Controlled Substances Act, Sections 30-31-1 to 30-31-41 NMSA 1978. State v. Esparza, 2003-NMCA-075, 133 N.M. 772, 70 P.3d 762, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 771, 70 P.3d 761.

Civil penalties and criminal prosecution under Securities Act. — Criminal prosecutions under the Securities Act, Sections 58-13B-1 to 58-13B-57 NMSA 1978 (now Sections 58-13C-101 to 58-13C-701 NMSA 1978), following administratively imposed civil penalties under that Act, do not place defendants in double jeopardy under N.M. Const., art. II, § 15, or under this section. State v. Kirby, 2003-NMCA-074, 133 N.M. 782, 70 P.3d 772, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 771, 70 P.3d 761.

City ordinance. — The clear intent and purpose of the city ordinance is to establish a remedial measure to protect the public from those drivers who persist in driving after license revocation and from multiple driving while intoxicated offenses; therefore, civil forfeiture proceedings are not punitive, and the drivers are not subjected to double jeopardy. City of Albuquerque ex rel. Albuquerque Police Dep't v. One (1) 1984 White Chevy UT., 2002-NMSC-014, 132 N.M. 187, 46 P.3d 94.

Trial de novo after magistrate court conviction. — In a trial de novo resulting from a defendant's appeal of a magistrate court conviction, the district court has jurisdiction as well as a constitutional and statutory obligation to consider the defendant's pretrial double jeopardy claim. State v. Foster, 2003-NMCA-099, 134 N.M. 224, 75 P.3d 824, cert. denied, 134 N.M. 179, 74 P.3d 1071.

Greater sentence after trial de novo. — The greater sentence imposed by the district court for violation of certain municipal ordinances after a trial de novo did not deprive defendant of due process, nor did it amount to double jeopardy. City of Farmington v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-022, 90 N.M. 246, 561 P.2d 945.

Double jeopardy was not violated by amendment of defendant's sentence. — Where the district court initially determined that defendant's 1972 uncounseled misdemeanor DWI conviction could not be used to enhance defendant's sentence for a 2009 aggravated DWI; the state asked the court to reconsider its ruling as a legal error six days after the court entered the sentence; the state did not present any new or supplemental evidence; the court determined that it had erred as a matter of law because defendant had not been sentenced to jail for the 1972 conviction; and the court amended defendant's sentence based on the legal error regarding the 1972 conviction, defendant did not have a reasonable expectation of finality in the original sentence because the state moved for reconsideration of the court's ruling on the validity of the 1972 sentence within the thirty days of the court's entry of the sentence and double jeopardy did not preclude the modification of defendant's sentence based on the legal error. State v. Redhouse, 2011-NMCA-118, 269 P.3d 8, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-011.

Larceny of cattle distinct from disposition of hides. — Larceny of cattle, completed on one day by driving the cattle away or killing them with intent to steal, was a distinct offense from that of killing cattle and failing to keep the hides and an acquittal of former was no bar to prosecution for latter. State v. Knight, 1929-NMSC-049, 34 N.M. 217, 279 P. 947.

Conspiracy and completed offense are separate offenses and conviction of both does not amount to double jeopardy. State v. Armijo, 1976-NMCA-126, 90 N.M. 12, 558 P.2d 1151.

The commission of a substantive offense and a conspiracy to commit it are separate and distinct offenses, and a conviction for the conspiracy may be had though the substantive offense was completed. The plea of double jeopardy is not a defense to conviction for both offenses. State v. Armijo, 1976-NMCA-126, 90 N.M. 12, 558 P.2d 1151.

Evidence that a conspiracy to commit burglary was entered on the evening of November 16th, that the conspirators unsuccessfully attempted to carry out the conspiracy at 10:30 p.m. of that day, and that the burglary was performed between 9:00 and 9:30 a.m. of November 17th, showed two distinct crimes, and there was no factual basis for the contention that they were either the same or so similar that multiple convictions were prohibited. State v. Watkins, 1975-NMCA-126, 88 N.M. 561, 543 P.2d 1189, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71.

Double use of prior felony. — It is not legally permissible for the state to present evidence of the same prior felony to prove an essential element of the crime of felon in possession of a firearm, and to rely upon this same evidence for purposes of enhancing the defendants' sentences under the habitual offender criminal statute. State v. Haddenham, 1990-NMCA-048, 110 N.M. 149, 793 P.2d 279, cert. denied, 110 N.M. 72, 792 P.2d 49, and 110 N.M. 183, 793 P.2d 865.

II. TESTS.

A. LESSER INCLUDED OFFENSE.

Effect of conviction or acquittal of lesser included offense. — Conviction or acquittal of a lesser offense necessarily included in a greater offense bars a subsequent prosecution for the greater offense. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Meaning of included offense. — For an offense to be included within another offense, the offense must be necessarily included in the offense charged in the indictment, and for an offense to be necessarily included, the greater offense cannot be committed without also committing the lesser. State v. Kraul, 1977-NMCA-032, 90 N.M. 314, 563 P.2d 108, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Indictment source for determining lesser offense. — For a lesser offense to be necessarily included, the greater offense cannot be committed without also committing the lesser, and in determining whether an offense is necessarily included, the court will look to the offense charged in the indictment. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Exception to rule. — Conviction of a lesser included offense bars prosecution of a greater offense, subject to one exception: if the court does not have jurisdiction to try the crime, double jeopardy cannot attach, since double jeopardy requires that a court have sufficient jurisdiction to try the charge. Where the magistrate court had no jurisdiction to try the charge of vehicular homicide while driving while intoxicated or recklessly driving, double jeopardy should not bar the vehicular homicide by driving while intoxicated charge. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

Armed robbery and aggravated battery. — The concept of lesser included offenses is not involved in a prosecution for armed robbery and aggravated battery because either offense can be committed without committing the other offense. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Aggravated burglary involving battery and aggravated battery involving deadly weapon. — Where defendant entered the victims' home with intent to commit theft and stabbed and beat the victims, defendant's convictions of aggravated burglary involving battery and aggravated burglary involving a deadly weapon did not violate double jeopardy. State v. Swick, 2010-NMCA-098, 148 N.M. 895, 242 P.3d 462, cert. granted, 2010-NMCERT-010, 149 N.M. 64, 243 P.3d 1146.

Driving under the influence and homicide by vehicle. — Where the indictment against defendant was phrased in the alternative charging him with homicide by vehicle (former Section 64-22-1, 1953 Comp.) while violating either Section 64-22-2, 1953 Comp.(former driving under the influence) or Section 64-22-3, 1953 Comp. (former reckless driving), the prosecution was not barred by a conviction in municipal court for driving under the influence since the lesser offense of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor is not necessarily included in the greater offense of homicide by vehicle. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

Possession and distribution. — Possession of marijuana was a lesser offense necessarily included in the greater offense of distribution, arising out of the same events, and since defendant was convicted of the lesser offense, double jeopardy barred his prosecution for the greater. State v. Medina, 1975-NMCA-033, 87 N.M. 394, 534 P.2d 486.

Criminal sexual contact of minor and attempted criminal sexual penetration. — The offenses of criminal sexual contact of a minor and attempted criminal sexual penetration of a minor cannot be characterized as lesser included and greater inclusive crimes because they each contain different elements and stand independently in relation to one another. State v. Mora, 2003-NMCA-072, 133 N.M. 746, 69 P.3d 256, cert. denied, 133 N.M. 727, 69 P.3d 237.

B. SAME EVIDENCE.

Nature of test. — The test for determining whether two offenses are the same so as to bring into operation the prohibition against double jeopardy is the "same evidence" test which asks whether the facts offered in support of one offense would sustain a conviction of the other. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813; Owens v. Abram, 1954-NMSC-096, 58 N.M. 682, 274 P.2d 630, cert. denied, 348 U.S. 917, 75 S. Ct. 300, 99 L. Ed. 719 (1955).

Same evidence test. — The "same evidence" test is whether the facts offered in support of one offense would sustain a conviction of the other offense. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Unitary test. — Where a defendant convicted of multiple offenses claims double jeopardy, a reviewing court first determines whether defendant's conduct was unitary in nature so that the same acts were used to prove both offenses; where the conduct is unitary, the court must then examine the statutes in question to determine whether the legislature intended that multiple punishments could be imposed for different criminal offenses resulting from the same conduct. State v. Duran, 1998-NMCA-153, 126 N.M. 60, 966 P.2d 768, cert. denied, 126 N.M. 533, 972 P.2d 352, overruled on other grounds, State v. Laguna, 1999-NMCA-152, 128 N.M. 345, 992 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

Proof of different facts. — If either information requires the proof of facts to support a conviction which the other does not, the offenses are not the same and a plea of double jeopardy is unavailing. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486; Owens v. Abram, 1954-NMSC-096, 58 N.M. 682, 274 P.2d 630, cert. denied, 348 U.S. 917, 75 S. Ct. 300, 99 L. Ed. 719 (1955).

If test met, section does not bar consecutive sentencing. — Under the "same evidence" test, where different elements are required to be proved in order to sustain each of three convictions, and different evidence is admitted to prove the different elements, it appears that the three convictions are based in part on separate evidence and the prohibition against double jeopardy does not bar consecutive sentencing under the circumstances of the case. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Harassment and stalking. — Where the state relies on identical acts of an accused involving the same course of conduct to prove both the offenses of harassment and of stalking, double jeopardy provisions preclude multiple punishment, and the offense of harassment is subsumed into the offense of misdemeanor stalking. State v. Duran, 1998-NMCA-153, 126 N.M. 60, 966 P.2d 768, cert. denied, 126 N.M. 533, 972 P.2d 352, overruled on other grounds by State v. Laguna, 1999-NMCA-152, 128 N.M. 345, 992 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

Felony murder and armed robbery are separate offenses, although they may arise out of the same transaction. State v. Martinez, 1981-NMSC-016, 95 N.M. 421, 622 P.2d 1041.

Armed robbery and aggravated battery. — Since taking the victim's purse was a fact required to be proved under the armed robbery charge, but not under the aggravated battery charge, and application of force was a fact required to be proved under the aggravated battery charge, while threatened use of force would be acceptable proof under the armed robbery charge, the elements of the two crimes were not the same, and the "same evidence" test did not apply. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Drunk driving and homicide by vehicle. — Where the facts offered in municipal court to support a conviction for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors would not necessarily sustain a conviction for homicide by vehicle in district court, under the "same evidence" test there was no double jeopardy when the state sought to prosecute the defendant for homicide by vehicle. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

C. MERGER, COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL AND SAME TRANSACTION.

Definition of merger. — Merger is the name applied to the concept of multiple punishment when multiple charges are brought in a single trial; it is an aspect of double jeopardy, concerned with whether more than one offense has occurred and is applied to prevent a person from being punished twice for the same offense. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Nature of test. — The test of whether one criminal offense has merged in another is not whether two criminal acts are successive steps in the same transaction (the rejected "same transaction" test), but whether one offense necessarily involves the other. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Factors considered. — In determining whether the defendant's acts constituted a single offense or multiple offenses for purposes of double jeopardy, factors considered include the time between the acts, the location of the victim at the time of each act, the existence of any intervening event, distinctions in the manner of committing the acts, the defendant's intent, and the number of victims. State v. Handa, 1995-NMCA-042, 120 N.M. 38, 897 P.2d 225, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 771, 895 P.2d 671.

Merger concept has aspects of "same evidence" test because merger and the "same evidence" test are both concerned with whether more than one offense has been committed. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Merger has aspects of included offense concept. — The merger concept has aspects of the included offense concept, and in determining whether one offense necessarily involves another offense so that merger applies, the decisions have looked to the definitions of the crimes to see whether the elements are the same; this approach is similar to the approach used in determining whether an offense is an included offense (a determination of whether the greater offense can be committed without also committing the lesser). State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Offense of aggravated battery did not merge with armed robbery. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Homicide. — Homicide resulting from great bodily harm was sufficient evidence for the jury to find aggravated sodomy and first degree kidnapping, and there was no merger with the murder charge on which defendant was acquitted. State v. Melton, 1977-NMSC-014, 90 N.M. 188, 561 P.2d 461.

Assault. — An assault arising from a series of three successive shots fired at a single victim, not separated by a significant amount of time, and arising from a single, continuous intent constituted one offense, and conviction of the defendant on two counts of assault violated his double jeopardy rights. State v. Handa, 1995-NMCA-042, 120 N.M. 38, 897 P.2d 225, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 771, 895 P.2d 671.

Definition of collateral estoppel. — Collateral estoppel means simply that when an issue of ultimate fact has once been determined by a valid and final judgment, that issue cannot again be litigated between the same parties in any future lawsuit. State v. Nagel, 1975-NMCA-026, 87 N.M. 434, 535 P.2d 641, cert. denied, 87 N.M. 450, 535 P.2d 657.

Under the rule of collateral estoppel any right, fact or matter in issue, and directly adjudicated upon, or necessarily involved in, the determination of an action before a competent court in which a judgment or decree is rendered upon the merits is conclusively settled by the judgment therein and cannot again be litigated between the parties and privies whether the claim or demand, purpose or subject matter of the two suits is the same or not. State v. Nagel, 1975-NMCA-026, 87 N.M. 434, 535 P.2d 641, cert. denied, 87 N.M. 450, 535 P.2d 657.

Part of constitutional guarantee. — The principle of collateral estoppel is embodied in the U.S. Const., amend. V guaranty against double jeopardy and is fully applicable to states by force of U.S. Const., amend. XIV. State v. Nagel, 1975-NMCA-026, 87 N.M. 434, 535 P.2d 641, cert. denied, 87 N.M. 450, 535 P.2d 657.

When constitutionally required. — The principle of collateral estoppel is only constitutionally required after a previous acquittal on issues raised in a second prosecution, and bars relitigation between the same parties of issues actually determined at the previous trial. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

Double use of conditional discharge. — Use of the defendant's prior conditional discharge to prove that he was a felon in order to convict him of the crime of felon in possession of a firearm and to enhance his sentence for underlying assault convictions did not violate his double jeopardy rights. State v. Handa, 1995-NMCA-042, 120 N.M. 38, 897 P.2d 225, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 771, 895 P.2d 671.

Sanity during commission of different crimes. — Where defendant's sanity was raised as an affirmative defense in a first trial, was actually litigated and was absolutely necessary to a decision in that trial, the sanity of the defendant in a second trial for offenses committed some 16 hours prior to the crime which was the subject of the first trial was the same issue of fact as the question of his insanity at the first trial and having been decided there in his favor collateral estoppel was a bar to the second trial. State v. Nagel, 1975-NMCA-026, 87 N.M. 434, 535 P.2d 641, cert. denied, 87 N.M. 450, 535 P.2d 657.

Traffic violations and homicide by vehicle. — Where defendant was convicted in municipal court of violation of certain traffic ordinances, he had no acquittal to raise in his defense in district court on charges of homicide by vehicle, and application of the principle of collateral estoppel was therefore inappropriate. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

Same transaction test rejected. — The "same transaction" test, which is concerned with whether offenses were committed at the same time, were part of a continuous criminal act and inspired by the same criminal intent, has not been imposed by the United States supreme court on the states in double jeopardy cases, and its use is not mandated by N.M. Const., art. II, § 15. It is rejected and disapproved. State v. Tanton, 1975-NMSC-057, 88 N.M. 333, 540 P.2d 813.

III. MISTRIAL.

Manifest necessity. — Where a mistrial is granted not at the behest of defendant, a second trial is precluded by the double jeopardy clause of the U.S. Const., amend. V unless it can be said that there was a "manifest necessity" or " compelling reason" for the granting of a mistrial. Upon appellate review, the question to be decided is whether the trial court exercised sound judicial discretion to ascertain that there was a manifest necessity for the declaration of the mistrial. State v. Sedillo, 1975-NMCA-089, 88 N.M. 240, 539 P.2d 630.

Basis of manifest necessity. — The court of appeals would decline to hold there was a manifest necessity for a mistrial based on the state's supposedly prejudiced right to appeal when no appeal was attempted. State v. Aragon, 1976-NMCA-018, 89 N.M. 91, 547 P.2d 574, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 206, 549 P.2d 284, overruled by State v. Rickerson, 1981-NMSC-036, 95 N.M. 666, 625 P.2d 1183.

Ends of public justice. — In determining whether a mistrial should be declared, the trial court must consider whether the ends of public justice would be defeated by carrying the first trial to a final verdict; this consideration for the ends of public justice is a concept separate from manifest necessity. State v. Aragon, 1976-NMCA-018, 89 N.M. 91, 547 P.2d 574, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 206, 549 P.2d 284, overruled by State v. Rickerson, 1981-NMSC-036, 95 N.M. 666, 625 P.2d 1183.

Prejudice to state. — The failure of defendant to file a timely motion to suppress his statement resulted in prejudice to the state, and since in such circumstances it would be contrary to the ends of public justice to carry the first trial to a final verdict, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in declaring a mistrial; there was no double jeopardy. State v. Aragon, 1976-NMCA-018, 89 N.M. 91, 547 P.2d 574, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 206, 549 P.2d 284, overruled by State v. Rickerson, 1981-NMSC-036, 95 N.M. 666, 625 P.2d 1183.

© 2022 State of New Mexico, New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Need for responsible professional conduct. — In considering whether a mistrial was proper unquestionably an important factor to be considered is the need to hold litigants on both sides to standards of responsible professional conduct in the clash of an adversary criminal process. State v. Aragon, 1976-NMCA-018, 89 N.M. 91, 547 P.2d 574, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 206, 549 P.2d 284, overruled by State v. Rickerson, 1981-NMSC-036, 95 N.M. 666, 625 P.2d 1183.

Further interests of defendant. — In determining whether a defendant's retrial will place him in double jeopardy after a prior trial has ended with a declaration of a mistrial not at defendant's request include defendant's interest in having his fate determined by the jury first impaneled, which encompasses not only his right to have his trial completed by a particular panel, but also his interest in ending the dispute then and there with an acquittal, which factor would weigh heavily against retrial in all situations where jeopardy has attached, and also the factor of avoiding giving the state a second bite of the apple in order to either strengthen its case or to alter its trial strategy to obtain a conviction. State v. C. De Baca, 1975-NMCA-120, 88 N.M. 454, 541 P.2d 634, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71.

Discretion of trial court. — The law has invested courts of justice with the authority to discharge a jury from giving any verdict, whenever, in their opinion, taking all the circumstances into consideration, there is a manifest necessity for the act, or the ends of public justice would otherwise be defeated; they are to exercise a sound discretion on the subject, and it is impossible to define all the circumstances, which would render it proper to interfere, but the power ought to be used with the greatest caution, under urgent circumstances, and for very plain and obvious causes. State v. C. De Baca, 1975-NMCA-120, 88 N.M. 454, 541 P.2d 634, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71.

Upon appellate review of the declaration of a mistrial the question is whether the trial court exercised a sound discretion to ascertain that there was a manifest necessity for a mistrial. State v. C. De Baca, 1975-NMCA-120, 88 N.M. 454, 541 P.2d 634, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71.

Mistrial on abuse of discretion. — Where, after the second day of a trial, when jury instructions had already been settled, one of the jurors was frightened by a telephone call unrelated to the trial, and exploring her possible bias for use on voir dire in a future case, and the record did not show that the juror's fear involved either the state or the defendant, the trial court failed to exercise that sound discretion required of him in determining whether a manifest necessity or proper judicial administration mandated a mistrial. State v. C. De Baca, 1975-NMCA-120, 88 N.M. 454, 541 P.2d 634, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71.

Duty of court before declaring mistrial. — Where there is no manifest necessity for declaring a mistrial, the trial court has some duty to inquire as to possible alternatives thereto; affecting the scope of inquiry required are the factors of magnitude of prejudice and the point at which the proceedings are terminated, and as the magnitude of possible prejudice increases, less effort need be expended in seeking alternative resolutions, while conversely, as the length of trial wears on, more effort should be expended. State v. C. De Baca, 1975-NMCA-120, 88 N.M. 454, 541 P.2d 634, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71.

Failure to oppose mistrial. — Defense counsel's silence after declaration of a mistrial by the trial court, sua sponte, where simultaneously the defense attorney himself had been held in contempt for implicitly challenging a police officer on recross-examination to take a polygraph test, could not, under the circumstances, be construed as an intentional relinquishment of a known right, the right against double jeopardy, or as the mere play of wits of the sharp practitioner. State v. Sedillo, 1975-NMCA-089, 88 N.M. 240, 539 P.2d 630.

Retrial after mistrial. — Two considerations must be balanced against the weighty interests of the defendant against retrial after declaration of a mistrial not at his request, namely, whether there was a manifest necessity for the discharge of the first jury, and also whether the ends of public justice would have been defeated by carrying the first trial to final verdict. When the irregularity occurring at trial is of a procedural nature, not rising to the level of jurisdictional error, the necessity to discharge the jury has been held to be not manifest, but where the irregularity involves possible partiality within the jury, it has been more often held that the public interest in fair verdicts outweighs defendant's interest in obtaining a verdict by his first choice of jury. State v. C. De Baca, 1975-NMCA-120, 88 N.M. 454, 541 P.2d 634, cert. denied, 89 N.M. 6, 546 P.2d 71. A retrial after a mistrial is not barred by double jeopardy unless the mistrial was caused by prosecutorial overreaching. State v. Mazurek, 1975-NMCA-066, 88 N.M. 56, 537 P.2d 51.

Retrial prohibited for prosecutorial misconduct. — Retrial is barred when improper official conduct is so unfairly prejudicial that it cannot be cured by means short of a mistrial or a motion for a new trial, and the official knows that the conduct is improper and prejudicial and the official either intends to provoke a mistrial or acts in willful disregard of the resulting mistrial, retrial, or reversal. State v. Breit, 1996-NMSC-067, 122 N.M. 655, 930 P.2d 792.

Prosecutorial misconduct not bar to retrial. — Double jeopardy did not bar reprosecution where a mistrial was declared on motion of defendants for the prosecutor's discovery abuses because the defendants failed to show why any prejudice resulting from the prosecutor's late disclosure could not have been cured by a remedy short of a mistrial. State v. Lucero, 1999-NMCA-102, 127 N.M. 672, 986 P.2d 468, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

To bar a retrial on double jeopardy grounds, the misconduct must be extraordinary. — Where defendant was charged with multiple crimes following a two-vehicle collision, including homicide by vehicle, great bodily harm by vehicle, driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs, and reckless driving, and where, prior to trial, the district court judge specifically excluded by motion in limine hearsay testimony that defendant had confessed to another officer about being behind the wheel at the time of the accident, and where, at trial, the officer failed to adhere to the court's admonishment, double jeopardy did not bar a retrial where it was the state's witness, not the prosecutor, that injected the precluded testimony into the trial, and where there was no evidence that the prosecutor intentionally elicited testimony about the purported confession that had been suppressed. State v. Hernandez, 2017-NMCA-020, cert. denied.

Mistrial on one of two separate charges. — Since the defendant was charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery and was convicted of aggravated battery, and since the two offenses were in separate counts and the jury was not instructed that it could convict on only one offense, its inability to return a verdict on the attempted murder charge was not an implicit acquittal and the state was not barred from pursuing an attempted murder charge on remand. State v. Martinez, 1995-NMSC-064, 120 N.M. 677, 905 P.2d 715.

Reprosecution after unnecessary mistrial. — Defense counsel's implicit challenge to a police officer to take a polygraph test, absent repeated misconduct, was not a type of misconduct that would go to the very vitals of the trial itself, and hence, where the trial judge sua sponte declared a mistrial, having made no effort to cure the error or to assure that there was manifest necessity for such a step, reprosecution of the defendant would violate his right under the U.S. Const., amend. V not to be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense. State v. Sedillo, 1975-NMCA-089, 88 N.M. 240, 539 P.2d 630.

IV. RAISING THE DEFENSE.

Estoppel. — An accused is estopped at a second trial to plead the bar of a prior conviction, judgment and sentence of which have been reversed on appeal. State v. Sneed, 1967-NMSC-272, 78 N.M. 615, 435 P.2d 768.

Factual basis must appear in record in order to support a double jeopardy defense. State v. Wood, 1994-NMCA-060, 117 N.M. 682, 875 P.2d 1113, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 744, 877 P.2d 44.

Defendants could raise their state-based double jeopardy claim for the first time on appeal, provided the factual basis for the state constitutional argument could be found in the record of proceedings below. State v. Lucero, 1999-NMCA-102, 127 N.M. 672, 986 P.2d 468, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

Raising issue on appeal despite failure to object below. — Even though defendant made no objection at second trial (held after remand of initial trial which had resulted in verdict of first degree murder with recommendation of clemency) to instruction that the jury could find defendant guilty of murder in the first degree and might or might not recommend clemency, the question of whether this constituted double jeopardy could nevertheless be raised on appeal. State v. Sneed, 1967-NMSC-272, 78 N.M. 615, 435 P.2d 768.

Defendant's argument that the state split one criminal defense into five separate prosecutions and that his convictions were not authorized by the legislature under the statute prohibiting the unauthorized practice of law amounted to a defense of double jeopardy which the defendant could raise for the first time on appeal. State v. Edwards, 1984-NMCA-070, 102 N.M. 413, 696 P.2d 1006, cert. quashed, 102 N.M. 412, 696 P.2d 1005 (1985).

The defense of double jeopardy may be raised on appeal even though the defendant failed to argue that issue in the court below. State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656; State v. Jensen, 1998-NMCA-034, 124 N.M. 726, 955 P.2d 195.

Defendant may raise a double jeopardy challenge on appeal regardless of preservation. State v. Rodriguez, 2004-NMCA-125, 136 N.M. 494, 100 P.3d 200, cert. granted, 2004-NMCERT-010, 136 N.M. 542, 101 P.3d 808, rev'd, 2006-NMSC-018, 139 N.M. 450, 134 P.3d 737.

Guilty plea not bar to raising issue on appeal. — The defendant was not barred by pleading guilty to two counts in a three count indictment, which contained identical language for all three counts including the name of the victim, from raising the double jeopardy claim on appeal. State v. Handa, 1995-NMCA-042, 120 N.M. 38, 897 P.2d 225, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 771, 895 P.2d 671.

Law of case doctrine not bar. — When a trial court's decision that double jeopardy barred reprosecution of defendant was reversed by the court of appeals, the law of the case doctrine did not bar consideration of the double jeopardy issue on appeal of the defendant's conviction at the second trial. State v. Breit, 1996-NMSC-067, 122 N.M. 655, 930 P.2d 792.

Waiver of defense. — Plea of former jeopardy must be interposed at the earliest opportunity, otherwise it is waived; it cannot be raised for first time after verdict. State v. Mares, 1921-NMSC-048, 27 N.M. 212, 199 P. 111 (decided under prior law).

30-1-11. Criminal sentence permitted only upon conviction.

No person indicted or charged by information or complaint of any crime shall be sentenced therefor, unless he has been legally convicted of the crime in a court having competent jurisdiction of the cause and of the person. No person shall be convicted of a crime unless found guilty by the verdict of the jury, accepted and recorded by the court; or upon the defendant's confession of guilt or a plea of nolo contendere, accepted and recorded in open court; or after trial to the court without jury and the finding by the court that such defendant is guilty of the crime for which he is charged.

ANNOTATIONS

Conviction refers to finding of guilt and does not include imposition of sentence. State v. Garcia, 1983-NMCA-017, 99 N.M. 466, 659 P.2d 918.

To justify conviction evidence must establish every essential element of the offense charged, and whatever is essential must affirmatively appear from the record. State v. Losolla, 1972-NMCA-085, 84 N.M. 151, 500 P.2d 436.

Guilty pleas authorized. — The power of a court to accept a plea of guilty is traditional and fundamental and specifically authorized by this section. State v. Daniels, 1968-NMSC-039, 78 N.M. 768, 438 P.2d 512.

Waiver of jury permissible. — Though charged with a felony, a defendant may waive a trial by jury. State v. Hernandez, 1942-NMSC-010, 46 N.M. 134, 123 P.2d 387.

Guilty plea as waiver of rights, defenses. — By pleading guilty the defendant admitted the acts well pleaded in the charge, waived all defenses other than that the indictment or information charges no offense, and waived the right to trial and the incidents thereof, and the constitutional guarantees with respect to the conduct of criminal prosecutions, including right to jury trial, right to counsel subsequent to guilty plea and right to remain silent. State v. Daniels, 1968-NMSC-039, 78 N.M. 768, 438 P.2d 512.

Withdrawal of guilty plea appropriate where defendant was not properly advised of the nature of the charges. — Where the state filed three criminal informations against defendant, each of which charged defendant with fraud and embezzlement against separate victims, and where defendant and the state entered into plea agreements under which defendant agreed to plead guilty to the fraud and embezzlement charges in all three cases, and where, during the change of plea hearing, defendant stated that he understood the charges to which he was pleading and acknowledged that the state had some evidence to prove his guilt of all the charges in all three cases, and where, following the district court's acceptance of the guilty pleas in all three cases and sentencing defendant to twenty-one years imprisonment, defendant moved to withdraw his guilty plea, claiming that he did not understand the basis for his fraud and embezzlement convictions, the trial court erred in denying defendant's motion to withdraw his guilty plea, because defendant did not knowingly and voluntarily plead guilty. The district court accepted defendant's guilty pleas without providing him with any explanation of the charges to which he pleaded guilty, much less an explanation of how his conduct in each case satisfied the essential elements of both fraud and embezzlement, which under the circumstances of this case were mutually exclusive because the same conduct cannot satisfy the essential elements of both fraud and embezzlement. State v. Yancey, 2021-NMCA-009, cert. denied.

Judgment and sentence entered pursuant to a plea agreement is void in the absence of an express guilty plea on the record. — Where defendant was charged with three counts of fraud, three counts of embezzlement and two counts of racketeering in three separate criminal complaints, and where defendant made a separate plea agreement in each case, and where at the plea hearing on all three complaints, the district court complied with the prerequisites set forth in Rules 5-303 and 5-304 NMRA, ensuring that the proposed guilty plea was voluntary and intelligent, but where the district court never specifically asked defendant to plead, and defendant never expressly admitted his guilt to anything in open court on the record in the hearing, the district court was without authority to sentence defendant, because in the absence of an express guilty plea on the record, a judgment and sentence that is entered pursuant to the plea agreement is void. State v. Yancey, 2017-NMCA-090, cert. granted.

Guilty plea as confession to charge. — Where appellant admittedly incriminated himself by his plea of guilty, he could not be heard to complain since by his plea he confessed the charge contained in the information. State v. Daniels, 1968-NMSC-039, 78 N.M. 768, 438 P.2d 512.

Express adjudication of conviction or finding of guilt is not necessary if it is apparent from other matters in the record that the court made a judicial determination of conviction or guilt. State v. Gallegos, 1978-NMCA-114, 92 N.M. 370, 588 P.2d 1045, cert. denied, 92 N.M. 353, 588 P.2d 554.

Safeguards in admitting confession. — Before a confession may be admitted into evidence it should first be determined by the court, on an inquiry out of the presence of the jury, and as a preliminary matter, that the confession, prima facie at least, possesses all the earmarks of voluntariness. State v. Armijo, 1958-NMSC-108, 64 N.M. 431, 329 P.2d 785.

State must overcome evidence of excuse or justification in the form of tangible affirmative defensive or factual matter capable of specific disproof included in a confession or admission. State v. Casaus, 1963-NMSC-194, 73 N.M. 152, 386 P.2d 246.

Defendant to be heard on integrity of confession. — Any time a defendant makes it known that he has something to say touching the integrity of a confession claimed to have been made by him, however incredible it may appear to the trial court, the judge must hear him. In declining to do so, the court committed reversible error. State v. Armijo, 1958-NMSC-108, 64 N.M. 431, 329 P.2d 785.

Plea of nolo contendere with deferred sentence. — Where defendant entered a plea of nolo contendere, which was accepted and defendant's counsel after conferring with defendant made an explanation to the court about defendant feeling sorry for what he had done, there can be no real doubt from what was said and recorded at the arraignment proceedings, from the entry of the "judgment and sentence," and from the entry of the "order of probation" that the court and defendant both understood that defendant's plea had been accepted, that defendant had been adjudged guilty of the charge on the basis of this plea, that his sentence for the offense was being deferred and that he was being placed on probation for two years upon certain expressly recited conditions. State v. Apodaca, 1969-NMCA-020, 80 N.M. 155, 452 P.2d 489.

Procedural irregularities not constitutionally significant. — Where defendant's attorney pleaded guilty for the defendant, who was present, after plea bargaining, the fact that the defendant himself did not enter the plea, that the court did not inquire whether the plea was made voluntarily and that the plea was not accepted and recorded in open court, as required by this section, did not deprive defendant of due process or raise any constitutional questions for federal habeas corpus review. Anaya v. Rodriguez, 372 F.2d 683 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 389 U.S. 863, 88 S. Ct. 123, 19 L. Ed. 2d 133 (1967).

Misuse of word in verdict not jurisdictional. — Since the trial court unquestionably had jurisdiction over the person of defendant and over the subject matter of the offense charged, the inadvertent use of the word "information" in the jury's verdict did not raise a jurisdictional question. State v. Ortega, 1968-NMCA-097, 79 N.M. 744, 449 P.2d 346.

30-1-12. Definitions.

As used in the Criminal Code:

A. "great bodily harm" means an injury to the person which creates a high probability of death; or which causes serious disfigurement; or which results in permanent or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any member or organ of the body;

B. "deadly weapon" means any firearm, whether loaded or unloaded; or any weapon which is capable of producing death or great bodily harm, including but not restricted to any types of daggers, brass knuckles, switchblade knives, bowie knives, poniards, butcher knives, dirk knives and all such weapons with which dangerous cuts can be given, or with which dangerous thrusts can be inflicted, including swordcanes, and any kind of sharp pointed canes, also slingshots, slung shots, bludgeons; or any other weapons with which dangerous wounds can be inflicted;

C. "peace officer" means any public official or public officer vested by law with a duty to maintain public order or to make arrests for crime, whether that duty extends to all crimes or is limited to specific crimes;

D. "another" or "other" means any other human being or legal entity, whether incorporated or unincorporated, including the United States, the state of New Mexico or any subdivision thereof;

E. "person" means any human being or legal entity, whether incorporated or unincorporated, including the United States, the state of New Mexico or any subdivision thereof;

F. "anything of value" means any conceivable thing of the slightest value, tangible or intangible, movable or immovable, corporeal or incorporeal, public or private. The term is not necessarily synonymous with the traditional legal term "property";

G. "official proceeding" means a proceeding heard before any legislative, judicial, administrative or other governmental agency or official authorized to hear evidence under oath, including any referee, hearing examiner, commissioner, notary or other person taking testimony or depositions in any proceeding;

H. "lawful custody or confinement" means the holding of any person pursuant to lawful authority, including, without limitation, actual or conseructive [constructive] custody of prisoners temporarily outside a penal institution, reformatory, jail, prison farm or ranch;

I. "public officer" means any elected or appointed officer of the state or any of its political subdivisions, and whether or not he receives remuneration for his services; and

J. "public employee" means any person receiving remuneration for regular services rendered to the state or any of its political subdivisions.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-13, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-13.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

ANNOTATIONS

Furlough as "lawful custody or confinement". — Where, after defendant began serving a sentence for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs, the metropolitan court released defendant on furlough and the furlough order imposed limitations on defendant's movement, required defendant to return to custody at the end of the furlough period, and informed defendant that failure to return would result in a charge of escape, Defendant continued to serve the sentence while on furlough because defendant was in "lawful custody or confinement" while on furlough and defendant was entitled to credit for the time defendant was on furlough. State v. Padilla, 2011-NMCA-029, 150 N.M. 344, 258 P.3d 1136.

Great bodily harm: evidence that injury has actually caused death may be used to demonstrate the element of great bodily harm because, consistent with Subsection A of this section, it establishes an injury that creates a high probability of death. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Great bodily harm: death not equated with great bodily harm. — Comparing the voluntary manslaughter statute with the shooting at or from a motor vehicle statute and the statutory definition of great bodily harm in Subsection A of Section 30-1-12 NMSA 1978, it is clear that the legislature does not "equate" death with great bodily harm. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Great bodily harm: construction with other laws. — Section 30-3-8A NMSA 1978, construed with the definition of "great bodily harm" in Subsection A, includes a shooting at a dwelling that results in death. State v. Varela, 1999-NMSC-045, 128 N.M. 454, 993 P.2d 1280.

Great bodily harm: protracted impairment. — Section 66-8-101B NMSA 1978, which defines great bodily injury by a motor vehicle as "the injuring of a human being, to the extent defined in Section 30-1-12 NMSA 1978, in the unlawful operation of a motor vehicle," is not unconstitutionally vague. The term "protracted impairment" in Section 30-1-12A NMSA 1978 is capable of reasonable application by a jury of common intelligence after consideration of the circumstances involved. State v. Jim, 1988-NMCA-092, 107 N.M. 779, 765 P.2d 195, cert. denied, 107 N.M. 720, 764 P.2d 491.

Great bodily harm: serious disfigurement. — Under this section, the word "disfigurement" has no technical meaning and should be considered in the ordinary sense, as should the word "serious." State v. Ortega, 1966-NMSC-186, 77 N.M. 312, 422 P.2d 353.

Great bodily harm: high probability of death. — Sheriff's description of being choked by defendant was evidence that the choking created a "high probability of death", which is one part of the definition of great bodily harm. State v. Hollowell, 1969-NMCA-105, 80 N.M. 756, 461 P.2d 238.

Sufficient evidence of great bodily harm. — Where defendant was convicted of causing great bodily injury by vehicle following a collision in which defendant's vehicle, while traveling on a state road, crossed the center lane and struck a group of motorcyclists, there was sufficient evidence to support a finding of "prolonged impairment" where the victim testified that she experienced severe bruising, road rash, and bruised ribs as a result of the collision, that the bruising and road rash covered her right side, that she was unable to work for approximately a month, that for the first two weeks, she was unable to move because of the extreme pain resulting from her bruised ribs and that she still experiences pain resulting from the bruised ribs. State v. Cordova, 2016-NMCA-019, cert. granted, 2015-NMCERT-008.

Great bodily harm: mayhem. — The legislature adopted the definition in Subsection A of Section 30-1-12 NMSA 1978 in an effort to cover, among others, the crime of mayhem, originally enacted in 1853 to 1854 and compiled as former 40-30-1, 1953 Comp. State v. Ortega, 1966-NMSC-186, 77 N.M. 312, 422 P.2d 353.

Great bodily harm: establishing. — The conditions in Subsection A of Section 30-1-12 NMSA 1978 are not cumulative, and only one need be shown in order to establish "great bodily harm". State v. Bell, 1977-NMSC-013, 90 N.M. 134, 560 P.2d 925.

Great bodily harm does not require that disfigurement be permanent. State v. Bell, 1977-NMSC-013, 90 N.M. 134, 560 P.2d 925.

Great bodily harm: need not be proved solely by medical experts. — Furthermore, the law does not require that "great bodily harm" be proved exclusively by medical testimony. The jury is entitled to rely upon rational inferences deducible from the evidence. State v. Bell, 1977-NMSC-013, 90 N.M. 134, 560 P.2d 925.

Great bodily harm: degree of bodily harm a question of fact. — Where the evidence showed that defendants forcibly tattooed victim with a needle and India ink, which tattoo extended from the back of the victim's neck to the center part of the waist and recited an offensive sentence, it became a question of fact as to whether or not the injuries sustained were sufficiently substantial to come within the statutory definition of "great bodily harm". State v. Ortega, 1966-NMSC-186, 77 N.M. 312, 422 P.2d 353.

Great bodily harm: instruction on personal injury. — In a prosecution for criminal sexual penetration, where the trial court gave the statutory definition of personal injury appearing at Section 30-9-10C (now D) NMSA 1978, and also gave the statutory definition of great bodily harm in Subsection A of this section in the instruction on first degree criminal sexual penetration, the lack of additional definition of personal injury was not error; if defendant desired that personal injury be further defined, he should have submitted a requested instruction to that effect, and since he did not do so, he could not complain of the lack of additional definition of the term. State v. Jiminez, 1976-NMCA-096, 89 N.M. 652, 556 P.2d 60.

Deadly weapon: knife. — For a knife to be a deadly weapon it must come within the portion of this statute as to any other deadly weapons with which dangerous wounds can be inflicted. State v. Martinez, 1953-NMSC-031, 57 N.M. 174, 256 P.2d 791.

Deadly weapon: butterfly knife. — Where a defendant was charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon, the prosecution was not required to prove that the knife could actually be used to inflict great bodily harm; the prosecution needed to prove only that a butterfly knife was a switchblade. There was sufficient evidence that the knife carried by defendant was a switchblade as defined in Section 30-7-8 NMSA 1978. State v. Riddall, 1991-NMCA-033, 112 N.M. 78, 811 P.2d 576, cert. denied, 112 N.M. 21, 810 P.2d 1241.

Deadly weapon: wounds establishing deadliness of knife. — Where no one directly testified the knife was one with which dangerous wounds could be inflicted, but the wounds were described by the physician who treated the victim, and they were sufficiently severe to keep him in a hospital under the doctor's care for a week, and in addition, the scars caused by the knife wounds were shown to the jury, in view of the depth and the length of the wounds the jury was fully justified in finding the knife used was a deadly weapon, although the blade used was only about two inches in length. State v. Martinez, 1953-NMSC-031, 57 N.M. 174, 256 P.2d 791.

Deadly weapon: other deadly weapons. — Under an aggravated stalking charge, when the object or instrument in question is an unlisted one that falls within the catchall language of Section 30-1-12B NMSA 1978, the jury must be instructed: (1) that the defendant must have possessed the object or instrument with the intent to use it as a weapon, and (2) the object or instrument is one that, if so used, could inflict dangerous wounds. State v. Anderson, 2001-NMCA-027, 130 N.M. 295, 24 P.3d 327.

Deadly weapon: tire iron. — Defendant's use of a tire iron to break into a house fell under the definition that defendant was "armed" with a weapon under this section. State v. Alvarez-Lopez, 2003-NMCA-039, 133 N.M. 404, 62 P.3d 1286, rev'd on other grounds, 2004-NMSC-030, 136 N.M. 309, 98 P.3d 699.

Deadly weapon: bullets not deadly weapon. — Defendant's mere possession of bullets did not constitute possession of a deadly weapon under Subsection B of this section. State v. Galaz, 2003-NMCA-076, 133 N.M. 794, 70 P.3d 784.

Deadly weapon: jury to determine character of weapon. — The question of whether a weapon is capable of producing death or great bodily harm or is a weapon with which dangerous wounds can be inflicted is ordinarily for the jury who are to determine the question by considering the character of the instrument and the manner of its use, either by a description thereof (even though the weapon is not in evidence), or by viewing the weapon admitted into evidence (even though it is not described). State v. Gonzales, 1973-NMCA-153, 85 N.M. 780, 517 P.2d 1306.

Deadly weapon: factual considerations. — Factors to be considered in determining whether an instrument is a deadly weapon include the nature of the instrument, that is, its size, shape, condition and possible alteration; the circumstances under which it is carried, that is, the time, place and situation in which defendant is found with the instrument; defendant's actions with regard to the instrument; and the place of concealment. State v. Blea, 1983-NMCA-089, 100 N.M. 237, 668 P.2d 1114.

Deadly weapon: screwdriver. — Although the screwdriver was not introduced into evidence, the jury could determine the factual question of whether a deadly weapon was used by a description of the weapon and its use. State v. Candelaria, 1981-NMCA-122, 97 N.M. 64, 636 P.2d 883.

Deadly weapon: brick wall. — Determination of whether a brick wall is a deadly weapon is a question of fact for the jury or fact finder to determine, given the evidence presented as to the manner and use of the wall. State v. Montano, 1999-NMCA-023, 126 N.M. 609, 973 P.2d 861, cert. denied, 126 N.M. 533, 972 P.2d 352, and cert. denied, 127 N.M. 390, 981 P.2d 1208 .

Deadly weapon: baseball bat. — In a prosecution for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, the question of whether a baseball bat was a deadly weapon should have been left to the jury; however, when such a determination is made by the trial judge, the error is not fundamental and must be preserved for appeal. State v. Traeger, 2001-NMSC-022, 130 N.M. 618, 29 P.3d 518.

Deadly weapon: jury to determine existence of weapon. — Whether defendant actually had gun, defined in this section as a deadly weapon, whether loaded or unloaded, in her hand as testified to by robbery victim was for the jury to resolve. State v. Encee, 1968-NMCA-012, 79 N.M. 23, 439 P.2d 240.

Deadly weapon: insufficient evidence to show deadly character of weapon. — Evidence that defendant raised an undescribed tire tool over attendant's head "like a threat," without more, was insufficient for a determination that the tire tool was a deadly weapon capable of producing death or great bodily harm or a weapon with which dangerous wounds could be inflicted. State v. Gonzales, 1973-NMCA-153, 85 N.M. 780, 517 P.2d 1306.

Deadly weapon: pocketknife. — An ordinary pocketknife is not a per se deadly weapon, without regard to its actual or intended use. State v. Nick R., 2009-NMSC-050, 147 N.M. 182, 218 P.3d 868.

Deadly weapon: BB gun. — The defendant's use of a BB gun during a robbery provided a sufficient factual basis to permit a jury to determine that a deadly weapon had been used because the jury could have concluded that the manner and character of use of the weapon satisfied the definition of a deadly weapon. State v. Fernandez, 2007-NMCA-091, 142 N.M. 231, 164 P.3d 112.

Deadly weapon: the human mouth is a deadly weapon if the mouth is used in a manner that could cause death or great bodily harm. State v. Neatherlin, 2007-NMCA-035, 141 N.M. 328, 154 P.3d 703.

Peace officer: Subsection C inapplicable to capital felony sentencing. — The definition of "peace officer" in Subsection C of this section is not directly applicable to Section 31-20A-5 NMSA 1978 because that definition applies only to the Criminal Code. State v. Young, 2004-NMSC-015, 135 N.M. 458, 90 P.3d 477.

Peace officer: legislature did not exclude jailers from definition of peace officers: a jailer is an officer in the public domain, charged with the duty to maintain public order. State v. Rhea, 1980-NMSC-033, 94 N.M. 168, 608 P.2d 144.

Peace officer: juvenile correctional officers were not peace officers within the meaning of this section, where, although they may have had the power to maintain order and make arrests in their particular domain, they were not vested by law with a duty to do so. State v. Tabaha, 1986-NMCA-009, 103 N.M. 789, 714 P.2d 1010.

Public officer: officers of state game commission are state officers. Allen v. McClellan, 1967-NMSC-114, 77 N.M. 801, 427 P.2d 677, overruled on other grounds by New Mexico Livestock Bd. v. Dose, 1980-NMSC-022, 94 N.M. 68, 607 P.2d 606.

Peace officer: CSO. — Community service officers are peace officers. State v. Ogden, 1994-NMSC-029, 118 N.M. 234, 880 P.2d 845.

Person: MFA. — The mortgage finance authority, a state agency established to raise funds through the issuance of tax-exempt bonds is a person within the meaning of the victim restitution statute. State v. Griffin, 1983-NMCA-072, 100 N.M. 75, 665 P.2d 1166

Person: corporate defendant. — Although a corporate defendant may be charged and convicted of the offense of racketeering, it was error to submit the racketeering charge against the corporate defendant to the jury because the corporate defendant was not specifically charged with commission of such crime in the indictment. State v. Crews, 1989-NMCA-088, 110 N.M. 723, 799 P.2d 592; cert. denied, 109 N.M. 232, 784 P.2d 419.

Lawful custody: electronic monitor. — The use of a conventional jail to hold the person is not necessary for there to be a "lawful custody or confinement" under the plain language of the statute. A "lawful custody or confinement" simply consists of the holding of any person pursuant to lawful authority", and the actual means used to accomplish holding the person is without limitation. A mandatory sentence or imprisonment may be served under house arrest by an electronic monitor. State v. Woods, 2010-NMCA-017, 148 N.M. 89, 230 P.3d 836, cert. denied, 2010-NMCERT-001, 147 N.M. 673, 227 P.3d 1055.

Special deputy. — Absent a limitation of authority a special deputy is a peace officer and is cloaked with all of the powers and duties of such. 1965-66 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 66-92.

School security force. — Use of the term "peace officer" in describing security officers who were regular employees of the school system organized into a security and patrol force to guard school buildings and property would be improper. 1969-70 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 70-87 (unofficial opinion issued to superintendent of Albuquerque public schools).

30-1-13. Accessory.

A person may be charged with and convicted of the crime as an accessory if he procures, counsels, aids or abets in its commission and although he did not directly commit the crime and although the principal who directly committed such crime has not been prosecuted or convicted, or has been convicted of a different crime or degree of crime, or has been acquitted, or is a child under the Children's Code [Chapter 32A NMSA 1978].

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-1-14, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 1-14; 1972, ch. 97, § 66.

ANNOTATIONS

Aiding and abetting and conspiracy are distinct and separate concepts. State v. Armijo, 1976-NMCA-126, 90 N.M. 12, 558 P.2d 1151.

Accessory is one who "procures" commission of a crime. State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Meaning of terms. — The word "crime," as used in the statute, means the principal offense, as in this case "armed robbery," and the term "as an accessory" is merely describing in different terms one who aids and abets in the commission of the crime, and authorizes such person to be charged with and convicted of the crime. State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Abolition of distinction between principal and accessory places defendant on notice that he or she could be charged as a principal and convicted as an accessory or vice versa. State v. Wall, 1980-NMSC-034, 94 N.M. 169, 608 P.2d 145.

Aiding and abetting not distinct offense. — There is nothing in this section indicating an intent to make one who aids and abets in the commission of a crime a separate offense distinct and different from the crime committed by the one actually perpetrating it, and the purpose of the legislature to authorize charging and convicting an accessory as a principal is made evident by the fact that no different penalty is provided by law for one who aids and abets. Hence, this section is to be read as though the words "as an accessory" were omitted. State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Distinctions abolished. — The distinction between an accessory before the fact and a principal was abolished in this state so that every person concerned in the commission may be prosecuted, tried and punished as a principal. State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Earned Meritorious Deductions Act. — Accessory liability is merely a different theory of liability, but is not a distinct offense. Accessories are therefore not convicted of a separate crime, but of the crime itself. Where defendant was convicted for violating Section 30-3-8 NMSA 1978 as an accessory to the crime, his sentence may be a serious violent offense under the Earned Meritorious Deductions Act as enumerated in Section 33-2-34L(4)(j) NMSA 1978. The fact that he pleaded guilty as an accessory and not a principal is irrelevant for purposes of the act. State v. Flores, 2005-NMCA-092, 138 N.M. 61, 116 P.3d 852.

Accessory charged as principal. — New Mexico, like many other states, long ago abolished the distinction between conviction as a principal and an accessory, so that the charge as principal includes a corresponding accessory charge. An indictment need only allege the offense, not necessarily charge the defendant as accessory. Tapia v. Tansy, 926 F.2d 1554, 1562 (10th Cir. 1991).

Charging accessory as principal. — An accessory may be charged and convicted as a principal. State v. Roque, 1977-NMCA-094, 91 N.M. 7, 569 P.2d 417, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

Accused may be indicted as principal even though at common law it would have been necessary to charge him as an accessory. State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Although charged with disturbing meeting, defendants could be convicted of aiding and abetting that disturbance. State v. Orzen, 1972-NMCA-006, 83 N.M. 458, 493 P.2d 768.

The contention that defendant could not be charged as a principal and convicted on the basis of being an accomplice is answered by this section. State v. Smith, 1976-NMCA-048, 89 N.M. 777, 558 P.2d 46, rev'd on other grounds, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

Effect of rule. — Rule 5(d), N.M.R. Crim. P. (now see Paragraph D of Rule 5-201), which requires that the indictment allege "essential facts constituting the offense," does not change the procedure authorized by this section, since "the offense," as used in Rule 5(d), N.M.R. Crim. P., means the principal offense; thus, defendant was not required to be charged as an accessory and indictment was sufficient where the language contained therein informed defendant of the essential facts of the charge of armed robbery. State v. Roque, 1977-NMCA-094, 91 N.M. 7, 569 P.2d 417, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

Elements of accessory liability. — Accomplice liability requires that the defendant share the criminal intent of the principal. There must be community of purpose, partnership in the unlawful undertaking. Indicia of such criminal intent may be as broad and varied as are the means of communicating thought from one individual to another. Mere presence and even mental approbation, if unaccompanied by outward manifestation or expression of such approval, is insufficient. State v. Johnson, 2004-NMSC-029, 136 N.M. 348, 98 P.3d 998, cert. denied, 543 U.S. 117, 125 S.Ct. 1334, 161 L.Ed.2d 162 (2005).

Intent. — The accessory must share the criminal intent of the principal. State v. Carrasco, 1997-NMSC-047, 124 N.M. 64, 946 P.2d 1075; State v. Montes, 2007-NMCA-083, 142 N.M. 221, 164 P.3d 102.

Intent of accomplice. — One who solicits an end, or aids or agrees to aid in its achievement, is an accomplice in whatever means may be fairly employed, insofar as they constitute or commit an offense fairly envisaged in the purposes of the association. But when a wholly different crime has been committed, thus involving conduct not within the objectives of the conscious accomplice, the accomplice is not liable for it. Valdez v. Bravo, 373 F.3d 1093 (10th Cir. 2004).

Criminal intent and purpose required. — Conviction could stand only if the record supported a conclusion that defendant shared the criminal intent and purpose of the principals, and mere presence without some outward manifestation of approval was insufficient. State v. Salazar, 1967-NMSC-187, 78 N.M. 329, 431 P.2d 62.

In order for an individual to be guilty as an aider and abettor, all that was necessary was that he share the criminal intent of defendant and that a community of purpose and partnership in the unlawful undertaking be present. State v. Ortega, 1966-NMSC-185, 77 N.M. 7, 419 P.2d 219; State v. Luna, 1979-NMCA-048, 92 N.M. 680, 594 P.2d 340.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Criminal intent a jury question. — The question of whether the alleged aider and abettor did share the principal's criminal intent, and whether he knew the latter acted with criminal intent is one of fact for the jury and may be inferred from circumstances. State v. Riley, 1970-NMCA-015, 82 N.M. 298, 480 P.2d 693.

Intent may be inferred. — Where one defendant completed the crime of burglary by an unauthorized entry with the necessary intent and his partner knew this fact and was present and participated, the partner's intent, as an element of the crime, although not susceptible of proof by direct evidence, may be inferred from his acts. State v. Riley, 1970-NMCA-015, 82 N.M. 298, 480 P.2d 693 (Ct. App. 1971).

Specific intent required. — The "natural and probable result" standard does not apply to determine accessory liability; thus, a jury cannot convict a defendant on accessory liability for a crime unless the defendant intended the principal's acts. State v. Carrasco, 1997-NMSC-047, 124 N.M. 64, 946 P.2d 1075.

Shooting at police car indicative of intent. — Defendant's theory that there is no evidence that he knew of the robbery until after its commission and thus could not have been an aider and abetter is invalid, as evidence of aiding and abetting is as broad and varied as are the means of communicating thought from one individual to another; shooting at the pursuing police car was evidence that defendant approved of the robbery and shared the robber's criminal intent. State v. O'Dell, 1973-NMCA-124, 85 N.M. 536, 514 P.2d 55.

While mere presence is insufficient, relationship to victim relevant. — Although mere presence is insufficient to establish that defendant aided and abetted a crime, defendant's relationship with victim is a factor invoking criminal liability. Where defendant is charged with care and welfare of child, he stands in position of parent and may be convicted on the basis that he failed to take reasonable steps to prevent the molestation, coupled with his friendship with perpetrator. State v. Orosco, 1991-NMCA-084, 113 N.M. 789, 833 P.2d 1155, aff'd, 1992-NMSC-006, 113 N.M. 780, 833 P.2d 1146.

Manifestation of approval required. — Neither presence nor presence with mental approbation is sufficient to sustain a conviction as an aider or abettor. Presence must be accompanied by some outward manifestation or expression of approval. State v. Phillips, 1971-NMCA-114, 83 N.M. 5, 487 P.2d 915; State v. Luna, 1979-NMCA-048, 92 N.M. 680, 594 P.2d 340.

Defendant's particular role not important. — Where the evidence as to which of the robbers took the change is sparse and conflicting, it does not matter that the evidence fails to establish, with any particularity, that defendant was the one who took the change as the jury was instructed on aiding and abetting and the evidence is substantial that defendant was at least an aider and abettor of the robbery of the change. State v. Urban, 1974-NMCA-046, 86 N.M. 351, 524 P.2d 523.

Foreseeability of result immaterial. — The fact that defendant did not bargain for the result is not material; the material fact is that he did "procure" another to perform an "unlawful act." State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Means of aiding and abetting varied. — The evidence of aiding and abetting may be as broad and varied as are the means of communicating thought from one individual to another; by acts, conduct, words, signs or by any means sufficient to incite, encourage or instigate commission of the offense or calculated to make known that commission of an offense already undertaken has the aider's support or approval. Mere presence, of course, and even mental approbation, if unaccompanied by outward manifestation or expression of such approval, is insufficient. State v. Salazar, 1967-NMSC-187, 78 N.M. 329, 431 P.2d 62; State v. Ochoa, 1937-NMSC-051, 41 N.M. 589, 72 P.2d 609; State v. Luna, 1979-NMCA-048, 92 N.M. 680, 594 P.2d 340.

Accessory may be convicted regardless of principal's fate. — It was the obvious intent of the legislature to extend the statute then in force so as to permit an accessory to be prosecuted even though the one who directly committed the crime was either not prosecuted, had been acquitted, was a juvenile or had been convicted of a different crime or degree thereof. State v. Nance, 1966-NMSC-207, 77 N.M. 39, 419 P.2d 242, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 1039, 87 S. Ct. 1495, 18 L. Ed. 2d 605 (1967).

Aider and abettor may be tried and convicted even though the actual slayer is never apprehended or has been tried and acquitted. State v. Ochoa, 1937-NMSC-051, 41 N.M. 589, 72 P.2d 609.

Varying degrees of conviction permissible. — The fact that the accessory was convicted of involuntary manslaughter while the principal was convicted of voluntary manslaughter is a permissible result under the accessory statute. State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Instruction on burden of proof. — Where trial court instructed on the presumption of innocence and the state's burden of proof, it was not improper to refuse defendant's proffered instruction that there was no presumption that defendant was an accessory and that he did not have burden of proving that he was not an accessory. State v. Gunzelman, 1973-NMCA-121, 85 N.M. 535, 514 P.2d 54.

Evidence. — The evidence shows aiding and abetting if it shows that by any of the means of communicating thought defendant incited, encouraged or instigated commission of the offense or made it known that commission of an offense already undertaken has the aider's support or approval. State v. Gonzales, 1971-NMCA-007, 82 N.M. 388, 482 P.2d 252, cert. denied, 82 N.M. 377, 482 P.2d 241.

Evidence sufficient to go to jury. — Evidence that the defendants threw objects when others also threw them, and also evidence from which community of intent can be reasonably inferred, was sufficient for the issue of aiding and abetting to be submitted to the jury and was also sufficient to submit the issue of disturbing a lawful assembly. State v. Orzen, 1972-NMCA-006, 83 N.M. 458, 493 P.2d 768.

Jury may find defendant aided and abetted, but did not personally commit, crime. — That the jury could have refused to find that the defendant personally committed the crime in question is not alone a sufficient reasonable hypothesis that he did not aid and abet its commission. State v. Ballinger, 1983-NMCA-034, 99 N.M. 707, 663 P.2d 366, rev'd on other grounds, 1984-NMSC-003, 100 N.M. 583, 673 P.2d 1316.

Evidence sufficient. — Evidence was sufficient to support defendant's conviction as an accessory to armed robbery, where his confession, found to be voluntary, was corroborated by other evidence at trial. Church v. Sullivan, 942 F.2d 1501 (10th Cir. 1991).

Evidence that the defendant's role in the robbery of a store was to remain outside in the car with the engine running in order to facilitate a fast getaway after others committed the robbery was sufficient to support his convictions. State v. Carrasco, 1996-NMCA-114, 122 N.M. 554, 928 P.2d 939, rev'd on other grounds, 1997-NMSC-047, 124 N.M. 64, 946 P.2d 1075.

Evidence is constitutionally sufficient to support a finding of accessory liability where the testimony viewed in the light most favorable to the prosecution establishes that accused and his companions went to victim's mobile home with the intention of fighting; accused willingly drove to the mobile home in his own vehicle; accused broke through the front door with his four companions and attacked victim's friend as he slept in a chair; accused fought victim's friend outside the back door of the house while his four companions attacked victim; accused then reentered the mobile home and warned the others as the police arrived; and accused's actions prevented victim's friend from assisting victim who died from the attack. Valdez v. Bravo, 373 F.3d 1093 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 543 U.S. 1008, 125 S. Ct. 622, 160 L. Ed.2d 473 (2004).

Sufficient evidence of intentional child abuse by torture. — Where a child victim testified that defendant, the child's foster father, purchased a stun gun and gave it to his son, that the child was stunned by defendant's son approximately fifteen times, was stunned by defendant's other son approximately three times, that defendant was present during the assaults by one of the sons and would laugh in response, and where there was corroborating testimony from the child's sister, a rational jury could have found defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt as an accessory to child abuse inflicted by another. State v. Vargas, 2016-NMCA-038.

Evidence insufficient. — Where defendant was involved in an altercation between defendant's friend and the victim; the victim and defendant unexpectedly encountered each other later the same day; defendant went into a rage at seeing the victim and punched the victim who was seated in the victim's truck; the victim then shot defendant several times; defendant fell to the ground; the victim backed the victim's truck down the driveway; one of the victim's passengers started shooting a gun from the victim's truck; defendant's friends arrived at the scene of the shooting and began firing shots at the victim's truck, killing the victim; the jury acquitted defendant of the charge of shooting at a motor vehicle; and there was no evidence that defendant called for help to anyone after defendant was shot, that defendant summoned the defendant's friends who shot at the victim's truck, that defendant made any statement, that defendant took any action that indicated that defendant was aware that defendant's friends were in the vicinity, or that defendant had any communication with defendant's friends who shot at the victim's truck after the earlier altercation with the victim, the evidence was insufficient to support defendant's conviction for aiding and abetting the murder of the victim. State v. Vigil, 2010-NMSC-003, 147 N.M. 537, 226 P.3d 636.

Circumstantial evidence which was not incompatible with defendant's innocence nor incapable of explanation upon any reasonable hypothesis of same was insufficient to permit a finding that defendant aided a forger by procuring checks for her; there were too many other explanations to account for her possession of the checks. State v. Hermosillo, 1975-NMCA-113, 88 N.M. 424, 540 P.2d 1313.

The fact that the defendant accompanied the forger of certain checks at the time that she cashed them was not sufficient to support a finding of aiding and abetting, for mere presence and even mental approbation, if unaccompanied by outward manifestation or expression of such approval, is insufficient. State v. Hermosillo, 1975-NMCA-113, 88 N.M. 424, 540 P.2d 1313.

Knowledge of the method of the crime and presence when the crime is committed are not required. — There is no legal requirement that an accessory know in advance the exact method by which a crime is to be carried out or even that the accessory be physically present when the crime is committed. State v. Bahney, 2012-NMCA-039, 274 P.3d 134, cert. denied, 2012-NMCERT-003.

Sufficient evidence. — Where defendant's primary co-conspirator beat, drugged, and tied the victim to a bed in defendant's residence; defendant did not object to the treatment of the victim; defendant chided a secondary co-conspirator for being nervous and smoked marijuana with co-conspirator to calm the co-conspirator's nerves; defendant did not object when the primary co-conspirator considered killing the victim and burning the victim's car, but defended a secondary co-conspirator against the primary co-conspirator's violence; while the primary co-conspirator was absent from the residence for a lengthy period of time, defendant watched the victim and did not assist the victim or call the police; defendant demanded that the primary co-conspirator determine what to do with the victim before defendant's child returned from school; defendant left the residence to take the child to a store where, at the direction of the primary co-conspirator, defendant purchased charcoal liter fluid; and while defendant remained at the residence with the child, defendant's co-conspirators put the victim in the trunk of the victim's car, drove the car to a school, doused the car with the liter fluid, and burned the car, there was sufficient evidence to convict defendant of kidnapping, second-degree murder and aggravated arson, as an accessory, beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Bahney, 2012-NMCA-039, 274 P.3d 134, cert. denied, 2012-NMCERT-003.

30-1-14. Venue.

All trials of crime shall be had in the county in which they were committed. In the event elements of the crime were committed in different counties, the trial may be had in any county in which a material element of the crime was committed. In the event death results from the crime, trial may be had in the county in which any material element of the crime was committed, or in any county in which the death occurred. In the event that death occurs in this state as a result of criminal action in another state, trial may be had in the county in which the death occurred. In the event that death occurs in another state as a result of criminal action in this state, trial may be had in the county in which any material element of the crime was committed in this state.

ANNOTATIONS

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.
II. NATURE OF VENUE.
III. PROOF.
IV. WAIVER.
V. SPECIFIC SITUATIONS.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

This section merely reiterates constitutional right of venue in N.M. Const., art. II, § 14. State v. Lopez, 1973-NMSC-041, 84 N.M. 805, 508 P.2d 1292.

Continuing crime. — For purposes of a continuing crime, venue is proper in any county in which the continuing conduct has occurred. State v. Roybal, 2006-NMCA-043, 139 N.M. 341, 132 P.3d 598, cert. denied, 2006-NMCERT-003, 139 N.M. 353, 132 P.3d 1039.

Venue. — Where police officer chased defendant, who was speeding, from Santa Fe county into Rio Arriba county where defendant was placed under arrest for an outstanding warrant and where police officer discovered drugs and drug paraphernalia during an inventory search of defendant's car, Santa Fe county venue was proper because trafficking by possession with intent to distribute is a continuing offense which occurred in each county through which defendant traveled while in possession of the drugs. State v. Roybal, 2006-NMCA-043, 139 N.M. 341, 132 P.3d 598, cert. denied, 2006-NMCERT-003, 139 N.M. 353, 132 P.3d 1039.

Meaning of "trial". — In its strict definition, the word "trial" in criminal procedure means the proceedings in open court after the pleadings are finished and the prosecution is otherwise ready, down to and including the rendition of the verdict; and the term "trial" does not extend to such preliminary steps as the arraignment and giving of the pleas, nor does it comprehend a hearing in error. State v. Eckles, 1968-NMSC-079, 79 N.M. 138, 441 P.2d 36.

"Material element of offense" of contempt. — The act of causing the service of a restraining order to be made in Eddy county constituted a material element of the alleged offense of criminal contempt and under those circumstances the venue properly laid in Eddy county. Norton v. Reese, 1966-NMSC-154, 76 N.M. 602, 417 P.2d 205.

Proper venue when elements of offense committed in different counties. — In the event elements of a crime were committed in different counties, the trial may be had in any county in which a material element of the crime was committed. Interfering with or depriving a custodial parent of their right to custody is an essential element of the crime of custodial interference as are the methods for accomplishing the interference or deprivation. Because deprivation is an element, where the person was deprived of the right of custody establishes a proper venue for the trial of the offense of custodial interference. State v. Lefthand, 2015-NMCA-117, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-011.

Where defendant violated an order of custody, issued by a Taos county district court, by depriving the father of the child of his right to custody, the father's right to custody exists with him in his county of residence, the county in which he was given custody, and the county in which he was deprived of the custody of his son. Under the custodial interference statute, 30-4-4 NMSA 1978, a person may be charged in the place where the harm sought to be prevented by the statute results, and therefore venue may lie in Taos county district court. State v. Lefthand, 2015-NMCA-117, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-011.

II. NATURE OF VENUE.

Distinction between jurisdiction and venue. — Jurisdiction refers to the judicial power to hear and determine a criminal prosecution, whereas venue relates to and defines the particular county or territorial area within a state or district in which the prosecution is to be brought or tried. State v. Ramirez, 1976-NMCA-101, 89 N.M. 635, 556 P.2d 43, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Privilege personal to accused. — Venue provision of the constitution confers a personal privilege of venue upon an accused, and this privilege may be waived. State v. Lopez, 1973-NMSC-041, 84 N.M. 805, 508 P.2d 1292.

Extent of constitutional venue provision. — The framers of the constitution sought to guarantee the right to trial by an impartial jury, rather than an absolute right to trial by a jury of the county wherein the crime is alleged to have occurred. State v. Lopez, 1973-NMSC-041, 84 N.M. 805, 508 P.2d 1292.

Assertion of privilege. — A defendant may insist on personal right or privilege of venue, and the correctness of a venue decision is reviewable to determine whether defendant was tried in the proper county. State v. Wise, 1977-NMCA-074, 90 N.M. 659, 567 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

Change of venue effective in overcoming local bias and prejudice. State v. White, 1967-NMSC-016, 77 N.M. 488, 424 P.2d 402.

III. PROOF.

Venue need not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Wise, 1977-NMCA-074, 90 N.M. 659, 567 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

Affirmative proof of venue unnecessary. — It is not necessary in a trial for murder that venue be affirmatively proven. Territory of N.M. v. Hicks, 1892-NMSC-024, 6 N.M. 596, 30 P. 872, overruled on other grounds by Haynes v. United States, 1899-NMSC-003, 9 N.M. 519, 56 P. 282.

Venue may be proved by circumstantial evidence, and when there is nothing in the record to raise an inference to the contrary, slight circumstances are sufficient to prove venue by a preponderance of the evidence. State v. Nelson, 1959-NMSC-023, 65 N.M. 403, 338 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 361 U.S. 877, 80 S. Ct. 142, 4 L. Ed. 2d 115.

Venue, like any other fact in a case, may be proven by circumstantial evidence. State v. Mares, 1921-NMSC-048, 27 N.M. 212, 199 P. 111.

Venue proved by incidental evidence. — If evidence incidentally given in connection with facts in case shows that venue was properly laid, it is a sufficient proof of venue. Territory of N.M. v. Hicks, 1892-NMSC-024, 6 N.M. 596, 30 P. 872, overruled on other grounds by Haynes v. United States, 1899-NMSC-003, 9 N.M. 519, 56 P. 282.

Omission in indictment not fatal. — Trial of one charged with homicide may take place either where the mortal wound was inflicted or where the person died, and where prosecution was in county where the mortal wound was inflicted, an indictment omitting allegation of place of death was not fatally defective. State v. Montes, 1917-NMSC-026, 22 N.M. 530, 165 P. 797.

Credibility of venue testimony. — Attacks upon the credibility of the witnesses who testified concerning venue is a matter for the jury to decide. State v. Garcia, 1967-NMSC-140, 78 N.M. 136, 429 P.2d 334.

No instruction on venue is required, because so long as the crime occurred in New Mexico, the county of the crime is not necessary for jury determination. State v. Wise, 1977-NMCA-074, 90 N.M. 659, 567 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Although prior to the adoption of U.J.I. Criminal the practice was to instruct on venue, this practice is discontinued therein, since venue is not jurisdictional, but is a personal right or privilege of the accused which may be waived. State v. Wise, 1967-NMSC-140, 90 N.M. 659, 567 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

Instruction and finding sufficient. — Where a jury was specifically instructed that it must find, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the fatal blow and the death occurred in the county of the venue and this the jury did so find, any argument that the blow or the cause of death may have occurred elsewhere was of no consequence. Nelson v. Cox, 1960-NMSC-005, 66 N.M. 397, 349 P.2d 118; State v. Wise, 1977-NMCA-074, 90 N.M. 659, 567 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 91 N.M. 4, 569 P.2d 414.

IV. WAIVER.

Venue provision confers personal privilege upon accused which may be waived. State v. Lopez, 1973-NMSC-041, 84 N.M. 805, 508 P.2d 1292.

Venue unlike jurisdiction. — Venue does not affect the power of the court and can be waived, but a jurisdictional defect can never be waived because it goes to the very power of the court to entertain the action, and such a defect can be raised at any stage of the proceedings, even sua sponte by the appellate court. State v. Ramirez, 1976-NMCA-101, 89 N.M. 635, 556 P.2d 43, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Failure to object. — Right to trial in the county or district in which the offense is alleged to have been committed is waived by failure to make timely objection. City of Roswell v. Gallegos, 1966-NMSC-246, 77 N.M. 170, 420 P.2d 438.

Right to be tried in a certain county or district is a right or privilege to a particular venue which may be waived by an accused person in a number of ways, and when defendant goes to trial in another judicial district, without objection on his part, he has waived the privilege, and cannot be heard to say that the court trying him was without jurisdiction. State v. Lopez, 1973-NMSC-041, 84 N.M. 805, 508 P.2d 1292.

Acquiescence in venue change. — Defendant who agreed to a change of venue waived any right he may have had to insist on a continuance of the case. State v. White, 1967-NMSC-016, 77 N.M. 488, 424 P.2d 402.

Record of affirmative waiver unnecessary. — The record need not affirmatively show that the trial court fully informed defendant of his right of venue and of his privilege to waive this right, or was advised that defendant had been so fully informed, that defendant affirmatively waived this right or that the trial court announced its satisfaction as to the genuineness of this waiver. State v. Lopez, 1973-NMSC-041, 84 N.M. 805, 508 P.2d 1292.

V. SPECIFIC SITUATIONS.

Venue proper. — Where defendant signed checks in Bernalillo county to pay the wages of three members of an Indian tribe for performing work on a construction project that was located on Indian land in McKinley county; defendant gave the checks to an employee of defendant's construction company at a meeting place that was located outside McKinley county for delivery to the payees; the checks were delivered to the payees in McKinley county; the payees cashed the checks at a store that was located in McKinley county; and defendant's bank dishonored the checks for insufficient funds, venue was proper in McKinley county. State v. Cruz, 2010-NMCA-011, 147 N.M. 753, 228 P.3d 1173, rev'd on other grounds, 2011-NMSC-038, 150 N.M. 548, 263 P.3d 890.

Venue for violation of municipal ordinance must be laid in the municipality where the violation presumably occurred. City of Roswell v. Gallegos, 1966-NMSC-246, 77 N.M. 170, 420 P.2d 438.

Prosecution for embezzlement. — Venue in embezzlement is properly laid in the county where the possession becomes adverse to the owner. Territory v. Hale, 1905-NMSC-021, 13 N.M. 181, 81 P. 583.

Murder trial in county of death. — In a trial for murder, the evidence that the person alleged to have been murdered died in county where venue was laid, is a sufficient proof of venue. Territory of N.M. v. Hicks, 1892-NMSC-024, 6 N.M. 596, 30 P. 872, overruled on other grounds by Haynes v. United States, 1899-NMSC-003, 9 N.M. 519, 56 P. 282.

Death in Texas after wounding in New Mexico. — Where decedent dies in Texas of wound inflicted in a county in New Mexico, defendant may be prosecuted in that New Mexico county. Bourguet v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R.R., 1958-NMSC-148, 65 N.M. 200, 334 P.2d 1107.

Although the deceased died in Texas, the blow was struck in Quay county, and hence venue was proper in that county. State v. Justus, 1959-NMSC-008, 65 N.M. 195, 334 P.2d 1104, cert. denied, 365 U.S. 828, 81 S. Ct. 714, 5 L. Ed. 2d 706 (1961).

Venue proper in New Mexico where theft occurred out of state. — A person who steals property outside New Mexico and brings the stolen property into this state may be prosecuted, convicted, and punished for larceny in New Mexico. State v. Stephens, 1990-NMCA-081, 110 N.M. 525, 797 P.2d 314, cert. denied, 110 N.M. 533, 797 P.2d 983.

Venue improper where offenses completed before reaching county. — Where the first six criminal sexual penetration offenses were completed before reaching Bernalillo county, trial in Bernalillo county as to those offenses was improper. State v. Ramirez, 1978-NMCA-102, 92 N.M. 206, 585 P.2d 651.

Absent prejudice venue provisions inapplicable to Rule 93 hearing. — Neither constitutional nor statutory provisions on venue apply to a hearing under Rule 93, N.M.R. Civ. P. (considering defendant's motion to vacate judgment and sentence against him, now withdrawn), because such a hearing is neither a criminal trial nor a criminal prosecution, but rather a civil proceeding. State v. Eckles, 1968-NMSC-079, 79 N.M. 138, 441 P.2d 36 (decided under prior law).

Since defendant had no right to be present at a hearing under Rule 93, N.M.R. Civ. P. (now withdrawn), a fortiori he had no right to be heard in a particular place, absent a showing of prejudice. State v. Eckles, 1968-NMSC-079, 79 N.M. 138, 441 P.2d 36 (decided under prior law).

Section is consistent with present constitutional and statutory provisions regarding the place of prosecution. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-12.

Right of venue is legal concept separate and distinct from territorial jurisdiction of magistrate, and a statute affecting one does not necessarily affect the other. 1979 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 79-12.

30-1-15. Alleged victims of domestic abuse, stalking or sexual assault; forbearance of costs.

A. An alleged victim of an offense specified in Subsection B of this section is not required to bear the cost of:

(1) the prosecution of a misdemeanor or felony domestic violence offense, including costs associated with filing a criminal charge against an alleged perpetrator of the offense;

(2) the filing, issuance or service of a warrant;

(3) the filing, issuance or service of a witness subpoena; or

(4) the filing, issuance, registration or service of a protection order.

B. The provisions of Subsection A of this section apply to:

(1) alleged victims of domestic abuse as defined in Section 40-13-2 NMSA 1978;

(2) sexual offenses described in Sections 30-9-11 through 30-9-14 and 30-9-14.3 NMSA 1978;

(3) crimes against household members described in Sections 30-3-12 through 30-3-16 NMSA 1978;

(4) harassment, stalking and aggravated stalking described in Sections 30-3A-2 through 30-3A-3.1 NMSA 1978; and

(5) the violation of an order of protection that is issued pursuant to the Family Violence Protection Act [Chapter 40, Article 13 NMSA 1978] or entitled to full faith and credit.

The 2008 amendment, effective July 1, 2008, provided for cost-free prosecution of a misdemeanor or felony domestic violence offense, filing of a warrant and a witness subpoena, and the filing and registration of a protection order.

30-1-16. Defense based on victim's gender, gender identity, gender expression or sexual orientation prohibited.

A. It shall not be a defense, justification or excuse in a criminal proceeding that the defendant's conduct was a reaction to the discovery of, knowledge about or potential disclosure of a victim's or witness's actual or perceived:

(1) gender;

(2) gender expression;

(3) gender identity; or

(4) sexual orientation.

B. It shall not be a defense, justification or excuse in a criminal proceeding that the defendant was romantically propositioned in a nonviolent or non-threatening manner by a person of the same gender or a person who is transgender.

C. Nothing in this section shall prevent a defendant from raising other recognized affirmative defense.

D. As used in this section:

(1) "gender expression" means the external appearance of a person's gender identity, often expressed through the person's behavior, physical appearance or voice, which expression may or may not conform to socially defined behaviors and characteristics typically associated with masculinity or femininity;

(2) "gender identity" means a person's self-perception, or perception of that person by another, of the person's identity as a male or female based upon the person's appearance, behavior or physical characteristics that are in accord with or opposed to the person's physical anatomy, chromosomal sex or sex at birth; and

(3) "sexual orientation" means heterosexuality, homosexuality or bisexuality, whether actual or perceived.

30-2-1. Murder.

A. Murder in the first degree is the killing of one human being by another without lawful justification or excuse, by any of the means with which death may be caused:

(1) by any kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing;

(2) in the commission of or attempt to commit any felony; or

(3) by any act greatly dangerous to the lives of others, indicating a depraved mind regardless of human life.

Whoever commits murder in the first degree is guilty of a capital felony.

B. Unless he is acting upon sufficient provocation, upon a sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion, a person who kills another human being without lawful justification or excuse commits murder in the second degree if in performing the acts which cause the death he knows that such acts create a strong probability of death or great bodily harm to that individual or another.

Murder in the second degree is a lesser included offense of the crime of murder in the first degree.

Whoever commits murder in the second degree is guilty of a second degree felony resulting in the death of a human being.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-1, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-1; 1980, ch. 21, § 1; 1994, ch. 23, § 1.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Depraved mind murder. — A number of elements must be considered in appraising whether a defendant has displayed the requisite depraved mind pursuant to Section 30-2-1A(3) NMSA 1978. Conviction requires that more than one person be endangered by the defendant's act. The defendant's act must be intentional and of an extremely reckless character. The defendant must possess subjective knowledge that his act was "greatly dangerous to the lives of others". State v. Dowling, 2011-NMSC-016, 150 N.M. 110, 257 P.3d 930.

Courts have distinguished depraved mind murder by the number of persons exposed to danger by a defendant's extremely reckless behavior. In general, depraved mind murder convictions have been limited to acts that are dangerous to more than one person. In addition to the number of people endangered, courts have construed depraved mind murder as requiring proof that the defendant had "subjective knowledge" that his act was greatly dangerous to the lives of others. This requirement of subjective knowledge serves as proof that the accused "acted with 'a depraved mind' or 'wicked or malignant heart' and with utter disregard for human life". To further narrow the class of killings eligible for depraved mind murder, courts have concluded "that the legislature intended the offense of depraved mind murder to encompass an intensified malice or evil intent." In describing that intensified malice, courts have defined the phrase "depraved mind" used in the statute and uniform jury instructions as "[a] corrupt, perverted, or immoral state of mind constituting the highest grade of malice [that equates] with malice in the commonly understood sense of ill will, hatred, spite or evil intent". State v. Reed, 2005-NMSC-031, 138 N.M. 365, 120 P.3d 447.

Double jeopardy. — Felony murder has its own particular double jeopardy analysis. If the predicate felony and felony murder are unitary, then the predicate felony must be dismissed because it is subsumed within the elements of felony murder. State v. Bernal, 2006-NMSC-050, 140 N.M. 644, 146 P.3d 289.

Convictions of attempted murder and aggravated battery violated double jeopardy. — Where defendant was convicted of attempted murder and aggravated battery with a deadly weapon; defendant's conduct was unitary; the indictment for attempted murder required the state to prove that defendant attempted to commit murder and "began to do an act which constituted a substantial part of murder" but failed to commit the offense; the indictment for aggravated battery required the state to prove that defendant touched or applied force to the victims with a deadly weapon intending to injure the victims; the state's theory of the case to support both charges was that defendant beat, stabbed, and slashed the victims; and the state offered the same testimony to prove both charges, the aggravated battery elements were subsumed within the attempted murder elements and defendant's convictions violated the prohibition against double jeopardy. State v. Swick, 2012-NMSC-018, 279 P.3d 747, rev'g 2010-NMCA-098, 148 N.M. 895, 242 P.3d 462, overruling State v. Armendariz, 2006-NMSC-036, 140 N.M. 182, 141 P.3d 526.

Intent. — "Deliberate intention" is defined as, arrived at or determined upon as a result of careful thought and the weighing of the consideration for and against the proposed course of action. Intent is subjective and is almost always inferred from other facts in the case, as it is rarely established by direct evidence. State v. Sosa, 2000-NMSC-036, 129 N.M. 767, 14 P.3d 32.

Corpus delicti. — In homicide cases the corpus delicti is established upon proof of the death of the person charged in the information or indictment, and that the death was caused by the criminal act or agency of another. The corpus delicti of a particular offense is established simply by proof that the crime was committed; the identity of the perpetrator is not material. State v. Sosa, 2000-NMSC-036, 129 N.M. 767, 14 P.3d 32.

Jury's specification of death penalty is not freakish, capricious, or arbitrary where defendant killed the victim in a particularly brutal fashion by striking her in the head three to five times with a sledgehammer and this occurred after the defendant kidnapped the victim by deception, chased her as she attempted to escape and stabbed her two inches deep in the chest with a knife when she struggled, and completely disrobed the victim in an attempt to rape her. State v. Fry, 2006-NMSC-001, 138 N.M. 700, 126 P.3d 516 (decided under prior law).

Fair trial. — Where the prosecutor did no more than repeat what the judge had already said to the jury, that is, that the photographs of the victim contained more graphic material than the jurors were allowed to see, and relied on reasonable inferences from the medical investigator's testimony about the graphic nature of the wounds, the prosecutor did not introduce any new information to the jury, and viewing this isolated remark in context with the judge's comments to the jury, with the testimony of the medical investigator, and with the overwhelming evidence of guilt, the remark did not result in a verdict based on passion or prejudice or otherwise deprive defendant of a fair trial. State v. Fry, 2006-NMSC-001, 138 N.M. 700, 126 P.3d 516.

Constitutionality. — Because the statute and court decisions clearly indicate that the element of deliberation is what distinguishes first degree murder from second degree murder, and the distinction between first and second degree murder has been clearly enunciated by the supreme court, this section and former Section 30-2-2 NMSA 1978, relating to malice (now repealed), are not unconstitutional on the grounds that they make impossible an ascertainable distinction between first and second degree murder. State v. Valenzuela, 1976-NMSC-079, 90 N.M. 25, 559 P.2d 402.

New Mexico Const., art. IV, § 18, relating to the amendment of statutes, did not apply to 40-24-4, 1953 Comp., the former felony murder statute, which was enacted prior to adoption of the constitutional provision. State v. Hines, 1967-NMSC-237, 78 N.M. 471, 432 P.2d 827.

Open charge of murder gives defendant notice that he must defend against a charge of unlawfully taking a human life. State v. Stephens, 1979-NMSC-076, 93 N.M. 458, 601 P.2d 428, overruled in part on other grounds by State v. Contreras, 1995-NMSC-056, 120 N.M. 486, 903 P.2d 228.

Double jeopardy. — Defendant's right to freedom from double jeopardy was not violated by punishment for attempted first degree murder, aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, and criminal sexual penetration. State v. Traeger, 2000-NMCA-015, 128 N.M. 668, 997 P.2d 142, aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, 2001-NMSC-022, 130 N.M. 618, 29 P.3d 518.

Element of intent is seldom susceptible to direct proof, since it involves the state of mind of the defendant, and it thus may be proved by circumstantial evidence. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Elements of depraved mind murder. — The elements that are required to support a depraved mind murder conviction are that more than one person must be endangered by defendant's act; defendant's act must be intentional and extremely reckless; defendant must possess subjective knowledge that defendant's act was greatly dangerous to the lives of others; and the act must encompass an intensified malice and evil intent. State v. Dowling, 2011-NMSC-016, 150 N.M. 110, 257 P.3d 930.

Sufficient evidence of depraved mind murder. — Where defendant drove a truck at approximately 80 miles per hour for approximately one mile on a four-lane suburban street during the middle of a weekday, striking and injuring a jogger on the street's raised median, then driving onto a sidewalk and striking and killing a second pedestrian; all the while speeding and weaving in and out of traffic, including into oncoming traffic, almost colliding with other vehicles, until defendant crossed all four lanes of the street and finally crashed into a boulder on the raised median, the evidence was sufficient to support defendant's conviction of depraved mind murder. State v. Dowling, 2011-NMSC-016, 150 N.M. 90, 257 P.3d 930.

Act indicating depraved mind not affected by intent to kill particular individual. — A murder committed by an act which indicates a depraved mind is a first degree murder. The existence of an intent to kill any particular individual does not remove the act from this class of murder. State v. Sena, 1983-NMSC-005, 99 N.M. 272, 657 P.2d 128.

For legislative history of term "human being" in definition of murder, as found throughout homicide statutes. State v. Willis, 1982-NMCA-151, 98 N.M. 771, 652 P.2d 1222.

Fair trial. — Defendant's right to fair trial was not violated when, in a prosecution for first degree murder, the state secured an instruction for the lesser included offense of second degree murder and then argued against this lesser included offense at closing, contending that the evidence could only support a first degree murder conviction. State v. Armendarez, 1992-NMSC-012, 113 N.M. 335, 825 P.2d 1245.

Cumulative punishment is precluded for shooting at a vehicle and homicide. — New Mexico jurisprudence precludes cumulative punishment for the offenses of causing great bodily harm to a person by shooting at a motor vehicle and the homicide resulting from the penetration of the same bullet into the same person. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426, overruling State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023, State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563 and State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Where defendant and defendant's companions were accosted by a rival gang in front of defendant's family home, guns were pulled on both sides and defendant's sibling was severely wounded by gunshots in the leg and abdomen; while defendant's group were trying to help defendant's sibling in the driveway and stop the bleeding from the gunshot wounds, the person in the rival gang who had been shooting at defendant and defendant's companions returned in a Ford Expedition; when defendant saw gunfire coming from the Expedition, defendant ran into the house and retrieved an AK-47 rifle and began shooting at the Expedition; the driver of Expedition was shot seven times and died; the jury convicted defendant of voluntary manslaughter and shooting into a motor vehicle resulting in great bodily harm, the Double Jeopardy Clause protected defendant from being punished both for the homicide of the victim and for shooting into a vehicle causing great bodily harm to the victim where both convictions were premised on the unitary act of shooting the victim. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426, overruling State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023, State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563 and State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Legislature intended to provide multiple punishments for the offenses of second degree murder and shooting into or from a vehicle. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

A consideration of second degree murder and shooting from a motor vehicle shows that the sections setting forth these crimes are designed to combat distinct evils, which provides further indicia of legislative intent confirming the presumption that the offenses are separately punishable. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Conviction of lesser offense only if supported by evidence. — No statute which purports to authorize an appellate court to sustain a conviction unsupported by the evidence may be approved, and accordingly Laws 1937, ch. 199, § 1 (not compiled), is invalid to the extent that it authorizes a conviction for a lesser included homicide offense when no evidence was contained in the record to prove the essentials of the elements of the offense of which the defendant stands convicted. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

Unsupported conviction unconstitutional. — A conviction based on a record lacking any relevant evidence as to a crucial element of the offense charged violates due process. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

"Torture". — Murder by strangling and suffocation was not murder by "torture," which was conclusively made first degree murder by Laws 1907, ch. 36, § 1 (40-24-4, 1953 Comp.). State v. Bentford, 1935-NMSC-051, 39 N.M. 293, 46 P.2d 658 (decided under prior law).

Conviction of principal in second degree. — A principal in the second degree was guilty of crime the same as the principal in the first degree, and might be tried and convicted, even though the latter has been acquitted or convicted of a lesser degree of the offense. State v. Martino, 1920-NMSC-069, 27 N.M. 1, 192 P. 507.

Double jeopardy. — Defendant's convictions under two theories of first degree murder did not result in contradictory convictions in violation of due process and double jeopardy principles because the two crimes were not inherently or factually contradictory and the jury could have concluded that defendant was guilty under both alternatives, given the evidence. State v. Reyes, 2002-NMSC-024, 132 N.M. 576, 52 P.3d 948.

Guilty verdicts for two alternative theories of first degree murder should be regarded, for sentencing purposes, as a general verdict of first degree murder based on the two theories, thereby avoiding multiple punishments. State v. Reyes, 2002-NMSC-024, 132 N.M. 576, 52 P.3d 948.

Convictions of defendant for both second degree murder and intentional child abuse resulting in death violated his right not to be placed in double jeopardy. State v. Mann, 2000-NMCA-088, 129 N.M. 600, 11 P.3d 564, aff'd, 2002-NMSC-001, 131 N.M. 459, 39 P.3d 124.

Defendant's conviction for both shooting into an occupied motor vehicle under Section 30-3-8 NMSA 1978 and first degree murder under this section was not double jeopardy because the legislature intended to have separate punishments for similar conduct that can result in a violation of both statutes. State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023.

There was no double jeopardy violation for convictions for second degree murder and shooting at or from a motor vehicle because the testimony at trial permitted the inference that each conviction was based on distinct conduct and because the two statutes evince legislative intent to impose separate punishments for each crime. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Conviction for shooting at a motor vehicle under Section 30-3-8B NMSA 1978 did not preclude the state from seeking a further conviction for first or second degree murder under this section. State v. Garcia, 2005-NMCA-042, 137 N.M. 315, 110 P.3d 531, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-004, 137 N.M. 454, 112 P.3d 1111.

Homicide charge not merged. — The homicide resulting from the great bodily harm was sufficient evidence for the jury to find aggravated sodomy and first degree kidnapping, and there was no merger with the charge of murder of which defendant was acquitted. State v. Melton, 1977-NMSC-014, 90 N.M. 188, 561 P.2d 461.

Aggravated burglary and first degree murder not unitary. — First degree murder and aggravated burglary were not unitary acts, and imposition of sentences for both offenses did not violate double jeopardy. State v. Livernois, 1997-NMSC-019, 123 N.M. 128, 934 P.2d 1057.

Merger of lesser offense found. — Where a defendant was charged with numerous counts of child abuse resulting in death or great bodily injury and with murder, but the state did not charge or offer proof that the acts of child abuse arose as separate and distinct episodes, the rule of merger precluded the defendant's conviction and sentence for a crime that is a lesser included offense of a greater charge upon which defendant has also been convicted. Although the state properly may charge in the alternative, where the defendant was convicted of one or more offenses which were merged into the greater offense, he could be punished for only one. State v. Pierce, 1990-NMSC-049, 110 N.M. 76, 792 P.2d 408 (events occurred prior to 1989 amendment to Section 30-6-1 NMSA 1978).

Bail. — To be admitted to bail on habeas corpus petition, if proof of capital crime is plain and presumption great, court would not weigh it against other, apparently contradictory, facts and circumstances. Ex parte Wright, 1929-NMSC-093, 34 N.M. 422, 283 P. 53.

Prosecutor's comments on defendant's story appropriate. — Prosecutor's comments on the veracity of defendant's story did not deprive defendant of a fair trial. If after a case is presented, the evidence is essentially reduced to which of two conflicting stories is true, a party may reasonably infer, and thus argue, that the other side is lying. State v. Aguilar, 1994-NMSC-046, 117 N.M. 501, 873 P.2d 247, cert. denied, 513 U.S. 859, 115 S. Ct. 168, 130 L. Ed. 2d 105, and cert. denied, 513 U.S. 865, 115 S. Ct. 182, 130 L. Ed. 2d 116 (1994).

II. DELIBERATION AND PREMEDITATION.

Substantial evidence of deliberate intention. — A deliberate intention refers to the state of mind of the defendant, is rarely subject to proof by direct evidence, and often must be inferred from all the facts and circumstances of the killing. State v. Astorga, 2015-NMSC-007.

Where law enforcement officer was murdered during a traffic stop, evidence established that defendant had a motive to kill the officer, wanting to avoid arrest because defendant knew that he was wanted on an outstanding warrant, that defendant initially complied with the officer when the officer pulled defendant's vehicle over, that defendant then retrieved his gun while he waited for the officer to approach the vehicle, and when the officer neared the window, defendant fired the gun twice at the officer from point-blank range, that defendant, after the killing, made incriminating statements about having "blasted that cop", there was substantial evidence of defendant's deliberate intention to take away the life of the law enforcement officer. State v Astorga, 2015-NMSC-007.

Where the evidence at trial established that defendant threatened the victim during a confrontation the day prior to the murder and cell phone records revealed that defendant sought out the victim the same morning of the murder, that the victim suffered approximately ninety stab wounds during the attack, indicating that the attack upon victim spanned a prolonged period of time, and that defendant disposed of the murder weapon and clothes he wore during the attack, there was sufficient evidence of defendant's deliberate intent to murder the victim. State v. Smith, 2016-NMSC-007.

Sufficient evidence of first-degree deliberate murder. — There was sufficient evidence to allow a trier of fact to reasonably infer that the defendant killed the victim with the deliberate intention to take away her life, where the physical evidence containing a full DNA profile matching defendant was found on the victim's body in semen on her thigh and under the fingernails of her right hand, and also on the paver stone presumed to be the murder weapon, and where evidence of deliberation was established by evidence of a prolonged struggle and a large number of wounds to the victim. State v. Thomas, 2016-NMSC-024.

Sufficient evidence of first-degree willful and deliberate murder. — Where defendant was charged with first-degree murder (willful and deliberate), related to the killing of his estranged wife, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's first-degree murder conviction where, at trial, the state presented testimony establishing that strangulation was a likely cause of death that defendant's training as a police officer familiarized him with chokeholds, that defendant and the victim had an abusive relationship where the victim repeatedly informed friends and family of her fear of defendant and concern that he would hurt her or kill her, and that defendant and the victim were involved in a contentious divorce with much dispute about the custody of their children. State v. Farrington, 2020-NMSC-022.

Sufficient evidence of deliberate murder. — Where defendant was playing with a folding pocket knife at a party; a fight broke out between defendant and the victim; the victim ran away bleeding heavily and later died at a hospital; defendant made the statement that "I think I stabbed that fool seven or eight times. I stabbed that fool"; defendant and defendant's friends acted "fine, like nothing, like high-fiving each other"; defendant stabbed the victim thirteen times in the left side of the chest; and the wounds were consistent with a single-edged knife, the evidence was sufficient to support defendant's conviction of willful and deliberate murder. State v. Guerra, 2012-NMSC-027, 284 P.3d 1076.

Where an altercation occurred between defendant and the victim; the victim was kneeling on the ground as defendant stood over the victim pointing a rifle at the victim's head; the victim attempted to push the rifle away from the victim's head twice and defendant repositioned the rifle so the rifle it pointed directly at the victim's face; as defendant pointed the rifle at the victim, the victim was pleading with defendant; a witness testified that defendant fired four close range shots directly at the victim; there were five wounds in the victim's body, four of which had penetrated the victim's body; and within an hour after the shooting, defendant interacted with a witness who testified that defendant did not appear to be intoxicated and that defendant made a telephone call to tell someone that defendant would not be at work for a week because defendant was in a "heap of trouble", there was sufficient evidence for a jury to find that defendant acted with deliberate intent when defendant killed the victim. State v. Largo, 2012-NMSC-015, 278 P.3d 532.

Jury could reasonably find that defendant acted with deliberate intent because the physical evidence of the stabbing of the victim showed that the attack was part of a prolonged struggle and that the victim was stabbed multiple times as she tried to escape, and because defendant later made statements that he had hurt, stabbed and murdered a woman. State v. Duran, 2006-NMSC-035, 140 N.M. 94, 140 P.3d 515.

Where defendant was embittered by the victim's rejection of defendant and the breakup of the relationship between defendant and the victim; defendant tried to hurt the victim by making scandalous accusations to the victim's ex-wife and the police; defendant made methodical plans for a trip from Nevada to New Mexico in pursuit of the victim; defendant surreptitiously followed the victim to the victim's home town in New Mexico and stalked the victim over a period of days; defendant ascertained that the victim was taking an alcohol server class at a local motel, inquired about the time and place of the class, and ascertained when defendant could get the victim alone during a class recess; defendant deliberately lay in wait for the victim; defendant carried a screwdriver with him to the fatal confrontation with the victim; defendant stabbed the victim twenty-one times with the screwdriver; after the stabbing, defendant immediately and calmly walked away and fled the scene of the murder; defendant tried to deceive and evade the authorities; and defendant attempted to concoct a false alibi, the evidence was sufficient to support the jury's determination that defendant committed the murder with deliberate intent to kill. State v. Flores, 2010-NMSC-002, 147 N.M. 542, 226 P.3d 641.

Sufficient evidence of willful and deliberate murder. — In defendant's trial for first-degree murder for the killing of a police officer and aggravated fleeing, the state presented sufficient evidence for a rational jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant manifested a deliberate intention to kill the officer, where the evidence established that during a traffic stop, the officer attempted to approach the vehicle when the vehicle suddenly accelerated out of a parking lot, and where defendant later brought the vehicle to a stop and waited for the pursuing officer to catch up, and when the officer approached the vehicle a second time, defendant fired his gun four times at the officer. Moreover, testimony from defendant's accomplice established that prior to the shooting, defendant moved his pistol from a hidden position into a firing position, that defendant stated that he would kill an officer to avoid going back to prison, and that defendant shot the officer twice, paused for a moment, and then shot the officer two more times, which was probative of deliberation and intent to kill. State v. Romero, 2019-NMSC-007.

Sufficient evidence to prove identity in first-degree murder trial. — In defendant's trial for first-degree murder, where identity was at issue, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction where the victim's wife and three children witnessed the shooting of victim and testified that defendant was the shooter, where a bystander also testified that she witnessed defendant shoot the victim while he was sitting in a vehicle, and where the state presented physical evidence including a latent print of defendant's palm on the vehicle in which the victim was murdered. State v. Ramirez, 2018-NMSC-003.

Insufficient evidence of deliberate murder. — Where defendant was charged with attempted first degree murder after attending a party that ended with one person dead and the victim seriously injured from multiple gunshot wounds; after arriving at the party, defendant waited outside the hall while defendant's friend went into the hall; defendant was carrying a revolver and the friend was carrying a semiautomatic pistol; when a fight erupted in the hall, defendant walked to the entrance of the hall; defendant's friend shot at the victim several times with the pistol; several witnesses, including the victim, testified that they did not see defendant during the fight; after the shooting started, defendant was seen running with the friend away from the fight as other people were firing at them; defendant returned home and hid the pistol; defendant's friend told the police that defendant had admitted shooting the victim, but at trial denied that defendant had admitted shooting the victim; there was no evidence that defendant had a motive to kill the victim; defendant had a concealed weapon permit; other guests at the party were also carrying weapons; and defendant lied to the police and told one friend not to talk about what happened, the evidence was insufficient to demonstrate that defendant acted willfully, deliberately and with premeditated intent to kill the victim. State v. Slade, 2014-NMCA-088, cert. granted, 2014-NMCERT-008.

Where defendant and the victims had been drinking and taking drugs earlier in the day; while defendant and the victims were aimlessly driving around, drinking and taking more drugs, defendant, without any evidence of motive, shot and killed the driver and when the passenger, who was sitting in the front seat, screamed and turned around to look at defendant, defendant shot and wounded the passenger; and although multiple shots were fired in quick succession, each victim was shot only once, there was insufficient evidence of deliberation to support defendant's conviction for attempted first degree murder of the passenger. State v. Tafoya, 2012-NMSC-030, 285 P.3d 604.

Evidence of condition of mind of accused at time of crime may be introduced, not only for the purpose of proving the inability to deliberate, but also to prove that the conditions were such that defendant did not in fact, at the time of the killing, form a deliberate intent to kill. State v. Balderama, 2004-NMSC-008, 135 N.M. 329, 88 P.3d 845.

Schizophrenia did not limit defendant's capacity to form deliberate intent to kill. — Where defendant was convicted of first-degree murder and third-degree criminal sexual penetration, based on defendant's admission that he killed the victim and then had sexual intercourse with the victim after she died, and where defendant argued that schizophrenia limited his capacity to form the deliberate intent required to sustain a first-degree murder conviction, evidence that defendant took conscious steps to walk through his house to retrieve a knife, address the victim in a theatrical manner saying that he had a "present" for her, and finally manipulate her neck before stabbing her was sufficient for a rational jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt the essential facts required for conviction of first-degree, deliberate intent murder. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-012.

Exclusion of expert testimony held error. — The trial court committed reversible error when it sua sponte excluded the expert testimony of defendant's sole witness, a neuropsychologist, who was prepared to testify regarding defendant's neurological deficits, which defendant contends were relevant to whether he formed the deliberate intent to kill. State v. Balderama, 2004-NMSC-008, 135 N.M. 329, 88 P.3d 845.

Period of deliberation. — Murder in the first degree is a willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, and although a deliberate intention means an intention or decision arrived at after careful thought and after a weighing of the reasons for the commission of the killing, such a decision may be reached in a short period of time. State v. Lucero, 1975-NMSC-061, 88 N.M. 441, 541 P.2d 430.

Burden of proof. — The burden is on the state to prove that a defendant not only had an opportunity to form deliberate intent but did in fact form a deliberate intent to kill. State v. Motes, 1994-NMSC-115, 118 N.M. 727, 885 P.2d 648.

Transferred intent to kill. — In a homicide case where A shot at B, and the bullet struck C and killed him, the malice or intent followed the bullet. State v. Carpio, 1921-NMSC-063, 27 N.M. 265, 199 P. 1012.

Charge that murder was done willfully, deliberately and premeditatedly and with malice aforethought was sustained by proof that it was committed with a mind imbued with those qualities, though they were directed against a person other than the one killed. State v. Carpio, 1921-NMSC-063, 27 N.M. 265, 199 P. 1012.

Transferred intent applicable to murder and attempted murder. — The doctrine of transferred intent applies to both murder and attempted murder. State v. Gillette, 1985-NMCA-037, 102 N.M. 695, 699 P.2d 626.

Period of time to abandon intent. — Just as it requires no period of time to form a deliberate intent to kill, so too, it does not require a certain period of time to abandon a pre-existing depraved mind. Although the initial act of defendant shooting indiscriminately at two people at two different times could have been found by the jury to be a depraved-mind action and one done with a wicked and malignant heart, these actions did not wound or kill the victim or anyone else. It is the criminal intent at the time of the commission of the crime that is determinative. State v. Hernandez, 1994-NMSC-045, 117 N.M. 497, 873 P.2d 243.

Question of deliberation and premeditation in murder case was for jury to determine upon a consideration of all the surrounding circumstances tending to show the relation of the parties to each other and the animus of the accused toward the deceased. State v. Smith, 1966-NMSC-128, 76 N.M. 477, 416 P.2d 146.

Direct or circumstantial evidence. — While deliberation and premeditation are essential elements of murder in the first degree, these, like other elements, may be shown by direct evidence or by circumstances from which their existence may be inferred by the jury. State v. Montoya, 1963-NMSC-098, 72 N.M. 178, 381 P.2d 963.

The essential elements of murder in the first degree, including the elements of deliberation and premeditation, may be shown not only by direct evidence but by circumstances from which their existence may be inferred. State v. Smith, 1966-NMSC-128, 76 N.M. 477, 416 P.2d 146.

Evidence of wounds inflicted in fight was sufficient to support a finding of premeditation, intent to kill and malice. State v. Garcia, 1956-NMSC-058, 61 N.M. 291, 299 P.2d 467.

Striking victim with car. — In case where the defendant struck the deceased with his automobile after an argument between the two and after deceased was seen to strike defendant's mother, the facts and surrounding circumstances warranted a finding by the jury that the killing was malicious, deliberate and premeditated. State v. Montoya, 1963-NMSC-098, 72 N.M. 178, 381 P.2d 963.

Forcing car off road. — From evidence that in the course of a high speed police chase defendant made a deliberate sharp turn into the police car, forcing it off the road while driving at a speed of 110 m.p.h., the jury could reasonably have inferred that defendant intended to murder the police officers. State v. Bell, 1972-NMCA-101, 84 N.M. 133, 500 P.2d 418 (affirming conviction of assault on police officers with intent to commit a violent felony).

Shooting deceased's fleeing wife. — Where defendant's shooting of decedent's wife occurred within a second or so after the shooting of decedent and as she sought to escape, shooting her under the circumstances had real probative value upon the issues of deliberation and intent, and constituted evidence of a preconceived plan to kill her as well as her husband. State v. Lucero, 1975-NMSC-061, 88 N.M. 441, 541 P.2d 430.

Premeditation is a necessary element in proof of second degree murder. State v. White, 1956-NMSC-038, 61 N.M. 109, 295 P.2d 1019.

III. FELONY MURDER.

Requirements that a felony must meet before it can be a predicate to felony murder. — There must be a causal relationship between the felony and the homicide, the felony must be independent of or collateral to the homicide, and the felony must be inherently or foreseeably dangerous to human life. State v. Groves, 2021-NMSC-003.

The felonious purpose test. — A crime's objective is its felonious purpose, and if that purpose is something other than "to injure or kill," the felony may serve as a predicate felony to felony murder. State v. Groves, 2021-NMSC-003.

Aggravated fleeing a law enforcement officer does not violate the collateral felony rule and may serve as a predicate felony for felony murder. — The felonious purpose of the aggravated fleeing statute is to flee from law enforcement to avoid apprehension, not to endanger or harm someone. Aggravated fleeing, therefore, does not violate the collateral felony rule and may serve as a predicate felony for felony murder if the defendant acted with the requisite mens rea. State v. Groves, 2021-NMSC-003.

District court erred in concluding that aggravated fleeing may not serve as a predicate felony for felony murder. — Where defendants stole a van from an Albuquerque business, and rather than stopping when they realized that police were in pursuit, they fled, and where, during the pursuit through residential neighborhoods, defendants, driving at speeds of up to 78 mph in a 35 mph zone, ran a stop sign and hit another car resulting in the deaths of two people, the district court erred in concluding that aggravated fleeing a law enforcement officer may not serve as the predicate felony for a felony murder charge. Aggravated fleeing a law enforcement officer may serve as a predicate felony for felony murder because it satisfies the causal requirement, the collateral felony rule, and the requirement that the felony be inherently or foreseeably dangerous to human life. State v. Groves, 2021-NMSC-003.

Sufficient evidence. — Where the non-conflicting testimony of witnesses established that while defendant was attending a party, defendant visited the victim's apartment several times to buy marijuana; when the supply of marijuana was exhausted, defendant gestured to a screwdriver in defendant's waistband and said that defendant was going to "jack" the victim; defendant went to the victim's apartment, started punching the victim and held the screwdriver against the victim's neck; when the victim reached for a gun, defendant took a gun away from the victim, put the gun to the victim's head and pulled the trigger; when the gun failed to fire, defendant pulled the trigger a second time and shot and killed the victim; defendant returned to the party with the gun in defendant's hand; and defendant was showing off the gun and stated that defendant had taken the gun from the victim and "blasted" the victim, the evidence was sufficient to support the finding that defendant committed the predicate offense of armed robbery and then intentionally killed the victim during the robbery. State v. Garcia, 2011-NMSC-003, 149 N.M. 185, 246 P.3d 1057.

The felony murder statute expresses a clear legislative intent that a killing during the commission of a felony constitutes unitary conduct in every case and a conviction of both the predicate felony and felony murder violates double jeopardy. State v. Frazier, 2007-NMSC-032, 142 N.M. 120, 164 P.3d 1.

Where there is only one first degree felony conviction which also serves as the predicate felony for a felony murder conviction, the legislature did not intend to allow a separate conviction for that same felony. State v. Frazier, 2007-NMSC-032, 142 N.M. 120, 164 P.3d 1.

It is per se fundamental error for aggravated battery to be used as an alternative predicate for felony murder. Campos v. Bravo, 2007-NMSC-021, 141 N.M. 801, 161 P.3d 846.

Not all underlying felonies constitute an aggravating circumstance. In fact, the only underlying felonies for felony murder that can serve as an aggravating circumstance for capital sentencing are kidnapping, criminal sexual contact of a minor, and criminal sexual penetration. State v. Fry, 2006-NMSC-001, 138 N.M. 700, 126 P.3d 516.

When state proves elements of felony murder, it has proved all of the elements of the capital felony of first degree murder. State v. Fry, 2006-NMSC-001, 138 N.M. 700, 126 P.3d 516.

Eligibility for death penalty. — New Mexico requires an aggravating circumstance, in addition to the commission of felony murder, in order to be eligible for the death penalty. State v. Fry, 2006-NMSC-001, 138 N.M. 700, 126 P.3d 516 (decided under prior law).

Limitations to felony murder doctrine. — While the wording of this section is broad, New Mexico has created five main limitations to the felony murder doctrine. State v. O'Kelly, 2004-NMCA-013, 135 N.M. 40, 84 P.3d 88, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-001, 137 N.M. 17, 106 P.3d 578.

All of New Mexico's felony murder limitations work together to ensure that defendants convicted of felony murder have a culpable mental state consistent with the legislature's retributive and punitive goals. State v. O'Kelly, 2004-NMCA-013, 135 N.M. 40, 84 P.3d 88, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-001, 137 N.M. 17, 106 P.3d 578.

Accomplices. — A defendant cannot be charged with felony murder based on the lethal acts of another person who is not an accomplice. State v. O'Kelly, 2004-NMCA-013, 135 N.M. 40, 84 P.3d 88, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-001, 137 N.M. 17, 106 P.3d 578.

Defendant may not be held liable for depraved mind murder when he or his accomplice did not commit the lethal act that killed an innocent bystander. State v. O'Kelly, 2004-NMCA-013, 135 N.M. 40, 84 P.3d 88, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-001, 137 N.M. 17, 106 P.3d 578.

Felony murder statute constitutional. — Constitutional objection that felony murder statute under which petitioner was convicted was so broad and vague as to be unconstitutional was rejected. Hines v. Baker, 309 F. Supp. 1017 (D.N.M. 1968), aff'd, 422 F.2d 1002 (10th Cir. 1970).

Purpose. — In our felony-murder statute the legislature has permissibly determined that a killing in the commission or attempted commission of a felony is deserving of more serious punishment than other killings in which the killer's mental state might be similar but the circumstances of the killing are not as grave. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

Intent to kill for felony murder need not be a "willful, deliberate and premeditated" intent as contemplated by the definition of first degree murder in Subsection A(1) of this section, nor need the act be "greatly dangerous to the lives of others, indicating a depraved mind regardless of human life", as contemplated by the definition in Subsection (A)(3). State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

An intent to kill in the form of knowledge that the defendant's acts "create a strong probability of death or great bodily harm" to the victim or another, so that the killing would be only second degree murder under Subsection B of this section if no felony were involved, is sufficient to constitute murder in the first degree when a felony is involved - or so the legislature has determined. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

The "malice" required for murder (both first and second degree), as opposed to manslaughter, is an intent to kill or an intent to do an act greatly dangerous to the lives of others or with knowledge that the act creates a strong probability of death or great bodily harm. The same intent should be required to invest with first degree murder status a killing in the commission of or attempt to commit a first degree or other inherently dangerous felony. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

In addition to proof that the defendant caused (or aided and abetted) the killing, there must be proof that the defendant intended to kill (or was knowingly heedless that death might result from his conduct). An unintentional or accidental killing will not suffice. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

Felony murder does have a mens rea element, which cannot be presumed simply from the commission or attempted commission of a felony. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

Intent requirement. — The felony-murder intent requirement is satisfied if there is proof that the defendant intended to kill, knew that his actions created a strong probability of death or great bodily harm to the victim or another person, or acted in a manner greatly dangerous to the lives of others. State v. Griffin, 1993-NMSC-071, 116 N.M. 689, 866 P.2d 1156.

Conclusive presumption disapproved. — To presume conclusively that one who commits any felony has the requisite mens rea to commit first degree murder is a legal fiction which can no longer be supported where the felony is of lesser than first degree. State v. Harrison, 1977-NMSC-038, 90 N.M. 439, 564 P.2d 1321.

Murder during commission of first degree felony. — In a felony murder case where the collateral felony is a first degree felony, the res gestae test shall be used. State v. Harrison, 1977-NMSC-038, 90 N.M. 439, 564 P.2d 1321.

Murder during commission of dangerous lesser degree felony. — In a felony murder charge, involving a collateral felony, which is not of the first degree, that felony must be inherently dangerous or committed under circumstances that are inherently dangerous to support a felony murder conviction. State v. Harrison, 1977-NMSC-038, 90 N.M. 439, 564 P.2d 1321.

Robbery may raise second degree murder to first. — Robbery can be the predicate offense to raise second degree murder to first degree felony murder, under Subsection A(2), where there is a causal relationship between the robbery and the murder, the robbery is independent of or collateral to the murder, and the nature of the robbery is inherently or foreseeably dangerous to human life. State v. Duffy, 1998-NMSC-014, 126 N.M. 132, 967 P.2d 807.

Dangerous lesser degree felony high probability of death. — Of the felonies which are not of the first degree, only those known to have a high probability of death may be utilized for a conviction of first degree murder. State v. Harrison, 1977-NMSC-038, 90 N.M. 439, 564 P.2d 1321.

Underlying felony need not be dangerous. — It is irrelevant that, in the abstract, trafficking a controlled substance by possession with intent to distribute is not necessarily a dangerous crime. The standard applied to defendant was, while engaging in that particular felony, and as a consequence of the felony, defendant intended to kill. State v. Bankert, 1994-NMSC-052, 117 N.M. 614, 875 P.2d 370.

Jury to determine dangerousness. — Both the nature of the felony and the circumstances of its commission may be considered to determine whether it was inherently dangerous to human life; this is for the jury to decide, subject to review by the appellate courts. State v. Harrison, 1977-NMSC-038, 90 N.M. 439, 564 P.2d 1321.

It was proper for the jury to determine whether the crime of criminal sexual contact was inherently dangerous for purposes of felony murder. State v. Mora, 1997-NMSC-060, 124 N.M. 346, 950 P.2d 789.

Sequence not determinative. — If a homicide occurs within the res gestae of a felony, the felony murder provision of the statute is applicable, and whether the homicide occurred before or after the actual commission of the felony is not determinative of the applicability of the felony murder provision. State v. Flowers, 1971-NMSC-091, 83 N.M. 113, 489 P.2d 178; Nelson v. Cox, 1960-NMSC-005, 66 N.M. 397, 349 P.2d 118.

Intent not determinative. — Killing by person engaged in commission of a felony was first degree murder by both the principal and accessory present aiding and abetting, whether the killing was intentional or accidental. State v. Smelcer, 1924-NMSC-059, 30 N.M. 122, 228 P. 183.

Voluntary intoxication no defense to first degree felony murder. — Intoxication is not a defense to second degree murder and, therefore, is also not a defense to first degree felony murder. State v. Pando, 1996-NMCA-078, 122 N.M. 167, 921 P.2d 1285.

Felony murder applicable to attempts. — The felony murder provision is clearly applicable once conduct in furtherance of the commission of a felony has progressed sufficiently to constitute an attempt to commit the felony, and an attempt has been accomplished when an overt act, in furtherance of and tending to effect the commission of the felony, has been performed or undertaken with intent to commit the felony. State v. Flowers, 1971-NMSC-091, 83 N.M. 113, 489 P.2d 178.

Where the evidence clearly supported a reasonable inference that defendant had already formed the intent to take the automobile and was in the process of executing that intent when the shooting occurred and before the death of decedent, an instruction on the felony murder rule was appropriate. State v. Flowers, 1971-NMSC-091, 83 N.M. 113, 489 P.2d 178.

Crime of attempted felony murder does not exist in New Mexico and the trial court cannot have jurisdiction over such a charge. Since the trial court lacks jurisdiction, there is no basis for a claim of double jeopardy, and on remand, the prosecution may file an alternate, proper charge. State v. Price, 1986-NMCA-036, 104 N.M. 703, 726 P.2d 857, cert. quashed, 104 N.M. 702, 726 P.2d 856.

Precise felony to be named in charge. — Before defendant can be convicted of felony murder, he must be given notice of the precise felony with which he is being charged and the name of the felony underlying the charge must be either contained in the information or indictment or furnished to the defendant in sufficient time to enable him to prepare his defense. State v. Hicks, 1976-NMSC-069, 89 N.M. 568, 555 P.2d 689.

Attempt subsumed under offense named. — Conviction of first degree murder under the felony murder rule for an attempt to commit a felony when the charge under the indictment alleged the completion of the felony did not infringe fundamental rights of defendant, since the attempt to commit the crime charge is a necessarily included offense. State v. Turnbow, 1960-NMSC-081, 67 N.M. 241, 354 P.2d 533.

Felony murder requires absence of independent intervening force. — In a felony murder, the death must be caused by the acts of the defendant or his accomplice without an independent intervening force. State v. Adams, 1979-NMSC-032, 92 N.M. 669, 593 P.2d 1072; State v. Perrin, 1979-NMSC-050, 93 N.M. 73, 596 P.2d 516.

Criminal sexual penetration as predicate felony. — Applying the strict-elements test, first degree criminal sexual penetration (CSP) is not a lesser included offense of second degree murder and, accordingly, first degree CSP could properly serve as a predicate for applying the felony-murder doctrine. State v. Campos, 1996-NMSC-043, 122 N.M. 148, 921 P.2d 1266.

False imprisonment as predicate felony. — Based on evidence that the victim was forced into the back of a two-door car at gunpoint and was beaten with a gun as he was driven to an isolated location where he was shot, and that defendant and her accomplices were armed and had been drinking throughout the evening, a rational jury could find that defendant committed the crime of false imprisonment "under circumstances or in a manner dangerous to human life" as the predicate felony for felony murder. State v. Smith, 2001-NMSC-004, 130 N.M. 117, 19 P.3d 254.

Shooting at or from a motor vehicle may not serve as the predicate felony for felony murder. — Under the collateral felony rule, the predicate felony must be independent of or collateral to the homicide, and the predicate felony cannot be a lesser-included offense of second-degree murder. Shooting at or from a motor vehicle is an elevated form of aggravated battery, a lesser-included offense of second-degree murder, and thus cannot be used as a predicate for felony murder, so where defendant was convicted of first-degree felony murder, the underlying felony of which was shooting from a motor vehicle, defendant's felony murder conviction was vacated because the crime of shooting at or from a motor vehicle lacks an independent felonious purpose from that required under second-degree murder. State v. Marquez, 2016-NMSC-025.

Shooting at or from a motor vehicle cannot serve as the underlying felony sustaining a felony murder conviction. — Where defendant was convicted of first-degree felony murder predicated on the underlying felony of shooting at or from a motor vehicle, the New Mexico supreme court vacated defendant's conviction of felony murder because shooting at or from a motor vehicle is an elevated form of aggravated battery, and thus cannot be used as a predicate for felony murder. State v. Baroz, 2017-NMSC-030.

Shooting at dwelling as predicate felony. — Applying the strict-elements test, shooting at a dwelling is not a lesser included offense of second degree murder, and the offense could serve as a predicate for applying the felony-murder doctrine. State v. Varela, 1999-NMSC-045, 128 N.M. 454, 993 P.2d 1280.

Convictions for felony murder and shooting at a dwelling violated defendant's right to be protected from double jeopardy. State v. Varela, 1999-NMSC-045, 128 N.M. 454, 993 P.2d 1280.

Insufficient evidence that defendant committed the predicate felony of shooting at a dwelling or occupied building. — Where defendant was convicted of felony murder predicated on the felony of shooting at a dwelling or occupied building, the evidence established that defendant and his companions targeted the victims in the course of a gunfight that took place in front of a dwelling, but did not shoot at or target the dwelling. Therefore, the evidence is not sufficient to support a conviction of felony murder predicated on the felony of shooting at a dwelling. State v. Comitz, 2019-NMSC-011.

Sentences for kidnapping and felony murder not double jeopardy. — Sentences for both kidnapping and felony murder did not violate double jeopardy since the kidnapping was sufficiently separated in time and space from the murder to establish two distinct crimes. State v. Kersey, 1995-NMSC-054, 120 N.M. 517, 903 P.2d 828.

Where the conduct underlying defendant's convictions for aggravated kidnapping and first degree felony murder was not unitary, the district court did not violate double jeopardy by convicting and sentencing defendant for both first degree felony murder and aggravated kidnapping. State v. Foster, 1999-NMSC-007, 126 N.M. 646, 974 P.2d 140.

Unitary conduct in commission of murder and robbery. — Since the defendant's conduct in stabbing and robbing a cabdriver was unitary, the elements of armed robbery were subsumed by the elements of felony murder in the course of an armed robbery and conviction and sentencing of the defendant for both felony murder and the underlying felony of armed robbery violated double jeopardy. State v. Contreras, 1995-NMSC-056, 120 N.M. 486, 903 P.2d 228.

Convictions for felony murder and robbery, because they arise out of unitary conduct, violate the defendant's right to be free from double jeopardy. State v. Duffy, 1998-NMSC-014, 126 N.M. 132, 967 P.2d 807.

Where armed robbery provided the underlying felony for defendant's first degree murder conviction, the elements of the former crime were subsumed within the elements of the murder offense and, therefore, reversal of defendant's conviction and sentence for armed robbery was required. State v. Foster, 1999-NMSC-007, 126 N.M. 646, 974 P.2d 140.

Conduct not unitary. — Convictions for both felony murder and armed robbery do not violate double jeopardy principles where the evidence supports an inference that there were two distinct uses of force. State v. Reyes, 2002-NMSC-024, 132 N.M. 576, 52 P.3d 948.

Evidence of holdups inadmissible. — Evidence of two "holdups" perpetrated by defendant just prior to murder for which he is charged, and concerning which there is no evidence of robbery, was inadmissible. Roper v. Territory, 1893-NMSC-026, 7 N.M. 255, 33 P. 1014.

Not felony murder of cofelon where killing committed by resisting victim. — A coperpetrator of a felony cannot be charged under this section with the felony murder of a cofelon when the killing is committed by the intended robbery victim while resisting the commission of the offense. Jackson v. State, 1979-NMSC-013, 92 N.M. 461, 589 P.2d 1052.

Defendant was not entitled to a manslaughter instruction where there was no evidence that the victim was the source of the provocation. — Where defendant was convicted of felony murder, the trial court's refusal to instruct the jury on voluntary manslaughter was not improper where defendant argued at trial that the source of the provocation was his accomplice, not the victim, and it is settled law that the victim of voluntary manslaughter must be the source of the provocation. A third party, such as an accomplice, cannot properly support a provocation defense under New Mexico law, and thus there was no evidence of provocation that could reduce the charge of murder to manslaughter. State v. Sloan, 2019-NMSC-019.

IV. GREATLY DANGEROUS ACTS.

Depraved mind murder requires extremely reckless conduct evidencing indifference for the value of human life. State v. Ibn Omar-Muhammad, 1985-NMSC-006, 102 N.M. 274, 694 P.2d 922.

Indicators of a depraved mind. — The four indicators of a depraved mind are as follows: (1) more than one person was endangered by the defendant's act, (2) the defendant's act was intentional and extremely reckless, (3) the defendant had subjective knowledge that his act was greatly dangerous to the lives of others, and (4) the defendant's act encompassed an intensified malice or evil intent. State v. Candelaria, 2019-NMSC-004.

In defendant's trial for depraved mind murder, there was sufficient evidence to support the conviction where defendant fired a gun at a vehicle occupied by four people, striking and killing an eight-year-old child sitting in the backseat of the vehicle, and where the evidence presented at trial established that defendant admitted firing two shots at the vehicle and that defendant knew that there were multiple people in the vehicle, and from the evidence presented the jury could have reasonably come to the conclusion that defendant acted intentionally, that shooting at a vehicle full of people qualifies as outrageously reckless conduct with a depraved kind of wantonness or total indifference for the value of human life, that defendant's act of shooting at the vehicle was greatly dangerous to the life of more than one person, and that defendant had subjective knowledge of the risk he posed to the lives of those in the vehicle. State v. Candelaria, 2019-NMSC-004.

No such crime as attempted "depraved mind" murder. — The crime of attempted "depraved mind" murder does not exist since in order to convict for such an offense, the jury would have to find that the defendant intended to perpetrate an unintentional killing, a logical impossibility. State v. Johnson, 1985-NMCA-074, 103 N.M. 364, 707 P.2d 1174, cert. quashed, 103 N.M. 344, 707 P.2d 552.

Defendant must subjectively know of risks. — The depraved mind provision of this section requires proof that the defendant had subjective knowledge of the risk involved in his actions. State v. Ibn Omar-Muhammad, 1985-NMSC-006, 102 N.M. 274, 694 P.2d 922.

Subjective knowledge that acts are "greatly dangerous to the lives of others". — Where defendants fired at a truck they presumed was empty, killing the victim inside, subjective knowledge that their acts were greatly dangerous to the lives of others is present if those acts were very risky and, under the circumstances known to them, the defendants should have realized this very high degree of risk. State v. McCrary, 1984-NMSC-005, 100 N.M. 671, 675 P.2d 120.

Intoxication may be considered. — In a prosecution for depraved mind murder, evidence of intoxication may be considered by the jury when determining the required mens rea of "subjective knowledge," and failure to give the defendant's instruction on intoxication was reversible error. State v. Brown, 1996-NMSC-073, 122 N.M. 724, 931 P.2d 69.

Vehicular homicide by reckless conduct is lesser included offense of depraved mind murder by vehicle. State v. Ibn Omar-Muhammad, 1985-NMSC-006, 102 N.M. 274, 694 P.2d 922, modified by State v. Cleve, 1999-NMSC-017, 127 N.M. 240, 980 P.2d 23.

V. SECOND DEGREE MURDER.

Second degree murder statute is designed to discourage and punish the unlawful killing of people. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

General-intent crime. — As a "knowledge crime," second degree murder is a general-intent crime. State v. Campos, 1996-NMSC-043, 122 N.M. 148, 921 P.2d 1266.

Knowledge required of defendant. — Second degree murder requires that the defendant know that his actions create a strong probability of death or great bodily harm. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

The district court erred in modifying the mens rea element in the uniform jury instruction for second-degree murder. — In defendant's trial for second-degree murder, where defendant claimed that he did not know that his shotgun was loaded prior to shooting and killing his friend, the district court erred in accepting the state's modified jury instruction which changed the mens rea element for second-degree murder to "knew or should have known" that defendant's acts created a strong probability of death or great bodily harm to the victim, because adding "should have known" to the mens rea element was a misstatement of law, and when a jury instruction directs the jury to find guilt based upon a misstatement of the law, a finding of juror misdirection is unavoidable. The second-degree murder statute's plain language and New Mexico's uniform jury instructions on second-degree murder require that the defendant possess knowledge of the probable consequences of his or her acts. State v. Suazo, 2017-NMSC-011.

Sufficient evidence supports retrial after reversal of second-degree murder conviction. — Where defendant's conviction for second-degree murder was reversed on appeal, there was sufficient evidence to support a retrial where it was undisputed that defendant killed his friend with a shotgun and there was sufficient evidence to support a reasonable jury's conclusion that, based on ambiguous evidence regarding who loaded the gun and when it was loaded, and the steps defendant took after the crime to conceal evidence, that defendant knew the gun was loaded and knew that pulling the trigger would cause great bodily harm or death to the victim, and that there was not enough evidence to constitute sufficient provocation to reduce the crime to manslaughter. State v. Suazo, 2017-NMSC-011.

Element of deliberation excluded. — The legislature intended to exclude from second degree murder the element of deliberation but not to exclude otherwise intentional killings from that crime; under New Mexico's statutory scheme, murder consists of two categories of intentional killings: those that are willful, deliberate, and premeditated; and those that are committed without such deliberation and premeditation but with knowledge that the killer's acts create a strong probability of death or great bodily harm. State v. Garcia, 1992-NMSC-048, 114 N.M. 269, 837 P.2d 862.

Includes intentional murder. — Fact that 1980 amendments require only the elements of a killing in the performance of an act which the defendant knows creates the requisite probability does not mean that second degree murder excludes intentional murders. State v. Johnson, 1985-NMCA-074, 103 N.M. 364, 707 P.2d 1174, cert. quashed, 103 N.M. 344, 707 P.2d 552.

Mens rea with respect to actual victim not necessary. — To be guilty of second degree murder, it is sufficient that the defendant have the necessary mens rea with respect to the individual toward whom the defendant's lethal act was directed; it is not necessary, however, that the defendant have this mens rea with respect to the actual victim of that act. State v. Lopez, 1996-NMSC-036, 122 N.M. 63, 920 P.2d 1017.

Second degree murder, assisted suicide, not same offense. — The second degree murder statute (Subsection B) is aimed at preventing an individual from actively causing the death of someone contemplating suicide, whereas the assisting suicide statute (Section 30-2-4 NMSA 1978) is aimed at preventing an individual from providing someone contemplating suicide with the means to commit suicide. Thus, the two statutes do not condemn the same offense. State v. Sexson, 1994-NMCA-004, 117 N.M. 113, 869 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 215, 870 P.2d 753.

Suicide pact not exemption from conviction for murder. — The existence of a suicide pact does not exempt someone from a conviction for committing murder. However, that general rule may not apply if the means of attempted suicide used presents the same risk to both of the parties at the same time, such as when a couple drive off a cliff together. Such is not the case when the victim is killed by a rifle, the trigger of which is pulled by the defendant. State v. Sexson, 1994-NMCA-004, 117 N.M. 113, 869 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 215, 870 P.2d 753.

There was enough evidence to support a conviction of second degree murder because there was sufficient evidence to show that the defendant actively participated in a suicide by holding the gun to the victim's head and pulling the trigger. State v. Sexson, 1994-NMCA-004, 117 N.M. 113, 869 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 215, 870 P.2d 753.

Cause of death. — Evidence that defendant orchestrated the beating of the victim, that he used both his fists and a baseball bat to hit the victim, that the victim's condition worsened shortly thereafter, and that the victim died, permitted the jury to make a reasonable inference that the acts of the defendant constituted a significant cause of the victim's death and that there was no other independent event that broke the chain of events from the beating to the victim's death. State v. Huber, 2006-NMCA-087, 140 N.M. 147, 140 P.3d 1096, cert. denied, 2006-NMCERT-007, 140 N.M. 279, 142 P.3d 360.

Sufficient evidence of second degree murder. — Where defendant lived with the victim for approximately one and a half months before the victim disappeared; a few weeks later, the victim's decomposed body was discovered wrapped in a blue air mattress and sheets, and covered with a mattress in an alley approximately 500 feet from defendant's apartment; defendant's parent testified that the parent sent a blue air mattress and a set of sheets to defendant; grid marks on the air mattress resembled the grid marks of a shopping cart; there was a shopping cart at the scene; shopping carts were found in defendant's apartment; DNA found on a pair of jeans near the body provided a possible link between the body and defendant; and the victims' blood was found on the carpet in defendant's apartment, the evidence was sufficient to permit the jury to find defendant guilty of second degree murder. State v. Schwartz, 2014-NMCA-066, cert. denied, 2014-NMCERT-006.

Sufficient evidence of second degree murder. — In defendant's murder trial, where the evidence showed that defendant was in the passenger seat of a truck that drove by the victim's residence, that a witness observed the "muzzle flash" from shots fired from the passenger side window of the truck in which defendant was the passenger, that the shots fired resulted in the victim's death, and where defendant admitted at trial that he knew that shooting in the direction of a group of people in a residential area presented a danger to human life, there was sufficient evidence for a jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant killed the victim and knew that his acts created a strong probability of death or great bodily harm to the victim or any other human being; the evidence was sufficient to support a conviction of second-degree murder. State v. Baroz, 2017-NMSC-030.

VI. MANSLAUGHTER.

Distinction between murder and manslaughter. — To reduce the killing from murder to voluntary manslaughter all that is required is sufficient provocation to excite in the mind of the defendant such emotions as either anger, rage, sudden resentment or terror as may be sufficient to obscure the reason of an ordinary man, and to prevent deliberation and premeditation, and to exclude malice, and to render the defendant incapable of cool reflection. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Manslaughter is included in charge of murder. State v. Rose, 1968-NMSC-091, 79 N.M. 277, 442 P.2d 589, cert. denied, 393 U.S. 1028, 89 S. Ct. 626, 21 L. Ed. 2d 571 (1969); State v. Lopez, 1942-NMSC-064, 46 N.M. 463, 131 P.2d 273; State v. La Boon, 1960-NMSC-118, 67 N.M. 466, 357 P.2d 54.

Under appropriate circumstances, where there is evidence that the defendant acted as a result of sufficient provocation, a charge of manslaughter could properly be said to be included in a charge of murder, and, accordingly, it would not be error to submit N.M.U.J.I. Crim. 2.20 (now see UJI 14-220) to the jury; however, it cannot seriously be maintained that manslaughter is invariably "necessarily included" in murder, since different kinds of proof are required to establish the distinct offenses. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

One indicted of murder could be found guilty of manslaughter, provided there was sufficient evidence on that issue. United States v. Densmore, 1904-NMSC-004, 12 N.M. 99, 75 P. 31.

Effect of unsupported manslaughter conviction. — It is error for the court to submit to the jury an issue of whether defendant was guilty of voluntary manslaughter when the facts establish either first or second degree murder, but could not support a conviction of voluntary manslaughter and, accordingly, upon acquittal of murder and conviction of voluntary manslaughter, a reversal and discharge of the accused is required. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

Instruction not appropriate. — In prosecution for first degree murder, where the uncontradicted evidence was that defendant killed her husband with two and possibly three well placed shots into his person, which shots were fired at close range while the victim was lying down on the couch and while defendant stood over him, immediately after a discussion about the victim leaving the defendant, and that the shots came from a pistol purchased by appellant earlier the day of the homicide, no foundation existed for instruction on involuntary manslaughter. State v. Gardner, 1973-NMSC-034, 85 N.M. 104, 509 P.2d 871, cert. denied, 414 U.S. 851, 94 S. Ct. 145, 38 L. Ed. 2d 100 (1973).

Voluntary manslaughter instruction refused where no provocation. — Defendant could not create the provocation which would reduce murder to manslaughter, and his requested instruction on attempted voluntary manslaughter was therefore properly refused. State v. Durante, 1986-NMCA-024, 104 N.M. 639, 725 P.2d 839.

Defendant in first degree murder prosecution was not entitled to voluntary manslaughter instruction where there was no evidence of provocation on the part of victim. State v. Brown, 1998-NMSC-037, 126 N.M. 338, 969 P.2d 313.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Use of too great force as manslaughter. — Defendant's choice of deadly force when confronted with a possible battery of less than deadly force would sustain a conviction of voluntary manslaughter, but not for murder. State v. McLam, 1970-NMCA-129, 82 N.M. 242, 478 P.2d 570.

VII. DEFENSES.

General rule as to insanity. — The rule of law applicable to the defense of insanity in criminal cases is that, at the time of committing the act, the accused, as a result of disease of the mind, (a) did not know the nature and quality of the act or (b) did not know that it was wrong or (c) was incapable of preventing himself from committing it. State v. White, 1954-NMSC-050, 58 N.M. 324, 270 P.2d 727.

The state met its burden of showing that defendant was sane when he murdered the victim. — Where defendant was convicted of first-degree murder and third-degree criminal sexual penetration (CSP), based on defendant's admission that he killed the victim and then had sexual intercourse with the victim after she died, and where defendant argued that the state failed to present sufficient evidence that he was sane at the time the crimes were committed, but where the state presented expert testimony that although defendant suffered from schizophrenia, he could have prevented himself from committing the crimes, the state met its burden by presenting evidence sufficient for a reasonable juror to find that defendant could have stopped himself from killing the victim, despite defendant's schizophrenia diagnosis. State v. Martinez, 2021-NMSC-012.

Proof of derangement short of insanity. — In a murder trial, proof of mental derangement short of insanity is admissible, as evidence of lack of deliberation or premeditated design; this contemplates full responsibility, but only for the crime actually committed. State v. Padilla, 1959-NMSC-100, 66 N.M. 289, 347 P.2d 312.

Reduction of charge to second degree murder. — The court should have instructed the jury that they might consider mental defects and mental condition in ascertaining whether or not defendant had the power to deliberate the acts charged, so as to reduce the charge from first degree murder to second degree murder. State v. Padilla, 1959-NMSC-100, 66 N.M. 289, 347 P.2d 312.

No reduction of charge to manslaughter. — While a disease or defect of the mind may render an accused incapable of cool deliberation and premeditation and may be sufficient to reduce the charge against him from first to second degree murder, it does not follow that such mental condition may reduce the charge to voluntary manslaughter. State v. Chambers, 1972-NMSC-069, 84 N.M. 309, 502 P.2d 999.

Use of expert evidence on incapacity. — Nothing compels the trier of the facts to disregard the nonexpert testimony and to accept the opinions of defendant's medical experts as to his probable state of mind and incapacity to control his will at the time of committing a criminal act. The jury is not required to accept these expert opinions and disregard all other evidence bearing on the question of his mental and emotional state, nor is the trial court bound to accept these expert opinions and dismiss the charges of first and second degree murder. State v. Smith, 1969-NMCA-016, 80 N.M. 126, 452 P.2d 195.

Voluntary intoxication is no defense to murder in second degree. State v. Gray, 1969-NMCA-102, 80 N.M. 751, 461 P.2d 233; State v. Williams, 1966-NMSC-145, 76 N.M. 578, 417 P.2d 62.

In this state, no specific intent to kill is required for a conviction for second degree murder; hence, voluntary intoxication is no defense to such a charge. State v. Tapia, 1970-NMSC-004, 81 N.M. 274, 466 P.2d 551.

Intoxication may reduce depraved mind murder. — Evidence of intoxication may be considered to reduce first degree depraved mind murder to second degree murder, but it may not be used to reduce second degree murder to voluntary manslaughter or involuntary manslaughter, or to completely excuse the defendant from the consequences of his unlawful act. State v. Brown, 1996-NMSC-073, 122 N.M. 724, 931 P.2d 69.

Jury to determine effect of intoxication. — In a homicide case the defendant is entitled to have the jury determine the degree and effect of his intoxication upon his mental capacity and deliberative powers; however, the evidence as to intoxication must be substantial and must relate to defendant's condition as of the time of the commission of the homicide, or be so closely related in time that it can reasonably be inferred that the condition continued to the time of the commission of the homicide. State v. Williams, 1966-NMSC-145, 76 N.M. 578, 417 P.2d 62.

Lack of justification not element of homicide. — Every killing of a person by another is presumed to be unlawful, and only when it can be shown to be excusable or justifiable will it be held otherwise; when the evidence permits, excuse of justification may be raised as a defense and decided by the fact finder, but initially, the absence of excuse or justification is not an element of homicide to be proven by the prosecution. State v. Noble, 1977-NMSC-031, 90 N.M. 360, 563 P.2d 1153.

Defendant to raise reasonable doubt. — Defendant, of course, did not have the burden of proving that he killed in self-defense. All he was required to do was produce evidence which would raise a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Issue of self-defense for jury. — The line of demarcation between a homicide which amounts to voluntary manslaughter and one which amounts to justifiable homicide in self-defense is not always clearly defined and depends upon the facts of each case as it arises. Those facts are for the jury, under instructions from the court, laying down the principles of law governing the same, as was done in this case. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Defendant not entitled to self-defense instruction. — In defendant's murder trial, where the evidence demonstrated that defendant provoked the situation when defendant and his father drove to the victim's residence and shouted "southside," and where the victim and others in the yard of the residence approached the truck in which defendant was the passenger, it was not reasonable for defendant to have used deadly force, and because defendant voluntarily entered into the situation, he cannot avail himself of the law of self-defense; the district court did not err in rejecting defendant's self-defense instruction. State v. Baroz, 2017-NMSC-030.

Instruction improper. — Defendant in homicide prosecution claiming self-defense was not entitled to instruction on justifiable homicide under belief that deceased was about to have carnal intercourse with defendant's wife. State v. Greenlee, 1928-NMSC-020, 33 N.M. 449, 269 P. 331.

Justifiable killing. — Where defendant was violently assaulted by deceased, and then defendant drew his pistol and fired two shots at deceased which killed him instantly, such killing was not cruel and unusual within statutes defining murder, since the killing was justifiable. Territory v. Fewel, 1888-NMSC-018, 5 N.M. 34, 17 P. 569.

Defense of chastity. — In murder prosecution, the refusal of an instruction that the defense of one's person included, in the case of a woman, the protection of her chastity and that if, under the circumstances, she had reason to believe that the attack would lead to the sexual abuse of her person, she would be justified in using such force as was necessary, even to the extent of taking the life of her assailant, to protect her honor and chastity and her body from sexual abuse, was erroneous where the defense was that accused killed decedent to protect herself from an attempted rape. State v. Martinez, 1924-NMSC-075, 30 N.M. 178, 230 P. 379.

Defense of habitation. — Where defense of habitation was invoked in homicide case, the danger or apparent danger was to be considered from standpoint of prisoner at time shot was fired, and not according to facts as they developed at trial. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

Instruction that injury to dwelling to be felonious so as to justify killing must be of a substantial character constituted prejudicial error. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

Killing in prevention of crime. — A well-founded belief that a known felony was about to be committed will extenuate a homicide committed in prevention of the supposed crime, and this upon a principle of necessity; but when the necessity ceases, and the supposed felon flees, and thereby abandons his proposed design, a killing in pursuit, however well-grounded the belief may be that he intended to commit a felony, will not extenuate the offense of the pursuer. Brown v. Martinez, 1961-NMSC-040, 68 N.M. 271, 361 P.2d 152.

Murder while resisting arrest. — Killing of person making authorized arrest is murder but where the arrest is illegal, the offense is reduced to manslaughter, unless the proof shows express malice toward the deceased. If the outrage of an attempted illegal arrest has not excited the passions, a killing will be murder. Territory v. Lynch, 1913-NMSC-038, 18 N.M. 15, 133 P. 405, overruled by State v. Chamberlain, 1991-NMSC-094, 112 N.M. 723, 819 P.2d 673.

Instruction not proper in absence of awareness of arrest. — Where defendant in homicide case was unaware that an attempt to arrest him was to be made, his action in killing the officer was to be viewed as in any other case, and instruction as to illegality of arrest reducing the offense to manslaughter was properly refused. State v. Middleton, 1920-NMSC-066, 26 N.M. 353, 192 P. 483.

Murder while resisting search. — Homicide committed in resisting deputy sheriff who was searching defendant's house without a warrant was first degree murder if such resistance constituted a felony, as when the deputy had been engaged in serving any process, rule or order of court, or judicial writ, and instruction leaving jury to determine degree of murder was erroneous. State v. Welch, 1933-NMSC-084, 37 N.M. 549, 25 P.2d 211.

VIII. INDICTMENT AND INFORMATION.

Open charge of murder sufficient notice. — A charge of murder in violation of statutes pertaining to first and second degree murder and voluntary and involuntary manslaughter is not a charge of mutually exclusive crimes, nor is it a charge of distinct and separate offenses; rather, the charge is an open charge of murder, a form of charging approved, under which the jury is to be instructed on the degrees of the unlawful killing for which there is evidence, and it gave defendant notice that he must defend against a charge of unlawfully taking a human life. State v. King, 1977-NMCA-042, 90 N.M. 377, 563 P.2d 1170, overruled on other grounds by State v. Reynolds, 1982-NMSC-091, 98 N.M. 527, 650 P.2d 811.

Allegation of murderous intent not required. — Murder indictment may omit direct charge of purpose or intent to kill, as part of overt act alleged as a crime. Territory v. Montoya, 1912-NMSC-015, 17 N.M. 122, 125 P. 622.

Transferred intent need not be charged. — Where the defendant, indicted on an "open" charge of murder, contends that since he was not charged under the specific transferred intent subsection that the instruction on that theory was improper, the defendant misapprehends the nature of this theory. Transferred intent is merely the doctrine that allows the elements of malice or intent to be demonstrated when an "innocent" nonoriginal victim is killed, and therefore, it is not necessary to charge the defendant with transferred intent because the indictment specifically informed the defendant of the crime and what he must be prepared to meet. State v. Hamilton, 1976-NMSC-082, 89 N.M. 746, 557 P.2d 1095.

Aggravating circumstances not alleged. — Death penalty proceedings are not precluded where the indictment does not allege the existence of aggravating circumstances. Since aggravating circumstances are not elements of the crime of murder, an indictment is not deficient for failure to allege them. State v. Morton, 1988-NMCA-063, 107 N.M. 478, 760 P.2d 170 (decided under prior law).

Charge sufficiently specific. — The charge, "by shooting him with a gun," gave defendant sufficient particulars of the offense alleged to enable the defendant to prepare a defense. State v. Smith, 1966-NMSC-128, 76 N.M. 477, 416 P.2d 146.

Adequate charge on cause of victim's death. — An indictment for first degree murder, in other respects sufficient, which concluded in the following language, "did strike and beat the said Juan Trujillo, giving to him, the said Juan Trujillo, in and upon the top of the head of him the said Juan Trujillo, one mortal contusion bruise, fracture and wound, of which said mortal wound, the said Juan Trujillo thence continually languished until . . . he there died" charged that deceased died of the mortal wound alleged to have been inflicted by defendant. Territory v. Lobato, 1913-NMSC-030, 17 N.M. 666, 134 P. 222, aff'd, 242 U.S. 199, 37 S. Ct. 107, 61 L. Ed. 244 (1916).

District attorney may obtain indictment for first degree murder following second degree indictment. — Where a defendant is originally indicted for second degree murder, but later the district attorney reviews the case and decides the evidence supports first degree murder, he may seek and obtain a second indictment, this time for first degree murder. State v. Sena, 1983-NMSC-005, 99 N.M. 272, 657 P.2d 128.

May not charge first degree murder in information based on second degree bind-over. — A prosecutor is not authorized to charge first degree murder in an information based on a magistrate's bind-over order for trial on second degree murder. State v. McCrary, 1982-NMCA-003, 97 N.M. 306, 639 P.2d 593.

Indictment charging first degree murder would support second degree murder conviction. Territory v. McGinnis, 1900-NMSC-019, 10 N.M. 269, 61 P. 208, overruled on other grounds by State v. Deltenre, 1966-NMSC-187, 77 N.M. 497, 424 P.2d 782, cert. denied, 386 U.S. 976, 87 S. Ct. 1171, 18 L. Ed. 2d 136 (1967).

Waiver of indictment not constitutionally required. — Defendant's rights under the fifth and fourteenth amendments to the United States constitution were not violated when his murder prosecution was based upon an information filed by the district attorney, despite the fact that he never waived his right to be tried by indictment. State v. Vaughn, 1971-NMSC-015, 82 N.M. 310, 481 P.2d 98, cert. denied, 403 U.S. 933, 91 S. Ct. 2262, 29 L. Ed. 2d 712 (1971).

Information charging murder sufficient. — Information charging that defendant did "murder" a named person was sufficient apprisal of offense charged. State v. Roy, 1936-NMSC-048, 40 N.M. 397, 60 P.2d 646.

Information permits submission of felony murder. — Under an information charging murder in the ordinary form, it was not improper to permit introduction of proof that murder was committed in perpetrating a felony. State v. Smith, 1947-NMSC-035, 51 N.M. 184, 181 P.2d 800.

Information permits voluntary manslaughter. — Although information charged only first degree murder, submission of voluntary manslaughter was not error. State v. Burrus, 1934-NMSC-036, 38 N.M. 462, 35 P.2d 285.

Appropriate crime charged. — The offense of murder and the offense of child abuse resulting in the child's death are not the same, nor is the same proof required for the two offenses, since generally speaking, murder requires an intent, whereas child abuse does not require an intent, and therefore, the indictment properly charged defendant with first degree murder. State v. Gutierrez, 1975-NMCA-121, 88 N.M. 448, 541 P.2d 628.

IX. EVIDENCE AND PROOF.

Evidence sufficient for conviction. — Where defendant testified that the victim pounded on the door of defendant's house, that the victim stated that the victim would spray defendant's house with bullets, and that as the victim started to drive away, the victim leaned over in a way that made defendant believe that the victim was reaching for a gun; defendant then shot and killed the victim; and there was evidence that the victim had been shot in the back, there was sufficient evidence to permit the jury to determine that defendant was not acting in self-defense or as a result of legally sufficient provocation and to support defendant's conviction of second degree murder. State v. Herrera, 2014-NMCA-007, cert. denied, 2013-NMCERT-012.

Sufficient evidence to prove first-degree murder. — Where defendant was charged with first-degree murder, aggravated burglary, unlawful taking of a motor vehicle, larceny of a firearm, and theft of a credit card, and where the state presented evidence that defendant possessed a rifle of the same caliber used to kill the victim, that he threatened someone with the rifle on the same day of the murder and just across the street from the victim's home, that DNA was present on a water bottle found in the victim's home, that, after the murder, defendant drove the victim's truck, that he attempted to sell the victim's jewelry, that he carried a pistol matching the description of the victim's stolen gun, that he recruited accomplices to use the victim's stolen credit cards and checks to commit additional crimes, that he admitted to multiple people that he shot a woman after he broke into her home, and that he instructed his girlfriend where to find more of the victim's stolen property, there was sufficient evidence that a rational jury could find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant committed the murder. State v. Stallings, 2020-NMSC-019.

Aggravating circumstances outweigh mitigating circumstances. — Standard of proof in the weighting process that the jury must find beyond a reasonable doubt that the aggravating circumstances outweigh the mitigating circumstances is neither constitutionally nor statutorily required. State v. Fry, 2006-NMSC-001, 138 N.M. 700, 126 P.3d 516.

Admission of unavailable accomplice's tape recorded custodial police interview was not harmless error because it provided key evidence directly inculpating defendant convicted of felony murder, and remaining circumstantial evidence against him, although strong, was disputed. State v. Johnson, 2004-NMSC-029, 136 N.M. 348, 98 P.3d 998.

Defendant entitled to details. — A defendant in a murder case is entitled to know the exact date and the approximate time of day, the exact place where the body was found, and a description and identification details of the means or weapon used. State v. Mosley, 1965-NMSC-081, 75 N.M. 348, 404 P.2d 304.

Admissibility of evidence in discretion of court. — The admissibility of evidence is a matter addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court. State v. Armstrong, 1956-NMSC-053, 61 N.M. 258, 298 P.2d 941.

Corpus delicti rule. — A defendant's extrajudicial statements may be used to establish the corpus delicti when the prosecution is able to demonstrate the trustworthiness of the confession and introduce some independent evidence of a criminal act. State v. Wilson, 2011-NMSC-001, 149 N.M. 273, 248 P.3d 315.

Proof of corpus delicti. — Where defendant was charged with first degree abuse of a child resulting in death; the child died without any physical signs of trauma; defendant confessed to suffocating the child with a blanket; the evidence confirmed the statements made by defendant in the confession; the evidence also showed that the child was in normal respiratory and cardiovascular health on the day prior to the child's death, the child had not been breathing before the child was taken to an emergency room even though there was no underlying medical condition that would kill the child, defendant made false statements to police and medical personnel about the child's medical record suggesting that defendant portrayed the child as chronically sick to cover up a crime, and the cause of death was consistent with a blockage to the mouth and nose, the corpus delicti of the crime was established because the evidence corroborated the trustworthiness of defendant's confession and independently showed that the child died from a criminal act. State v. Wilson, 2011-NMSC-001, 149 N.M. 273, 248 P.3d 315.

To prove the corpus delicti in a homicide case, the state must show that the person whose death is alleged is in fact dead and that his death was criminally caused. State v. Coulter, 1973-NMCA-019, 84 N.M. 647, 506 P.2d 804.

In homicide cases the corpus delicti is established upon proof of the death of the person charged in the information or indictment, and that the death was caused by the criminal act or agency of another. State v. Armstrong, 1956-NMSC-053, 61 N.M. 258, 298 P.2d 941.

In homicide cases, if it was shown that person whose death was alleged in indictment was in fact dead, and that his death was criminally caused, the corpus delicti was sufficiently proven; circumstantial evidence would be sufficient, and eyewitness testimony was unnecessary. State v. Chaves, 1921-NMSC-105, 27 N.M. 504, 202 P. 694.

Proof adequate. — Where it is obvious from the evidence that deceased died as a result of wounds inflicted by someone with some sharp object at the time in question, the corpus delicti has been adequately proven. State v. Casaus, 1963-NMSC-194, 73 N.M. 152, 386 P.2d 246.

Effect of lack of proof of corpus delicti. — Where there was no substantial evidence of corpus delicti in homicide case, verdict finding defendant guilty of second degree murder would be set aside on appeal. State v. Woodman, 1920-NMSC-028, 26 N.M. 55, 188 P. 1101.

"Substantial evidence" of cause of death. — Where the pathologist testified that death " . . . was the direct result of complications from the bullet wounds, the complications being infection . . . ," and that the cause of death was gunshot wounds, this is "substantial evidence" as that term has been defined in New Mexico decisions. State v. Ewing, 1968-NMCA-071, 79 N.M. 489, 444 P.2d 1000.

Effect of medical treatment of victim on cause of death. — Surgical operation undertaken to save one from the probable fatal effect of a wound did not preclude homicide conviction unless it clearly appeared that maltreatment of the wound, and not the wound itself, was the sole cause of the death. Territory v. Yee Dan, 1894-NMSC-004, 7 N.M. 439, 37 P. 1101.

Use of circumstantial evidence. — Circumstantial evidence is sufficient to establish guilt in a prosecution for homicide; those circumstances must point unerringly to the defendant and be incompatible with and exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than guilt. State v. Coulter, 1973-NMCA-019, 84 N.M. 647, 506 P.2d 804.

Threats made by accused admissible. — Threats made by accused to kill some person not definitely designated were admissible with other explanatory matter on issue of corpus delicti especially when made shortly before commission of crime. State v. Martinez, 1919-NMSC-022, 25 N.M. 328, 182 P. 868.

Evidence of motive. — Evidence of facts which could not operate on mind of defendant were inadmissible to show motive. State v. Allen, 1920-NMSC-015, 25 N.M. 682, 187 P. 559.

Deceased's reputation and disposition. — Trial court in second degree murder prosecution properly excluded proffered testimony which defense wanted to use to corroborate the testimony of other witnesses which showed the deceased's reputation and disposition for fighting, his violent temper and his conduct as a bully. State v. Snow, 1972-NMCA-138, 84 N.M. 399, 503 P.2d 1177, cert. denied, 84 N.M. 390, 503 P.2d 1168.

Escape evidence admitted to show depraved mind. — District court did not abuse its discretion in determining that evidence of defendant's unauthorized departure from a Colorado juvenile detention facility was admissible at his trial for murder, where the court properly could have concluded that defendant's reasons for eluding the police were circumstantial evidence relevant to the jury's determination of whether his acts indicated a depraved mind regardless of human life and whether he had a subjective knowledge of the risk involved in his actions. State v. Omar-Muhammad, 1987-NMSC-043, 105 N.M. 788, 737 P.2d 1165.

Polygraph test results. — Polygraph test results may be admitted when qualifications of the polygraph operator establish his expertise, there is testimony to establish the reliability of the testing procedure employed as approved by the authorities in the field and there is evidence to show the validity of the tests made on the particular subject. However, requirements that polygraph tests be stipulated to by both parties and that no objection be made at trial to their introduction are mechanistic, inconsistent with due process and repugnant to the New Mexico rules of evidence. State v. Dorsey, 1975-NMSC-040, 88 N.M. 184, 539 P.2d 204 (affirming court of appeals, which had ruled polygraph results offered by defendant admissible to show intent and provocation); aff'g, 1975-NMCA-022, 87 N.M. 323, 532 P.2d 912.

Photographs of body. — Question of inflammation and possible prejudice, created by admission into evidence of photographs of body of alleged victim in murder trial, is left to the discretion of the trial judge absent a showing of abuse of that discretion. State v. Gardner, 1973-NMSC-034, 85 N.M. 104, 509 P.2d 871, cert. denied, 414 U.S. 851, 94 S. Ct. 145, 38 L. Ed. 2d 100 (1973).

The admission into evidence in a murder trial of photographs of the decedent taken during her autopsy is proper if they are reasonably relevant to material issues in the trial, showing the identity of the victim, and the number and location of the wounds inflicted upon her body. State v. Ho'o, 1982-NMCA-158, 99 N.M. 140, 654 P.2d 1040, cert. denied, 99 N.M. 148 655 P.2d 160.

Photographs of the body of the victim were relevant to the issues of the case in that they were used by the doctors to describe the injuries and condition of the body, and served to clarify and illustrate the testimony of witnesses and to corroborate other evidence. The admission of photographs into evidence rests within the sound discretion of the trial court and absent a showing of an abuse the trial court's discretion will not be disturbed. State v. Coulter, 1973-NMCA-019, 84 N.M. 647, 506 P.2d 804.

Admission of hearsay constitutionally impermissible under circumstances. — Admission of extra-judicial statements attributed to children of murder victim was reversible error where the children were not called as witnesses, because defendant was thereby denied his constitutional right of confrontation. State v. Lunn, 1971-NMCA-048, 82 N.M. 526, 484 P.2d 368.

Effect of admission of illegal evidence. — In prosecution for first or second degree murder under Laws 1891, ch. 80, §§ 4, 5, 1063, 1064, 1897 C.L., repealed by Laws 1907, ch. 36, § 23, verdict of first degree murder could not stand unless it was apparent that no injury resulted from admission of illegal evidence. Territory v. Armijo, 1894-NMSC-003, 7 N.M. 428, 37 P. 1113.

Transcript of taped confession. — Where the state conceded (during closing arguments) that the transcript of defendant's taped confession was erroneous, and the district court, counsel for the prosecution, and the defense counsel urged the jury to rely upon the tapes over the transcript as evidence, any misleading statements in the transcript were adequately corrected so that defendant's due process rights were not violated. State v. Boeglin, 1987-NMSC-002, 105 N.M. 247, 731 P.2d 943.

Accomplice testimony sufficient. — Evidence, consisting primarily of accomplice testimony, was sufficient to allow a reasonable jury to find that defendant participated in a conspiracy to commit a murder, and actually participated in the murder, as well as the attempted murder of another victim. State v. Sarracino, 1998-NMSC-022, 125 N.M. 511, 964 P.2d 72.

Evidence that defendant and the defendant's accomplice threw victim into the well while he was alive, then covered and finally resealed the well supports an inference that they reached an agreement to kill victim in the course of the robbery, and that both intended his death, supports the jury's verdict of guilty of first degree (felony) murder. State v. Lopez, 2005-NMSC-036, 138 N.M. 521, 123 P.3d 754. overruled on other grounds by State v. Frawley, 2007-NMSC-057, 143 N.M. 7, 172 P.3d 144.

Sufficient evidence of first-degree willful, deliberate and premediated murder. — Where defendant was charged with first-degree murder, and where at trial, defendant's first wife testified that defendant brought her to the crime scene to help him locate the shotgun shells used in the murder, that she saw the victim's body lying face down on the floor of the boxcar where the victim lived, that she knew defendant destroyed or concealed the clothes and shoes he wore during the murder, and that she lied to police about defendant's role in the killing because she was afraid of him, and where defendant's second wife testified that defendant told her that he shot the victim because the victim molested defendant's first wife when she was a teenager, and where an expert witness's testimony, that the victim died of being shot in the head with a shotgun fired at close range, corroborated defendant's ex-wives' testimony, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction for willful, deliberate and premeditated murder. State v. Gutierrez, 2021-NMSC-008.

Evidence sufficient for conviction. — Where defendant admitted that defendant shot toward a house multiple times with two different weapons while a party was in progress; other witnesses testified that defendant opened fire on the house without any one firing back at defendant; and the shots defendant fired at the house killed one victim, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's felony murder conviction. State v. Torrez, 2013-NMSC-034.

Where, following a fight at a bar between the victim and a conspirator, defendant and a conspirator assaulted the victim at a conspirator's residence and tied the victim up; defendant guarded the victim with a knife; another conspirator gave the victim an overdose of heroin; defendant and conspirators carried the victim to the victim's car and drove the car to a church; the victim was still alive; defendant tried three times to snap the victim's neck, a conspirator tried to suffocate the victim with a plastic bag, and defendant tried to strangle the victim with the victim's shoelaces; defendant and the conspirators left the church; after consulting with other conspirators, defendant and a conspirator returned to the church and set the victim and the victim's car on fire; and the victim's death was caused by the drug overdose and the fire, there was substantial evidence that defendant willfully, deliberately murdered the victim. State v. Gallegos, 2011-NMSC-027, 149 N.M. 704, 254 P.3d 655.

Evidence that on the day deceased was shot, defendant visited the deceased's home on three different occasions, an argument developing between the two during the second visit and that when defendant returned for the third time he shot a witness and the deceased, along with the inferences the jury was entitled to draw from the evidence, was sufficient to sustain conviction of first degree murder. State v. Riggsbee, 1973-NMSC-109, 85 N.M. 668, 515 P.2d 964.

Where defendant had armed himself with a rock before entering victim's apartment, admitted striking the victim with the rock when she caught him in the house, and stated that she fell and hit her head against a table, the facts and circumstances unerringly established appellant's guilt of first degree murder beyond any reasonable doubt. State v. Jimenez, 1972-NMSC-073, 84 N.M. 335, 503 P.2d 315; State v. Sanders, 1994-NMSC-043, 117 N.M. 452, 872 P.2d 870; State v. Rojo, 1999-NMSC-001, 126 N.M. 438, 971 P.2d 829; State v. Trujillo, 2002-NMSC-005, 131 N.M. 709, 42 P.3d 814.

There was sufficient evidence to support a conviction for second degree murder where there was testimony that the defendant was present at the stabbing scene and argued with the victim, the knife belonged to the defendant, a witness saw the defendant with the knife, observed him open it, and testified that he washed blood off of it and instructed the witness to dispose of it, and where nobody else was involved in the altercation, the medical examiner testified that the fatal stab wound could have been made with the defendant's knife, and the defendant was apprehended fleeing from the scene shortly after the stabbing occurred. State v. Gurule, 2004-NMCA-008, 134 N.M. 804, 82 P.3d 975.

Where defendant was upset and depressed after defendant's girlfriend ended their six-year relationship; defendant made futile attempts to reconcile with defendant's girlfriend; defendant was obsessive about the relationship; defendant's girlfriend began dating the victim; defendant moved to California; while defendant was in California, defendant made statements to a witness in New Mexico that defendant was returning to New Mexico because defendant "didn't take care of things" before defendant left New Mexico and how defendant would "just get everything done"; when defendant returned to New Mexico, defendant broke into defendant's girlfriend's apartment and left a letter stating that defendant wished to reconcile and making threats regarding the victim; on the day of the murder, defendant and the victim began to argue about defendant's girlfriend; defendant went into defendant's apartment and immediately came running out of the apartment yelling "I'll kill you" as defendant began to shoot at the victim; defendant shot first about thirty-eight feet away from the victim and then ran towards the victim and fired four or five more shots; and defendant fired two shots less than four inches from the victim and then shot the victim a final time as the victim was attempting to escape from a car, there was substantial evidence to support the jury's conclusion that defendant killed the victim with deliberate intent. State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Sufficient evidence of first-degree murder. — Where defendant was convicted of two counts of first-degree murder, there was sufficient evidence to support the conviction where cell phone records showed that defendant and one of the shooting victims were in contact on the night of the murders, that text messages from the victim to defendant showed that the victim was upset with defendant, which could support an inference of a conflict between the two, where cell phone tower records indicated that defendant was in the area where the victim was murdered at the approximate time when the murders were believed to have occurred, and where a witness reported seeing defendant with a firearm only a few hours after the approximate time of the murders. State v. Carrillo, 2017-NMSC-023.

Sufficient evidence of first-degree murder and attempted first-degree murder. — Where defendant was convicted of first-degree murder and attempted first-degree murder, and where the state presented evidence at trial that defendant spent the day before the murder with another man who had a motive to kill the victim, that defendant secured for himself and the other man a ride to the apartment complex where the victim lived, that defendant and the other man disappeared from sight before gunshots were heard, that defendant and the other man were seen running back to their vehicle before driving off, and that occupants of the vehicle testified that defendant smelled like burnt matches, which is similar to the smell of gunpowder, there was sufficient evidence to support a jury finding that defendant had the deliberate intent to kill the victim, that he helped in the planning of the crime, and that he actively participated in the actual attempt to kill the victim. State v. Torres, 2018-NMSC-013.

Limitations to felony murder doctrine. — While the wording of this section is broad, New Mexico has created five main limitations to the felony murder doctrine to ensure that defendants convicted of felony murder have a culpable mental state consistent with the legislature's retributive and punitive goals. State v. O'Kelly, 2004-NMCA-013, 135 N.M. 40, 84 P.3d 88, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-001, 137 N.M. 17, 106 P.3d 578.

Accomplices. — A defendant may not be held liable for depraved mind murder when he or his accomplice did not commit the lethal act that killed an innocent bystander. State v. O'Kelly, 2004-NMCA-013, 135 N.M. 40, 84 P.3d 88, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-001, 137 N.M. 17, 106 P.3d 578.

Evidence that defendant and the defendant's accomplice threw victim into the well while he was alive, then covered and finally resealed the well supports an inference that they reached an agreement to kill victim in the course of the robbery, and that both intended his death, supports the jury's verdict of guilty of first degree (felony) murder. State v. Lopez, 2005-NMSC-036, 138 N.M. 521, 123 P.3d 754, overruled on other grounds by State v. Frawley, 2007-NMSC-057, 143 N.M. 7, 172 P.3d 144.

X. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

Requisites of instructions. — All that can be required of court's instructions is that they properly give to the jury the essential facts which must be established beyond a reasonable doubt before the defendant can be convicted. State v. Anaya, 1969-NMSC-130, 80 N.M. 695, 460 P.2d 60.

Failure to define crime. — An instruction on second degree murder which did not define the offense was insufficient. Territory v. Gutierrez, 1905-NMSC-018, 13 N.M. 138, 79 P. 716.

Instruction on motive required. — Where all the evidence is circumstantial and there is no proof of motive, it was incumbent on trial judge to present a properly framed instruction on motive, instructing the jury that absence of evidence thereof should be considered along with all other circumstances in determining guilt or innocence of one accused of murder. State v. Vigil, 1975-NMSC-013, 87 N.M. 345, 533 P.2d 578.

Offenses submitted depend on supporting evidence. — Defendant in murder trial had the right to have instructions on lesser included offenses submitted to the jury, but this right depended on there being some evidence tending to establish the lesser included offenses. State v. Anaya, 1969-NMSC-130, 80 N.M. 695, 460 P.2d 60.

The court was only required to charge as to such degrees of murder as evidence tended to sustain. It was the duty of the court to charge as to all such degrees, and failure to do so was error. Territory v. Romero, 1883-NMSC-006, 2 N.M. 474.

An accused is entitled to an instruction on second degree murder if there is some evidence in the record to support it. State v. Stephens, 1979-NMSC-076, 93 N.M. 458, 601 P.2d 428, overruled in part on other grounds by State v. Contreras, 1995-NMSC-056, 120 N.M. 486, 903 P.2d 228.

Evidence to support instruction on intoxication. — To authorize an instruction on intoxication the record must contain some evidence showing or tending to show that defendant consumed an intoxicant and that the intoxicant affected his mental state at or near the time of the homicide. The instruction does not, however, require expert evidence regarding the effect of intoxication upon defendant's ability to form a deliberate intent to kill. State v. Privett, 1986-NMSC-025, 104 N.M. 79, 717 P.2d 55.

Testimony from accomplices that murder defendant had consumed alcohol and methamphetamine on the evening of the murder, and expert testimony about the effect of those substances on the ability to form intent, was sufficient to warrant an instruction on intoxication. State v. Begay, 1998-NMSC-029, 125 N.M. 541, 964 P.2d 102.

Voluntary intoxication instruction was not appropriate for second degree murder. — Where defendant, who had consumed a large quantify of alcohol and who was walking along a ditch with friends, encountered the victim; the friend began punching and kicking the victim; defendant provided the friend with a knife that the friend used to fatally stab the victim; and at trial, defendant requested an instruction on voluntary intoxication; and defendant was acquitted of conspiring to commit first degree murder and convicted of being an accessory to second degree murder, the voluntary intoxication instruction was not appropriate in the context of accessory liability for second degree murder, because second degree murder is a general intent crime. State v. Jim, 2014-NMCA-089, cert. denied, 2014-NMCERT-006.

Where defendant, who had consumed a large quantify of alcohol and who was walking along a ditch with friends, encountered the victim; the friend began punching and kicking the victim; defendant provided the friend with a knife that the friend used to fatally stab the victim; and at trial, defendant requested an instruction on voluntary intoxication; and defendant was acquitted of conspiring to commit first degree murder and convicted of being an accessory to second degree murder, the voluntary intoxication instruction was not appropriate in the context of accessory liability for second degree murder, because second degree murder is a general intent crime. State v. Jim, 2014-NMCA-089, cert. denied, 2014-NMCERT-006.

Submission of first degree charge required. — As there was evidence to the effect that the killing occurred while the defendant was in the commission of or an attempt to commit robbery, there was evidence from which the jury could have found that the homicide was committed while in the act of perpetrating a felony and the submission of the charge of first degree murder became a statutory mandate. State v. Torres, 1971-NMSC-039, 82 N.M. 422, 483 P.2d 303, overruled on other grounds by State v. Wilson, 1973-NMSC-093, 85 N.M. 552, 514 P.2d 603. But see State v. Harrison, 1977-NMSC-038, 90 N.M. 439, 564 P.2d 1321.

Where the defendant was engaged in committing a felony at time gun was accidentally discharged, trial court did not err in instructing that under the circumstances the accidental discharge did not reduce the homicide below first degree murder. State v. Smith, 1947-NMSC-035, 51 N.M. 184, 181 P.2d 800.

Under former law, it was not error for court to charge that there was no evidence to show that the killing of the deceased was justifiable, or that there was any circumstance to bring it within the definition of any degree of murder less than the first where all evidence showed that the killing took place during a robbery. Territory v. Romero, 1883-NMSC-006, 2 N.M. 474.

Depraved mind instruction held improper. — Where defendant was charged with depraved mind murder involving a motor vehicle and the trial court instructed the jury that to find defendant guilty of first degree murder, the jury had to find that defendant drove defendant's vehicle erratically and recklessly for a long distance striking the victims, the jury instruction misstated the law on depraved mind murder, because the instruction did not require the jury to find that defendant's conduct was extremely reckless. State v. Dowling, 2011-NMSC-016, 150 N.M. 110, 257 P.3d 930.

Defendant has burden to introduce evidence for lesser included offense instruction. — The defendant has the burden to come forward with evidence establishing sufficient provocation in order to be entitled to an instruction on voluntary manslaughter as a lesser included offense. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Instruction on lesser degree improper. — Where state established a case which would have sustained conviction of first degree murder, instruction of the court permitting conviction of second degree murder was reversible error. State v. Reed, 1934-NMSC-085, 39 N.M. 44, 39 P.2d 1005.

Where evidence on charge of first degree murder did not tend to reduce crime to murder in the second degree, court was not authorized to instruct on second degree murder. State v. Granado, 1913-NMSC-017, 17 N.M. 542, 131 P. 497.

Where evidence showed either first degree murder or excusable homicide, it was proper to instruct the jury that in their verdict they must either find defendant guilty of first degree murder or not guilty, and court properly refused to give instructions in the second or third degrees. Sandoval v. Territory, 1896-NMSC-020, 8 N.M. 573, 45 P. 1125 (decided under prior law).

In murder prosecution, where evidence showed either murder in the first degree, or nothing, court properly instructed on first degree murder only. Faulkner v. Territory, 1892-NMSC-015, 6 N.M. 464, 30 P. 905.

Refusal by the trial court to give an instruction on second degree murder is appropriate when the evidence simply did not support a finding of second degree murder. There was no evidence that the killing was anything less than deliberate and intentional. State v. Aguilar, 1994-NMSC-046, 117 N.M. 501, 873 P.2d 247, cert. denied, 513 U.S. 859, 115 S. Ct. 168, 130 L. Ed. 2d 105, and cert. denied, 513 U.S. 865, 115 S. Ct. 182, 130 L. Ed. 2d 116 (1994).

Instructions on lesser degree mandatory. — Where there was no eyewitness to killing and death resulted from gunshot wound, and there was no evidence showing the murder was by poison or torture or lying in wait, or that it was perpetrated in committing, or attempting to commit a felony, failure to instruct jury other than on first degree murder was reversible error. Territory v. Padilla, 1896-NMSC-013, 8 N.M. 510, 46 P. 346; Aguilar v. Territory, 1896-NMSC-012, 8 N.M. 496, 46 P. 342.

Adequate felony murder instruction described. — A jury instruction which requires the state to prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, a causal relationship between the felony committed and the death of the victim is adequate. State v. Perrin, 1979-NMSC-050, 93 N.M. 73, 596 P.2d 516.

Failure to instruct on the defining element of felony murder is fundamental error. - In a felony murder prosecution where the evidence will support a conviction for either second-degree murder or voluntary manslaughter, it is fundamental error for the felony murder essential elements jury instruction to omit the defining requirement that the accused did not act in the heat of passion as a result of the legally adequate provocation that would reduce murder to manslaughter. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426.

Where defendant and defendant's companions were accosted by a rival gang in front of defendant's family home, guns were pulled on both sides and defendant's sibling was severely wounded by gunshots in the leg and abdomen; while defendant's group were trying to help defendant's sibling in the driveway and stop the bleeding, the person in the rival gang who had been shooting at defendant and defendant's companions returned in a Ford Expedition; when defendant saw gunfire coming from the Expedition, defendant ran into the house and retrieved an AK-47 rifle and began shooting at the Expedition; the driver of Expedition was shot seven times and died; the jury was instructed to consider felony murder based on the felony of shooting at the Expedition; the felony murder essential elements instruction omitted any reference to the concept of legally sufficient provocation that distinguished heat of passion voluntary manslaughter from cold blooded second degree murder; and there was ample evidence that the victim's provocative conduct against defendant and defendant's family occurred before defendant shot into the Expedition, the failure to include the distinction between second degree murder and voluntary manslaughter was fundamental error. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426.

Instruction on intent when intent clear. — Failure to include the essential element of intent in a jury instruction for felony murder did not constitute fundamental error since the evidence was such that there could be no dispute that the defendant possessed the requisite intent. State v. Livernois, 1997-NMSC-019, 123 N.M. 128, 934 P.2d 1057.

Evidence of premeditation. — Evidence that defendant had talked on numerous occasions of committing violent acts, including murder, and had made such statements on the night of the murder, was sufficient to establish premeditation. State v. Begay, 1998-NMSC-029, 125 N.M. 541, 964 P.2d 102.

Waiver of instructions on lesser included offenses. — Consistent with the constitutional guarantees of a fair trial, the defendant in a first degree murder prosecution may take his chances with the jury by waiving instructions on lesser included offenses, even against the express advice of counsel, and cannot be heard to complain on appeal if he has gambled and lost. State v. Boeglin, 1987-NMSC-002, 105 N.M. 247, 731 P.2d 943.

Missing element cured by separate instruction. — Trial court did not commit fundamental error by omitting the element of unlawfulness from the elements instruction on deliberate-intent first degree murder when the jury also received a separate proper instruction on self-defense. State v. Cunningham, 2000-NMSC-009, 128 N.M. 711, 998 P.2d 176.

First and second degree properly submitted. — Where there was evidence presented which tended to indicate that sufficient time elapsed during which the defendant could have weighed his actions and considered their consequences and that the shooting was not in the heat of argument, instructions on first and second degree murder were proper. State v. Aragon, 1973-NMCA-102, 85 N.M. 401, 512 P.2d 974.

Absent request for instruction, no fundamental error. — Where the defendant does not request that an instruction be given and, consequently, it is not given, the trial court does not commit a fundamental error. State v. Stephens, 1979-NMSC-076, 93 N.M. 458, 601 P.2d 428, overruled in part on other grounds by State v. Contreras, 1995-NMSC-056, 120 N.M. 486, 903 P.2d 228.

Submission of second degree generally required, in absence of exceptions. — Except in a case where the very means employed in committing a homicide, as by torture, poison or lying in wait supply proof of the deliberation, the intensified malice, necessary to raise the grade of the offense to first degree as a matter of law, or unless it be one committed in the perpetration of, or attempt to perpetrate, a felony where by legislative fiat the circumstances under which the killing occurred render conclusive the presence of such deliberation, it is always necessary to submit second degree and thus permit the jury to say whether it is the one or the other - first or second degree. State v. Ortega, 1966-NMSC-185, 77 N.M. 7, 419 P.2d 219.

It was necessary to submit second as well as first degree murder to jury to permit them to determine degree of murder except when means employed in perpetrating crime supplied proof of deliberation or when homicide was committed in perpetrating or attempting another felony. State v. Kappel, 1949-NMSC-024, 53 N.M. 181, 204 P.2d 443.

Second degree instruction on intent. — In a prosecution for felony murder, giving of an unmodified form of UJI 14-210 on second degree murder, which allows for a verdict of guilt provided that, among other things, the state has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that "[t]he defendant intended the killing to occur or knew that he was helping to create a strong probability of death or great bodily harm" was sufficient without giving a general criminal intent instruction, which requires a higher level of criminal intent. State v. Nieto, 2000-NMSC-031, 129 N.M. 688, 12 P.3d 442.

Second degree instruction with sudden impulse theory. — Where confession of accused had been admitted and in it he stated that he had killed his wife on sudden impulse, it was error to refuse to instruct on second degree murder. State v. Wickman, 1935-NMSC-035, 39 N.M. 198, 43 P.2d 933.

Second degree instruction with self-defense theory. — Where prosecution attempted to prove first degree murder, perpetrated by lying in wait, and defendant pleaded self-defense, the court properly instructed jury on murder in the second degree. State v. Smith, 1921-NMSC-014, 26 N.M. 482, 194 P. 869.

Failure to instruct on second degree. — When the defendant was convicted of felony murder and related crimes, the refusal to give an instruction on second degree murder was correct because the state proved a nexus between two felonies and the murder that excluded the possibility the murder was not committed in the commission of a felony. State v. McGruder, 1997-NMSC-023, 123 N.M. 302, 940 P.2d 150.

Self-defense instruction refused where defendant entered store with weapon, prepared to rob. — Where the defendant entered a store with a weapon, prepared to commit armed robbery if the circumstances permitted it, such facts can only reasonably point to the commission of a felony in a situation which is, of itself, "inherently or foreseeably dangerous to human life," and a self-defense instruction is properly refused. State v. Chavez, 1983-NMSC-037, 99 N.M. 609, 661 P.2d 887.

Instruction on defense of another. — Where defendant and the occupants of a house exchanged multiple gun shots; the shots defendant fired at the house killed one victim; defendant was tried for first degree murder with the predicate felony of shooting at a dwelling; defendant requested a jury instruction on defense of another on the grounds that shots from the house were fired in the direction of defendant's vehicle where two of defendant's friends were waiting; defendant's friends testified that they were not aware of any bullets reaching the vicinity of the car; defendant testified that defendant shot back at the house because people in the house were shooting at defendant; and there was no evidence that defendant shot to protect anyone other than defendant, the district court did not err in refusing to instruct on defense of another. State v. Torrez, 2013-NMSC-034.

Question as to manner of killing. — Where evidence presented jury question as to manner in which killing occurred, instruction on second degree murder was properly given although state contended that crime constituted first degree murder. State v. Parks, 1919-NMSC-041, 25 N.M. 395, 183 P. 433.

It was not error to submit issue of second degree murder, where the accused was convicted of a degree of crime properly within the evidence. State v. Armstrong, 1956-NMSC-053, 61 N.M. 258, 298 P.2d 941.

Failure to instruct on lesser included offense of vehicular homicide. — District court committed reversible error in refusing to instruct the jury on the lesser included offense of vehicular homicide, where the evidence of the defendant's use of marijuana the night before and the morning of the killing could have supported a conviction of vehicular homicide while under the influence of drugs. State v. Omar-Muhammad, 1987-NMSC-043, 105 N.M. 788, 737 P.2d 1165.

Aggravated battery lesser included offense of attempted murder. — In a prosecution for attempted murder, the trial court properly instructed the jury on aggravated battery as a lesser included offense at the state's request, because the elements of the lesser crime were a subset of the elements of the charged crime and, further, the defendant could not have committed the greater offense in the manner charged in the indictment without also committing the lesser offense. State v. Meadors, 1995-NMSC-073, 121 N.M. 38, 908 P.2d 731.

Convictions of attempted murder and aggravated battery violated double jeopardy. — Where defendant was convicted of attempted murder and aggravated battery with a deadly weapon; defendant's conduct was unitary; the indictment for attempted murder required the state to prove that defendant attempted to commit murder and "began to do an act which constituted a substantial part of murder" but failed to commit the offense; the indictment for aggravated battery required the state to prove that defendant touched or applied force to the victims with a deadly weapon intending to injure the victims; the state's theory of the case to support both charges was that defendant beat, stabbed, and slashed the victims; and the state offered the same testimony to prove both charges, the aggravated battery elements were subsumed within the attempted murder elements and defendant's convictions violated the prohibition against double jeopardy. State v. Swick, 2012-NMSC-018, 279 P.3d 747, rev'g 2010-NMCA-098, 148 N.M. 895, 242 P.3d 462, overruling State v. Armendariz, 2006-NMSC-036, 140 N.M. 182, 141 P.3d 526.

Failure to instruct on aggravated battery. — The jury found the defendant guilty of attempted first degree murder, in that he had a deliberate intention to take the life of the victim, not that he simply had knowledge that his acts created a strong probability of great bodily harm. The jury having thus failed to find the lesser included offense of attempted murder in the second degree, the failure to instruct on aggravated battery was harmless. State v. Escamilla, 1988-NMSC-066, 107 N.M. 510, 760 P.2d 1276.

When court has no duty to instruct on voluntary manslaughter. — Where neither prosecution nor defense in a murder trial requested an instruction on voluntary manslaughter, and both defendant and counsel stated that they did not desire such an instruction despite the court's explanation that there was sufficient evidence to warrant it, there was no duty for the trial court to instruct on voluntary manslaughter. State v. Najar, 1980-NMCA-033, 94 N.M. 193, 608 P.2d 169, cert. denied, 94 N.M. 628, 614 P.2d 545.

No instruction on provocation. — Defendant was not entitled to instructions specifically relating to his theory that a police officer's search of his house was illegal and constituted provocation so as to reduce murder to manslaughter. State v. Chamberlain, 1991-NMSC-094, 112 N.M. 723, 819 P.2d 673.

Instruction on manslaughter improper. — It was error for the court to submit to the jury an issue of whether defendant was guilty of voluntary manslaughter when the facts established either first or second degree murder, but could not support a conviction of voluntary manslaughter and, accordingly, upon acquittal of murder and conviction of voluntary manslaughter, a reversal and discharge of the accused was required. State v. Lopez, 1968-NMSC-092, 79 N.M. 282, 442 P.2d 594.

Where evidence in prosecution for murder made it clear that defendant did not kill deceased "upon a sudden quarrel, or in the heat of passion," or "in the commission of an unlawful act not amounting to a felony," or "of a lawful act which might produce death in an unlawful manner, or without due caution and circumspection," so as to make the act "manslaughter," instruction on manslaughter was not warranted. Territory v. Archuleta, 1911-NMSC-028, 16 N.M. 219, 114 P. 285.

Instruction on voluntary manslaughter improper. — Where defendant, who was walking along a ditch with friends, encountered the victim; defendant's friend began punching and kicking the victim; defendant provided the friend with a knife that the friend used to fatally stab the victim; defendant was convicted of second degree murder; defendant argued that the district court should have instructed the jury on voluntary manslaughter because defendant was provoked by the instigation of the fight by defendant's friends, defendant perceived the victim to be a member of a rival gang that was responsible for a stabbing attack on defendant's friend that occurred within the preceding weeks, and the victim's reaction to the attack provoked defendant's response, defendant failed to establish sufficient provocation to support a voluntary manslaughter instruction. State v. Jim, 2014-NMCA-089, cert. denied, 2014-NMCERT-006.

Various theories submitted. — Where the evidence on provocation sufficient to reduce the killing from murder to voluntary manslaughter and the evidence of self-defense was conflicting, such questions were factual ones to be resolved by the jury, and the trial court properly submitted the issues of second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter and self-defense to the jury. State v. King, 1977-NMCA-042, 90 N.M. 377, 563 P.2d 1170, overruled on other grounds by State v. Reynolds, 1982-NMSC-091, 98 N.M. 527, 650 P.2d 811.

Overinclusive instruction intolerably confusing. — Defendant convicted of first degree murder for killing the victim by striking her with a cinder block after allegedly raping her was entitled to reversal of conviction, even in absence of objection by defendant at trial, where evidence supported judge's instruction on willful, deliberate or premeditated killing, but did not support instructions on theories of felony murder; murder by act dangerous to others, indicating depraved mind; or murder from deliberate and premeditated design unlawfully and maliciously to effect death of any human being (transferred intent). Such error was fundamental, since an intolerable amount of confusion was introduced into the case, and defendant could have been convicted without proof of all necessary elements. State v. DeSantos, 1976-NMSC-034, 89 N.M. 458, 553 P.2d 1265.

Overinclusiveness reversible error. — Where defendant was indicted only under Subsection A(3) of this section (for felony murder), it was reversible error to include the willful, deliberate language of Subsection A(1) in the jury instructions. State v. Trivitt, 1976-NMSC-004, 89 N.M. 162, 548 P.2d 442.

Confusing instruction on self-defense, critical issue in case, required reversal. State v. Garcia, 1971-NMCA-121, 83 N.M. 51, 487 P.2d 1356.

Confusing instruction raised on appeal. — Giving of a confusing instruction on second degree murder which first included, then excluded, premeditation, was jurisdictional error, and could be first raised on appeal. State v. Buhr, 1971-NMCA-017, 82 N.M. 371, 482 P.2d 74.

Objections to form must be preserved. — Where instructions on second degree murder included the elements of the offense, without uncertainty, and were not misleading, they contained neither jurisdictional defect nor fundamental error; asserted inadequacy as to their form, not called to the attention of the trial court, was not preserved for review. State v. Moraga, 1971-NMCA-103, 82 N.M. 750, 487 P.2d 178.

Error in instructions harmless. — Although the jury, not the judge or the district attorney, was to determine the sentence imposed for first degree murder, so that the trial court was in error in failing to submit to the jury a form of verdict calling for the death sentence, the error was harmless and could not be prejudicial to the accused. State v. Sanchez, 1954-NMSC-010, 58 N.M. 77, 265 P.2d 684.

Failure to instruct on lesser charges upheld. — In the murder trial of a prisoner for killing a guard in which the death penalty was sought but not imposed, there was no fundamental miscarriage of justice because of the failure to instruct on second degree murder and voluntary manslaughter with respect to the officer's death, even though as an initial matter the evidence might have been sufficient to support such instructions, where the evidence supporting these lesser included offense instructions was not "unequivocally strong." Trujillo v. Sullivan, 815 F.2d 597 (10th Cir.), cert. denied, 484 U.S. 929, 108 S. Ct. 296, 98 L. Ed. 2d 256 (1987) (decided under prior law).

Refusal of cumulative instructions. — Where the trial court instructed the jury as to the statutory definition of murder in the first degree; in another instruction listed the essential elements thereof and instructed the jury that each of these elements must be proven to the jury's satisfaction beyond a reasonable doubt; defined each of the essential terms, such as willfully, express malice, deliberation, etc.; and gave an instruction concerning the effect on defendant's state of mind from intoxication, it was not error in refusing defendant's requested instructions which were merely cumulative of the court's instruction. State v. Rushing, 1973-NMSC-092, 85 N.M. 540, 514 P.2d 297.

Trial court was not in error when it refused to give defendant's requested instruction on exculpatory statements contained in his confession, since the court adequately instructed on self-defense, and since defendant's own testimony corresponded to the exculpatory matter contained in the confession. State v. Casaus, 1963-NMSC-194, 73 N.M. 152, 386 P.2d 246.

Use of jury instructions. — New Mexico U.J.I. Crim. 2.00 (now see UJI 14-201) does not change the necessary elements to be proven for a conviction of first degree murder, and it was not error to use it in advance of the effective date. State v. Noble, 1977-NMSC-031, 90 N.M. 360, 563 P.2d 1153.

Answering jury's questions. — Since, under 40-24-10, 1953 Comp., the jury had sole responsibility for fixing the penalty for murder in the first degree, it was not error for the trial court to answer the jury's inquiry for information relating to the possibility of parole or pardon or a verdict of life imprisonment by quoting applicable constitutional and statutory provisions. State v. Nelson, 1959-NMSC-023, 65 N.M. 403, 338 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 361 U.S. 877, 80 S. Ct. 142, 4 L. Ed. 2d 115 (1959) (decided under prior law).

Review. — On appeal from conviction for second- degree murder, the court must review the evidence as to cause of death in the light most favorable to the state. State v. Ewing, 1968-NMCA-071, 79 N.M. 489, 444 P.2d 1000.

30-2-2. Repealed.

Repeals. — Laws 1980, ch. 21, § 2, repealed 30-2-2 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-2, relating to malice.

30-2-3. Manslaughter.

Manslaughter is the unlawful killing of a human being without malice.

A. Voluntary manslaughter consists of manslaughter committed upon a sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion.

Whoever commits voluntary manslaughter is guilty of a third degree felony resulting in the death of a human being.

B. Involuntary manslaughter consists of manslaughter committed in the commission of an unlawful act not amounting to felony, or in the commission of a lawful act which might produce death in an unlawful manner or without due caution and circumspection.

Whoever commits involuntary manslaughter is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Crime and punishment properly separated. — The fact that the former manslaughter statute, 40-24-7, 1953 Comp., merely defined the offense, while 40-24-10, 1953 Comp., provided the penalty, does not mean that the statute was defective or the acts defined not crimes; crime and punishment can be separated and distinguished by the legislature. State v. McFall, 1960-NMSC-084, 67 N.M. 260, 354 P.2d 547 (decided under former law).

Applicability to motor vehicle accidents. — This section, the involuntary manslaughter statute, was in no sense repealed by adoption of the negligent homicide statute (64-22-1, 1953 Comp.), but has been in full force and effect at all times; although cases of death resulting from driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor were taken out from under its operation by adoption of Section 66-8-102 NMSA 1978, which made driving under the influence a felony, because when a death resulted it would not be "in the commission of an unlawful act not amounting to a felony," upon repeal of the negligent homicide statute by Laws 1957, ch. 239, § 7, and reinstatement of the offense of driving under the influence as a misdemeanor by Laws 1955, ch. 184, § 8, the reapplicability of the involuntary manslaughter statute automatically ensued. State v. Deming, 1959-NMSC-074, 66 N.M. 175, 344 P.2d 481 (decided under former law).

Manslaughter is one of the four kinds of homicide, and is included within a charge of murder. State v. La Boon, 1960-NMSC-118, 67 N.M. 466, 357 P.2d 54; State v. McFall, 1960-NMSC-084, 67 N.M. 260, 354 P.2d 547.

Manslaughter included in murder. — Manslaughter is included in the charge of murder. State v. Rose, 1968-NMSC-091, 79 N.M. 277, 442 P.2d 589, cert. denied, 393 U.S. 1028, 89 S. Ct. 626, 21 L. Ed. 2d 571 (1969).

Manslaughter not "necessarily included" in murder. — Under appropriate circumstances, where there is evidence that the defendant acted as a result of sufficient provocation, a charge of manslaughter could properly be said to be included in a charge of murder, and, accordingly, it would not be error to submit N.M.U.J.I. Crim. 2.20 (see UJI 14-220 NMRA) to the jury; however, it cannot seriously be maintained that manslaughter is invariably "necessarily included" in murder, since different kinds of proof are required to establish the distinct offenses. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

Open charge of murder adequate. — A charge of murder in violation of statutes pertaining to first and second degree murder and voluntary and involuntary manslaughter is not a charge of mutually exclusive crimes, nor is it a charge of distinct and separate offenses; rather, the charge is an open charge of murder, a form of charging approved, under which the jury is to be instructed on the degrees of the unlawful killing for which there is evidence, and it gave defendant notice that he must defend against a charge of unlawfully taking a human life. State v. King, 1977-NMCA-042, 90 N.M. 377, 563 P.2d 1170, overruled on other grounds by State v. Reynolds, 1982-NMSC-091, 98 N.M. 527, 650 P.2d 811.

Information sufficiently particular. — Information charging manslaughter, which enumerated the section defining the offense and the section fixing the penalty, did not contravene N.M. Const., art. II, § 14; although defendant was entitled "to demand the nature and cause of the accusation," against him, that remedy was available by way of a bill of particulars. State v. Romero, 1961-NMSC-139, 69 N.M. 187, 365 P.2d 58.

Information insufficient. — An information was insufficient which charged that defendants willfully and feloniously killed named person contrary to statute. State v. Gray, 1934-NMSC-018, 38 N.M. 203, 30 P.2d 278.

Permissible to convict accessory of lesser offense. — The fact that the accessory was convicted of involuntary manslaughter while the principal was convicted of voluntary manslaughter is a permissible result under the accessory statute. State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Suspension of convicted attorney. — Plea of guilty to crime of involuntary manslaughter, resulting from driving under the influence, supported recommendation of suspension of defendant attorney from practice of law. In re Morris, 1964-NMSC-235, 74 N.M. 679, 397 P.2d 475.

II. VOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER.

Meaning of "unlawful". — Subsection A defines voluntary manslaughter as "the unlawful killing of a human being without malice upon a sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion". From Section 30-2-1 NMSA 1978 it may be inferred that "unlawful" means "without lawful justification or excuse." State v. Parish, 1994-NMSC-073, 118 N.M. 39, 878 P.2d 988.

Provocation part of voluntary manslaughter. — Although the court has not ruled unequivocally either that provocation is or is not an "element" of voluntary manslaughter, there must be some evidence that the killing was committed upon a sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion in order for a conviction of voluntary manslaughter to stand; in this sense, provocation is a part of voluntary manslaughter. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

Intent. — Although voluntary manslaughter is a general intent crime, where attempted second degree murder is offered as a greater included offense and sufficient provocation is at issue in the trial, voluntary manslaughter may be a specific intent crime. State v. Jernigan, 2006-NMSC-003, 139 N.M. 1, 127 P.3d 537.

Attempt. — Under limited circumstances, where attempted second degree murder is offered as a greater included offense and sufficient provocation is at issue in the trial, attempted voluntary manslaughter is a crime in New Mexico. State v. Jernigan, 2006-NMSC-003, 139 N.M. 1, 127 P.3d 537.

Attempted voluntary manslaughter is a lesser included offense of attempted second degree murder where sufficient provocation is at issue in the trial. State v. Jernigan, 2006-NMSC-003, 139 N.M. 1, 127 P.3d 537.

Provocation and disclosure of provocation. — The provocation and the disclosure of the events constituting the provocation may occur at different times. State v. Munoz, 1992-NMCA-004, 113 N.M. 489, 827 P.2d 1303, cert. denied, 113 N.M. 352, 826 P.2d 573.

Nature of sufficient provocation. — To reduce the killing from murder to voluntary manslaughter all that is required is sufficient provocation to excite in the mind of the defendant such emotions as either anger, rage, sudden resentment or terror as may be sufficient to obscure the reason of an ordinary man, and to prevent deliberation and premeditation, and to exclude malice, and to render the defendant incapable of cool reflection. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Evidence of provocation sufficient to reduce a charge of second degree murder to voluntary manslaughter must be such as would affect the ability to reason and cause a temporary loss of self control in ordinary person of average disposition. State v. Jackson, 1983-NMCA-007, 99 N.M. 478, 660 P.2d 120, rev'd on other grounds, 1983-NMSC-098, 100 N.M. 487, 672 P.2d 660.

Provocation has subjective and objective components. — Provocation is not strictly subjective. Defendant must demonstrate that defendant's extreme emotions would affect the ability to reason in an ordinary person. State v. Taylor, 2000-NMCA-072, 129 N.M. 376, 8 P.3d 863, cert. quashed, 131 N.M. 64, 33 P.3d 24.

The law does not permit one who intentionally instigates an assault on another to then rely on the victim's reasonable response to that assault as evidence of provocation sufficient to mitigate the subsequent killing of the victim from murder to manslaughter. State v. Gaitan, 2002-NMSC-007, 131 N.M. 758, 42 P.3d 1207; State v. Munoz, 1992-NMCA-004, 113 N.M. 489, 827 P.2d 1303, cert. denied, 113 N.M. 352, 826 P.2d 573.

Words insufficient provocation. — No mere words, however opprobrious or indecent, were deemed sufficient to arouse ungovernable passion, so as to reduce a homicide from murder to manslaughter. State v. Trujillo, 1921-NMSC-111, 27 N.M. 594, 203 P. 846. See State v. Lujan, 1980-NMSC-036, 94 N.M. 232, 608 P.2d 1114, but see Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Words alone, however scurrilous or insulting, will not furnish adequate provocation to make a homicide voluntary manslaughter. State v. Castro, 1982-NMSC-125, 592 P.2d 185, cert. denied, 92 N.M. 621, 593 P.2d 62 (1979), but see Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Words and push insufficient provocation. — Even if it was true, as the defendant had told a witness, that his stepdaughter had pushed him and threatened that her father would come from California and kill him, this would not be adequate to constitute sufficient provocation and to require a jury charge on voluntary manslaughter. State v. Stills, 1998-NMSC-009, 125 N.M. 66, 957 P.2d 51.

"Informational words" may constitute adequate provocation. — Informational words, as distinguished from mere insulting words, may constitute adequate provocation. The substance of the informational words spoken, the meaning conveyed by those informational words and the ensuing arguments and other actions of the parties, when taken together, can amount to provocation. Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Discipline of child not provocation. — Parent disciplining the parent's child, even with a slap to the child's face, is insufficient provocation as a matter of law to reduce the charge of second degree murder to voluntary manslaughter. State v. Taylor, 2000-NMCA-072, 129 N.M. 376, 8 P.3d 863, cert. quashed, 131 N.M. 64, 33 P.3d 284 (2001).

Sudden quarrel or passion mandatory. — Evidence of a sudden quarrel or heat of passion, tending to show provocation sufficient to negate malice and reduce the degree of felonious homicide from murder to manslaughter, is indispensable to a conviction for voluntary manslaughter. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

To convict of voluntary manslaughter, the jury must have evidence that there was a sudden quarrel or heat of passion at the time of the commission of the crime (in order, under the common-law theory, to show that the killing was the result of provocation sufficient to negate the presumption of malice). Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39. See State v. Castro, 1979-NMCA-023, 92 N.M. 585, 592 P.2d 185, cert. denied, 92 N.M. 621, 593 P.2d 62.

It is voluntary manslaughter when the killing is committed upon a sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Sudden anger or heat of passion and provocation must concur to make a homicide voluntary manslaughter. State v. Castro, 1979-NMCA-023, 92 N.M. 585, 592 P.2d 185, cert. denied, 92 N.M. 621, 593 P.2d 62.

Provocation must concur with sudden anger or heat of passion, such that an ordinary person would not have cooled off before acting. Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Evidence of passion or quarrel sufficient. — Where there was sufficient evidence, even under the circumstances testified to by the appellant herself, from which the jury could find that the shooting occurred in the heat of passion or as the result of a sudden quarrel, there was sufficient evidence to sustain the manslaughter conviction. State v. Rose, 1968-NMSC-091, 79 N.M. 277, 442 P.2d 589, cert. denied, 393 U.S. 1028, 89 S. Ct. 626, 21 L. Ed. 2d 571 (1969).

Evidence of "sudden quarrel" insufficient. — Evidence which may support an inference of a smoldering desire within the defendant to avenge his former girl friend dating another male by doing away with both of them would not support an inference of a "sudden quarrel"; nor can such facts be held to give rise to that provocation recognized in the law as being adequate and proper to negate the presumption of malice. State v. Robinson, 1980-NMSC-049, 94 N.M. 693, 616 P.2d 406.

Passion engendered by fear. — Instruction as to voluntary manslaughter was not error where, from defendant's own testimony, he shot deceased during heat of passion engendered by fear or terror. State v. Vargas, 1937-NMSC-049, 42 N.M. 1, 74 P.2d 62.

Transference of passion theory unauthorized. — Where there was no evidence that such a condition as a sudden quarrel or the heat of passion existed between defendant and his baby boy, the only evidence of quarrel or heat of passion being between defendant and his wife, there was no evidence tending to establish voluntary manslaughter, since the weight of authority is against allowing transference of one's passion from the object of the passion to a related bystander. State v. Gutierrez, 1975-NMCA-121, 88 N.M. 448, 541 P.2d 628.

To reduce murder to voluntary manslaughter, victim must be source of provocation. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Defendant initiates the provocation. — If the defendant intentionally caused the victim to do acts which the defendant could claim provoked him, he cannot kill the victim and claim that he was provoked; in such case, the circumstances show that he acted with malice aforethought, and the offense is murder. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Acts of peace officer insufficient. — Acts of a peace officer exercising his duties in a lawful manner cannot rise to the level of sufficient provocation. State v. Martinez, 1982-NMCA-020, 97 N.M. 540, 641 P.2d 1087, cert. denied, 98 N.M. 50, 644 P.2d 1039; State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Exercise of legal right insufficient. — The exercise of a legal right, no matter how offensive, is not such provocation as lowers the grade of homicide from murder to voluntary manslaughter. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds by Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162; State v. Marquez, 1981-NMCA-105, 96 N.M. 746, 634 P.2d 1298.

Distinction between manslaughter and self-defense. — The line of demarcation between a homicide which amounts to voluntary manslaughter and one which amounts to justifiable homicide in self-defense is not always clearly defined and depends upon the facts of each case as it arises; those facts are for the jury, under instructions from the court. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Sufficient evidence of voluntary manslaughter. — In defendant's trial for voluntary manslaughter, where the evidence established that the victim's actions in repeatedly charging at defendant aroused sufficient fear in defendant, which would affect his ability to reason and cause a temporary loss of self control, but that a reasonable person in the same circumstances would not have used a knife to stab the victim when the victim did not have a weapon, the evidence was sufficient for a jury to find sufficient provocation and that defendant's actions were not taken in self-defense. State v. Fox, 2017-NMCA-029, cert. granted.

Self-defense and provocation. — Self-defense and provocation supporting a conviction for voluntary manslaughter are not mutually incompatible. State v. Melendez, 1982-NMSC-039, 97 N.M. 738, 643 P.2d 607.

Conviction for manslaughter on failure of self-defense plea. — When facts are present which give rise to a plea of self-defense, it is not unreasonable that if the plea fails, the accused should be found guilty of voluntary manslaughter. State v. Harrison, 1970-NMCA-071, 81 N.M. 623, 471 P.2d 193, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382; State v. Lopez, 1968-NMSC-092, 79 N.M. 282, 442 P.2d 594.

Whenever the evidence is sufficient to raise a question of self-defense, an instruction on voluntary manslaughter should also be submitted to the jury if the evidence supports sufficient provocation of fear for one's own safety. State v. Abeyta, 1995-NMSC-052, 120 N.M. 233, 901 P.2d 164, overruled on other grounds by State v. Campos, 1996-NMSC-043, 122 N.M. 148, 921 P.2d 1266.

Not manslaughter absent supporting evidence. — Where defendant contended he shot deceased solely to protect himself from a threatened attack, and stated that at the time he shot and killed deceased he was calm and cool, being by nature so disposed, the trial court was correct in refusing to submit the issue of voluntary manslaughter to the jury. State v. Luttrell, 1923-NMSC-024, 28 N.M. 393, 212 P. 739.

Unnecessary force in defending self. — Defendant's choice of deadly force when confronted with a possible battery of less than deadly force would sustain a conviction of voluntary manslaughter but not for murder. State v. McLam, 1970-NMCA-129, 82 N.M. 242, 478 P.2d 570.

Killing of fleeing, would-be felon. — A well-founded belief that a known felony was about to be committed will extenuate a homicide committed in prevention of the supposed crime, and this upon a principle of necessity; but when the necessity ceases, and the supposed felon flees, and thereby abandons his proposed design, a killing in pursuit, however well-grounded the belief may be that he intended to commit a felony, will not extenuate the offense of the pursuer. Brown v. Martinez, 1961-NMSC-040, 68 N.M. 271, 361 P.2d 152.

Elements distinguished between crimes. — Voluntary manslaughter and shooting at or from a motor vehicle resulting in great bodily harm have distinct elements. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Death not equated with great bodily harm. — Comparing the voluntary manslaughter statute with the shooting at or from a motor vehicle statute and the statutory definition of great bodily harm in Section 30-1-12 NMSA 1978, it is clear that the legislature does not "equate" death with great bodily harm. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Voluntary manslaughter, aggravated battery and kidnapping. — Where defendant shot the victim in the chest in defendant's vehicle, drove the unconscious victim in the vehicle to an isolated area, and shot the victim twice in the head while the victim was still alive; and defendant used two different types of force to shoot the victim in the chest and to keep the victim's unconscious body in the vehicle, defendant's convictions of voluntary manslaughter for shooting the victim in the chest, aggravated battery for shooting the victim in the head, and kidnapping for keeping the victim in defendant's vehicle and transporting the victim to the isolated area were not based on unitary conduct and did not violate defendant's right to be free from double jeopardy. State v. Urioste, 2011-NMCA-121, 267 P.3d 820, cert. granted, 2011-NMCERT-012.

No double jeopardy violation for convictions. — Defendant's convictions of voluntary manslaughter and shooting at or from a motor vehicle do not violate double jeopardy. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Separate punishments intended. — The legislature intended to punish the crimes of voluntary manslaughter and shooting at or from a motor vehicle separately. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Cumulative punishment is precluded for shooting at a vehicle and homicide. — New Mexico jurisprudence precludes cumulative punishment for the offenses of causing great bodily harm to a person by shooting at a motor vehicle and the homicide resulting from the penetration of the same bullet into the same person. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426, overruling State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023, State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563 and State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Where defendant and defendant's companions were accosted by a rival gang in front of defendant's family home, guns were pulled on both sides and defendant's sibling was severely wounded by gunshots in the leg and abdomen; while defendant's group were trying to help defendant's sibling in the driveway and stop the bleeding from the gunshot wounds, the person in the rival gang who had been shooting at defendant and defendant's companions returned in a Ford Expedition; when defendant saw gunfire coming from the Expedition, defendant ran into the house and retrieved an AK-47 rifle and began shooting at the Expedition; the driver of Expedition was shot seven times and died; the jury convicted defendant of voluntary manslaughter and shooting into a motor vehicle resulting in great bodily harm, the Double Jeopardy Clause protected defendant from being punished both for the homicide of the victim and for shooting into a vehicle causing great bodily harm to the victim where both convictions were premised on the unitary act of shooting the victim. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426, overruling State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023, State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563 and State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Accidental killing will not support conviction of voluntary manslaughter. State v. Lopez, 1968-NMSC-092, 79 N.M. 282, 442 P.2d 594.

Diminished responsibility for manslaughter. — The defense of diminished responsibility is analogous to that of insanity, in that expert testimony on the issue of diminished responsibility by reason of mental disease or defect is not conclusive on the fact finder. The jury is free to believe or disbelieve such testimony, and if such testimony is disbelieved the presumption of full responsibility, which is viewed as included in the presumption of sanity, remains in effect. State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Issue of responsibility properly submitted. — Evidence of insanity may be so overwhelming as to require the direction of a verdict of acquittal, as may be evidence of diminished responsibility. Where the evidence was not of such a quality as to require a directed verdict, the issue of defendant's responsibility for the crime of voluntary manslaughter was properly submitted to the jury. State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Effect of conviction unsupported by evidence. — It is error for the court to submit to the jury an issue of whether defendant was guilty of voluntary manslaughter when the facts establish either first or second degree murder, but could not support a conviction of voluntary manslaughter and, accordingly, upon acquittal of murder and conviction of voluntary manslaughter, a reversal and discharge of the accused is required. State v. Lopez, 1968-NMSC-092, 79 N.M. 282, 442 P.2d 594.

No double jeopardy violations for sentence enhancements. — Upon conviction of voluntary manslaughter, with firearm enhancement, imposition of a three-year sentence under this section, plus an additional three-year sentence under 31-18-15 NMSA 1978, and an additional one-year firearm enhancement, did not result in multiple punishments for the same offense in violation of double jeopardy. State v. Alvarado, 1997-NMCA-027, 123 N.M. 187, 936 P.2d 869.

Sufficient evidence. — Where the victim was smoking and injecting methamphetamine; the victim's behavior became increasingly erratic; the victim was playing with two knives; defendant wrestled with the victim, attempting to disarm and restrain the victim; the victim was uncontrollable, violent, and wild; defendant put the victim in a "choke hold" on three occasions, but did not choke the victim to unconsciousness; each time defendant released the victim, the victim continued to violently struggle; even though defendant eventually duct taped the victim, the victim continued to struggle; the victim eventually stopped breathing and could not be revived; and the victim's death was caused by cervical compression or neck compression with physical restraint and methamphetamine intoxication as contributing causes, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction of voluntary manslaughter. State v. Maples, 2013-NMCA-052, 300 P.3d 739, cert. granted, 2013-NMCERT-004.

III. INVOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER.

A. IN GENERAL.

Involuntary manslaughter statute excludes all cases of intentional killing, and includes only unintentional killings by acts unlawful, but not felonious, or lawful, but done in an unlawful manner, or without due caution and circumspection; the killing must be unintentional to constitute involuntary manslaughter, and, if it is intentional and not justifiable, it belongs in some one of the classes of unlawful homicide of a higher degree than involuntary manslaughter. State v. King, 1977-NMCA-042, 90 N.M. 377, 563 P.2d 1170, overruled on other grounds, State v. Reynolds, 1982-NMSC-091, 98 N.M. 527, 650 P.2d 811.

Involuntary manslaughter was confined to cases where the killing was unintentional. State v. Pruett, 1921-NMSC-110, 27 N.M. 576, 203 P. 840.

Involuntary manslaughter may be committed by both unlawful and lawful acts. State v. Grubbs, 1973-NMCA-096, 85 N.M. 365, 512 P.2d 693, overruled on other grounds, Santillanes v. State, 1993-NMSC-012, 115 N.M. 215, 849 P.2d 358; State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209.

Distinction between lawful and unlawful acts. — In distinguishing between unlawful and lawful acts, the statute applies the language, defined by the courts to mean criminal negligence, only to the lawful act portion of the statute. State v. Grubbs, 1973-NMCA-096, 85 N.M. 365, 512 P.2d 693, overruled on other grounds, Santillanes v. State, 1993-NMSC-012, 115 N.M. 215, 849 P.2d 358; State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209.

Criminal negligence is not element of involuntary manslaughter by unlawful act under Subsection B, nor the negligence which is a part of Section 30-7-4 NMSA 1978 (relating to negligent use or handling of a weapon). State v. Grubbs, 1973-NMCA-096, 85 N.M. 365, 512 P.2d 693, overruled on other grounds, Santillanes v. State, 1993-NMSC-012, 115 N.M. 215, 849 P.2d 358; State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209.

Criminal negligence required for involuntary manslaughter by lawful act. — A killing by lawful act, to be involuntary manslaughter, depends on whether the lawful act was done in an unlawful manner or without due caution and circumspection. The phrase "without due caution and circumspection" has been held to involve the concept of "criminal negligence," which concept includes conduct which is reckless, wanton or willful. State v. Grubbs, 1973-NMCA-096, 85 N.M. 365, 512 P.2d 693, overruled on other grounds, Santillanes v. State, 1993-NMSC-012, 115 N.M. 215, 849 P.2d 358; State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209.

Showing of criminal negligence is required for conviction of involuntary manslaughter, whether based on an "unlawful act" or "lawful act". State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209, aff'd, 1996-NMSC-068, 122 N.M. 596, 930 P.2d 131.

Reckless disregard of others. — Merely driving on the wrong side of the road could be inadvertence and not sufficient to convict, but driving on the wrong side of the road coming up a hill, where visibility was obstructed, showed a heedless and reckless disregard of the rights of others. Garrett v. Howden, 1963-NMSC-222, 73 N.M. 307, 387 P.2d 874.

Inadvertently allowing an automobile to encroach upon the wrong side of the road while going up an incline so steep cars beyond its crest may not be seen constitutes a reckless, willful and wanton disregard of consequences to others, and will support conviction for manslaughter if one be killed as a result thereof. State v. Rice, 1954-NMSC-037, 58 N.M. 205, 269 P.2d 751.

Negligent use of weapon. — A conviction of involuntary manslaughter by negligent use of a weapon requires negligence which is ordinary. State v. Grubbs, 1973-NMCA-096, 85 N.M. 365, 512 P.2d 693, overruled on other grounds, Santillanes v. State, 1993-NMSC-012, 115 N.M. 215, 849 P.2d 358; State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209.

Use of firearm enhancement for negligent use. — Under the facts of this case, the state was required to prove that the defendant negligently used a firearm to commit a noncapital felony and this conduct resulted in the death of a human being. Use of a firearm is the same conduct required to enhance the defendant's sentence under Section 31-18-16A NMSA 1978. Because the state would not be required to prove any additional facts in order to have the defendant's sentence enhanced, the firearm enhancement statute is subsumed within the offense of involuntary manslaughter by negligent use of a firearm. State v. Franklin, 1993-NMCA-135, 116 N.M. 565, 865 P.2d 1209.

Defense to involuntary manslaughter. — Defendant charged with involuntary homicide could raise the theory of self-defense and was entitled to a jury instruction on her theory of defense of another. Any anomalies in the evidence will be resolved by the properly instructed jury. State v. Gallegos, 2001-NMCA-021, 130 N.M. 221, 22 P.3d 689, cert. denied, 130 N.M. 459, 26 P.3d 103.

Negligent self-defense as involuntary manslaughter. — If defendant could be viewed as in a position where his safety or the safety of his friend was threatened, and if in an attempt to protect himself or ward off the attackers, defendant inadvertently shot the victim, then his actions could be viewed as a lawful act of self-defense committed in a unlawful manner or without due caution and circumspection, such that an instruction on involuntary manslaughter based on negligent self-defense should have been given. State v. Arias, 1993-NMCA-007, 115 N.M. 93, 847 P.2d 327, overruled on other grounds, State v. Abeyta, 1995-NMSC-052, 120 N.M. 233, 901 P.2d 164, overruled on other grounds, State v. Campos, 1996-NMSC-043, 122 N.M. 148, 921 P.2d 1266.

If a defendant shoots someone in imperfect self-defense, the charge of murder can only be mitigated to voluntary manslaughter and an instruction on involuntary manslaughter is inappropriate. State v. Abeyta, 1995-NMSC-052, 120 N.M. 233, 901 P.2d 164, overruled on other grounds, State v. Campos, 1996-NMSC-043, 122 N.M. 148, 921 P.2d 1266.

Accidental shooting in process of imperfect self-defense. — While a claim of imperfect self-defense does not give rise to the need for an involuntary manslaughter instruction, a claim of accidental shooting might; furthermore, it is possible for an accidental shooting to occur in the process of imperfect self-defense. State v. Abeyta, 1995-NMSC-052, 120 N.M. 233, 901 P.2d 164, overruled on other grounds, State v. Campos, 1996-NMSC-043, 122 N.M. 148, 921 P.2d 1266.

Resisting search. — Homicide committed in resisting deputy sheriff who was searching defendant's house without a warrant was involuntary manslaughter if the resistance constituted a misdemeanor, as when the deputy was merely engaged in the "execution of his office," and instruction leaving jury to determine the degree of murder was erroneous. State v. Welch, 1933-NMSC-084, 37 N.M. 549, 25 P.2d 211.

Inflicting a beating is unlawful act. State v. Holden, 1973-NMCA-092, 85 N.M. 397, 512 P.2d 970, cert. denied, 85 N.M. 380, 512 P.2d 953.

Involuntary manslaughter instruction improper. — Inflicting a beating is an unlawful act, and accordingly, there was no basis for an instruction on involuntary manslaughter by lawful act, nor was there any basis for an instruction on manslaughter by unlawful act not amounting to a felony at defendant's trial for murder of his baby boy. State v. Gutierrez, 1975-NMCA-121, 88 N.M. 448, 541 P.2d 628.

No foundation for involuntary theory. — Where the uncontradicted evidence showed that defendant killed her husband with two and possibly three well-placed shots into his person fired at close range while he lay on the couch and defendant stood over him with a pistol purchased by defendant earlier in the day, and immediately following a discussion about the victim leaving the defendant, no foundation existed for an instruction on involuntary manslaughter, and the trial court properly refused to instruct on this theory of the case. State v. Gardner, 1973-NMSC-034, 85 N.M. 104, 509 P.2d 871, cert. denied, 414 U.S. 851, 94 S. Ct. 145, 38 L. Ed. 2d 100 (1973).

Intentional shooting not involuntary manslaughter. — The killing of a person by intentionally shooting him with a rifle, if not justified by the law of self-defense, would constitute at least an assault with a deadly weapon, and would be a felony, and hence not involuntary manslaughter. State v. Pruett, 1921-NMSC-110, 27 N.M. 576, 203 P. 840.

Homicide by vehicle statute preempts manslaughter statute. — The specific homicide by vehicle statute, Section 66-8-101 NMSA 1978, preempts the involuntary manslaughter statute in unintentional vehicular homicide cases. State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209, aff'd, 1996-NMSC-068, 122 N.M. 596, 930 P.2d 131.

Careless driving statute, Section 66-8-114 NMSA 1978, which requires a showing of only civil negligence, cannot be used as the basis for involuntary manslaughter. State v. Yarborough, 1995-NMCA-116, 120 N.M. 669, 905 P.2d 209, aff'd, 1996-NMSC-068, 122 N.M. 596, 930 P.2d 131.

Evidence insufficient to convict. — Evidence that defendant was driving an unfamiliar car over relatively unfamiliar roads, that 800 feet north of where the accident occurred defendant drove over a hill with a 2% grade with a curve at the bottom of it and did not slow down, that defendant had consumed two beers before the accident, and that, unknown to defendant, the tire that blew out was defective, even when considered cumulatively, failed to disclose the state of mind required to be shown for a conviction under this section. State v. Hayes, 1966-NMSC-260, 77 N.M. 225, 421 P.2d 439.

B. PROXIMATE CAUSE.

Proximate cause requisite for conviction. — Unlawful act must constitute proximate cause of the homicide to warrant a conviction of involuntary manslaughter. State v. Seward, 1942-NMSC-002, 46 N.M. 84, 121 P.2d 145.

Proximate cause not necessarily direct immediate cause. — The act of defendant must be a proximate cause of death but need not be the direct immediate cause; it is sufficient if the direct cause resulted naturally from the act of accused. State v. Fields, 1964-NMSC-230, 74 N.M. 559, 395 P.2d 908.

Proximate cause in reckless driving. — Wanton and reckless operation of an automobile which must be shown as proximate cause of a death in order to secure a conviction for involuntary manslaughter is not different from that required to be shown under former guest statute (Section 64-24-1, 1953 Comp.) before one injured may recover against driver host. State v. Hayes, 1966-NMSC-260, 77 N.M. 225, 421 P.2d 439; State v. Clarkson, 1954-NMSC-007, 58 N.M. 56, 265 P.2d 670.

Heedless or reckless disregard of others. — To establish heedlessness or reckless disregard of the right of others, a particular state of mind that comprehends evidence of an utter irresponsibility on the part of the defendant or of a conscious abandonment of any consideration for the safety of passengers must be established. State v. Hayes, 1966-NMSC-260, 77 N.M. 225, 421 P.2d 439.

Criminal negligence in driving while intoxicated. — The act of an intoxicated person in driving an automobile recklessly might be such criminal negligence as would warrant a finding of manslaughter if such operation of the automobile was the proximate cause of death. State v. Sisneros, 1938-NMSC-049, 42 N.M. 500, 82 P.2d 274.

Contributory negligence no defense. — Conduct of the driver of car struck by defendant had no application in trial for manslaughter, since it was the criminal negligence of defendant that caused the deaths of the two victims. State v. Romero, 1961-NMSC-139, 69 N.M. 187, 365 P.2d 58.

Evidence of reckless driving as proximate cause sufficient. — Evidence that defendant struck vehicle in which decedents were riding on a well-lighted street from the rear, that he was driving at a speed of between 60 to 80 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone immediately prior to the collision and that he was intoxicated, established beyond any reasonable doubt that his conduct in driving was the proximate cause of the accident, and that it was so reckless, wanton and willful as to show an utter disregard for the rights of others. State v. Romero, 1961-NMSC-139, 69 N.M. 187, 365 P.2d 58.

Proximate cause not recklessness. — Where statements of defendant and his companion, which were introduced by the state, and not controverted, negatived any wanton or reckless operation of the car, or any high speed, and were corroborated to a great extent by a witness for the state who was a companion of the deceased at the time of the accident, the evidence did not establish that the proximate cause of the fatal striking of deceased was the wanton or reckless operation of the vehicle by the defendant. State v. Clarkson, 1954-NMSC-007, 58 N.M. 56, 265 P.2d 670.

Nor unlawfully carrying weapon. — Involuntary manslaughter was not proved by evidence that a loaded revolver fell to the floor at a public dance and discharged, killing another, since unlawful act of carrying the weapon was not proximate cause of death. State v. Nichols, 1930-NMSC-032, 34 N.M. 639, 288 P. 407.

Instruction on unlawful act improper absent proximate cause. — Unless it could be said that failure of a defendant to have a driver's license in his possession at time and place of accident was the proximate cause of death, an instruction that defendant was guilty of involuntary manslaughter if it was found he operated the automobile without a license or was under influence of intoxicating liquor would be erroneous. State v. Seward, 1942-NMSC-002, 46 N.M. 84, 121 P.2d 145.

IV. EVIDENCE.

Proof beyond reasonable doubt. — The burden of proof on the part of the state to support a charge of manslaughter by automobile beyond a reasonable doubt is clearly established in New Mexico. State v. Rice, 1954-NMSC-037, 58 N.M. 205, 269 P.2d 751.

Establishment of corpus delicti. — In homicide cases, proof of the corpus delicti is established when it is shown that the person whose death is alleged in the information is in fact dead, and that the death was criminally caused. State v. Romero, 1961-NMSC-139, 69 N.M. 187, 365 P.2d 58.

Proof of corpus delicti was established beyond a reasonable doubt where witness testified that his wife and son were dead at the scene of the accident, that he took the bodies to South Carolina, and was present when they were interred there. State v. Romero, 1961-NMSC-139, 69 N.M. 187, 365 P.2d 58.

Proof of victim's identity mandatory. — In this state, proof that the person killed is the same person as the one charged in the indictment to have been killed is part of the corpus delicti; failure so to prove is more than a variance between the charge and the proof, it is a failure to prove that the crime charged has been committed. State v. Vallo, 1970-NMCA-002, 81 N.M. 148, 464 P.2d 567 (ordering defendant discharged since the judgment was reversed for failure of proof rather than error in the trial proceedings).

Misrepresentation of polygraph's accuracy. — Verdict of jury finding defendant guilty of voluntary manslaughter was tainted by introduction of testimony calculated to prejudice the jury by implying that polygraph test was the ultimate in tests for truth, which testimony cast doubts upon the truth and veracity of the defendant in a manner not countenanced by the courts; it would not be allowed to stand. State v. Varos, 1961-NMSC-099, 69 N.M. 19, 363 P.2d 629, distinguished in, State v. Chavez, 1969-NMCA-109, 80 N.M. 786, 461 P.2d 919 (decided under former law).

Unrelated crimes. — Interjection of criminal offenses of narcotics pushing and heroin smuggling in the opening statement and on cross-examination, which offenses were irrelevant to the homicide for which defendant was being tried, constituted reversible error under the circumstances. State v. Garcia, 1971-NMCA-121, 83 N.M. 51, 487 P.2d 1356.

Threat inadmissible. — Threat made by defendant against narcotics agent some 14 months prior to the crime, which did not point with any reasonable certainty to deceased, a police officer, individually or as a member of a class, and about which deceased was not shown to have had any knowledge, was not admissible as bearing on defendant's actions toward deceased or to show why deceased acted as he did. State v. Garcia, 1971-NMCA-121, 83 N.M. 51, 487 P.2d 1356.

Admitting evidence of threats prejudicial error. — Since a basic contention of defense was that defendant acted in self-defense, improper admission of testimony as to a threat made by defendant was prejudicial error. State v. Garcia, 1971-NMCA-121, 83 N.M. 51, 487 P.2d 1356.

Photographs of body. — The admission into evidence in a murder trial of photographs of the decedent taken during her autopsy is proper if they are reasonably relevant to material issues in the trial, showing the identity of the victim, and the number and location of the wounds inflicted upon her body. State v. Ho'o, 1982-NMCA-158, 99 N.M. 140, 654 P.2d 1040, cert. denied, 99 N.M. 148, 655 P.2d 160.

V. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

Criminal negligence instruction. — A showing of criminal negligence is required for a conviction of involuntary manslaughter, and it was fundamental error for the trial court to have not so instructed the jury. State v. Kirby, 1996-NMSC-069, 122 N.M. 609, 930 P.2d 144.

Where defendant's testimony provided a factual basis for an instruction on the lesser included offense of voluntary manslaughter, the trial court committed reversible error in denying defendant's requested instruction. A trial court must instruct the jury on voluntary manslaughter if the defense requests such an instruction and the instruction is warranted under the facts of the case. State v. Munoz, 1992-NMCA-004, 113 N.M. 489, 827 P.2d 1303, cert. denied, 113 N.M. 352, 826 P.2d 573.

Provocation. — Words alone, however scurrilous or insulting, will not furnish adequate provocation to require submission of a voluntary manslaughter instruction. However, if there is evidence to raise the inference that by reason of actions and circumstances the defendant was sufficiently provoked, then the jury should be given the voluntary manslaughter instruction. The substance of the informational words spoken, the meaning conveyed by those informational words, the ensuing arguments and other actions of the parties, when taken together, could amount to provocation. The defendant is entitled to an instruction on voluntary manslaughter as a lesser included offense of murder in the first degree if there is evidence to support, or tending to support, such an instruction. Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Involuntary manslaughter instruction. — Where there is sufficient evidence of both criminal negligence and accident, it is proper to grant an involuntary manslaughter instruction. State v. Skippings, 2011-NMSC-021, 150 N.M. 196, 258 P.3d 1008.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

The mens rea for involuntary manslaughter is criminal negligence. — An involuntary manslaughter jury instruction is proper only when the evidence presented at trial permits the jury to find the defendant had a mental state of criminal negligence when engaging in the act causing the victim's death. State v. Henley, 2010-NMSC-039, 148 N.M. 359, 237 P.3d 103.

Evidence of excessive self-defense and accident are not a substitute for evidence of criminal negligence. — The confluence of evidence of imperfect self-defense with evidence of accidental shooting is not a substitute for evidence of the criminal negligence mental state required for an involuntary manslaughter conviction, because if the homicide is accidental, defendant acted without a criminally culpable state of mind in performing a lawful act unintentionally killing the victim, and if the homicide occurred as a result of imperfect self-defense, defendant acted intentionally in self-defense and the use of excessive force rendered the killing lawful, whereas, an involuntary manslaughter instruction is proper only where there is evidence of an unintentional killing and a mens rea of criminal negligence. State v. Henley, 2010-NMSC-039, 148 N.M. 359, 237 P.3d 103.

Evidence did not support instruction on involuntary manslaughter. — Where the evidence most favorable to defendant showed that defendant was sitting in a car; the victim approached the car and held a gun to defendant's head; defendant grabbed the gun and it discharged; defendant gained control of the gun and fired it at the victim; and defendant then drove away without realizing that the victim had been shot, the evidence failed to establish a mental state of criminal negligence, which is required to support a jury instruction on involuntary manslaughter. State v. Henley, 2010-NMSC-039, 148 N.M. 359, 237 P.3d 103.

Evidence supported instruction on involuntary manslaughter. — Where defendant shot and killed an intruder that failed to identify himself while pounding on defendant's front door at 1:30 a.m., an instruction on involuntary manslaughter was warranted because a reasonable jury could have determined that defendant was either criminally negligent because firing a gun at the door while someone was on the other side of it was a willful disregard of the rights or safety of others and endangered that unknown intruder, that defendant unintentionally killed the intruder based on defendant's theory that he fired a warning shot, or that defendant committed the lawful act of self-defense and unintentionally killed the victim without due caution or circumspection. State v. Cardenas, 2016-NMCA-042, cert. denied.

Defendant was entitled to an involuntary manslaughter instruction as a lesser included offense of second-degree murder. — Where defendant was convicted of second-degree murder based on evidence that he shot and killed the victim, a friend of defendant's, while defendant was playing with a gun that he believed to be unloaded, the district court erred in denying defendant's requested jury instruction on involuntary manslaughter as a lesser included offense of second-degree murder, because there was evidence to support both charges and reasonable minds could differ regarding whether defendant committed involuntary manslaughter by negligent use of a firearm or second-degree murder by aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. State v. Young, 2021-NMCA-049.

Submission of issue proper. — In prosecution on information charging first degree murder, the submission of voluntary manslaughter was not error. State v. Burrus, 1934-NMSC-036, 38 N.M. 462, 35 P.2d 285.

Question of provocation. — Generally, it is for the jury to determine whether there is sufficient provocation under an appropriate instruction on voluntary manslaughter. Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Question of degree for jury. — Where the evidence on provocation sufficient to reduce the killing from murder to voluntary manslaughter and the evidence of self-defense was conflicting, such questions were factual ones to be resolved by the jury, and the trial court properly submitted the issues of second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter and self-defense to the jury. State v. King, 1977-NMCA-042, 90 N.M. 377, 563 P.2d 1170, overruled on other grounds, State v. Reynolds, 1982-NMSC-091, 98 N.M. 527, 650 P.2d 811.

Defendant entitled to manslaughter instruction. — Any evidence tending to bring homicide within grade of manslaughter entitled defendant to instruction on the law of manslaughter, and it was fatal error to refuse it. State v. Crosby, 1920-NMSC-037, 26 N.M. 318, 191 P. 1079.

If there is enough circumstantial evidence to raise an inference that the defendant was sufficiently provoked to kill the victim, he is entitled to an instruction on manslaughter. State v. Martinez, 1981-NMSC-016, 95 N.M. 421, 622 P.2d 1041.

Defendant is entitled to instruction on voluntary manslaughter if there is some evidence to support it. State v. Maestas, 1981-NMSC-006, 95 N.M. 335, 622 P.2d 240; State v. Marquez, 1981-NMCA-105, 96 N.M. 746, 634 P.2d 1298.

The defendant is entitled to an instruction on voluntary manslaughter as a lesser included offense of murder in the first degree if there is evidence to support, or tending to support, such an instruction. Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

When court has no duty to instruct on voluntary manslaughter. — Where neither prosecution nor defense in a murder trial requested an instruction on voluntary manslaughter, and both defendant and counsel stated that they did not desire such an instruction despite the court's explanation that there was sufficient evidence to warrant it, there was no duty for the trial court to instruct on voluntary manslaughter. State v. Najar, 1980-NMCA-033, 94 N.M. 193, 608 P.2d 169, cert. denied, 94 N.M. 628, 614 P.2d 545.

Trial court's refusal to instruct the jury on voluntary and involuntary manslaughter was not improper where defendant was guilty of transporting a gun by a convicted felon and of endangering another by handling a firearm in a negligent manner, and where there was evidence that he intentionally fired at the victim's vehicle. State v. Salazar, 1997-NMSC-044, 123 N.M. 778, 945 P.2d 996.

Attempted voluntary manslaughter instruction. — Defendant's testimony that he was scared when he believed other party was reaching for a gun provides evidence of sufficient provocation to support an attempted voluntary manslaughter instruction. State v. Jernigan, 2006-NMSC-003, 139 N.M. 1, 127 P.3d 537.

Instructions incomplete. — In homicide prosecution where one of defendant's theories was involuntary manslaughter, and record was replete with testimony that defendant was drunk while he rode around in automobile with deceased and witness, holding and handling sawed-off shotgun, court's refusal to instruct the jury that negligent use of a weapon while under the influence of intoxicant was a petty misdemeanor left jury without a guide to determine whether this was a killing while in the commission of a misdemeanor, and was reversible error. State v. Durham, 1971-NMCA-168, 83 N.M. 350, 491 P.2d 1161.

Overinclusive instruction erroneous. — Where trial court, at commencement of trial, removed the issue of manslaughter by "commission of a lawful act which might produce death, in an unlawful manner or without due caution and circumspection" from the case, it was reversible error to reinject this false issue into the case by including it in the definition of involuntary manslaughter given the jury in the instructions, and instructing the jury that in order to find defendant guilty it must find that his conduct was of the kind described in the definition. State v. Salazar, 1954-NMSC-062, 58 N.M. 489, 272 P.2d 688.

Sufficiency of the evidence assessed against the elements of the crime charged. — Where defendant was charged with involuntary manslaughter, and where the jury was instructed on the essential elements of involuntary manslaughter, but the jury instruction contained an additional element not contained in UJI 14-231 NMRA, the additional element did not become an essential element under the statute, because the sufficiency of the evidence is assessed against the elements of the crime charged. Therefore, where the defendant did not dispute that he was properly charged with the statutory elements for involuntary manslaughter, that he was given a meaningful opportunity to defend himself against those charges, or that the evidence was sufficient to convict him of the statutory elements of involuntary manslaughter, defendant was properly convicted of involuntary manslaughter. State v. Carpenter, 2016-NMCA-058.

Separate instructions not necessary. — Claim that the trial court should have instructed separately on the law applicable to crime of homicide resulting from driving under the influence and resulting from reckless driving was without merit, where jury was adequately instructed as to the proof required in either circumstance. State v. Fields, 1964-NMSC-230, 74 N.M. 559, 395 P.2d 908.

Erroneous to submit unsupported issue of manslaughter. — It is error for the court to submit to the jury an issue of whether defendant was guilty of voluntary manslaughter when the facts establish either first or second degree murder, but could not support a conviction of voluntary manslaughter and, accordingly, upon acquittal of murder and conviction of voluntary manslaughter, a reversal and discharge of the accused is required. Smith v. State, 1976-NMSC-085, 89 N.M. 770, 558 P.2d 39.

It is reversible error to submit, in a murder case, the issue of voluntary manslaughter to the jury where no such issue is involved in the evidence. State v. Luttrell, 1923-NMSC-024, 28 N.M. 393, 212 P. 739; State v. Trujillo, 1921-NMSC-111, 27 N.M. 594, 203 P. 846; State v. Pruett, 1921-NMSC-110, 27 N.M. 576, 203 P. 840; State v. Lujan, 1980-NMSC-036, 94 N.M. 232, 608 P.2d 1114.

Because misleading to jury. — A party is entitled to have the jury instructed on all correct legal theories of his case which are supported by substantial evidence but in this case the court's refusal to give the involuntary manslaughter instruction was correct where to have given the requested instruction, which included acts for which there was no evidentiary support, would have introduced false issues and would have been misleading to the jury. LaBarge v. Stewart, 1972-NMCA-119, 84 N.M. 222, 501 P.2d 666, cert. denied, 84 N.M. 219, 501 P.2d 663.

No right to instruction on blood alcohol test refusal. — Nothing in N.M. Const., art. II, §§ 14 or 15, or in statutory or case law, gives defendant in prosecution for manslaughter the legal right to have jury instructed that he had right to refuse to take a blood alcohol test. State v. Fields, 1964-NMSC-230, 74 N.M. 559, 395 P.2d 908.

Standing to complain. — Where the appellant was convicted of involuntary manslaughter, he could not complain of error in court's instruction in regard to murder. State v. Carabajal, 1920-NMSC-086, 26 N.M. 384, 193 P. 406.

Review of requested instruction. — Since the instruction on voluntary manslaughter was given at defendant's request, the appeals court can refuse to review since the trial court merely instructed the jury as the defendant requested. State v. Young, 1994-NMCA-061, 117 N.M. 688, 875 P.2d 1119, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 773, 877 P.2d 579.

Omission of words "without malice". — Omission of words "without malice" in instruction in prosecution for voluntary manslaughter did not decrease amount of proof required to convict. Territory v. Trapp, 1911-NMSC-073, 16 N.M. 700, 120 P. 702, rev'd on other grounds, 225 F. 968 (8th Cir. 1915).

Instruction upon manslaughter which did not tell jury that the killing must be without malice was beneficial rather than harmful to defendant, and he could not complain thereof. State v. Carabajal, 1920-NMSC-086, 26 N.M. 384, 193 P. 406.

Failure to preserve error in instruction. — Defective instruction which failed to advise the jury that defendant's reckless and wanton operation of his automobile must have been proximate cause of victim's death would not be considered on appeal where not raised in the trial court prior to reading of instruction to jury. State v. Clarkson, 1954-NMSC-007, 58 N.M. 56, 265 P.2d 670.

Health and safety violations. — Subsection B of this section is applicable to violations of the New Mexico Occupational Health and Safety Act. 1973-74 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-32.

Willful violation of a state occupational health and safety standard which causes the death of an employee would appear to constitute a violation of Subsection B of this section. 1973-74 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 73-32.

30-2-4. Assisting suicide.

A. Assisting suicide consists of deliberately aiding another in the taking of the person's own life, unless the person aiding another in the taking of the person's own life is a person acting in accordance with the provisions of the End-of-Life Options Act [24-7C-1 to 24-7C-8 NMSA 1978].

B. A person who commits assisting suicide is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-5, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-5; 2021, ch. 132, § 10.

The 2021 amendment, effective June 18, 2021, removed criminal liability for aiding another in the taking of another person's life if the person is acting in accordance with the provisions of the End-of-Life Options Act; added new subsection designations "A" and "B"; in Subsection A, after "own life", deleted "Whoever" and added "unless the person aiding another in the taking of the person's own life is a person acting in accordance with the provisions of the End-of-Life Options Act"; and in Subsection B, added "A person who".

ANNOTATIONS

Physician aid in dying is prohibited by this section. — The practice of aid in dying involves a physician deliberately prescribing a lethal dose of barbiturates with the understanding that the patient will self-administer the entire dose to end his or her life, should the patient choose to do so, conduct clearly encompassed by the plain language of 30-2-4 NMSA 1978. Morris v. Brandenburg, 2016-NMSC-027, aff'g 2015-NMCA-100, 356 P.3d 564.

Constitutionality. — Where petitioners, two doctors and their patient, sought declaratory and injunctive relief to the effect that either 30-2-4 NMSA 1978, New Mexico's criminal statute prohibiting assisted suicide, did not apply to the conduct defined by petitioners as physician aid in dying, or even if the statute did apply to physician aid in dying, such an application would be unconstitutional, petitioners failed to establish a fundamental liberty interest protected by the inherent rights clause or the due process clause of the New Mexico constitution, because the inherent rights clause has never been interpreted to be the exclusive source for a fundamental constitutional right, and on its own has always been subject to reasonable regulation, and there is a firm legal rationale behind the interest in protecting the integrity and ethics of the medical profession, the interest in protecting vulnerable groups, including the poor, the elderly, and disabled persons, from abuse, neglect, and mistakes due to the risk of subtle coercion and undue influence in end-of-life situations, and the legitimate concern that recognizing a right to physician aid in dying will lead to voluntary or involuntary euthanasia. Morris v. Brandenburg, 2016-NMSC-027, aff'g 2015-NMCA-100, 356 P.3d 564.

Constitutionality. — Aid in dying is not a fundamental liberty interest under the New Mexico constitution, and therefore a mentally competent, terminally ill patient's interest in a physician's assistance in dying is not a fundamental liberty interest protected by the due process clause of N.M. Const., Art. II, § 18 and is not entitled to protection under the state constitutional provision protecting inherent individual rights to life, liberty and happiness provided for in N.M. Const. Art. II, § 4. The district court, holding otherwise, erred in permanently enjoining the state from enforcing 30-2-4 NMSA 1978. Morris v. Brandenberg, 2015-NMCA-100, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-008.

Aid in dying is prohibited by this section. — A patient's choice to achieve a peaceful end of life through aid in dying, or the practice of a willing physician providing a lethal dose of a prescribed medication at the request of a mentally competent, terminally ill patient, is the taking of one's own life, and thus suicide within the meaning of this section; a physician's conduct of providing a patient a lethal dose of a prescribed medication, and thus the means to take his or her own life, is prohibited by this section. Morris v. Brandenberg, 2015-NMCA-100, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-008.

Second degree murder, assisted suicide, not same offense. — The second degree murder statute (Section 30-2-1B NMSA 1978) is aimed at preventing an individual from actively causing the death of someone contemplating suicide, whereas the assisting suicide statute is aimed at preventing an individual from providing someone contemplating suicide with the means to commit suicide. Thus, the two statutes do not condemn the same offense. State v. Sexson, 1994-NMCA-004, 117 N.M. 113, 869 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 215, 870 P.2d 753.

Suicide pact not exemption from conviction for murder. — The existence of a suicide pact does not exempt someone from a conviction for committing murder. However, that general rule may not apply if the means of attempted suicide used presents the same risk to both of the parties at the same time, such as when a couple drive off a cliff together. Such is not the case when the victim is killed by a rifle, the trigger of which is pulled by the defendant. State v. Sexson, 1994-NMCA-004, 117 N.M. 113, 869 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 215, 870 P.2d 753.

Suicide pact not assisting suicide. — There was enough evidence to support a conviction of second degree murder because there was sufficient evidence to show that the defendant actively participated in a suicide by holding the gun to the victim's head and pulling the trigger. "Aiding", in the context of determining whether one is criminally liable for their involvement in the suicide of another, is intended to mean providing the means to commit suicide, not actively performing the act which results in death. State v. Sexson, 1994-NMCA-004, 117 N.M. 113, 869 P.2d 301, cert. denied, 117 N.M. 215, 870 P.2d 753.

30-2-5. Excusable homicide.

Homicide is excusable in the following cases:

A. when committed by accident or misfortune in doing any lawful act, by lawful means, with usual and ordinary caution and without any unlawful intent; or

B. when committed by accident or misfortune in the heat of passion, upon any sudden and sufficient provocation, or upon a sudden combat, if no undue advantage is taken, nor any dangerous weapon used and the killing is not done in a cruel or unusual manner.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-6, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-6.

ANNOTATIONS

Limited instruction erroneous. — Instruction limiting defendant's defense of excusable homicide, by omitting homicide committed in doing a lawful act, by lawful means, and with ordinary caution, constituted reversible error. State v. Welch, 1933-NMSC-084, 37 N.M. 549, 25 P.2d 211.

30-2-6. Justifiable homicide by public officer or public employee.

A. Homicide is justifiable when committed by a public officer or public employee or those acting by their command and in their aid and assistance:

(1) in obedience to any judgment of a competent court;

(2) when necessarily committed in overcoming actual resistance to the execution of some legal process or to the discharge of any other legal duty;

(3) when necessarily committed in retaking felons who have been rescued or who have escaped or when necessarily committed in arresting felons fleeing from justice; or

(4) when necessarily committed in order to prevent the escape of a felon from any place of lawful custody or confinement.

B. For the purposes of this section, homicide is necessarily committed when a public officer or public employee has probable cause to believe he or another is threatened with serious harm or deadly force while performing those lawful duties described in this section. Whenever feasible, a public officer or employee should give warning prior to using deadly force.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-7, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-7; 1989, ch. 222, § 1.

The 1989 amendment, effective June 16, 1989, added the present designation for Subsection A, redesignated former Subsections A through D as Paragraphs (1) through (4) of present Subsection A, and added present Subsection B.

ANNOTATIONS

Legislative recognition of common law. — This section and Section 30-2-7 NMSA 1978 are in reality a legislative recognition of the common law which empowered officers to perform their duty of apprehending and bringing felons to the bar of justice. Alaniz v. Funk, 1961-NMSC-140, 69 N.M. 164, 364 P.2d 1033.

Arresting officer to use best judgment. — When the state sends an officer to make an arrest for a felony, he must use his best judgment to make the arrest, peaceably if he can, but forcibly if he must. Alaniz v. Funk, 1961-NMSC-140, 69 N.M. 164, 364 P.2d 1033.

Use of necessary force in making arrest. — An officer having the right to arrest an offender may use such force as is necessary to effect his purpose, to the extent of taking life. State v. Vargas, 1937-NMSC-049, 42 N.M. 1, 74 P.2d 62.

Danger of the suspect. — Under this section the crucial consideration is the conduct and dangerousness of the suspect, not the classification of the crime that he or she has committed or is alleged to have committed. State v. Mantelli, 2002-NMCA-033, 131 N.M. 692, 42 P.3d 272, cert. denied, 131 N.M. 737, 42 P.3d 842.

Use of deadly force. — While this section speaks of justifiable homicide, the appellate court reads it as authorizing the use of deadly force by law enforcement officers whether or not the suspect is ultimately killed. State v. Mantelli, 2002-NMCA-033, 131 N.M. 692, 42 P.3d 272, cert. denied, 131 N.M. 737, 42 P.3d 842.

Reasonableness a jury question. — Generally, the question of the reasonableness of the actions of the officer in using lethal force to apprehend a felon is a question of fact for the jury. Alaniz v. Funk, 1961-NMSC-140, 69 N.M. 164, 364 P.2d 1033.

It is apparent, through the inclusion of "probable cause" in Subsection B, that the reasonableness of an individual police officer's actions is an objective analysis evaluated from his perspective at the time of the incident and is necessarily a factual inquiry. State v. Mantelli, 2002-NMCA-033, 131 N.M. 692, 42 P.3d 272, cert. denied, 131 N.M. 737, 42 P.3d 842.

Self-defense authorized. — A self-defense instruction is required whenever a defendant presents evidence sufficient to allow reasonable minds to differ as to all elements of the defense; this is also the standard that should be applied when determining if the jury should be instructed on justifiable homicide by a police officer in accordance with this section. State v. Mantelli, 2002-NMCA-033, 131 N.M. 692, 42 P.3d 272, cert. denied, 131 N.M. 737, 42 P.3d 842.

Although an officer must not kill for an escape where the party is in custody for a misdemeanor, if the party assaults the officer with such violence that he had reasonable ground to believe his life in peril, he may justify killing the party. State v. Vargas, 1937-NMSC-049, 42 N.M. 1, 74 P.2d 62.

Large rocks, hurled by misdemeanant at deputy sheriff in resisting arrest, were dangerous weapons, justifying resort to extreme measures on part of deputy. State v. Vargas, 1937-NMSC-049, 42 N.M. 1, 74 P.2d 62.

Duty not to retreat. — In a wrongful death suit, where the evidence showed that decedent committed at least two felonies in the presence of police officers, the officers' duty, when he fired upon them, was not to retreat but to press forward and place him under physical restraint, and, in so doing, the officers could defend themselves and use deadly force if such were justified by the circumstances. Cordova v. City of Albuquerque, 1974-NMCA-101, 86 N.M. 697, 526 P.2d 1290.

Instruction appropriate. — Officer charged with killing one resisting an arrest for felony was entitled to have jury instructed as to what constitutes justifiable homicide. Territory of New Mexico v. Gutierrez, 1905-NMSC-018, 13 N.M. 138, 79 P. 716.

30-2-7. Justifiable homicide by citizen.

Homicide is justifiable when committed by any person in any of the following cases:

A. when committed in the necessary defense of his life, his family or his property, or in necessarily defending against any unlawful action directed against himself, his wife or family;

B. when committed in the lawful defense of himself or of another and when there is a reasonable ground to believe a design exists to commit a felony or to do some great personal injury against such person or another, and there is imminent danger that the design will be accomplished; or

C. when necessarily committed in attempting, by lawful ways and means, to apprehend any person for any felony committed in his presence, or in lawfully suppressing any riot, or in necessarily and lawfully keeping and preserving the peace.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-8, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-8.

ANNOTATIONS

Imperfect self-defense. — Imperfect self-defense, which occurs when a person uses excessive force while otherwise lawfully engaging in self-defense, is not a true affirmative defense for which a defendant is entitled to an instruction. Any issues raised by a defendant's claim of imperfect self-defense are properly addressed when the jury is instructed on voluntary manslaughter. State v. Herrera, 2014-NMCA-007, cert. denied, 2013-NMCERT-012.

Recognition of common law. — This section and Section 30-2-6 NMSA 1978 are in reality a legislative recognition of the common law which empowered officers to perform their duty of apprehending and bringing felons to the bar of justice. Alaniz v. Funk, 1961-NMSC-140, 69 N.M. 164, 364 P.2d 1033.

Three elements necessary before self-defense instruction can be given are: (1) an appearance of immediate danger of death or great bodily harm to the defendant; (2) the defendant was in fact put in such fear; and (3) a reasonable person would have reacted in a similar manner. State v. Martinez, 1981-NMSC-016, 95 N.M. 421, 622 P.2d 1041.

Multiple attacker. — While a person may act in self-defense against multiple attackers acting in concert, this principle applies only to the extent that each accomplice poses an immediate danger of death or great bodily harm, thereby necessitating an act of self-defense. State v. Coffin, 1999-NMSC-038, 128 N.M. 192, 991 P.2d 477.

Retaliation. — Self-defense is defined by the objectively reasonable necessity of the action and does not extend to a defendant's act of retaliation for another's involvement in a crime against the defendant. State v. Coffin, 1999-NMSC-038, 128 N.M. 192, 991 P.2d 477.

Provocation by defendant. — A defendant who provokes an encounter, as a result of which the defendant finds it necessary to use deadly force in defense, cannot claim defendant was acting in self-defense. State v. Lucero, 1998-NMSC-044, 126 N.M. 552, 972 P.2d 1143; State v. Chavez, 1983-NMSC-037, 99 N.M. 609, 661 P.2d 887.

Excessive force. — The use of excessive force in self-defense is not reasonable and does not entitle one to a self-defense instruction. State v. Sutphin, 2007–NMSC-045, 142 N.M. 191, 164 P.3d 72.

To warrant self-defense instruction evidence must raise reasonable doubt in the minds of the jury as to whether or not a defendant accused of homicide did act in self-defense. State v. Martinez, 1981-NMSC-016, 95 N.M. 421, 622 P.2d 1041.

Subjective apprehension of harm necessary. — It was not sufficient to justify the taking of human life that a person had reason to apprehend death or great bodily harm to himself unless he killed his assailant; he must entertain such belief and must be acting upon it. State v. Parks, 1919-NMSC-041, 25 N.M. 395, 183 P. 433.

Threat of great personal injury. — Laws 1853-1854, p. 86, (former 40-24-13, 1953 Comp.), defining homicide as justifiable when committed in lawful self-defense on reasonable ground to apprehend some great personal injury meant something more than apprehension, however imminent, of a mere battery, not amounting to a felony, and required an apparent design either to take the life or inflict great personal injury on the person assailed, amounting to a felony, if carried out, and imminent danger of such design being accomplished. Territory v. Baker, 1887-NMSC-021, 4 N.M. (Gild.) 236, 13 P. 30.

Defense of chastity. — Woman accused of voluntary manslaughter was entitled, on written request, to special instruction on her claim of defense of her chastity. State v. Martinez, 1924-NMSC-075, 30 N.M. 178, 230 P. 379.

Defense of habitation authorized. — The defense of habitation alone, without a statute making it a felony to unlawfully and maliciously injure a house, gave householder the right to meet force with force, and "an attack upon a dwelling, and especially in the night, the law regards as equivalent to an assault on a man's person, for a man's house is his castle." State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

While no law countenances wanton slaying, the protection and security of life being the most vital interest of society, the law of habitation and the resistance to the commission of a felony thereon gave householder the right to kill the aggressor, if such killing was necessary or apparently necessary to prevent or repel the felonious aggression. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

Householder not obliged to retreat. — When one's home was attacked in the middle of a dark night by persons riding in an automobile, the householder, being unable to determine what weapons the assailants had, was not obliged to retreat but might pursue his adversaries until out of danger. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

Substantial injury to dwelling not necessary. — Instruction that injury to a dwelling, to be felonious so as to justify killing, must be of a substantial character constituted a prejudicial error. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

Property other than dwelling. — Under former law, trespass upon real estate not the dwelling house of accused did not of itself justify or excuse killing of trespasser. State v. Martinez, 1929-NMSC-040, 34 N.M. 112, 278 P. 210.

Apprehension of suspected felon. — Deadly force in the apprehension of suspected felons is justifiable only when the citizen has probable cause to believe he or she is threatened with serious bodily harm or the use of deadly force. State v. Johnson, 1998-NMCA-019, 124 N.M. 647, 954 P.2d 79.

Requisites of instructions. — It is not imperative that the charge to the jury use the precise terms of the statute; instructions are sufficient which substantially follow the language of the statute or use equivalent language, adequately covering every phase of the case raised by the evidence on which the defendant is entitled to have the jury instructed. State v. Maestas, 1957-NMSC-057, 63 N.M. 67, 313 P.2d 337.

Jury to consider threat of danger from defendant's standpoint. — Where defense of habitation is invoked in homicide case, the danger or apparent danger must be considered from the standpoint of accused, and not according to the actual facts as they developed at the trial. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

The jury was adequately instructed where it was charged that if it reasonably appeared to the defendant that his brother was in imminent danger of death or great bodily injury, then the defendant had a right to use such force as would appear reasonably necessary to repel the attack, and the jury was further instructed to view the matter from defendant's viewpoint, even though it afterward appeared that no injury was intended and no danger existed. State v. Maestas, 1957-NMSC-057, 63 N.M. 67, 313 P.2d 337.

Instruction on right to act in view of wife's health. — Refusal of instruction relating to defendant's right to act in view of his wife's condition and effect which repeated assaults upon the habitation had had upon her health was reversible error. State v. Couch, 1946-NMSC-047, 52 N.M. 127, 193 P.2d 405.

When self-defense instruction mandatory. — Where self-defense is involved in a criminal case and there is any evidence, although slight, to establish the same, it is not only proper for the court, but its duty as well, to instruct the jury fully and clearly on all phases of the law on the issues that are warranted by the evidence, even though such defense is supported only by the defendant's own testimony. State v. Heisler, 1954-NMSC-032, 58 N.M. 446, 272 P.2d 660.

Evidence held to support theory of self-defense. — The recovery of a spent bullet, after trial, from under the hood of the defendant's car, and evidence regarding its angle of entry and rifling characteristics consistent with its having been fired by a gun of the type and caliber known by police to be owned by the victim, was not merely cumulative evidence, but was a material piece of demonstrative evidence strengthening the defendant's theory of self-defense. State v. Melendez, 1981-NMCA-027, 97 N.M. 740, 643 P.2d 609, rev'd on other grounds, 1982-NMSC-039, 97 N.M. 738, 643 P.2d 607.

When inappropriate. — If the evidence in the case is insufficient to raise a reasonable doubt as to whether a defendant accused of a homicide did act in self-defense, any instruction on that issue is properly refused. State v. Heisler, 1954-NMSC-032, 58 N.M. 446, 272 P.2d 660.

Instructions properly refused. — In prosecution for assault with intent to kill, refusal to instruct that person has a right to defend his property from trespass or larceny, and that jury should acquit defendant if it found he shot at prosecuting witness to stop him from removing defendant's property and that such action was necessary to prevent, it was not error where evidence did not show prosecuting witness was on land leased by defendant at time of assault and in light of instructions given. State v. Waggoner, 1946-NMSC-001, 49 N.M. 399, 165 P.2d 122.

30-2-8. When homicide is excusable or justifiable defendant to be acquitted.

Whenever any person is prosecuted for a homicide, and upon his trial the killing shall be found to have been excusable or justifiable, the jury shall find such person not guilty and he shall be discharged.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-9, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-9.

30-2-9. Murderer may not profit from wrongdoing; public policy.

A. The acquiring, profiting or anticipating of benefits by reason of the commission of murder where the person committing such crime is convicted of either a capital, first or second degree felony, is against the public policy of this state and is prohibited.

B. In all cases involving devises or bequests, or heirships under the laws of descent and distribution, or cotenancies, or future interests, or community estates, or contracts, whether of real, personal or mixed properties, where a person, who, by committing murder and where such person is convicted of either a capital, first or second degree felony, and might receive some benefit therefrom either directly or indirectly, the common-law maxim to the effect that one cannot take advantage of his own wrong, shall control and be applied to the interpretation, construction and application of all statutes or decisions of this state in order to deprive and prevent him from profiting from such wrongful acts.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-2-10, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 2-10.

ANNOTATIONS

Applicability. — This statute clearly requires a conviction of murder. Where defendant was convicted of vehicular homicide, a third degree felony, the forfeiture provision does not apply. Aranda v. Camacho, 1997-NMCA-010, 122 N.M. 763, 931 P.2d 757.

Section distinct from common law. — This section is not merely declaratory of the common law, nor is it a mere extension of or addition to the common-law maxim that a beneficiary may not profit by his own crime. Rose v. Rose, 1968-NMSC-115, 79 N.M. 435, 444 P.2d 762.

Nature of prohibition. — If the legislature had intended it as merely declaratory of the common law, it would have been easy to have said that one who is convicted of feloniously causing the death of another shall not benefit therefrom. However, the legislature, by express and unambiguous language, prohibited only those convicted of murder from so profiting. Rose v. Rose, 1968-NMSC-115, 79 N.M. 435, 444 P.2d 762.

Matter for legislature. — This is a legislative matter, and where, in 1942, prior to passage of Laws 1955, ch. 61, providing that a murderer could not inherit the estate of his victim, defendant killed his mother, pleading guilty to murder in the second degree for the crime, the court would refuse to amend or set aside the unambiguous statutes of descent and distribution under which the property of the mother descended to the son. Reagan v. Brown, 1955-NMSC-064, 59 N.M. 423, 285 P.2d 789.

Criminal proceeding determinative. — The question of whether the insured was murdered by the person to whom the property would ordinarily go is one to be judicially determined, the legislature having seen fit to provide that such determination must be ascertained in a criminal proceeding. Rose v. Rose, 1968-NMSC-115, 79 N.M. 435, 444 P.2d 762.

30-3-19. Threatening a judge or an immediate family member of a judge; penalty.
30-3-20. Malicious sharing of personal information of a judge or an immediate family member of a judge; penalty.

30-3-1. Assault.

Assault consists of either:

A. an attempt to commit a battery upon the person of another;

B. any unlawful act, threat or menacing conduct which causes another person to reasonably believe that he is in danger of receiving an immediate battery; or

C. the use of insulting language toward another impugning his honor, delicacy or reputation.

Whoever commits assault is guilty of a petty misdemeanor.

ANNOTATIONS

Requisites of assault. — An assault under New Mexico law requires an act, threat or menacing contact, which causes the plaintiff to reasonably believe she is in danger of receiving an immediate battery. Chavez v. Thomas & Betts, Corp., 396 F.3d 1088 (10th Cir. 2005).

Specific intent is not an essential element of aggravated assault. — Where defendant was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and where the state presented evidence at trial that the victim of the assault was standing next to the shooting victim when the shooting occurred and that the assault victim reasonably believed that she was also going to be shot, and where the jury was properly instructed on general criminal intent, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. Specific intent is not an essential element of aggravated assault. State v. Branch, 2018-NMCA-031, replacing 2016-NMCA-071, 387 P.3d 250, cert. denied.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault. — Where defendant was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, the evidence that the victim of the assault was standing right next to the shooting victim when the shooting occurred, that the assault victim believed that she was also going to be shot, and where the jury was properly instructed on general criminal intent, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. State v. Branch, 2016-NMCA-071, 387 P.3d 250, replaced by 2018-NMCA-031, and cert. quashed.

Constitutional infirmity in Subsection C may exist insofar as first and fourteenth amendment rights are concerned. State v. Parrillo, 1979-NMCA-135, 94 N.M. 98, 607 P.2d 636, cert. denied, 94 N.M. 629, 614 P.2d 546.

Insulting language. — Language that meant "follow the road, don't go" did not, as a matter of law, tend toward impugning the honor, delicacy or reputation of another. State v. Vasquez, 1971-NMCA-182, 83 N.M. 388, 492 P.2d 1005.

Requisites of assault. — For there to have been an assault upon a victim, there must have been an act, threat or conduct which caused him to reasonably believe he was in danger of receiving an immediate battery. State v. Mata, 1974-NMCA-067, 86 N.M. 548, 525 P.2d 908, cert. denied, 86 N.M. 528, 525 P.2d 888.

Batteries do not include assault. — While assault and battery are closely related, one may exist without the other. All batteries do not include an assault. For there to be an assault, there must have been an act, threat or menacing conduct which causes another person to reasonably believe that he is in danger of receiving an immediate battery. Baca v. Velez, 1992-NMCA-053, 114 N.M. 13, 833 P.2d 1194, cert. denied, 113 N.M. 636, 830 P.2d 553.

Evidence of victim's apprehension. — Where there was no direct evidence of an alleged victim's belief that he was in danger of receiving an immediate battery, the evidence was insufficient to show that any assault had been committed. State v. Mata, 1974-NMCA-067, 86 N.M. 548, 525 P.2d 908, cert. denied, 86 N.M. 528, 525 P.2d 888.

committed against an inmate, allegedly committed while defendant was employed as a corrections officer, and where evidence was presented at trial that defendant, while escorting the victim out of a courtroom following a hearing, attempted to kiss the victim multiple times, that the victim pushed defendant away each time, but gave defendant her phone number because she was nervous, uncomfortable, and scared that defendant would try to do more than kiss her, and where defendant claimed that his two convictions for assault were not supported by sufficient evidence because there was no evidence that defendant was angry at the time of either of his attempts to kiss the victim, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's convictions for assault where evidence established that the victim was under defendant's physical control, restrained by shackles, and isolated within the courthouse when defendant attempted to kiss her. The victim's testimony provided relevant direct and circumstantial evidence from which a reasonable jury could conclude that under these specific circumstances, defendant's attempts to kiss her were done in an offensive or insulting manner. State v. Arvizo, 2021-NMCA-055, cert. denied.

Evidence of threats following assault and attempted battery was relevant. — Where defendant was charged with two counts of assault and attempted battery committed against an inmate, allegedly committed while defendant was employed as a corrections officer, and where evidence was presented that defendant, while escorting the victim out of a courtroom following a hearing, attempted to kiss the victim multiple times, that the victim pushed defendant away each time, but gave defendant her phone number because she was nervous, uncomfortable, and scared that defendant would try to do more than kiss her, and that following the victim's release from jail, she received messages on her cell phone from defendant, including a threat from defendant that he would call the victim's "tracker" if she continued to refuse to return his calls, which the victim interpreted as a threat to send her back to jail, the district court did not abuse its discretion by admitting evidence of defendant's voicemail messages because it was not against the logic and effect of the facts and circumstances of the case for the district court to allow testimony about defendant's voicemail message threatening the victim with penal consequences if she continued to refuse his calls. State v. Arvizo, 2021-NMCA-055, cert. denied.

Improperly admitted evidence of menacing conduct not unfairly prejudicial. — Where defendant was improperly charged and convicted of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon along with tampering with evidence, and the district court admitted evidence that defendant stated that he robbed the neighborhood in the course of the overall incident at issue, the admission of defendant's statement was not unfairly prejudicial because although the evidence related to defendant's menacing conduct, which related solely to the improperly charged, assault-based offense, the testimony about defendant's statement that he robbed the neighborhood was elicited from the victim, not law enforcement, was offered in the context of other blustering comments from defendant, defendant makes no showing that the state placed emphasis on the statement, there was no indication that the state attempted to relate the statement to the conduct that supported defendant's conviction for tampering, and there was other sufficient evidence to supporting defendant's conviction for tampering with evidence. State v. Radosevich, 2016-NMCA-060, 376 P.3d 871, rev'd on other grounds, 2018-NMSC-028.

Definition mandatory part of instructions. — The definition of assault found in this section contains essential elements of the crime of which defendant was convicted, assault with intent to commit a violent felony, and hence, failure to instruct on the definition of assault constituted jurisdictional error. State v. Jones, 1973-NMCA-107, 85 N.M. 426, 512 P.2d 1262.

Instruction on assault as lesser included offense. — In trial of Indian for rape under the federal Major Crimes Act (18 U.S.C. §§ 1153, 3242, conferring federal jurisdiction over certain enumerated major crimes committed by Indians on Indian reservations), it was reversible error for trial court to refuse to instruct on the non-enumerated offenses of attempted rape, simple assault and battery, all of which were lesser included offenses under New Mexico law. Joe v. United States, 510 F.2d 1038 (10th Cir. 1974).

30-3-2. Aggravated assault.

Aggravated assault consists of either:

A. unlawfully assaulting or striking at another with a deadly weapon;

B. committing assault by threatening or menacing another while wearing a mask, hood, robe or other covering upon the face, head or body, or while disguised in any manner, so as to conceal identity; or

C. wilfully [willfully] and intentionally assaulting another with intent to commit any felony.

Whoever commits aggravated assault is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-3-2, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 3-2.

V. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Legislative intent for separate punishments. — As each offense includes one statutory element not included in the other, the presumption is that the legislature intended to punish separately the two offenses of aggravated assault and armed robbery. State v. Armijo, 2005-NMCA-010, 136 N.M. 723, 104 P.3d 1114.

Multiple victims. — Defendant's convictions for two counts of aggravated assault stemming from defendant's one act of pointing a shotgun at two victims at the same time did not violate the double jeopardy clause, because each victim suffered distinct mental harm protected by the statute. State v. Roper, 2001-NMCA-093, 131 N.M. 189, 34 P.3d 133, cert. quashed, 131 N.M. 619, 41 P.3d 345 (2002).

State v. Maes, 1983-NMCA-073, 100 N.M. 78, 665 P.2d 1169 is no longer considered to be controlling authority in determining whether there has been a violation of the prohibition against double jeopardy, because the analysis contained therein predates, and has been replaced by, the two-pronged analysis of Swafford v. State, 1991-NMSC-043, 112 N.M. 3, 810 P.2d 1223. State v. Armijo, 2005-NMCA-010, 136 N.M. 723, 104 P.3d 1114.

Use of deadly weapon to protect property. — The use of a deadly weapon in the protection of property is generally held, except in extreme cases, to be the use of more than justifiable force, and to render the owner of the property liable, both civilly and criminally, for the assault. Brown v. Martinez, 1961-NMSC-040, 68 N.M. 271, 361 P.2d 152.

Resisting arrest with deadly weapon. — Resistance of lawful arrest with deadly weapon was not excused by fact that the officer acted from personal motives. State v. Nieto, 1929-NMSC-060, 34 N.M. 232, 280 P. 248.

Intentional shooting. — The killing of a person by intentionally shooting him with a rifle, if not justified by the law of self-defense, would constitute at least an assault with a deadly weapon and would be a felony, and hence not involuntary manslaughter. State v. Pruett, 1921-NMSC-110, 27 N.M. 576, 203 P. 840.

Prosecution after acquittal of other charges. — State did not violate guarantee against double jeopardy in prosecuting defendant for assault with intent to commit a violent felony and false imprisonment, after an acquittal on charges of assault on a jail and false imprisonment and kidnapping of another individual, arising out of the same incident, since where the jury in the first trial acquitted defendant they did not necessarily conclude that he was not present at the jail that day and thus did not commit any crimes, but simply that he was not guilty of the crimes alleged. State v. Tijerina, 1973-NMSC-105, 86 N.M. 31, 519 P.2d 127, cert. denied, 417 U.S. 956, 94 S. Ct. 3085, 41 L. Ed. 2d 674 (1974).

Statutory language to be used. — An indictment for drawing or handling deadly weapon in threatening manner under Laws 1887, ch. 30, § 2 (former 40-17-3, 1953 Comp.) was required to follow language of statute. Territory v. Armijo, 1894-NMSC-011, 7 N.M. 571, 37 P. 1117 (decided under prior law).

Word "unlawfully" was not necessary in indictment if other words were used which conveyed the same meaning. Ruiz v. Territory, 1900-NMSC-013, 10 N.M. 120, 61 P. 126.

Allegation that gun was loaded unnecessary. — In prosecution for an assault with a deadly weapon, a gun, it was not necessary to allege that the gun was loaded. Territory v. Gonzales, 1907-NMSC-007, 14 N.M. 31, 89 P. 250.

Indictment failing to specify appropriate statutory section. — An indictment framed under Laws 1887, ch. 30, prescribing penalties for drawing or handling deadly weapon in threatening manner, assault with a deadly weapon and drawing or discharging firearm in public place was insufficient when the offense charged did not come within scope of any section of that act. Territory v. Armijo, 1894-NMSC-011, 7 N.M. 571, 37 P. 1117 (decided under prior law).

Where the state originally charged defendant with assault with intent to commit the violent felony of robbery but later amended the indictment to charge assault with intent to commit the felony of larceny, the fact that the amended indictment continued to contain the statutory references to assault with intent to commit a violent felony was not fatal to the indictment, since misreference to statutory sections is not a sufficient reason to dismiss the indictment. State v. Gallegos, 1989-NMCA-066, 109 N.M. 55, 781 P.2d 783, cert. denied, 108 N.M. 771, 779 P.2d 549.

Failing to describe weapon or allege unlawful assault. — An indictment for assault with a deadly weapon under Laws 1907, ch. 36, § 19 (former 40-17-6, 1953 Comp.) was insufficient if it did not describe the knife used or failed to charge that it was one with which dangerous cuts could be given or dangerous thrusts inflicted or that defendant "did unlawfully assault." Territory v. Armijo, 1894-NMSC-011, 7 N.M. 571, 37 P. 1117 (decided under prior law).

Defense of citizen's arrest. — When the defendant asserted the defense of citizen's arrest in a prosecution for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, the issue of notice of his intent to make an arrest and proof that a felony was in fact committed by the arrestee were not elements of the defense. State v. Johnson, 1996-NMSC-075, 122 N.M. 696, 930 P.2d 1148.

Where evidence on charge is overwhelming, defendant cannot be prejudiced by the testimony as to the extent of a victim's injuries after the jury is told to disregard that testimony. State v. Davis, 1979-NMCA-015, 92 N.M. 563, 591 P.2d 1160.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

No double jeopardy for sentence enhancement. — Double jeopardy did not prohibit the trial court from enhancing defendant's sentence for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon under the firearm enhancement section, 31-18-16A NMSA 1978, since each section contains an element or elements not included in the other and the phrase "a noncapital felony" means "any noncapital offense". State v. Charlton, 1992-NMCA-124, 115 N.M. 35, 846 P.2d 341, cert. denied, 114 N.M. 577, 844 P.2d 827.

Sentence improper. — Sentence of 7 to 15 years for convictions of assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon were not in accordance with the so-called indeterminate sentence law, former 41-17-1, 1953 Comp., which required a trial judge to sentence a person found guilty of an offense to the minimum and maximum provided by statute for the offense. State v. Romero, 1963-NMSC-168, 73 N.M. 109, 385 P.2d 967 (decided under prior law).

II. ELEMENTS OF AGGRAVATED ASSAULT.

Threat of bodily harm. — A defendant could be convicted of aggravated assault by merely threatening the victim with bodily harm. State v. Armijo, 2005-NMCA-010, 136 N.M. 723, 104 P.3d 1114.

Aggravated assault and armed robbery distinguished. — Aggravated assault contains an element that armed robbery does not: striking at a victim instead of just threatening him. Armed robbery contains an element that aggravated assault does not: taking victim's property with the intent to permanently deprive victim of the property. State v. Armijo, 2005-NMCA-010, 136 N.M. 723, 104 P.3d 1114.

Meaning of "deadly weapon". — Deadly weapons shall be construed to mean any kind or class of pistol or gun, whether loaded or unloaded. State v. Montano, 1961-NMSC-174, 69 N.M. 332, 367 P.2d 95.

Apprehension of danger required. — For there to be an aggravated assault there must first be an assault; for there to be an assault upon a victim, there must have been an act, threat or conduct which caused him to reasonably believe he was in danger of receiving an immediate battery. State v. Mata, 1974-NMCA-067, 86 N.M. 548, 525 P.2d 908, cert. denied, 86 N.M. 528, 525 P.2d 888.

General criminal intent is necessary element of aggravated assault although the terms of the statute do not require it. Consequently, something done "not with an evil purpose, but for fun, or as a practical joke" is not done with the requisite criminal intent necessary to constitute the crime of aggravated assault. State v. Cruz, 1974-NMCA-077, 86 N.M. 455, 525 P.2d 382.

Intent defined as conscious wrongdoing. — Although Subsection A does not refer to intent, intent is required; the intent involved is that of conscious wrongdoing. State v. Mascarenas, 1974-NMCA-100, 86 N.M. 692, 526 P.2d 1285.

Intent to harm not requisite. — An intent to do physical or bodily injury is not an element of Subsection A of this section. State v. Cruz, 1974-NMCA-077, 86 N.M. 455, 525 P.2d 382.

Specific intent to do bodily harm is not a necessary element of aggravated assault under New Mexico law. Proof of intent under the aggravated assault statute is achieved by showing the defendant intended to commit a simple assault and did so with a deadly weapon. United States v. Boone, 347 F. Supp. 1031 (D.N.M. 1972).

Great bodily harm is not element of aggravated assault charge. State v. Davis, 1979-NMCA-015, 92 N.M. 563, 591 P.2d 1160.

III. EVIDENCE AND PROOF.

State is not required to prove that accused intended to assault victim, but only that he did an unlawful act which caused the victim to reasonably believe that she was in danger of receiving an immediate battery, that the act was done with a deadly weapon, and that it was done with a general criminal intent. State v. Manus, 1979-NMSC-035, 93 N.M. 95, 597 P.2d 280, overruled on other grounds, Sells v. State, 1982-NMSC-125, 98 N.M. 786, 653 P.2d 162.

Specific intent is not an essential element of aggravated assault. — Where defendant was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and where the state presented evidence at trial that the victim of the assault was standing next to the shooting victim when the shooting occurred and that the assault victim reasonably believed that she was also going to be shot, and where the jury was properly instructed on general criminal intent, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. Specific intent is not an essential element of aggravated assault. State v. Branch, 2018-NMCA-031, replacing 2016-NMCA-071, 387 P.3d 250, cert. denied.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault. — Where defendant was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, the evidence that the victim of the assault was standing right next to the shooting victim when the shooting occurred, that the assault victim believed that she was also going to be shot, and where the jury was properly instructed on general criminal intent, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. State v. Branch, 2016-NMCA-071, 387 P.3d 250, replaced by 2018-NMCA-031, and cert. quashed.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. — Where, in defendant's trial for first-degree murder, child abuse and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, the jury heard evidence that defendant fired a gun at the shooting victim nine times at point-blank range, that the victim was seated in the front passenger seat of his vehicle, and that the victim's wife was seated in the driver's seat of the vehicle, and where the victim's wife testified that when the shooting began, she closed her eyes and believed that she was going to die, there was sufficient evidence for a jury to reasonably infer that when defendant pointed the gun at the victim, he was simultaneously point it in the direction of the victim's wife, and there was sufficient evidence to support the jury's determination that the victim's wife believed she was in danger of receiving an immediate battery and that this belief was reasonable. State v. Ramirez, 2018-NMSC-003.

"Use" of a deadly weapon in the context of assault with a deadly weapon construed. — A defendant uses a deadly weapon to commit assault where a defendant makes facilitative use of the deadly weapon. Facilitative use of a deadly weapon may be found if (1) a deadly weapon is present at some point during the encounter, (2) the victim knows or, based on the defendant's words or actions, has reason to know that the defendant has a deadly weapon, and (3) the presence of the weapon is intentionally used by the defendant to facilitate the commission of the assault. State v. Zachariah G., 2022-NMSC-003, aff'g 2021-NMCA-036.

Sufficient evidence of assault on a school employee with a deadly weapon. — Where a child was adjudicated a delinquent for committing aggravated assault with a deadly weapon on a school employee, there was sufficient evidence to support the adjudication where, although the child did not brandish the BB gun he had concealed in his waistband, the child refused to reveal the object to the school principal and asked the principal menacing questions, including "What would happen if somebody shot up the school?", "Are you afraid to die?", and "How would you feel if a twelve-year old shot you?". There was sufficient evidence to satisfy the essential element that the child used the deadly weapon where the evidence supported findings that a deadly weapon was present, that the principal knew or had reason to know from the child's words and actions that the child had a BB gun when the child threatened him, and that the presence of the weapon was intentionally used by the child to facilitate the commission of an assault on the principal. Based on the child's verbal threats that took advantage of the presence of the BB gun, it was reasonable for the jury to determine that the child's conduct caused the principal to reasonably believe that he was in danger of receiving an immediate battery, and thus the child used the deadly weapon to facilitate the assault. State v. Zachariah G., 2022-NMSC-003, aff'g 2021-NMCA-036.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault by "use" of a deadly weapon. — Where a child was adjudicated a delinquent for committing aggravated assault with a deadly weapon on a school employee, there was sufficient evidence to support the adjudication where, although the child did not brandish or retrieve a BB gun he had concealed in his waistband, the child refused to reveal the object to the school principal and asked the school principal menacing questions, including "What would happen if somebody shot up the school?", "Are you afraid to die?", and "How would you feel if a twelve-year-old shot you?". A reasonable juror could have determined that the child threatened the principal with the BB gun and that the BB gun was instrumental to the child's assault because the child's menacing and threatening questions instilled fear in the principal while the BB gun was bulging from the child's pants and of which the child knew the principal was aware. State v. Zachariah G., 2021-NMCA-036, cert. granted.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault. — Where defendant was convicted of three counts of aggravated assault for unlawfully assaulting or striking at another with a deadly weapon, there was sufficient evidence to support the convictions where the evidence presented at trial established that defendant admitted to police that he discharged his firearm twice in the air and twice at a vehicle that he knew to be occupied by multiple people, because the evidence was such that the jury could have concluded that defendant's act of shooting at the occupied vehicle caused the occupants of the vehicle to believe defendant was about to intrude on their bodily integrity or personal safety. State v. Candelaria, 2019-NMSC-004.

Use of circumstantial evidence. — On trial of charge of assault with deadly weapon, whether the weapon was in fact used may be shown by circumstantial evidence. State v. Conwell, 1932-NMSC-042, 36 N.M. 253, 13 P.2d 554.

Proof of motive is not indispensable to conviction. — Without contention that defendant did not shoot victim, the state is not required to prove motive. State v. Brito, 1969-NMCA-027, 80 N.M. 166, 452 P.2d 694.

Evidence of victim's prior conviction. — Exclusion of bare fact that person threatened with deadly weapon had been convicted of voluntary manslaughter, offered as bearing on self-defense, was within discretion of trial court. State v. Nieto, 1929-NMSC-060, 34 N.M. 232, 280 P. 248.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault. — Where co-defendant held a knife at the victim's throat and told the victim that he was going to kill him, the facts were sufficient to support the jury's finding that a reasonable person in the victim's position would believe that his bodily integrity was threatened by co-defendant's use of the knife. State v. Herrera, 2015-NMCA-116, cert. denied, 2015-NMCERT-010.

Evidence sufficient. — Evidence that defendant pulled the loaded gun from his pocket and made threat to kill after argument over girlfriend was substantial evidence of an attempt to apply force in either an insolent or angry manner and therefore sufficient evidence of aggravated assault. State v. Woods, 1971-NMCA-026, 82 N.M. 449, 483 P.2d 504.

Evidence that defendant told victim to leave, fired revolver within one foot of and in the direction of victim, and called victim a son of a bitch and told him to get up, supports conviction for aggravated assault. State v. Brito, 1969-NMCA-027, 80 N.M. 166, 452 P.2d 694.

The evidence was sufficient to sustain defendant's conviction for offense of aggravated assault when he pointed a gun at victim and asked for money, which was handed over, victim testifying that he was worried because the gun was loaded. State v. Anaya, 1968-NMCA-014, 79 N.M. 43, 439 P.2d 561.

Sufficient evidence to support conviction, despite failure to preserve fingerprints or trace ownership of weapon. State v. Peterson, 1985-NMCA-109, 103 N.M. 638, 711 P.2d 915, cert. denied, 475 U.S. 1052, 106 S. Ct. 1279, 89 L. Ed. 2d 586 (1986).

A defendant's acts of specifically pointing a rifle at each of several victims on two or more separate instances, accompanied by verbal threats, constituted evidence from which the jury could properly determine that defendant committed the separate offenses of aggravated assault and false imprisonment against each victim. Moreover, the jury could find that defendant falsely imprisoned his victims at the beginning of the episode and thereafter committed additional independent aggravated assaults for which he could be separately punished. State v. Bachicha, 1991-NMCA-014, 111 N.M. 601, 808 P.2d 51, cert. denied, 111 N.M. 529, 807 P.2d 227.

Because the aggravated assault statute and the armed robbery statute share common ground in theory, a defendant's conviction could rely on similar, if not identical, evidence. State v. Armijo, 2005-NMCA-010, 136 N.M. 723, 104 P.3d 1114.

IV. DOUBLE JEOPARDY.

Prosecution under Assimilative Crimes Act. — A person may be prosecuted and convicted of the lesser included offense of aggravated assault, in violation of New Mexico law, when congress has enacted a statute (18 U.S.C. § 113) making simple assault and its more aggravated forms federal offenses. United States v. Johnson, 967 F.2d 1431 (10th Cir. 1992).

Lesser included offense of aggravated battery. — Aggravated assault by use of a threat with a deadly weapon is a lesser included offense of aggravated battery. State v. DeMary, 1982-NMSC-144, 99 N.M. 177, 655 P.2d 1021.

No double jeopardy where facts differ. — If the factual basis for the alleged conviction for assault in municipal court and the factual basis for the aggravated assault conviction differ, then there would be no double jeopardy and the burden will be on defendant to prove a factual basis showing double jeopardy. State v. Woods, 1973-NMCA-114, 85 N.M. 452, 513 P.2d 189.

Separate criminal acts. — Assault with a deadly weapon, even though committed in connection with a larceny is a separate criminal act, as distinguished from a necessary ingredient of the crime of larceny, and, accordingly, there may be a conviction and punishment for both. State v. Martinez, 1967-NMSC-103, 77 N.M. 745, 427 P.2d 260.

Separate punishment for aggravated assault and arson. — The legislature intended separate punishment for the crimes of arson and aggravated assault. While these statutes may be violated together, they are not necessarily violated together. Punishment for a violation of either statute is not enhanced for a violation of the other. The legislature intended separate punishment for unitary conduct violating both statutes. State v. Rodriguez, 1992-NMCA-035, 113 N.M. 767, 833 P.2d 244, cert. denied, 113 N.M. 636, 830 P.2d 553.

Shooting into occupied vehicle. — Separate punishments are intended for the offenses of shooting into an occupied vehicle and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. State v. Sosa, 1997-NMSC-032, 123 N.M. 564, 943 P.2d 1017, abrogated by State v. Porter, 2020-NMSC-020.

Aggravated assault not lesser included offense. — Assault with intent to kill can be committed without use of a deadly weapon; thus, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon was not a lesser included offense. State v. Patterson, 1977-NMCA-084, 90 N.M. 735, 568 P.2d 261.

Lesser included offense of federal crime. — The New Mexico offense of aggravated assault is a lesser included offense of the federal crime of assault with a dangerous weapon with specific intent to do bodily harm, 18 U.S.C. § 113(c) (now 18 U.S.C. § 113(a)(3)). United States v. Abeyta, 27 F.3d 470 (10th Cir. 1994).

Merger of conviction for aggravated assault into offense of false imprisonment. — Even though a defendant's acts of threatening each of multiple victims with a deadly weapon constituted the means by which his victims were restrained or confined against their will so as to cause the assault to merge into the crime of false imprisonment, the trial court did not err in refusing to merge defendant's convictions of aggravated assault into the offenses of false imprisonment, because there was evidence of multiple acts of aggravated assault committed against each victim. State v. Bachicha, 1991-NMCA-014, 111 N.M. 601, 808 P.2d 51, cert denied, 111 N.M. 529, 807 P.2d 227.

V. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

Jury instructions on aggravated assault as lesser included offense. — In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon with specific intent to do bodily harm (18 U.S.C. § 113(c)) (now 113(a)(3)), where the record was rife with testimony that alcohol might have affected defendant's ability to appreciate the import of his actions, defendant was entitled to an instruction on the lesser included New Mexico offense of aggravated assault, which has the same action elements but does not include a specific intent to injure. United States v. Abeyta, 27 F.3d 470 (10th Cir. 1994).

Instruction's definitions sufficient. — Instruction defining "assault" as an attempt to commit a battery upon the person of another and "unlawful" as means contrary to law and without legal excuse or justification, held not to be error. State v. Woods, 1971-NMCA-026, 82 N.M. 449, 483 P.2d 504.

Instructions on intent insufficient. — Conscious wrongdoing is an essential element of Subsection A of this statute, and instructions in the language of the statute were insufficient to inform the jury of the intent required. Hence, defendant's conviction was reversed. State v. Cutnose, 1974-NMCA-130, 87 N.M. 307, 532 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 87 N.M. 299, 532 P.2d 888.

Word "unlawful" insufficient description of intent. — When a statute sets forth the requisite intent, instructions in the language of the statute sufficiently instruct on the required intent. However, where the applicable statute speaks of "unlawfulness," instructions informing the jury that defendant's conduct must have been unlawful does not inform the jury that conscious wrongdoing is an element of the crime of aggravated assault. State v. Mascarenas, 1974-NMCA-100, 86 N.M. 692, 526 P.2d 1285.

Use of word "unlawfully" unnecessary. — It was not necessary to use the word "unlawfully" in an instruction, where the jury was informed that the assault must have been committed without excuse or justification, and another instruction defined an assault as an "unlawful attempt." Territory v. Gonzales, 1907-NMSC-007, 14 N.M. 31, 89 P. 250.

Use of "feloniously" unnecessary. — Although an indictment for assault with a deadly weapon under Laws 1907, ch. 36, § 19 (former Section 40-17-4, 1953 Comp.) used the word "feloniously," there was no error in omitting it from the instruction as to elements of crime, as the use of the word in the indictment was unnecessary, and the jury was not required to fix the penalty. Territory v. Gonzales, 1907-NMSC-007, 14 N.M. 31, 89 P. 250.

Use of phrase "without excuse or justification" proper. — In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon under Laws 1907, ch. 36, § 19 (former Section 40-17-4, 1953 Comp.), it was not error to use the words "without excuse or justification" in an instruction. Territory v. Gonzales, 1907-NMSC-007, 14 N.M. 31, 89 P. 250.

Failure to instruct on essential elements. — The trial court committed reversible error when it instructed the jury on the elements of aggravated assault with intent to commit felony aggravated battery, but then failed to instruct on the essential elements of felony aggravated battery and, instead, instructed on the essential elements of misdemeanor aggravated battery. State v. Armijo, 1999-NMCA-087, 127 N.M. 594, 985 P.2d 764.

Breaking-and-entering instruction refused since defendant intended to threaten. — A requested instruction on breaking and entering as a lesser included offense was properly refused, where although the evidence was susceptible to inferences that defendant did not have the requisite intent to commit any batteries or homicides until he got inside, there was no evidence other than he had the intent, when he entered a house, to threaten someone while masked. State v. Durante, 1986-NMCA-024, 104 N.M. 639, 725 P.2d 839.

30-3-3. Assault with intent to commit a violent felony.

Assault with intent to commit a violent felony consists of any person assaulting another with intent to kill or commit any murder, mayhem, criminal sexual penetration in the first, second or third degree, robbery or burglary.

Whoever commits assault with intent to commit a violent felony is guilty of a third degree felony.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-3-3, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 3-3; 1977, ch. 193, § 2.

Cross references. — For offense of murder, see 30-2-1 NMSA 1978.

For offense of criminal sexual penetration, see 30-9-11 NMSA 1978.

For offenses of robbery and burglary, see 30-16-2 and 30-16-3 NMSA 1978.

For assault with intent to commit violent felony upon peace officer, see 30-22-23 NMSA 1978.

ANNOTATIONS

No double jeopardy bar to punishment. — There was no double jeopardy bar to punishment for the offenses of assault with intent to commit rape and criminal sexual penetration, where the victim testified at trial that defendant bound her to a bed, struck her several times, and threatened her verbally for a period of time before commencing the sexual assault. Swafford v. State, 1991-NMSC-043, 112 N.M. 3, 810 P.2d 1223.

Essential elements of offense. — Essential elements and ingredients of assault with intent to murder were willfully and unlawfully to assault a person with intent to murder such person, so that intent was an essential ingredient of the crime. Territory v. Baca, 1903-NMSC-001, 11 N.M. 559, 71 P. 460.

Aggravated assault not lesser included offense. — Assault with intent to kill can be committed without use of a deadly weapon; thus, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon was not a lesser included offense. State v. Patterson, 1977-NMCA-084, 90 N.M. 735, 568 P.2d 261.

No merger with aggravated battery. — The double jeopardy clause does not prohibit sentencing for both assault with intent to commit a violent felony murder and for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon; one offense does not subsume the other and other indicia of legislative intent suggests an intent to punish separately. State v. Cowden, 1996-NMCA-051, 121 N.M. 703, 917 P.2d 972, cert. denied, 121 N.M. 644, 916 P.2d 844.

No merger with kidnapping conviction. — Merger of kidnapping and assault with intent to commit criminal sexual penetration convictions was not required by double jeopardy considerations where there was evidence apart from the defendant's subsequent sexual assault from which the jury could infer that the defendant restrained the victim with the intent of holding her for services and where, under the facts, the assault with intent to commit criminal sexual penetration occurred after the victim had been restrained and held for services. State v. Williams, 1986-NMCA-122, 105 N.M. 214, 730 P.2d 1196, cert. denied, 105 N.M. 111, 729 P.2d 1365.

No merger with shooting at an inhabited dwelling. — This section and Section 30-3-8 NMSA 1978 (shooting at an inhabited dwelling) are two sections directed toward the protection of different social norms and indicate an intention on the part of the legislature to allow for multiple punishment for the same conduct. The legislature was concerned with conduct typically designed to terrorize or intimidate in 30-3-8 NMSA 1978. In contrast, this section is directed toward conduct which is motivated by an intention to effect another's death. State v. Highfield, 1992-NMCA-020, 113 N.M. 606, 830 P.2d 158, cert. denied, 113 N.M. 503, 828 P.2d 415.

Double jeopardy not found. — Convictions for accessory to assault with intent to commit a violent felony, accessory to aggravated battery with great bodily harm, and accessory to false imprisonment did not violate the constitutional prohibition against double jeopardy. State v. Carrasco, 1997-NMSC-047, 124 N.M. 64, 946 P.2d 1075.

Collateral estoppel not applicable to facts. — Acquittal of defendant on charge of assault on a jail did not collaterally estop state from bringing subsequent prosecution against him on charge of assault with intent to commit a violent felony, even where both offenses allegedly occurred at same time and place, since charge of assault with intent to commit a violent felony required a jury to consider facts not required in the first trial. State v. Tijerina, 1973-NMSC-105, 86 N.M. 31, 519 P.2d 127, cert. denied, 417 U.S. 956, 94 S. Ct. 3085, 41 L. Ed. 2d 674 (1974).

Justification insufficient. — An attempt to recover property in the absence of a threatened trespass to one's habitation did not justify an attempt to take the life of a trespasser. State v. Waggoner, 1946-NMSC-001, 49 N.M. 399, 165 P.2d 122.

Manner and means of assault to be charged. — Indictment for assault with intent to commit murder must state the manner and means of the assault so far, at least, as to show that the crime would have been murder had not the acts stopped short of their full effect. Territory v. Carrera, 1892-NMSC-023, 6 N.M. 594, 30 P. 872; Territory v. Sevailles, 1855-NMSC-001, 1 N.M. 119.

Averment of use of deadly weapon. — An indictment for an assault with intent to kill was insufficient unless it averred that the assault was committed with a deadly weapon and with every ingredient necessary to have constituted the crime of murder if death had ensued. Territory v. Sevailles, 1855-NMSC-001, 1 N.M. 119.

Knife as deadly weapon. — An indictment averring an assault with a knife with intent to kill was sufficient, although not stating the knife to be a deadly weapon. Territory v. Sevailles, 1855-NMSC-001, 1 N.M. 119.

Conviction under section other than that charged. — Under count charging assault with intent to murder, alleging essentials of assault with deadly weapon, defendant could not be convicted of latter offense. State v. Taylor, 1927-NMSC-081, 33 N.M. 35, 261 P. 808.

Evidence of victim's character. — Absent any claim of self-defense, the victim's asserted character traits were not essential elements of the defense in a prosecution for assault with intent to commit a violent felony and were not provable by specific acts of conduct, but were only provable by reputation or opinion evidence. State v. Bazan, 1977-NMCA-011, 90 N.M. 209, 561 P.2d 482, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 254, 561 P.2d 1347.

Evidence of other crime. — In prosecution for assault with pistol with intent to kill, where there was some evidence that accused intended to kill the prosecuting witness as a "stool pigeon," it was not error to permit inquiry, on cross-examination of accused, whether he had not been indicted the day before the assault for a prohibition violation. State v. Solis, 1934-NMSC-077, 38 N.M. 538, 37 P.2d 539.

Statements of deceased victim as hearsay. — The oral statements of one who died after an assault with intent to kill and before trial were not admissible on a prosecution for the offense since they constituted hearsay and were incompetent and irrelevant. State v. Waggoner, 1946-NMSC-001, 49 N.M. 399, 165 P.2d 122.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Weight of defendant's statements of intent. — Statement by defendant that he wanted to indulge in a lascivious act other than intercourse upon the person of prosecutrix did not negative possible intent to compel sexual intercourse since jury might well have believed that defendant's announced intention was only preliminary to raping her. State v. Compos, 1952-NMSC-016, 56 N.M. 89, 240 P.2d 228.

Evidence sufficient to go to jury. — There was sufficient evidence to take case to jury where elements of unlawfulness, deliberateness and premeditated design together with an intent to take the life of the person assaulted were amply shown. State v. Waggoner, 1946-NMSC-001, 49 N.M. 399, 165 P.2d 122.

Instructions to contain definition of assault. — The definition of assault found in Section 30-3-1 NMSA 1978 contains essential elements of the crime of which defendant was convicted, assault with intent to commit a violent felony, and failure of the trial judge to define assault was jurisdictional error. State v. Jones, 1973-NMCA-107, 85 N.M. 426, 512 P.2d 1262.

Charge on right to defend property properly refused. — In prosecution for assault with intent to kill, trial court did not err in refusing an instruction that a person has a right to defend his property from trespass or larceny and that jury should acquit defendant if it found that he shot at prosecuting witness to stop him from removing defendant's property and such action was necessary to prevent it, where evidence did not show prosecuting witness was on land leased by defendant at time of assault and in light of instructions given. State v. Waggoner, 1946-NMSC-001, 49 N.M. 399, 165 P.2d 122.

Refusal to instruct not prejudicial. — Defendant was not prejudiced by refusal to give requested instruction on accidental discharge of gun, while not engaged in the commission of a felony, where the subject was adequately covered in the court's general charge. State v. Smith, 1947-NMSC-035, 51 N.M. 184, 181 P.2d 800.

Instruction improper. — Where defendant was convicted of assault with intent to commit a violent felony against the adult child of the victim whom defendant shot and killed; defendant fired shots into a house that was occupied by the victim's adult child and others; and the jury was instructed that for it to find defendant guilty of assault with intent to commit a violent felony on the victim's adult child, the jury had to find that defendant intended to kill the victim's child or any other person or commit murder or mayhem on the victim's adult child or any other person, the instruction misstated the law regarding assault with intent to commit a violent felony and because the jury instruction allowed the jury to convict defendant of assaulting the victim's adult child on the ground that defendant intended to commit a violent felony against the victim, not the victim's adult child, the jury may have convicted defendant of crime that did not exist. State v. Arrendondo, 2012-NMSC-013, 278 P.3d 517.

Where gun accidentally discharged while defendant was engaged in committing a felony or misdemeanor at the time of the homicide, an instruction which did not recognize defendant's liability to conviction was improper. State v. Smith, 1947-NMSC-035, 51 N.M. 184, 181 P.2d 800.

Informing jury of co-defendant's guilty plea deemed error. — The fact that a co-defendant has pled guilty to conspiracy to commit murder, presented to the jury in a case involving the defendant's conspiracy, does not come within Rule 803(22), N.M.R. Evid. (now Paragraph V of Rule 11-803 NMRA) is hearsay, and informing the jury of this guilty plea is error. State v. Urioste, 1980-NMCA-103, 94 N.M. 767, 617 P.2d 156, cert. denied, 94 N.M. 806, 617 P.2d 1321.

Sentence not excessive. — Where minimum sentence was less than a third of the maximum which could have been imposed for conviction of assault with intent to rape, sentence was not excessive, particularly in view of liberal policy of giving prisoners time off for good behavior, and liberal commutations. State v. Compos, 1952-NMSC-016, 56 N.M. 89, 240 P.2d 228.

Sentence improper. — Sentence of 7 to 15 years for convictions of assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon were not in accordance with the so-called indeterminate sentence law, former 41-17-1, 1953 Comp., which required a trial judge to sentence a person found guilty of an offense to the minimum and maximum provided by statute for the offense. State v. Romero, 1963-NMSC-168, 73 N.M. 109, 385 P.2d 967 (decided under prior law).

30-3-4. Battery.

Battery is the unlawful, intentional touching or application of force to the person of another, when done in a rude, insolent or angry manner.

Whoever commits battery is guilty of a petty misdemeanor.

ANNOTATIONS

Lesser included offense. — Petty-misdemeanor battery is a lesser included offense of aggravated battery. The difference is that simple battery does not require an intent to injure. State v. Garcia, 2009-NMCA-107, 147 N.M. 150, 217 P.3d 1048.

Battery is a lesser included offense of aggravated battery upon a peace officer under Section 30-22-25 NMSA 1978. State v. Nozie, 2009-NMSC-018, 146 N.M. 142, 207 P.3d 1119, aff'g 2007-NMCA-131, 142 N.M. 626, 168 P.3d 756.

Battery of spouse. — There is no language in this statute indicating that different standards should be employed when the victim of a battery is the spouse of the defendant. State v. Seal, 1966-NMSC-123, 76 N.M. 461, 415 P.2d 845.

Angry and insolent manner. — Where there was testimony that appellant grabbed his wife, pushed or "slammed" her against a parked car, held her there and after she broke away, followed her to her car where he proceeded to talk to her for at least an hour while she cried and screamed for him to let her go, there was ample evidence for the trial court to conclude that appellant acted in a rude, insolent or angry manner as defined in this section when he applied force to the person of his wife. State v. Seal, 1966-NMSC-123, 76 N.M. 461, 415 P.2d 845.

Parent common law discipline privilege. — A parent has a privilege to use moderate or reasonable physical force, without criminal liability, when engaged in the discipline of his or her child. State v. Lefevre, 2005-NMCA-101, 138 N.M. 174, 117 P.3d 980.

An isolated instance of moderate or reasonable physical force that results in nothing more than transient pain or temporary marks or bruises is protected under the parental discipline privilege. State v. Lefevre, 2005-NMCA-101, 138 N.M. 174, 117 P.3d 980.

Battery is included within offense of aggravated battery. State v. Duran, 1969-NMCA-048, 80 N.M. 406, 456 P.2d 880.

Battery does not merge with false imprisonment. — Since false imprisonment requires a constraining or confining with knowledge of lack of legal authority and battery does not, and the elements for proving the two offenses differ, the two offenses do not merge. State v. Muise, 1985-NMCA-090, 103 N.M. 382, 707 P.2d 1192, cert. denied, 103 N.M. 287, 705 P.2d 1138, overruled on other grounds, State v. Laguna, 1999-NMCA-152, 128 N.M. 345, 992 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

Proof of battery demands conviction or acquittal thereon. — Regardless of whether either assault or aggravated assault is included in the charge of battery since there was proof of a battery, defendant should be convicted of some degree of battery (either aggravated or simple) or acquitted. State v. Duran, 1969-NMCA-048, 80 N.M. 406, 456 P.2d 880.

Charge of unlawfulness mandatory. — Indictment charging that defendant "did beat, bruise and wound" a person, but omitting to aver it was done "unlawfully" was bad; by using the word "unlawfully" the statute intended to discriminate between lawful and unlawful acts of violence. Territory v. Miera, 1866-NMSC-004, 1 N.M. 387.

Double jeopardy. — Where the evidence established that defendant committed three separate and distinct battery offenses, double jeopardy did not preclude the first two batteries supporting a conviction for battery, even though the third battery satisfied elements of a charge of criminal sexual penetration. Brecheisen v. Mondragon, 833 F.2d 238 (10th Cir. 1987), cert. denied, 485 U.S. 1011, 108 S. Ct. 1479, 99 L. Ed. 2d 707 (1988).

Where provision in an order prohibiting domestic violence (OPDV), prohibiting "battering in any manner," contained all elements of the statutorily defined offense of battery, a criminal prosecution for battery following a contempt proceeding for violating the OPDV violated defendant's right against double jeopardy. State v. Powers, 1998-NMCA-133, 126 N.M. 114, 967 P.2d 454., cert. quashed, 127 N.M. 392, 981 P.2d 1210 (1999).

Kidnapping and battery. — Where defendant drove the victim to a deserted area, pulled the victim out of the vehicle, pulled the victim's hair, kicked the victim, threw the victim into bushes, and beat the victim; defendant held the victim by the arm and drove to a second location where defendant again beat the victim; when the victim attempted to run away, defendant put the victim in the vehicle and drove to a third location and again beat the victim and forced the victim to have intercourse with defendant; and defendant was convicted of kidnapping in the first degree and battery, defendant's convictions did not violate double jeopardy because defendant's conduct was not factually unitary or legally unitary because the jury could have determined that the victim suffered physical injuries when defendant dragged the victim from the vehicle, threw the victim into the bushes, pulled the victim's hair, or otherwise restrained the victim, all actions distinct from the hitting and kicking on which the battery charge was based. State v. Sotelo, 2013-NMCA-028, 296 P.3d 1232, cert. denied, 2013-NMCERT-001.

Instruction on simple battery wrongly refused. — Battering a peace officer while in the lawful discharge of his duties is battering the person of another, and where there was evidence that the victim police officer was not in the lawful discharge of his duties in connection with the altercation, the trial court erred in refusing to instruct on simple battery as well as on battery on an officer. State v. Kraul, 1977-NMCA-032, 90 N.M. 314, 563 P.2d 108, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Where there was evidence tending to establish the included offense of battery in charge of aggravated battery, trial court erred in refusing to instruct on lesser included offense. State v. Duran, 1969-NMCA-048, 80 N.M. 406, 456 P.2d 880.

In trial of Indian for rape under the federal Major Crimes Act (18 U.S.C. §§ 1153, 3242, conferring federal jurisdiction over certain enumerated major crimes committed by Indians on Indian reservations), it was reversible error for trial court to refuse to instruct on the non-enumerated offenses of attempted rape, simple assault and battery, all of which were lesser included offenses under New Mexico law. Joe v. United States, 510 F.2d 1038 (10th Cir. 1974).

Right to de novo appeal. — Where defendant was convicted in metropolitan court of battery against a household member in violation of this section, because the state did not prosecute the battery under Section 30-3-15 NMSA 1978, state could not contend that defendant was convicted of a crime involving domestic violence and he was entitled to a de novo appeal in district court rather than just an on-record review of the proceeding. State v. Trujillo, 1999-NMCA-003, 126 N.M. 603, 973 P.2d 855.

30-3-5. Aggravated battery.

A. Aggravated battery consists of the unlawful touching or application of force to the person of another with intent to injure that person or another.

B. Whoever commits aggravated battery, inflicting an injury to the person which is not likely to cause death or great bodily harm, but does cause painful temporary disfigurement or temporary loss or impairment of the functions of any member or organ of the body, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

C. Whoever commits aggravated battery inflicting great bodily harm or does so with a deadly weapon or does so in any manner whereby great bodily harm or death can be inflicted is guilty of a third degree felony.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-3-5, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 3-5; 1969, ch. 137, § 1.

ANNOTATIONS

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.
II. ELEMENTS OF AGGRAVATED BATTERY.
III. EVIDENCE AND PROOF.
IV. DOUBLE JEOPARDY.
V. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Section not violative of constitution's title requirements. — Although this section provides that an aggravated battery may be either a misdemeanor or a felony, depending on the circumstances, N.M. Const., art. IV, § 16 is not violated, since title clearly shows that the subject of the act is aggravated battery and that more than one penalty is provided. State v. Segura, 1973-NMCA-006, 83 N.M. 432, 492 P.2d 1295.

Section not void for vagueness. — This section is not void for vagueness because a defendant's aggravated battery may be either a felony or misdemeanor or that it depends entirely on the view of the evidence taken by the trier of facts. State v. Segura, 1973-NMCA-006, 83 N.M. 432, 492 P.2d 1295.

This section is not unconstitutionally vague either when its subsections are compared or when the entire section is compared with Section 30-3-4 NMSA 1978. State v. Chavez, 1971-NMCA-030, 82 N.M. 569, 484 P.2d 1279, cert. denied, 82 N.M. 562, 484 P.2d 1272.

Section not in conflict with Section 31-18-15.1 NMSA 1978. — This section and Section 31-18-15.1 NMSA 1978 (aggravating circumstances affecting sentencing) do not provide punishment for the same offense, and these sections are not in conflict. State v. Wilson, 1982-NMCA-019, 97 N.M. 534, 641 P.2d 1081, cert. denied, 98 N.M. 50, 644 P.2d 1039.

The elements of an offense do no more than establish the offense. The circumstances surrounding the offense, including the circumstances surrounding each of the elements of the offense, may be considered under Section 31-18-15.1 NMSA 1978. State v. Wilson, 1982-NMCA-019, 97 N.M. 534, 641 P.2d 1081, cert. denied, 98 N.M. 50, 644 P.2d 1039.

Defendant charged in the alternative. — Aggravated battery is a third degree felony if it causes great bodily harm or if it was committed with a deadly weapon. There is nothing unfair in charging a defendant in the alternative, where the evidence supports a third degree felony conviction under both alternatives. State v. Kenny, 1991-NMCA-094, 112 N.M. 642, 818 P.2d 420, cert. denied, 112 N.M. 499, 816 P.2d 1121.

Consent is not defense to crime of aggravated battery, irrespective of whether the victim invites the act and consents to the battery. State v. Fransua, 1973-NMCA-071, 85 N.M. 173, 510 P.2d 106.

Intoxication a valid defense. — A showing of intoxication to a degree that would make specific intent impossible would establish a valid defense to the charge of aggravated battery and since the evidence in defendant's case raised an issue of fact for the jury on the question of intent to injure by showing intoxication to such a degree that defendant was unable to form the necessary intent, defendant was entitled to an instruction on this defense; the failure to so instruct was reversible error. State v. Crespin, 1974-NMCA-104, 86 N.M. 689, 526 P.2d 1282.

Protection of property. — The use of a deadly weapon in the protection of property is generally held, except in extreme cases, to be the use of more than justifiable force, and to render the owner of the property liable, both civilly and criminally, for the assault. Brown v. Martinez, 1961-NMSC-040, 68 N.M. 271, 361 P.2d 152.

Right of confrontation not violated. — Where no prior statement of any kind by the victim of an aggravated assault was brought to the attention of the jury or offered by the state, and defendant neither sought a continuance nor indicated that he desired to call the victim as a witness or what evidence he believed might be developed from the victim, his constitutional right of confrontation was not violated by absence of victim from trial. State v. James, 1966-NMSC-110, 76 N.M. 376, 415 P.2d 350.

Continuance properly refused. — Defendant's effort to have aggravated battery case continued and to have victim examined by another doctor was properly refused where there was nothing to show that defense was surprised by doctor's testimony or that defendant was prejudiced in his defense on the merits. State v. Foster, 1971-NMCA-064, 82 N.M. 573, 484 P.2d 1283.

Aggravation of sentence. — Rule against use of elements of a crime as the basis for aggravating the sentence for that crime was not violated where the defendant's failure to aid the victim and the brutality of the crime were used to aggravate the defendant's sentence; defendant's failure to aid the victim after the beating is clearly not an element of aggravated battery and the brutality of the crime, although it is a fact used to prove great bodily harm, does not equate to great bodily harm for purposes of the aggravation statute. State v. Kurley, 1992-NMCA-105, 114 N.M. 514, 841 P.2d 562, cert denied, 114 N.M. 413, 839 P.2d 623.

Where the defendant pleaded guilty to aggravated battery with great bodily harm, the defendant's sentence could be aggravated without actual evidence that his own acts, rather than the acts of his companions, were brutal; defendant's participation in the beating, which was brutal enough to actually cause death, standing alone, was sufficient. State v. Kurley, 1992-NMCA-105, 114 N.M. 514, 841 P.2d 562, cert denied, 114 N.M. 413, 839 P.2d 623.

Waiver of error. — Where defendant pleaded not guilty when arraigned and proceeded to trial without questioning propriety of magistrate's bind over, his claim that criminal information charged him with offense of aggravated battery, rather than attempted aggravated battery, concerning which there had been no preliminary examination, was waived. State v. Hibbs, 1971-NMCA-100, 82 N.M. 722, 487 P.2d 150.

Defendant was bound by plea of guilty to attempt to commit aggravated battery and was not entitled to post-conviction relief either on grounds that his actions did not constitute attempt to commit aggravated battery or that state had failed to establish his intent. State v. Bonney, 1971-NMCA-041, 82 N.M. 508, 484 P.2d 350.

Withdrawal of plea properly denied. — Trial court's denial of defendant's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty to a charge of aggravated assault after sentence was imposed did not violate due process where the only basis asserted for withdrawal of the plea was that the trial court refused to follow the sentencing recommendation of the district attorney. State v. Ramos, 1973-NMCA-103,85 N.M. 438, 512 P.2d 1274.

Firearm enhancement statute constitutionally applied to conviction under section. — Neither the rules of statutory construction nor the federal and state constitutional provisions against double jeopardy prohibit the application of the firearm enhancement statute to a person convicted of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon when the weapon used was a firearm. State v. Gonzales, 1981-NMCA-023, 95 N.M. 636, 624 P.2d 1033, overruled on other grounds, Buzbee v. Donnelly, 1981-NMSC-097, 96 N.M. 692, 634 P.2d 1244.

II. ELEMENTS OF AGGRAVATED BATTERY.

The question of whether an individual has used his mouth as a deadly weapon is strictly a question of fact, reserved for the jury. State v. Neatherlin, 2007-NMCA-035, 141 N.M. 328, 154 P.3d 703.

This section requires intent to injure, of which there must be substantial evidence for there to be proof that the crime of aggravated battery has been committed. State v. Mora, 1970-NMCA-072, 81 N.M. 631, 471 P.2d 201, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 668, 472 P.2d 382.

Specific intent to injure is essential element of crime of aggravated battery, and the state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant knowingly committed the crime purposely intending to violate the law. State v. Crespin, 1974-NMCA-104, 86 N.M. 689, 526 P.2d 1282; State v. Mills, 1980-NMCA-005, 94 N.M. 17, 606 P.2d 1111, cert. denied, 94 N.M. 628, 614 P.2d 545.

Intent to injure may be inferred. — Intent to injure, as required by this section, need not be established by direct evidence but may be inferred from conduct and the surrounding circumstances. State v. Michael S., 1995-NMCA-112, 120 N.M. 617, 904 P.2d 595, cert. denied, 120 N.M. 533, 903 P.2d 844.

Under former law, specific intent to commit mayhem was inferred as a matter of law. Where the defendant deliberately committed the crime of assault and battery, in so doing, he committed mayhem. State v. Hatley, 1963-NMSC-110, 72 N.M. 377, 384 P.2d 252 (decided under prior law).

Great bodily harm. — Subsection C of this section requires only that great bodily harm could result, not that it must result. State v. Pettigrew, 1993-NMCA-095, 116 N.M. 135, 860 P.2d 777, cert. denied, 116 N.M. 71, 860 P.2d 201.

Great bodily harm includes permanent loss or impairment (permanent injury). State v. Chavez, 1971-NMCA-030, 82 N.M. 569, 484 P.2d 1279, cert. denied, 82 N.M. 562, 484 P.2d 1272.

Proximate cause of harm. — Whether battery caused great bodily harm is to be determined by "proximate cause" and a defendant's act need not be a direct, that is, immediate, cause. State v. Chavez, 1971-NMCA-030, 82 N.M. 569, 484 P.2d 1279, cert. denied, 82 N.M. 562, 484 P.2d 1272.

Nature of injury determines degree of crime. — Whether crime is a misdemeanor or a felony depends largely, as shown by Subdivisions B and C, on the nature of the injury inflicted. State v. Chavez, 1971-NMCA-030, 82 N.M. 569, 484 P.2d 1279, cert. denied, 82 N.M. 562, 484 P.2d 1272.

The nature of the injury was an important element of mayhem. State v. Martin, 1926-NMSC-048, 32 N.M. 48, 250 P. 842 (decided under prior law).

Degree of harm for jury. — It was a question of fact for the jury whether forcible tattooing of victim with needle and India ink from back of neck to center part of waist, which tattoo recited an offensive sentence in large letters and could be removed only with strenuous and extensive skin grafting, was "great bodily harm" as required under this section and defined at 30-1-12 NMSA 1978. State v. Ortega, 1966-NMSC-186, 77 N.M. 312, 422 P.2d 353.

Degree of harm. — It was for the jury to determine whether the injuries inflicted on gasoline station attendant who was robbed, beaten and set on fire with gasoline were likely to cause death or great bodily harm, and defendant's motion for dismissal of the indictment, which charged him with a felony, on his assertion that doctor's testimony "proved" he was guilty only of misdemeanor, was properly refused. State v. Foster, 1971-NMCA-064, 82 N.M. 573, 484 P.2d 1283.

Knife as deadly weapon. — For a knife to be a deadly weapon it must come within the portion of this statute as to any other deadly weapons with which dangerous wounds can be inflicted. State v. Martinez, 1953-NMSC-031, 57 N.M. 174, 256 P.2d 791.

Baseball bat as deadly weapon. — In a prosecution for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, the question of whether a baseball bat was a deadly weapon should have been left to the jury; however, the error is not fundamental and must be preserved for appeal. State v. Traeger, 2001-NMSC-022, 130 N.M. 618, 29 P.3d 518.

Jury justified in so finding. — Where no one directly testified the knife was one with which dangerous wounds could be inflicted, but the wounds were described by the physician who treated the victim, and they were sufficiently severe to keep him in a hospital under the doctor's care for a week, and in addition, the scars caused by the knife wounds were shown to the jury, in view of the depth and length of the wounds the jury was fully justified in finding the knife used was a deadly weapon, although the blade used was only about two inches in length. State v. Martinez, 1953-NMSC-031, 57 N.M. 174, 256 P.2d 791.

III. EVIDENCE AND PROOF.

Sufficient evidence. — Where the victim was shot multiple times at close range outside a friend's home; after hearing shots, the friend went outside and saw defendant fleeing and the victim on the ground severely wounded; the victim told the friend and a police officer that defendant was the shooter; a forensic scientist identified a gun found in defendant's vehicle as the same gun used to shoot the victim; and a neighbor identified the vehicle shown in a photograph of defendant's vehicle as identical to the vehicle that sped way from the scene of the shooting, there was substantial evidence to support defendant's conviction of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon causing great bodily harm. State v. Fuentes, 2010-NMCA-027, 147 N.M. 761, 228 P.3d 1181, cert. denied, 2010-NMCERT-002, 147 N.M. 704, 228 P.3d 488.

Evidence sufficient to provide defendant used his mount as a deadly weapon. — Where defendant bit the victim during an altercation, defendant's bite broke the victim's skin, defendant admitted that he had hepatitis C, a medical expert testified that transmission of the hepatitis C virus is possible through a bite that breaks the skin, that hepatitis C could result in liver cancer, ultimately leading to death, and defendant told the victim when he bit the victim that he hoped the victim would die, there was sufficient evidence to prove that defendant used his mouth as a deadly weapon. State v. Neatherlin, 2007-NMCA-035, 141 N.M. 328, 154 P.3d 703.

Conviction or acquittal of proved offense. — Regardless of whether either assault or aggravated assault is included in charge of battery, where there is proof of a battery, defendant should be convicted of some degree of battery (either aggravated or simple) or acquitted. State v. Duran, 1969-NMCA-048, 80 N.M. 406, 456 P.2d 880.

Corroboration of victim's testimony unnecessary. — Victim's testimony supported determination that defendant committed battery with a gun and with intent to injure, and did not require corroboration. State v. Tafoya, 1969-NMCA-073, 80 N.M. 494, 458 P.2d 98.

Testimony corroborated. — Defendant's testimony that he threw gun away after leaving scene of burglary and aggravated battery, along with photographs of victim showing facial cuts and abrasions, corroborated victim's testimony that defendant used a gun in commission of crimes. State v. Tafoya, 1969-NMCA-073, 80 N.M. 494, 458 P.2d 98.

Circumstantial evidence was sufficient for a reasonable mind to infer defendant shot the victim with a pellet gun, where there was evidence that defendant came out of his house with a rifle or other gun in his hand and shouted at the victim and his companions to "go somewhere else and play," after they had been shooting off fireworks, and five or ten minutes later the victim was struck with a pellet as a noise was heard from the direction of defendant's house. State v. Stenz, 1990-NMCA-005, 109 N.M. 536, 787 P.2d 455, cert. denied, 109 N.M. 562, 787 P.2d 842.

Sufficient evidence. — Evidence that defendant jumped on the victim's leg and shattered it was sufficient to support defendant's conviction for aggravated battery. State v. Garcia, 2009-NMCA-107, 147 N.M. 150, 217 P.3d 1048, cert. denied, 2009-NMCERT-008, 147 N.M. 395, 223 P.3d 940.

Evidence sufficient to support conviction. — Where evidence, though disputed, showed that defendant was playing pool with several persons, that an argument began and that in the resulting altercation defendant pulled a gun, shot at one person and missed, and shot at another and hit him in the leg, held that it was sufficient to support a verdict of aggravated battery. State v. Santillanes, 1974-NMCA-092, 86 N.M. 627, 526 P.2d 424.

Evidence for felony conviction. — Where the victim testified that she was hit on the head three times with an object which she described as "very hard" and it appeared from the record that following the attack she was taken to the hospital and six stitches were required to close the wound on her head, this evidence sufficiently established an aggravated battery under Subsection C. State v. Turner, 1970-NMCA-024, 81 N.M. 450, 468 P.2d 421, cert. denied, 81 N.M. 506, 469 P.2d 151.

There was substantial evidence to support the charge since the evidence established that the defendant acted in a way that would have likely resulted in great bodily harm or even death to the victim, despite the lack of evidence of such harm. State v. Dominguez, 1993-NMCA-042, 115 N.M. 445, 853 P.2d 147, cert. denied, sub nom., Ortega v. State, 115 N.M. 409, 852 P.2d 682 (1993).

Sufficient evidence. — Since the victims testified that the two defendants intruded into their home, beat and kicked the husband, and dragged both him and his wife around the house in search of money, this evidence sufficiently established an aggravated battery under Subsection A. State v. Ibarra, 1993-NMCA-040, 116 N.M. 486, 864 P.2d 302, cert. quashed, 117 N.M. 744, 877 P.2d 44 (1994), and cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1157, 115 S. Ct. 1116, 130 L. Ed. 2d 1080 (1995).

Evidence that the defendant stabbed or slashed the victim with a knife constituted evidence upon which the jury could find that the defendant committed the offense of aggravated battery; also, the trial court could properly find that the defendant's acts of repeatedly stabbing the victim constituted circumstances surrounding the offense, warranting enhancement of the defendant's sentence. State v. Fuentes, 1994-NMCA-158, 119 N.M. 104, 888 P.2d 986, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 168, 889 P.2d 203 (1995).

Evidence of mayhem insufficient. — Under former law conviction of mayhem was not sustained by proof of an assault and a blow which cut prosecuting witness' lip, requiring some stitches, but resulting in no permanent injury or disfigurement. Court would take notice of such lack of evidence even though defendant failed to preserve proper exceptions. State v. Raulie, 1936-NMSC-039, 40 N.M. 318, 59 P.2d 359 (decided under prior law).

IV. DOUBLE JEOPARDY.

Lesser included offense. — Where defendant was charged with felony aggravated battery for using his mouth as a deadly weapon, evidence was presented that tended to establish the lesser included offense, and the only difference between misdemeanor aggravated battery and felony aggravated battery was whether defendant used his mouth as a deadly weapon, defendant was entitled to a jury instruction on the lesser include offense. State v. Neatherlin, 2007-NMCA-035, 141 N.M. 328, 154 P.3d 703.

Double jeopardy. — Where defendant pushed and punched the victim and after a third person knocked the victim down, the defendant jumped on the victim, shattering the victim's leg, defendant's acts were not distinct and defendant's convictions for aggravated battery and misdemeanor battery violated the double jeopardy clause. State v. Garcia, 2009-NMCA-107, 147 N.M. 150, 217 P.3d 1048, cert. denied, 2009-NMCERT-008, 147 N.M. 395, 223 P.3d 940.

Defendant's convictions for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon and attempted murder arising out of unitary conduct did not violate the double jeopardy clause. State v. Armendariz, 2006-NMSC-036, 140 N.M. 182, 141 P.3d 526.

It was not double jeopardy to try defendant on charge of aggravated battery when lesser charge of attempt was dismissed prior to trial, and no issue as to double punishment or merged offenses was involved. State v. Hibbs, 1971-NMCA-100, 82 N.M. 722, 487 P.2d 150.

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

Convictions for accessory to assault with intent to commit a violent felony, accessory to aggravated battery with great bodily harm, and accessory to false imprisonment did not violate the constitutional prohibition against double jeopardy. State v. Carrasco, 1997-NMSC-047, 124 N.M. 64, 946 P.2d 1075.

Defendant's right to freedom from double jeopardy was not violated by punishment for attempted first degree murder, aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, and criminal sexual penetration. State v. Traeger, 2000-NMCA-015, 128 N.M. 668, 997 P.2d 142, aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, 2001-NMSC-022, 130 N.M. 618, 29 P.3d 518.

Defendant's convictions for both attempted first degree murder and aggravated battery did not constitute double jeopardy. State v. Vallejos, 2000-NMCA-075, 129 N.M. 424, 9 P.3d 668, cert. denied, 129 N.M. 385, 9 P.3d 68.

Defendant's convictions of aggravated battery and shooting at or from a motor vehicle do not violate double jeopardy. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

No merger with assault with intent to commit violent felony. — The double jeopardy clause does not prohibit sentencing for both assault with intent to commit a violent felony murder and for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon; one offense does not subsume the other and other indicia of legislative intent suggests an intent to punish separately. State v. Cowden, 1996-NMCA-051, 121 N.M. 703, 917 P.2d 972, cert. denied, 121 N.M. 644, 916 P.2d 844.

Aggravated assault is lesser included offense. — Aggravated assault by use of a threat with a deadly weapon is a lesser included offense of aggravated battery. State v. DeMary, 1982-NMSC-144, 99 N.M. 177, 655 P.2d 1021.

Merger with robbery. — Aggravated battery merges with a robbery offense when a defendant's intent to take the victim's purse includes an intent to injure the victim. State v. Gammil, 1989-NMCA-005, 108 N.M. 208, 769 P.2d 1299, overruled in part on other grounds, State v. Fuentes, 119 N.M. 104, 888 P.2d 986, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 168, 889 P.2d 203.

No merger with armed robbery. — Offense of aggravated battery did not merge with the armed robbery. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Separate punishment for armed robbery and aggravated battery is consistent with legislative intent and does not constitute double jeopardy. State v. Fuentes, 1994-NMCA-158, 119 N.M. 104, 888 P.2d 986, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 168, 889 P.2d 203.

Aggravated battery lesser included offense of attempted murder. — In a prosecution for attempted murder, the trial court properly instructed the jury on aggravated battery as a lesser included offense at the state's request, because the elements of the lesser crime were a subset of the elements of the charged crime and, further, the defendant could not have committed the greater offense in the manner charged in the indictment without also committing the lesser offense. State v. Meadors, 1995-NMSC-073, 121 N.M. 38, 908 P.2d 731.

Battery is included within offense of aggravated battery. State v. Duran, 1969-NMCA-048, 80 N.M. 406, 456 P.2d 880.

Concept inapplicable. — The concept of lesser included offenses is not involved in a prosecution for armed robbery and aggravated battery because either offense can be committed without committing the other offense. State v. Sandoval, 1977-NMCA-026, 90 N.M. 260, 561 P.2d 1353, cert. denied, 90 N.M. 637, 567 P.2d 486.

Separate punishments intended. — The legislature intended to create separately punishable offenses between shooting at or from a motor vehicle and aggravated battery. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

V. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

When instruction on battery required. — Where there was evidence tending to establish the included offense of battery in charge of aggravated battery, trial court erred in refusing to instruct on lesser included offense. State v. Duran, 1969-NMCA-048, 80 N.M. 406, 456 P.2d 880.

In prosecution for aggravated battery, lesser offense of simple battery may necessarily be included in court's charge to jury only in the event there is some evidence which would justify a conviction of the lesser offense. State v. James, 1966-NMSC-110, 76 N.M. 376, 415 P.2d 350.

There was no evidence to support a finding that defendant did not intend to injure victim, and therefore the trial court did not err in refusing to give an instruction on simple battery, which is a lesser included offense of aggravated battery. State v. Pettigrew, 1993-NMCA-095, 116 N.M. 135, 860 P.2d 777, cert. denied, 116 N.M. 71, 860 P.2d 201.

Instruction must be tendered. — Alleged error of court in failing to instruct on lesser included offense of simple battery in prosecution for aggravated battery was not properly before appellate court for review where no instruction on lesser offense was ever submitted to the trial court. State v. James, 1966-NMSC-110, 76 N.M. 376, 415 P.2d 350.

Instruction not warranted. — Where defendant, convicted of aggravated battery, admitted that he had pistol in his possession at time of fight with which he shot victim and that he intended to hit victim with it, instruction on lesser included offense was not warranted. State v. Jaramillo, 1971-NMCA-057, 82 N.M. 548, 484 P.2d 768.

Instructions erroneous. — In a prosecution for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, since there was a finding of sufficient evidence to support jury instructions on self-defense and defense of another, the instruction on the charged offense was erroneous because it did not include the essential element of unlawfulness, and the error was not cured by separate instructions on self-defense and defense of another, and the instructions on self-defense and defense of another were erroneous because they did not clearly place the burden of proof on the state. State v. Acosta, 1997-NMCA-035, 123 N.M. 273, 939 P.2d 1081, cert. quashed, 124 N.M. 312, 950 P.2d 285.

Instructing on intent. — Subsection C of this section requires an "intent to injure" and where requested instruction referred to "a specific intent to commit an aggravated battery," this would have been misleading to the jury and was properly denied. State v. Vasquez, 1971-NMCA-182, 83 N.M. 388, 492 P.2d 1005.

Defendant need not intend particular result. — In a prosecution for aggravated battery, the defendants requested the following instruction, which was properly refused: "A defendant may not be held guilty as aider and abettor for independent act of another person, even though same victim was assaulted by both, since sharing of criminal intent is absent." The evidence demonstrated that the defendants and the principal defendant did not act independently of each other, even if the defendants did not intend or foresee the stabbing of the victim by the principal defendant. State v. Dominguez, 1993-NMCA-042, 115 N.M. 445, 853 P.2d 147, cert. denied, sub nom., Ortega v. State, 115 N.M. 409, 852 P.2d 682 (1993).

Material element of offense. — In instruction defining the material elements of crime in this section, one of the elements to be proved beyond a reasonable doubt was that defendant inflicted great bodily harm. State v. Chavez, 1971-NMCA-030, 82 N.M. 569, 484 P.2d 1279, cert. denied, 82 N.M. 562, 484 P.2d 1272.

General instruction superfluous. — An instruction generally defining aggravated battery was not needed to guide the jury and was superfluous where the trial court instructed the jury as to the material elements of the aggravated battery elements of the aggravated battery charge. State v. Urban, 1974-NMCA-046, 86 N.M. 351, 524 P.2d 523.

Allegedly inconsistent instruction not jurisdictional error. — Defendant's claim that instruction defining aggravated battery covered three alternatives and thus was inconsistent with the specific charge of aggravated battery by use of a deadly weapon did not amount to jurisdictional error. State v. Urban, 1974-NMCA-046, 86 N.M. 351, 524 P.2d 523.

Inconsistent instruction not fundamental error. — In conviction for aggravated battery, where the evidence was clear that a deadly weapon was used, even if the giving of general definition of aggravated battery was error, it did not shock the conscience to let defendant's conviction stand, and there was no basis for applying the doctrine of fundamental error. State v. Urban, 1974-NMCA-046, 86 N.M. 351, 524 P.2d 523.

6A C.J.S. Assault and Battery § 72.

30-3-6. Reasonable detention; assault, battery, public affray or criminal damage to property.

A. As used in this section:

(1) "licensed premises" means all public and private rooms, facilities and areas in which alcoholic beverages are sold or served in the customary operating procedures of establishments licensed to sell or serve alcoholic liquors;

(2) "proprietor" means the owner of the licensed premises or his manager or his designated representative; and

(3) "operator" means the owner or the manager of any establishment or premises open to the public.

B. Any law enforcement officer may arrest without warrant any persons he has probable cause for believing have committed the crime of assault or battery as defined in Sections 30-3-1 through 30-3-5 NMSA 1978 or public affray or criminal damage to property. Any proprietor or operator who causes such an arrest shall not be criminally or civilly liable if he has actual knowledge, communicated truthfully and in good faith to the law enforcement officer, that the persons so arrested have committed the crime of assault or battery as defined in Sections 30-3-1 through 30-3-5 NMSA 1978 or public affray or criminal damage to property.

History: Laws 1981, ch. 255, § 1; 1983, ch. 268, § 1.

The 1983 amendment deleted "on licensed premises" following "detention" in the catchline, added "or criminal damage to property" at the end of the catchline, inserted Paragraph (3) of Subsection A, substituted "Sections" for "Section" in the first sentence of Subsection B, added "or criminal damage to property" at the end of the first and second sentences of Subsection B and inserted "or operator" and "communicated truthfully and in good faith to the law enforcement officer" in the second sentence of Subsection B.

30-3-7. Injury to pregnant woman.

A. Injury to [a] pregnant woman consists of a person other than the woman injuring a pregnant woman in the commission of a felony causing her to suffer a miscarriage or stillbirth as a result of that injury.

B. As used in this section:

(1) "miscarriage" means the interruption of the normal development of the fetus, other than by a live birth and which is not an induced abortion, resulting in the complete expulsion or extraction from a pregnant woman of a product of human conception; and

© 2022 State of New Mexico. New Mexico Compilation Commission. All rights reserved.

(2) "stillbirth" means the death of a fetus prior to the complete expulsion or extraction from its mother, irrespective of the duration of pregnancy and which is not an induced abortion; and death is manifested by the fact that after the expulsion or extraction the fetus does not breathe spontaneously or show any other evidence of life such as heart beat, pulsation of the umbilical cord or definite movement of voluntary muscles.

C. Whoever commits injury to [a] pregnant woman is guilty of a third degree felony and shall be sentenced pursuant to the provisions of Section 31-18-15 NMSA 1978.

History: Laws 1985, ch. 239, § 1.

Bracketed material. — The bracketed material was inserted by the compiler and is not part of the law.

Cross references. — For injury to pregnant woman by vehicle, see 66-8-101.1 NMSA 1978.

30-3-8. Shooting at dwelling or occupied building; shooting at or from a motor vehicle.

A. Shooting at a dwelling or occupied building consists of willfully discharging a firearm at a dwelling or occupied building. Whoever commits shooting at a dwelling or occupied building that does not result in great bodily harm to another person is guilty of a fourth degree felony. Whoever commits shooting at a dwelling or occupied building that results in injury to another person is guilty of a third degree felony. Whoever commits shooting at a dwelling or occupied building that results in great bodily harm to another person is guilty of a second degree felony.

B. Shooting at or from a motor vehicle consists of willfully discharging a firearm at or from a motor vehicle with reckless disregard for the person of another. Whoever commits shooting at or from a motor vehicle that does not result in great bodily harm to another person is guilty of a fourth degree felony. Whoever commits shooting at or from a motor vehicle that results in injury to another person is guilty of a third degree felony. Whoever commits shooting at or from a motor vehicle that results in great bodily harm to another person is guilty of a second degree felony.

C. This section shall not apply to a law enforcement officer discharging a firearm in the lawful performance of his duties.

History: Laws 1987, ch. 213, § 1; 1993, ch. 78, § 1.

The 1993 amendment, effective July 1, 1993, deleted "Inhabited" preceding "Dwelling" and inserted "shooting at or from a motor vehicle" in the section heading; designated the formerly undesignated provisions as Subsection A and rewrote the provisions thereof; and added Subsections B and C.

ANNOTATIONS

This section reflects legislature's judgment that traditional homicide and assault and battery crimes are inadequate to respond to the particular dangers involved with motor vehicle shootings. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

No double jeopardy violation. — Defendant's convictions of voluntary manslaughter and shooting at or from a motor vehicle do not violate double jeopardy. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Where the facts support non-unitary conduct for two violations of this section, defendant's double jeopardy claim is rejected. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Conviction for shooting at a motor vehicle under Subsection B of this section did not preclude the state from seeking a further conviction for first or second degree murder under Section 30-2-1 NMSA 1978. State v. Garcia, 2005-NMCA-042, 137 N.M. 315, 110 P.3d 531, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-004, 137 N.M. 454, 112 P.3d 1111.

Violation of double jeopardy. — There was no double jeopardy violation for convictions for second degree murder and shooting at or from a motor vehicle because the testimony at trial permitted the inference that each conviction was based on distinct conduct and because the two statutes evince legislative intent to impose separate punishments for each crimes. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Convictions for felony murder and shooting at a dwelling violated defendant's right to be protected from double jeopardy. State v. Varela, 1999-NMSC-045, 128 N.M. 454, 993 P.2d 1280.

Cumulative punishment is precluded for shooting at a vehicle and homicide. — New Mexico jurisprudence precludes cumulative punishment for the offenses of causing great bodily harm to a person by shooting at a motor vehicle and the homicide resulting from the penetration of the same bullet into the same person. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426, overruling State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023, State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563 and State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Where defendant and defendant's companions were accosted by a rival gang in front of defendant's family home, guns were pulled on both sides and defendant's sibling was severely wounded by gunshots in the leg and abdomen; while defendant's group were trying to help defendant's sibling in the driveway and stop the bleeding from the gunshot wounds, the person in the rival gang who had been shooting at defendant and defendant's companions returned in a Ford Expedition; when defendant saw gunfire coming from the Expedition, defendant ran into the house and retrieved an AK-47 rifle and began shooting at the Expedition; the driver of Expedition was shot seven times and died; the jury convicted defendant of voluntary manslaughter and shooting into a motor vehicle resulting in great bodily harm, the Double Jeopardy Clause protected defendant from being punished both for the homicide of the victim and for shooting into a vehicle causing great bodily harm to the victim where both convictions were premised on the unitary act of shooting the victim. State v. Montoya, 2013-NMSC-020, 306 P.3d 426, overruling State v. Gonzales, 1992-NMSC-003, 113 N.M. 221, 824 P.2d 1023, State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563 and State v. Riley, 2010-NMSC-005, 147 N.M. 557, 226 P.3d 656.

Legislature intended to provide multiple punishments for the offenses of second degree murder and shooting into or from a vehicle. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Acts must be done while in vehicle. — Shooting from a motor vehicle requires that the acts be done while in a motor vehicle. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Shooting entirely within a vehicle. — Shooting entirely within a vehicle is neither shooting "at" nor "from" a vehicle pursuant to Subsection B of 30-3-8 NMSA 1978. State v. Tafoya, 2012-NMSC-030, 285 P.3d 604.

Where defendant, who was riding in the back seat of a vehicle, shot the driver of the vehicle and the passenger who was riding in the front seat of the vehicle, Subsection B of 30-3-8 NMSA 1978 did not apply to defendant's conduct. State v. Tafoya, 2012-NMSC-030, 285 P.3d 604.

This section does not require proof of death or include death as an alternative to great bodily harm. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Elements distinguished between crimes. — Voluntary manslaughter and shooting at or from a motor vehicle resulting in great bodily harm have distinct elements. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Evidence sufficient. — Where defendant shot multiple times into a house, wounding one victim; witnesses testified that defendant opened fire on the house without any one firing back at defendant; and the victim testified that the victim was wounded by the gunfire, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction of shooting at a dwelling. State v. Torrez, 2013-NMSC-034.

Where defendant fired two gunshots into a house; the bullets found in the house matched those fired from defendant's handgun; the trajectory of the bullets indicated that the shooter was aiming directly at the house; defendant had expressed hostility towards one of the occupants of the house whom defendant knew was in the house; after defendant fired into the house, defendant aimed the gun downward and shot and killed the victim; the trajectory of the bullets that entered the body of the victim was different from the trajectory of the bullets that entered the house, there was sufficient evidence to support defendant's conviction for shooting at a dwelling. State v. Arrendondo, 2012-NMSC-013, 278 P.3d 517.

Evidence is sufficient under this section which supports conviction, which requires proof that the defendant willfully discharged a firearm from a motor vehicle with reckless disregard for another. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

"Reckless disregard" requires that defendant's conduct created a substantial and foreseeable risk and that defendant disregarded such risk and was wholly indifferent to the consequences of his conduct and the welfare and safety of others. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Vehicle not required to be in motion. — The unambiguous language of this section does not require that the vehicle be in motion. State v. Mireles, 2004-NMCA-100, 136 N.M. 337, 98 P.3d 727, cert. denied, 2004-NMCERT-008, 136 N.M. 492, 100 P.3d 197.

Evidence insufficient. — Evidence was insufficient to sustain defendant's conviction where the evidence showed that he fired shots from a balcony downward, but there was no evidence that he fired in the direction of any building. State v. Trujillo, 2002-NMSC-005, 131 N.M. 709, 42 P.3d 814.

No merger with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. — Separate punishments are intended for the offenses of shooting into an occupied vehicle and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. State v. Sosa, 1997-NMSC-032, 123 N.M. 564, 943 P.2d 1017, abrogated by State v. Porter, 2020-NMSC-020.

Knowledge that building occupied required. — The statute requires not only that the discharge of the firearm be intentional and that it be discharged at a building intentionally, but that the discharge occur with the knowledge or reason to believe that the building was occupied at the time of the shooting. State v. Elmquist, 1992-NMCA-119, 114 N.M. 551, 844 P.2d 131.

Knowledge of occupation is not an element of shooting at a dwelling. State v. Coleman, 2011-NMCA-087, 150 N.M. 622, 264 P.3d 523, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-008, 268 P.3d 513.

Evidence sufficient to prove conspiracy to commit shooting at a dwelling. — Where defendant's friends asked defendant for a ride from a party; one of the friends suggested that they go "do some shootings"; defendant agreed to the plan and drove to the location of a trailer selected by the friend; the friend exited defendant's vehicle and fired three shots at the trailer; the owner of the trailer had recently moved from the trailer, but kept some possessions in the trailer and parked two vehicles in front of the trailer; and defendant claimed that defendant had no reason to know that the trailer was occupied at the time of the shooting, the evidence was sufficient to prove that defendant had the requisite intent to agree and the intent to commit shooting at a dwelling. State v. Coleman, 2011-NMCA-087, 150 N.M. 622, 264 P.3d 523, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-008, 268 P.3d 513.

Conspiracy to shoot from vehicle. — To be guilty of conspiracy to shoot from a motor vehicle, there must have been an agreement that one of the parties thereto would shoot a firearm recklessly from the vehicle; the agreement could be explicit or a mutually implied understanding, but mere passive submission or acquiescence in the conduct of others would not suffice. State v. Mariano R., 1997-NMCA-018, 123 N.M. 121, 934 P.2d 315.

Conviction as accessory. — Where defendant was convicted of violating this section as an accessory to the crime and the crime is one enumerated in Section 33-2-34L(4)(j) NMSA 1978, the fact that he pleaded guilty as an accessory and not a principal is irrelevant for purposes of the Earned Meritorious Deductions Act. State v. Flores, 2005-NMCA-092, 138 N.M. 61, 116 P.3d 852, cert. denied, 2005-NMCERT-007, 138 N.M. 145, 117 P.3d 951.

Separate punishments intended. — The legislature intended to punish the crimes of voluntary manslaughter and shooting at or from a motor vehicle separately. State v. Dominguez, 2005-NMSC-001, 137 N.M. 1, 106 P.3d 563.

Shooting at or from a motor vehicle may not serve as the predicate felony for felony murder. — Under the collateral felony rule, the predicate felony must be independent of or collateral to the homicide, and the predicate felony cannot be a lesser-included offense of second-degree murder. Shooting at or from a motor vehicle is an elevated form of aggravated battery, a lesser-included offense of second-degree murder, and thus cannot be used as a predicate for felony murder, so where defendant was convicted of first-degree felony murder, the underlying felony of which was shooting from a motor vehicle, defendant's felony murder conviction was vacated because the crime of shooting at or from a motor vehicle lacks an independent felonious purpose from that required under second-degree murder. State v. Marquez, 2016-NMSC-025.

Shooting at or from a motor vehicle cannot serve as the underlying felony sustaining a felony murder conviction. — Where defendant was convicted of first-degree felony murder predicated on the underlying felony of shooting at or from a motor vehicle, the New Mexico supreme court vacated defendant's conviction of felony murder because shooting at or from a motor vehicle is an elevated form of aggravated battery, and thus cannot be used as a predicate for felony murder. State v. Baroz, 2017-NMSC-030.

Shooting resulting in death. — Subsection A of this section, construed with the definition of "great bodily harm" in Section 30-1-12A NMSA 1978 includes a shooting at a dwelling that results in death. State v. Varela, 1999-NMSC-045, 128 N.M. 454, 993 P.2d 1280.

Felony murder. — Applying the strict-elements test, shooting at a dwelling is not a lesser included offense of second degree murder, and the offense could serve as a predicate for applying the felony-murder doctrine. State v. Varela, 1999-NMSC-045, 128 N.M. 454, 993 P.2d 1280.

Insufficient evidence that defendant committed the predicate felony of shooting at a dwelling or occupied building. — Where defendant was convicted of felony murder predicated on the felony of shooting at dwelling or occupied building, the evidence established that defendant and his companions targeted the victims in the course of a gunfight that took place in front of a dwelling, but did not shoot at or target the dwelling. Therefore, the evidence is not sufficient to support a conviction of felony murder predicated on the felony of shooting at a dwelling. State v. Comitz, 2019-NMSC-011.

Instruction on defense of another. — Where defendant and the occupants of a house exchanged multiple gun shots; the shots defendant fired at the house killed one victim; defendant was tried for shooting at a dwelling; defendant requested a jury instruction on defense of another on the grounds that shots from the house were fired in the direction of defendant's car where two of defendant's friends were waiting; defendant testified that defendant shot back at the house, because people in the house were shooting at defendant; defendant's friends testified that they were not aware of any bullets reaching the vicinity of the car; and there was no evidence that defendant shot to protect anyone other than defendant, the district court did not err in refusing to instruct on defense of another. State v. Torrez, 2013-NMSC-034.

Exception to best-evidence rule for inaccessible text messages. — Where defendant was charged with shooting at a motor vehicle and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and where the state presented testimony from the victim's nephew that he had seen threatening text messages from defendant on the victim's phone on the day of the incident, the district court did not abuse its discretion in admitting the testimony of the victim's nephew where the court found that the state had met its burden of showing that it had made a diligent, but unsuccessful, effort to obtain the original text messages and that there was no evidence indicating that additional efforts may have been successful. State v. Stevenson, 2020-NMCA-005, cert. denied.

30-3-8.1. Seizure and forfeiture of motor vehicle; procedure.

A. A motor vehicle shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture when the vehicle is used or intended for use in the commission of the offense of shooting at or from a motor vehicle pursuant to Subsection B of Section 30-3-8 NMSA 1978.

B. The provisions of the Forfeiture Act [Chapter 31, Article 27 NMSA 1978] apply to the seizure, forfeiture and disposal of a motor vehicle subject to forfeiture pursuant to Subsection A of this section.

History: Laws 1993, ch. 78, § 2; 2002, ch. 4, § 11.

The 2002 amendment, effective July 1, 2002, deleted former Subsections B through F, which contained standards and procedures for the forfeiture of motor vehicles used or intended for use in the commission of the offense of shooting at or from a motor vehicle pursuant to Subsection B of Section 30-3-8 NMSA 1978; and added present Subsection B.

30-3-8.2. Court record of conviction; revocation of driver's license.

Upon a conviction for the offense of shooting at or from a motor vehicle pursuant to Subsection B of Section 30-3-8 NMSA 1978, or of a conviction for a conspiracy or attempt to commit that offense, the district court shall send a record of the conviction to the motor vehicle division of the taxation and revenue department. The division shall immediately revoke the driver's licenses or driving privileges of all persons convicted of the offense of shooting at or from a motor vehicle, or convicted of conspiring or attempting to commit that offense, pursuant to the provisions of Subsection E of Section 66-5-29 NMSA 1978.

30-3-9. Assault; battery; school personnel.

A. As used in this section:

(1) "in the lawful discharge of his duties" means engaged in the performance of the duties of a school employee; and

(2) "school employee" includes a member of a local public school board and public school administrators, teachers and other employees of that board.

B. Assault upon a school employee consists of:

(1) an attempt to commit a battery upon the person of a school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties; or

(2) any unlawful act, threat or menacing conduct which causes a school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties to reasonably believe that he is in danger of receiving an immediate battery.

Whoever commits assault upon a school employee is guilty of a misdemeanor.

C. Aggravated assault upon a school employee consists of:

(1) unlawfully assaulting or striking at a school employee with a deadly weapon while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties;

(2) committing assault by threatening or menacing a school employee who is engaged in the lawful discharge of his duties by a person wearing a mask, hood, robe or other covering upon the face, head or body, or while disguised in any manner so as to conceal identity; or

(3) willfully and intentionally assaulting a school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties with intent to commit any felony.

Whoever commits aggravated assault upon a school employee is guilty of a third degree felony.

D. Assault with intent to commit a violent felony upon a school employee consists of any person assaulting a school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties with intent to kill the school employee.

Whoever commits assault with intent to commit a violent felony upon a school employee is guilty of a second degree felony.

E. Battery upon a school employee is the unlawful, intentional touching or application of force to the person of a school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties, when done in a rude, insolent or angry manner.

Whoever commits battery upon a school employee is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

F. Aggravated battery upon a school employee consists of the unlawful touching or application of force to the person of a school employee with intent to injure that school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties.

Whoever commits aggravated battery upon a school employee, inflicting an injury to the school employee which is not likely to cause death or great bodily harm but does cause painful temporary disfigurement or temporary loss or impairment of the functions of any member or organ of the body, is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

Whoever commits aggravated battery upon a school employee, inflicting great bodily harm, or does so with a deadly weapon or in any manner whereby great bodily harm or death can be inflicted, is guilty of a third degree felony.

G. Every person who assists or is assisted by one or more other persons to commit a battery upon any school employee while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

School employee. — Security guards providing services for a school district pursuant to a contact with a school board are school employees. State v. Johnson, 2009-NMSC-049, 147 N.M. 177, 218 P.3d 863, rev'g 2008-NMCA-106, 144 N.M. 629, 190 P.3d 350.

Where a private security company and a school district entered into a contract to provide security services to the school district; the security company hired and paid security guards to work at a high school; the security guards were neither hired directly by the school board nor paid directly by the school board for their services pursuant to the contract; the principal of the high school determined what hours the security guards should work and at what locations; the principal could dictate that a particular security guard could not work at the high school; and the site administrator had full direction over security guard assignments, including temporary assignments at other school district schools, the security guards were school employees. State v. Johnson, 2009-NMSC-049, 147 N.M. 177, 218 P.3d 863, rev'g 2008-NMCA-106, 144 N.M. 629, 190 P.3d 350.

Contract security guards. — Where a school district contracted with a third party to provide school security guards; the school district set the hours worked by the guards, supervised them on a daily basis and required the guards to adhere to policies and procedures of the school district; the third party retained the ability to hire, fire and discipline the guards; the third party was required to insure the guards; and the third party paid the guards' salaries, the security guards were not school employees. State v. Johnson, 2008-NMCA-106, 144 N.M. 629, 190 P.3d 350, rev'd, 2009-NMSC-049, 147 N.M. 177, 218 P.3d 863.

"Use" of a deadly weapon in the context of assault with a deadly weapon construed. — A defendant uses a deadly weapon to commit assault where a defendant makes facilitative use of the deadly weapon. Facilitative use of a deadly weapon may be found if (1) a deadly weapon is present at some point during the encounter, (2) the victim knows or, based on the defendant's words or actions, has reason to know that the defendant has a deadly weapon, and (3) the presence of the weapon is intentionally used by the defendant to facilitate the commission of the assault. State v. Zachariah G., 2022-NMSC-003, aff'g 2021-NMCA-036.

Sufficient evidence of assault on a school employee with a deadly weapon. — Where a child was adjudicated a delinquent for committing aggravated assault with a deadly weapon on a school employee, there was sufficient evidence to support the adjudication where, although the child did not brandish the BB gun he had concealed in his waistband, the child refused to reveal the object to the school principal and asked the principal menacing questions, including "What would happen if somebody shot up the school?", "Are you afraid to die?", and "How would you feel if a twelve-year old shot you?". There was sufficient evidence to satisfy the essential element that the child used the deadly weapon where the evidence supported findings that a deadly weapon was present, that the principal knew or had reason to know from the child's words and actions that the child had a BB gun when the child threatened him, and that the presence of the weapon was intentionally used by the child to facilitate the commission of an assault on the principal. Based on the child's verbal threats that took advantage of the presence of the BB gun, it was reasonable for the jury to determine that the child's conduct caused the principal to reasonably believe that he was in danger of receiving an immediate battery, and thus the child used the deadly weapon to facilitate the assault. State v. Zachariah G., 2022-NMSC-003, aff'g 2021-NMCA-036.

Sufficient evidence of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon on a school employee. — Where a child was adjudicated a delinquent for committing aggravated assault with a deadly weapon on a school employee, there was sufficient evidence to support the adjudication where, although the child did not brandish or retrieve a BB gun he had concealed in his waistband, the child refused to reveal the object to the school principal and asked the school principal menacing questions, including "What would happen if somebody shot up the school?", "Are you afraid to die?", and "How would you feel if a twelve-year-old shot you?". A reasonable juror could have determined that the child threatened the principal with the BB gun and that the gun was instrumental to the child's assault because the child's menacing and threatening questions instilled fear in the principal while the gun was bulging from the child's pants and of which the child knew the principal was aware. *State v. ## 30-3-9.1. Assault; battery; sports officials.

A. As used in this section:

(1) "in the lawful discharge of his duties" means engaged in the performance of the duties of a sports official;

(2) "sports official" means a person who:

(a) serves as a referee, umpire linesman, timer or scorer, or who serves in a similar capacity, while working, supervising or administering a sports event; and

(b) is registered as a member of a local, state, regional or national organization that is engaged in providing education and training to sports officials.

B. Assault upon a sports official consists of:

(1) an attempt to commit a battery upon the person of a sports official while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties; or

(2) any unlawful act, threat or menacing conduct that causes a sports official while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties to reasonably believe that he is in danger of receiving an immediate battery.

C. Whoever commits assault upon a sports official is guilty of a misdemeanor.

D. Aggravated assault upon a sports official consists of unlawfully assaulting or striking at a sports official with a deadly weapon while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties.

E. Whoever commits aggravated assault upon a sports official is guilty of a third degree felony.

F. Battery upon a sports official is the unlawful, intentional touching or application of force to the person of a sports official while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties, when done in a rude, insolent or angry manner.

G. Whoever commits battery upon a sports official is guilty of a misdemeanor.

H. Aggravated battery upon a sports official consists of the unlawful touching or application of force to the person of a sports official with intent to injure that sports official while he is in the lawful discharge of his duties.

I. Whoever commits aggravated battery upon a sports official, inflicting an injury to the sports official that is not likely to cause death or great bodily harm, but does cause painful temporary disfigurement or temporary loss or impairment of the functions of any member or organ of the body, is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

30-3-9.2. Assault; battery; health care personnel.

A. As used in this section:

(1) "health facility" means a public or private hospital, outpatient facility, diagnostic and treatment center, rehabilitation center or infirmary. "Health facility" also includes those facilities that, by federal regulation, must be licensed by the state to obtain or maintain full or partial, permanent or temporary federal funding, but "health facility" does not include a skilled nursing facility, a nursing facility or other long-term residential care facility;

(2) "health care worker" means an employee of a health facility or a licensed emergency medical technician; and

(3) "in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties" means engaged in the performance of the duties of a health care worker.

B. Assault upon a health care worker consists of:

(1) an attempt to commit a battery upon the person of a health care worker who is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties; or

(2) any unlawful act, threat or menacing conduct that causes a health care worker who is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties to reasonably believe that the health care worker is in danger of receiving an immediate battery.

Whoever commits assault upon a health care worker is guilty of a misdemeanor.

C. Aggravated assault upon a health care worker consists of:

(1) unlawfully assaulting or striking at a health care worker with a weapon while the health care worker is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties; or

(2) willfully and intentionally assaulting a health care worker who is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties with intent to commit any felony.

Whoever commits aggravated assault upon a health care worker is guilty of a third degree felony.

D. Assault with intent to commit a violent felony upon a health care worker consists of assaulting a health care worker who is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties with intent to kill the health care worker.

Whoever commits assault with intent to commit a violent felony upon a health care worker is guilty of a second degree felony.

E. Battery upon a health care worker is the unlawful, intentional touching or application of force to the person of a health care worker who is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties, when done in a rude, insolent or angry manner.

Whoever commits battery upon a health care worker is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

F. Aggravated battery upon a health care worker consists of the unlawful touching or application of force to the person of a health care worker with intent to injure that health care worker while the health care worker is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties.

Whoever commits aggravated battery upon a health care worker, inflicting an injury to the health care worker that is not likely to cause death or great bodily harm but does cause painful temporary disfigurement or temporary loss or impairment of the functions of any member or organ of the body, is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

Whoever commits aggravated battery upon a health care worker, inflicting great bodily harm or does so with a deadly weapon or in any manner whereby great bodily harm or death can be inflicted, is guilty of a third degree felony.

G. A person who assists or is assisted by one or more other persons to commit a battery upon a health care worker who is in the lawful discharge of the health care worker's duties is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

Knowledge of the identity of the victim is an essential element. — Where defendant was charged with battery upon a health care worker for striking a security guard at a medical center, and the trial court instructed the jury on the elements of battery upon a health care worker, but omitted the requirement that defendant had knowledge that the victim was a health care worker, the failure to instruct the jury that a conviction for battery on a health care worker required the element of knowledge that the victim was a health care worker was fundamental error. State v. Valino, 2012-NMCA-105, 287 P.3d 372, cert. denied, 2012-NMCERT-009, 296 P.3d 1207.

Meaning of "health care worker". — A security guard who was employed by a medical center, who was not a medical professional, who was not employed for the purpose of providing medical care, who was not licensed in any medical field, and whose employment duties related to security, not medicine, was a "health care worker" under Section 30-3-9.2(A)(2) NMSA 1978. State v. Valino, 2012-NMCA-105, 287 P.3d 372, cert. denied, 2012-NMCERT-009, 296 P.3d 1207.

Battery committed while in protective custody due to intoxication. — The Detoxification Reform Act, Sections 43-2-1.1 NMSA 1978 et seq., does not preclude the criminal prosecution of a defendant for battery upon a health care worker merely because the defendant was in protective custody due to intoxication at the time of the offense. State v. Tsosie, 2011-NMCA-115, 150 N.M. 754, 266 P.3d 34, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-010.

Health facility. — Where the victim of defendant's battery was employed by a facility that was licensed as an adult residential health facility, provided protective custody to alcohol-impaired persons, and identified substance abuse issues based upon patients' medical history, vital signs, laboratory testing, and formal assessments and developed treatment plans based upon those observations, which included prescribing and dispensing of medications and behavioral therapy, the facility was a "health facility" and the victim qualified as a health care worker. State v. Tsosie, 2011-NMCA-115, 150 N.M. 754, 266 P.3d 34, cert. denied, 2011-NMCERT-010.

Sufficient evidence. — Where defendant was brought to a medical center for detoxification evaluation; the medical staff determined that defendant was not free to be released and requested security guards employed by the medical center to restrain defendant until defendant's parents arrived to pick defendant up; the security guards' job description included restraining persons brought in for detoxification evaluation; defendant tried to leave and the security guards restrained defendant; and defendant struck one of the security guards, there was sufficient evidence that the security guard was a health care worker lawfully performing the security guard's duties. State v. Valino, 2012-NMCA-105, 287 P.3d 372, cert. denied, 2012-NMCERT-009, 296 P.3d 1207.

30-3-10. Short title.

Sections 30-3-10 through 30-3-18 NMSA 1978 may be cited as the "Crimes Against Household Members Act".

History: Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 1; 2009, ch. 255, § 1.

The 2009 amendment, effective June 19, 2009, changed the reference of the act to Sections 30-3-10 through 30-3-18 NMSA 1978.

30-3-11. Definitions.

As used in the Crimes Against Household Members Act:

A. "household member" means a spouse, former spouse, parent, present or former stepparent, present or former parent in-law, grandparent, grandparent-in-law, a co-parent of a child or a person with whom a person has had a continuing personal relationship. Cohabitation is not necessary to be deemed a household member for the purposes of the Crimes Against Household Members Act;

B. "continuing personal relationship" means a dating or intimate relationship;

C. "strangulation" means the unlawful touching or application of force to another person's neck or throat with intent to injure that person and in a manner whereby great bodily harm or death can be inflicted, the result of which impedes the person's normal breathing or blood circulation; and

D. "suffocation" means the unlawful touching or application of force that blocks the nose or mouth of another person with intent to injure that person and in a manner whereby great bodily harm or death can be inflicted, the result of which impedes the person's normal breathing or blood circulation.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 2; 2008, ch. 16, § 1; 2010, ch. 85, § 1; 2018, ch. 30, § 1.

The 2018 amendment, effective July 1, 2018, added definitions of "strangulation" and "suffocation" to the Crimes Against Household Members Act; added Subsections C and D.

The 2010 amendment, effective July 1, 2010, in Subsection A, after "former spouse", deleted "or family member, including a relative"; after second instance of "present or former", added "parent"; and after "parent in-law", added "grandparent, grandparent-in-law".

The 2008 amendment, effective July 1, 2008, added the definition of "continuing personal relationship" in Subsection B.

ANNOTATIONS

Minor child of accused is not included in the definition of "household member". State v. Stein, 1999-NMCA-065, 127 N.M. 362, 981 P.2d 295.

Adult children — A plain reading of this section supports a conclusion that the definition of "household member" includes adult children of the accused. State v. Montoya, 2005-NMCA-005, 136 N.M. 674, 104 P.3d 540, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-011, 138 N.M. 586, 124 P.3d 564.

Victim need not cohabit or reside with defendant in order to be a household member. State v. Montoya, 2005-NMCA-005, 136 N.M. 674, 104 P.3d 540, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-011, 138 N.M. 586, 124 P.3d 564.

30-3-12. Assault against a household member.

A. Assault against a household member consists of:

(1) an attempt to commit a battery against a household member; or

(2) any unlawful act, threat or menacing conduct that causes a household member to reasonably believe that he is in danger of receiving an immediate battery.

B. Whoever commits assault against a household member is guilty of a petty misdemeanor.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 3.

Effective dates. — Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 8 made the Crimes Against Household Members Act effective on July 1, 1995.

30-3-13. Aggravated assault against a household member.

A. Aggravated assault against a household member consists of:

(1) unlawfully assaulting or striking at a household member with a deadly weapon; or

(2) willfully and intentionally assaulting a household member with intent to commit any felony.

B. Whoever commits aggravated assault against a household member is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 4.

Effective dates. — Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 8 made the Crimes Against Household Members Act effective on July 1, 1995.

ANNOTATIONS

Sufficient evidence. — Where defendant pointed a gun at the victim and told the victim that defendant was going to shoot the victim; the victim believed defendant was going to shoot the victim; the victim grabbed the gun away and threw the gun into a field; the police found the gun in the field; the gun was a Raven brand gun; the police found a Raven brand firearms box in defendant's home; and defendant and the victim had ended their relationship a week before, the evidence was sufficient to convict defendant of aggravated assault against a household member. State v. Quintana, 2009-NMCA-115, 147 N.M. 169, 218 P.3d 87.

30-3-14. Assault against a household member with intent to commit a violent felony.

A. Assault against a household member with intent to commit a violent felony consists of any person assaulting a household member with intent to kill or commit any murder, mayhem, criminal sexual penetration in the first, second or third degree, robbery, kidnapping, false imprisonment or burglary.

B. Whoever commits assault against a household member with intent to commit a violent felony is guilty of a third degree felony.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 5.

Effective dates. — Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 8 made the Crimes Against Household Members Act effective on July 1, 1995.

ANNOTATIONS

Separate punishable offenses. — Criminal sexual penetration and assault with intent to commit criminal sexual penetration on a household member statutes create separate punishable offenses. State v. Jensen, 2005-NMCA-113, 138 N.M. 254, 118 P.3d 762, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-011, 138 N.M. 586, 124 P.3d 564.

separable conduct that the defendant was not placed in double jeopardy. State v. Jensen, 2005-NMCA-113, 138 N.M. 254, 118 P.3d 762, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-011, 138 N.M. 586, 124 P.3d 564.

30-3-15. Battery against a household member.

A. Battery against a household member consists of the unlawful, intentional touching or application of force to the person of a household member, when done in a rude, insolent or angry manner.

B. Whoever commits battery against a household member is guilty of a misdemeanor.

C. Upon conviction pursuant to this section, an offender shall be required to participate in and complete a domestic violence offender treatment or intervention program approved by the children, youth and families department pursuant to rules promulgated by the department that define the criteria for such programs.

D. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, if a sentence imposed pursuant to this section is suspended or deferred in whole or in part, the period of probation may extend beyond three hundred sixty-four days but may not exceed two years. If an offender violates a condition of probation, the court may impose any sentence that the court could originally have imposed and credit shall not be given for time served by the offender on probation; provided that the total period of incarceration shall not exceed three hundred sixty-four days and the combined period of incarceration and probation shall not exceed two years.

History: Laws 1995, ch. 221, § 6; 2001, ch. 144, § 1; 2007, ch. 221, § 1; 2008, ch. 16, § 2.

The 2008 amendment, effective July 1, 2008, provided for participation in intervention programs in Subsection C.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, added Subsections C and D.

The 2001 amendment, effective July 1, 2001, in Subsection B, increased the penalty for the offense of battery against a household member from a petty misdemeanor to a misdemeanor.

Unlawfulness is an essential element of battery against a household member. — Whether a defendant's touch or application of force was unlawful is an essential element of battery against a household member, so if there is some evidence that excused or justified the defendant's conduct, which is to say if the essential element of unlawfulness was contested, the court has a duty to instruct the jury on the state's burden to prove unlawfulness beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Smith, 2021-NMSC-025, aff'g A-1-CA-34765, mem. op. (Dec. 16, 2019) (nonprecedential).

Defendant was entitled to an instruction on unlawfulness. — Where defendant was convicted of battery against a household member, based on evidence that defendant pushed his girlfriend to the ground after she pushed him away from the door to prevent him from entering their apartment and that defendant backed his car into his girlfriend, making contact with her arm, when she did not move away while defendant was trying to exit the parking lot, and where, at trial, defendant argued that his use of force was justified as a reasonable response to his girlfriend's initial use of force and that his conduct was justified or excused because his girlfriend committed the crime of deprivation of property of a household member, the trial court erred in denying defendant's requested instruction on unlawfulness, because, as an essential element of the crime of battery against a household member, if there was some evidence that excused or justified defendant's conduct, which is to say if the essential element of unlawfulness was contested, the court had a duty to instruct the jury on the state's burden to prove unlawfulness beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Smith, 2021-NMSC-025, aff'g A-1-CA-34765, mem. op. (Dec. 16, 2019) (nonprecedential).

ANNOTATIONS

Battery against one's own child is not encompassed in the offense of battery against a household member. State v. Stein, 1999-NMCA-065, 127 N.M. 362, 981 P.2d 295.

Sufficient evidence of battery against a household member. — Where defendant was charged with criminal sexual penetration of a minor and battery against a household member, and where the state relied on testimony elicited from the victim that defendant kicked and pushed her and that defendant is her uncle, there was sufficient evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant intentionally touched or applied force to the victim in a rude, insolent or angry manner and that the victim was a household member. State v. Garcia, 2019-NMCA-056, cert. denied.

Adult children. — A plain reading of this section supports a conclusion that the definition of a "household member" includes adult children of the accused. State v. Montoya, 2005-NMCA-005, 136 N.M. 764, 104 P.3d 540, cert. quashed, 2005-NMCERT-011, 138 N.M. 586, 124 P.3d 564.

Right to de novo appeal. — Where defendant was convicted in metropolitan court of battery against a household member in violation of 30-3-4 NMSA 1978, because the state did not prosecute the battery under this section, state could not contend that defendant was convicted of a crime involving domestic violence and he was entitled to a de novo appeal in district court rather than just an on-record review of the proceeding. State v. Trujillo, 1999-NMCA-003, 126 N.M. 603, 973 P.2d 855.

Convictions for robbery and battery against a household member did not violate double jeopardy. — Where defendant, who was a former employee of a restaurant, had an intimate romantic relationship with the victim who was the assistant manager of the restaurant; under the guise of returning the victim's cell phone, defendant approached the victim outside the restaurant, grabbed two money bags containing receipts of the restaurant that the victim intended to deposit; and when defendant grabbed the money bags, defendant struck the victim in the face and fled the scene, defendant's conviction for robbery and battery against a household member did not violate double jeopardy. State v. Gutierrez, 2012-NMCA-095, 286 P.3d 608, cert. denied, 2012-NMCERT-008.

State statute does not preempt municipal ordinance. — The state statute providing a full misdemeanor penalty for certain acts of domestic violence does not preclude prosecution of an offense under a municipal ordinance that only provides a petty misdemeanor penalty. 2008 Op. Att'y Gen. No. 08-06.

30-3-16. Aggravated battery against a household member.

A. Aggravated battery against a household member consists of the unlawful touching or application of force to the person of a household member with intent to injure that person or another.

B. Whoever commits aggravated battery against a household member is guilty of a misdemeanor if the aggravated battery against a household member is committed by inflicting an injury to that person that is not likely to cause death or great bodily harm, but that does cause painful temporary disfigurement or temporary loss or impairment of the functions of any member or organ of the body.

C. Whoever commits aggravated battery against a household member is guilty of a third degree felony if the aggravated battery against a household member is committed:

(1) by inflicting great bodily harm;

(2) with a deadly weapon;

(3) by strangulation or suffocation; or

(4) in any manner whereby great bodily harm or death can be inflicted.

D. Upon conviction pursuant to Subsection B of this section, an offender shall be required to participate in and complete a domestic violence offender treatment or intervention program approved by the children, youth and families department pursuant to rules promulgated by the department that define the criteria for such programs.

E. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, if a sentence imposed pursuant to the provisions of Subsection B of this section is suspended or deferred in whole or in part, the period of probation may extend beyond three hundred sixty-four days but may not exceed two years. If an offender violates a condition of probation, the court may impose any sentence that the court could originally have imposed and credit shall not be given for time served by the offender on probation; provided that the total period of incarceration shall not exceed three hundred sixty-four days and the combined period of incarceration and probation shall not exceed two years.

The 2018 amendment, effective July 1, 2018, provided that aggravated battery against a household member may be committed by strangulation or suffocation; in Subsection B, after "household member", added "is guilty of a misdemeanor if the aggravated battery against a household member is committed", and after "organ of the body", deleted "is guilty of a misdemeanor"; and in Subsection C, after "household member", added "is guilty of a third degree felony if the aggravated battery against a household member is committed", added the paragraph designations "(1)" and "(2)", in Paragraph C(1), after "harm", deleted "or doing so", in Paragraph C(2), after "weapon", deleted "or doing so", added a new paragraph C(3) and the new paragraph designation "(4)", and in Paragraph C(4), after "can be inflicted", deleted "is guilty of a third degree felony".

The 2008 amendment, effective July 1, 2008, provided for participation in intervention programs in Subsection D.

The 2007 amendment, effective July 1, 2007, added Subsections D and E.

ANNOTATIONS

Intent to injure victim required. — Defendant's conviction for aggravated battery on a household member was reversed where there was no direct testimony supporting the trial court's finding that he acted with the specific intent to harm the victim and there was not sufficient circumstantial evidence to support a finding of intent. State v. Wynn, 2001-NMCA-020, 130 N.M. 381, 24 P.3d 816.

Application of force. — Defendant's act of striking a window with sufficient force to propel the glass inward and against the victim constituted the application of force to the victim within the meaning of section. State v. Wynn, 2001-NMCA-020, 130 N.M. 381, 24 P.3d 816.

30-3-17. Multiple convictions of battery or aggravated battery.

A. Whoever commits three offenses of battery against a household member as provided in Section 30-3-15 NMSA 1978 or aggravated battery against a household member as provided in Subsection B of Section 30-3-16 NMSA 1978, or any combination thereof, when the household member is a spouse, a former spouse, a co-parent of a child or a person with whom the offender has had a continuing personal relationship is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

B. Whoever commits four or more offenses of battery against a household member as provided in Section 30-3-15 NMSA 1978 or aggravated battery against a household member as provided in Subsection B of Section 30-3-16 NMSA 1978, or any combination thereof, when the household member is a spouse, a former spouse, a co-parent of a child or a person with whom the offender has had a continuing personal relationship is guilty of a third degree felony.

C. For the purpose of determining the number of offenses committed, each offense must have been committed after conviction for the preceding offense.

History: Laws 2008, ch. 16, § 4.

Effective dates. — Laws 2008, ch. 16, § 6 made this section effective July 1, 2008.

Applicability. — Laws 2008, ch. 16, § 5 provided that the provisions of Laws 2008, ch. 16, § 4 apply to convictions obtained on or after July 1, 2008.

ANNOTATIONS

The Habitual Offender Act is applicable to convictions of felony battery against a household member. — Where defendant pleaded guilty to battery against a household member after battering the mother of his child, and where this was defendant's third conviction of battery against a household member, and where the district court enhanced defendant's conviction to a fourth degree felony under § 30-3-17(A) NMSA 1978, and where defendant had previously been convicted of a separate felony, the district court enhanced defendant's sentence by one year under the Habitual Offender Act, § 31-18-17 NMSA 1978, the district court did not err in applying the Habitual Offender Act, because the plain language of § 30-3-17(A) NMSA 1978 and § 31-18-17 NMSA 1978 does not preclude their simultaneous application. State v. Barela, 2021-NMSC-001, aff'g 2019-NMCA-005, 458 P.3d 501.

Habitual offender enhancement not prohibited. — Where defendant, a three-time domestic violence offender, pleaded no contest to, and was convicted of, felony battery against a household member, the district court did not err in enhancing defendant's sentence by one year, pursuant to 31-18-17(A) NMSA 1978, based on a prior conviction for false imprisonment, because contrary to defendant's argument, the felony battery against a household member statute is not self-enhancing, and based on the plain language of the statutes at issue, the one-year habitual offender enhancement of defendant's fourth degree felony battery on a household member sentence was proper as a matter of law. State v. Barela, 2019-NMCA-005, cert. granted.

30-3-18. Criminal damage to property of household member; deprivation of property of household member.

A. Criminal damage to the property of a household member consists of intentionally damaging real, personal, community or jointly owned property of a household member with the intent to intimidate, threaten or harass that household member.

B. Whoever commits criminal damage to the property of a household member is guilty of a misdemeanor, except that when the damage to the household member's interest in the property amounts to more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), the offender is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

C. Deprivation of the property of a household member consists of intentionally depriving a household member of the use of separate, community or jointly owned personal property of the household member with the intent to intimidate or threaten that household member.

D. Whoever commits deprivation of the property of a household member is guilty of a misdemeanor.

History: 1978 Comp., § 30-3-18, as enacted by Laws 2009, ch. 255, § 2.

Effective dates. — Laws 2009, ch. 255 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective June 19, 2009, 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature.

30-3-19. Threatening a judge or an immediate family member of a judge; penalty.

A. No person shall threaten a judge or the immediate family member of a judge with the intent to:

(1) place the judge or the immediate family member of a judge in fear of great bodily harm to the judge or to an immediate family member of the judge;

(2) prevent or interrupt the ability to carry out the judge's job duties; or

(3) retaliate against a judge on account of the performance of the judge's official duties during the judge's term of service.

B. A person who violates the provisions of this section is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

C. As used in this section:

(1) "immediate family member" means a spouse, child, sibling, parent, grandparent or grandchild, and "immediate family member" includes a stepparent, a stepchild, a stepsibling and an adoptive relationship;

(2) "judge" means a current or former justice, judge, magistrate, domestic violence special commissioner or hearing officer; and

(3) "retaliate" means intentionally threatening bodily injury to or damage to the property of a judge or a family member of a judge with the intent to retaliate against the judge for the judge's exercise of the judge's judicial duties and causing the judge or the family member to reasonably believe that the judge's or the family member's person or property is in danger.

History: Laws 2022, ch. 56, § 47.

Effective dates. — Laws 2022, ch. 56, § 47 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 18, 2022, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

30-3-20. Malicious sharing of personal information of a judge or an immediate family member of a judge; penalty.

A. No person shall share the personal information of a judge or an immediate family member of a judge with the intent to:

(1) cause harm to the judge or an immediate family member of a judge;

(2) place the judge or an immediate family member of a judge in fear of great bodily harm to the judge or to an immediate family member of the judge; or

(3) prevent or interrupt the ability to carry out the judge's job duties.

B. A person who violates the provisions of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor.

C. As used in this section:

(1) "immediate family member" means a spouse, child, sibling, parent, grandparent or grandchild, and "immediate family member" includes a stepparent, a stepchild, a stepsibling and an adoptive relationship;

(2) "judge" means a current or former justice, judge, magistrate, domestic violence special commissioner or hearing officer; and

(3) "personal information" means a person's personal physical address, personal phone number or physical location.

History: Laws 2022, ch. 56, § 48.

Effective dates. — Laws 2022, ch. 56, § 48 contained no effective date provision, but, pursuant to N.M. Const., art. IV, § 23, was effective May 18, 2022, 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

ch. 86, § 1, and Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 1, enacted a new section, effective July 1, 1997.

The 2009 amendment, effective July 1, 2009, changed the reference to the act to Chapter 30, Article 3A, NMSA 1978.

30-3A-2. Harassment; penalties.

A. Harassment consists of knowingly pursuing a pattern of conduct that is intended to annoy, seriously alarm or terrorize another person and that serves no lawful purpose. The conduct must be such that it would cause a reasonable person to suffer substantial emotional distress.

B. Whoever commits harassment is guilty of a misdemeanor.

History: 1978 Comp., § 30-3A-2, enacted by Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 2.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 7, repealed 30-3A-2 NMSA 1978, as enacted by Laws 1993, ch. 86, § 2, and Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 2, enacted a new section, effective July 1, 1997.

ANNOTATIONS

Constitutionality. — This section, as applied to defendant who repeatedly trespassed on victim's property, looked in her windows, and followed her both on and off her property, was not unconstitutionally vague; a person of ordinary intelligence would have known that such behavior was unlawful and would inflict substantial emotional distress upon the victim. State v. Duran, 1998-NMCA-153, 126 N.M. 60, 966 P.2d 768, cert. denied, 126 N.M. 533, 972 P.2d 352, overruled on other grounds, State v. Laguna, 1999-NMCA-152, 128 N.M. 345, 992 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

Double jeopardy. — When the defendant had been convicted of contempt, a misdemeanor, for violating a domestic violence protective order and sentenced to jail time, double jeopardy did not bar prosecution of the defendant for the offenses of stalking and harassment stemming from the same conduct that gave rise to the contempt adjudication. State v. Gonzales, 1997-NMCA-039, 123 N.M. 337, 940 P.2d 185, cert. denied, 123 N.M. 229, 938 P.2d 204.

Where the state relies on identical acts of an accused involving the same course of conduct to prove both the offenses of harassment and of stalking, double jeopardy provisions preclude multiple punishment, and the offense of harassment is subsumed into the offense of misdemeanor stalking. State v. Duran, 1998-NMCA-153, 126 N.M. 60, 966 P.2d 768, cert. denied, 126 N.M. 533, 972 P.2d 352, overruled on other grounds, *State v. ## 30-3A-3. Stalking; penalties.

A. Stalking consists of knowingly pursuing a pattern of conduct, without lawful authority, directed at a specific individual when the person intends that the pattern of conduct would place the individual in reasonable apprehension of death, bodily harm, sexual assault, confinement or restraint of the individual or another individual.

B. As used in this section:

(1) "lawful authority" means within the scope of lawful employment or constitutionally protected activity; and

(2) "pattern of conduct" means two or more acts, on more than one occasion, in which the alleged stalker by any action, method, device or means, directly, indirectly or through third parties, follows, monitors, surveils, threatens or communicates to or about a person.

C. Whoever commits stalking is guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon a second or subsequent conviction, the offender is guilty of a fourth degree felony.

D. In addition to any punishment provided pursuant to the provisions of this section, the court shall order a person convicted of stalking to participate in and complete a program of professional counseling at the person's own expense or a domestic violence offender treatment or intervention program.

History: 1978 Comp., § 30-3A-3, enacted by Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 3; 2009, ch. 21, § 2.

Repeals and reenactments. — Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 7, repealed 30-3A-3 NMSA 1978, as amended by Laws 1995, ch. 23, § 1, and Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 3, enacted a new section, effective July 1, 1997.

The 2009 amendment, effective July 1, 2009, deleted former Subsections A and B and inserted new Subsections A and B; and in Subsection D, added the domestic violence offender treatment or intervention program.

ANNOTATIONS

Evidence sufficient. — Evidence that defendant repeatedly trespassed onto victim's property and that defendant was the party who looked into victim's windows and followed her was sufficient to support convictions for stalking, harassment and criminal trespass. State v. Duran, 1998-NMCA-153, 126 N.M. 60, 966 P.2d 768, cert. denied, 126 N.M. 533, 972 P.2d 352, overruled on other grounds, State v. Laguna, 1999-NMCA-152, 128 N.M. 345, 992 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

30-3A-3.1. Aggravated stalking; penalties.

A. Aggravated stalking consists of stalking perpetrated by a person:

(1) who knowingly violates a permanent or temporary order of protection issued by a court, except that mutual violations of such orders may constitute a defense to aggravated stalking;

(2) in violation of a court order setting conditions of release and bond;

(3) when the person is in possession of a deadly weapon; or

(4) when the victim is less than sixteen years of age.

B. Whoever commits aggravated stalking is guilty of a fourth degree felony. Upon a second or subsequent conviction, the offender is guilty of a third degree felony.

C. In addition to any punishment provided pursuant to the provisions of this section, the court shall order a person convicted of aggravated stalking to participate in and complete a program of professional counseling at his own expense.

History: Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 4.

Effective dates. — Laws 1997, ch. 10, § 8 made the Harassment and Stalking Act effective July 1, 1997.

ANNOTATIONS

Proof of intent. — Although aggravated stalking need not be construed as requiring, like aggravated assault, some use of a weapon, it is reasonable to construe the aggravated stalking statute as requiring some intent to use a weapon not specifically named or specifically described in 30-1-12B NMSA 1978 as a weapon. State v. Anderson, 2001-NMCA-027, 130 N.M. 295, 24 P.3d 327.

Jury instruction. — Under an aggravated stalking charge, when the object or instrument in question is an unlisted one that falls within the catchall language of 30-1-12B NMSA 1978, the jury must be instructed (1) that the defendant must have possessed the object or instrument with the intent to use it as a weapon, and (2) the object or instrument is one that, if so used, could inflict dangerous wounds. State v. Anderson, 2001-NMCA-027, 130 N.M. 295, 24 P.3d 327.

The aggravated stalking statute is not unconstitutionally vague. State v. Smile, 2009-NMCA-064, 146 N.M. 525, 212 P.3d 413, cert. quashed, 2010-NMCERT-006, 148 N.M. 582, 241 P.3d 180.

The aggravated stalking statute requires only one act in furtherance of a pattern of stalking. State v. Smile, 2009-NMCA-064, 146 N.M. 525, 212 P.3d 413, cert. quashed, 2010-NMCERT-006, 148 N.M. 582, 241 P.3d 180.

Sufficient evidence. — Where the victim of the defendant's stalking attempted to end the relationship between the defendant and the victim; the defendant threatened to kill the victim and to damage the victim's car, left threatening letters in the victim's mailbox and made threatening phone calls to the victim's father; the victim obtained a temporary restraining order against the defendant; before the TRO was served, the defendant appeared at the victim's apartment with Ninja-style knives, told police officers that the defendant was at the apartment to put the fear of God into the victim; when the TRO was served on the defendant, the defendant stated that a piece of paper would not stop the defendant from inflicting pain and fear on the victim; and the victim found a copy of the TRO in the door of the apartment with a threatening message written by the defendant, the evidence was sufficient to support the defendant's conviction of aggravated stalking. State v. Smile, 2009-NMCA-064, 146 N.M. 525, 212 P.3d 413, cert. quashed, 2010-NMCERT-006, 148 N.M. 582, 241 P.3d 180.

30-3A-4. Exceptions.

The provisions of the [Harassment and] Stalking Act do not apply to:

A. picketing or public demonstrations that are lawful or that arise out of a bona fide labor dispute; or

B. a peace officer in the performance of his duties.

30-4-2. Criminal use of ransom.
30-4-3. False imprisonment.
30-4-4. Custodial interference; penalties.

30-4-1. Kidnapping.

A. Kidnapping is the unlawful taking, restraining, transporting or confining of a person, by force, intimidation or deception, with intent:

(1) that the victim be held for ransom;

(2) that the victim be held as a hostage or shield and confined against his will;

(3) that the victim be held to service against the victim's will; or

(4) to inflict death, physical injury or a sexual offense on the victim.

B. Whoever commits kidnapping is guilty of a first degree felony, except that he is guilty of a second degree felony when he voluntarily frees the victim in a safe place and does not inflict physical injury or a sexual offense upon the victim.

History: 1953 Comp., § 40A-4-1, enacted by Laws 1963, ch. 303, § 4-1; 1973, ch. 109, § 1; 1995, ch. 84, § 1; 2003 (1st S.S.), ch. 1, § 2.

The 2003 (1st S.S.) amendment, effective February 3, 2004, substituted "physical injury or a sexual offense" for "great bodily harm" near the end of Subsection B.

The 1995 amendment, effective July 1, 1995, substituted "kidnapping" for "kidnaping" in the heading and throughout the section; in Subsection A, substituted "restraining, transporting or confining" for "restraining or confining", substituted "by force, intimidation or deception" for "by force or deception", deleted "that the victim" following "intent"; in Paragraphs A(1) and A(3) inserted "that the victim"; in Paragraph A(2), inserted "that the victim be held" and "or shield and"; added Paragraph A(4); and in Subsection B, substituted the language beginning with "he voluntarily" and ending with "harm upon the victim" for "the victim is freed without having had great bodily harm inflicted upon him by his captor".

ANNOTATIONS

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.
II. ELEMENTS OF KIDNAPPING.
III. EVIDENCE AND PROOF.
IV. DOUBLE JEOPARDY.
V. JURY INSTRUCTIONS.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Not void for vagueness. — The 2003 amendment to Subsection B of 30-4-1 NMSA 1978, which replaced the phrase "great bodily harm" with the phrase "physical injury" did not did nor render 30-4-1 NMSA 1978 unconstitutionally vague. State v. Parvilus, 2013-NMCA-025, 297 P.3d 1228, cert. granted, 2013-NMCERT-001.

Constitutionality, vagueness. — Defendant's contention that the words "held to service against the victim's will" had no general meaning which the public could comprehend and thus rendered the statute unconstitutionally vague was without merit. State v. Aguirre, 1972-NMSC-081, 84 N.M. 376, 503 P.2d 1154.

The language of Subsection B, regarding how a first degree crime is reduced to a second degree crime, is not unconstitutionally vague because it can be understood by, and gives reasonable notice to, persons of ordinary intelligence exercising common sense. State v. Laguna, 1999-NMCA-152, 128 N.M. 345, 992 P.2d 896, cert. denied, 128 N.M. 149, 990 P.2d 823.

If multiple victims, kidnapping offense committed against each one. — Where the criminal information charges that each of a number of victims was held as hostage, the defendant is put on notice that the state charges that one offense of kidnapping was committed by holding any one of the victims as a hostage, and the defendant should be prepared to defend the charge in connection with each of the victims. State v. Davis, 1979-NMCA-015, 92 N.M. 563, 591 P.2d 1160.

Standing to challenge validity. — Defendant, who by standing mute in fact entered a plea of not guilty and was convicted on trial of a second degree felony for kidnapping, had no standing to attack the validity of the kidnapping statute (as it read prior to the 1973 amendment) on grounds that leaving to the jury the decision as to whether the crime should be a capital or second degree felony constituted a denial of equal protection. State v. Sharpe, 1970-NMCA-078, 81 N.M. 637, 471 P.2d 671.

Construction. — Subsection A(1) of this section should read "Kidnapping is the unlawful taking, . . . with the intent that the victim be held for ransom and confined against his will," and Subsection A(2) should read "Kidnapping is the unlawful taking, . . . with the intent that the victim be held as a hostage and confined against his will." State v. Clark, 1969-NMSC-078, 80 N.M. 340, 455 P.2d 844 (decided under prior law).

Person asked to do or forbear act cannot be same as victim in a prosecution for kidnapping. State v. Davis, 1979-NMCA-015, 92 N.M. 563, 591 P.2d 1160.

Each of two hostages may also be third person. — If it is charged that X and Y were held as hostages, this does not prohibit a conviction of kidnapping on the basis that X was hostage for the performance of some act by Y, and vice versa. State v. Davis, 1979-NMCA-015, 92 N.M. 563, 591 P.2d 1160.

Jury instructions. — Where defendant entered the victim's house; defendant pulled a gun, put the gun to the victim's head, and told the victim that defendant planned to rape the victim; defendant threatened to kill the victim's child if the victim did not comply; defendant raped the victim; a jury convicted defendant of kidnapping in the first degree and second degree criminal sexual penetration; the district court gave the jury UJI 14-403 NMRA, the kidnapping jury instruction, but did not give the jury UJI 14-6018, the special verdict form asking the jury to find whether defendant committed a sexual offense against the victim; and the district court modified defendant's conviction for first degree kidnapping to second degree kidnapping because the jury did not find, pursuant to the special verdict form, that defendant committed a sexual offense against the victim, the district court erred in modifying defendant's conviction for first degree kidnapping because the jury independently found that defendant had committed a sexual offense against the victim. State v. Dominguez, 2014-NMCA-064, cert. denied, 2014-NMCERT-005.

II. ELEMENTS OF KIDNAPPING.

"Force". — "Force" cannot be construed to mean merely violent or deadly force, as it could not have been the legislative intention to so limit the statute, for many kidnappings are accomplished by the use of only minimal force, as, for example, where a child is abducted. State v. Clark, 1969-NMSC-078, 80 N.M. 340, 455 P.2d 844.

"Deception" necessarily implies that the victim is unaware that she is being kidnaped. State v. Garcia, 1983-NMCA-069, 100 N.M. 120, 666 P.2d 1267, cert. denied, 100 N.M. 192, 668 P.2d 308.

"Hostage". — Term "hostage," when used with reference to a person and in the context in which it is used in New Mexico's kidnapping statute, implies the unlawful taking, restraining or confining of a person with the intent that the person, or victim, be held as security for the performance, or forbearance, of some act by a third person. State v. Crump, 1971-NMSC-051, 82 N.M. 487, 484 P.2d 329; State v. Davis, 1979-NMCA-015, 92 N.M. 563, 591 P.2d 1160.

"Held to service". — The purpose of being so compelled or induced - "for the purpose of performing some act" - probably could be better stated; for example, using Webster's: "for the purpose of assisting or benefiting someone or something." Such an explanation serves to distinguish kidnapping from false imprisonment, which is a lesser offense included within kidnapping. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

The third objective mentioned in the statute, holding for service, should be construed to effectuate the same overall scheme as the first two objectives - holding for ransom and as a hostage - namely, to accomplish some goal that the perpetrator may view as beneficial to himself or herself. State v. Ortega, 1991-NMSC-084, 112 N.M. 554, 817 P.2d 1196.

Once the defendant restrained the victim by force or coercion for service against her will, the crime of kidnapping occurred; the key to the restraint element in kidnapping is the point at which the victim's physical association with the defendant was no longer voluntary. State v. Pisio, 1994-NMCA-152, 119 N.M. 252, 889 P.2d 860, cert. denied, 119 N.M. 20, 888 P.2d 466.
